If "A. R." is as fine as Earl Holden claims he is, then here is one man that we must be able to list as an active member of the ROUND TABLE CLUB. He has been responsible for many fine showmanship activities and it is going to be our set purpose at this time to keep after Mr. Nininger until he starts contributing regularly to these pages. And don't forget "A. R." your own photograph has got to be included in your first letter so that we can give you the right kind of an introduction on these pages, when we are telling the boys what you are accomplishing down there for the Sparks Theatres.

Thanks Earl for your tip-off and we won't let "A. R." know that you told us about it. We'll keep it as a great big dark secret (????)

Mgr. L. Rosenbaum Aided Charity Show To Build Good-Will

Manager Louis Rosenbaum of the Muscle Shoals Theatres, Inc., operators of houses in Florence, Sheffield and Tuscumbia, down in Alabama, promoted a Charity Show at the Princess, Ritz and Strand Theatres, that was a great success from a good-will as well as a beneficial standpoint.

Children bringing toys, dolls, cast-off clothing or canned goods were admitted free to the gala benefit shows at the three houses. Rosenbaum secured the co-operation of the leading establishments in the Tri-Cities and received contributions of food, clothing, etc., from the merchants. The gifts were distributed to the poor by the relief committee of the County Board.

And were gratefully received as judged by the newspaper clippings which Rosenbaum had thoughtfully included with his letter. We note that a great many needy cases were benefited. The merchants of the town all came through wonderfully, donating quantities of their merchandise. It is this type of co-operation that helps make theatres a success, and it's the same kind of open-hearted co-operation that makes cities of towns, if you get what we're driving at.

This charity show is a great aid in building up good will, as it can be used at any time. Don't wait for Christmas to roll around before you decide to give a charity show—THERE'S ALWAYS NEEDY PERSONS.

Hiehle Serves His Patrons With Sales Selling Programs

Ed. Hiehle, that bustling manager of the Midland and Auditorium Theatres in Newark, Ohio, hastens to send us a copy of his monthly "bulletin program."

We think the "bulletin" has merit enough Ed. to stand a description of it in these pages, because some of the boys may be able to find a spot for it in their campaigns for "Bigger and Better Box Office."

The bulletin card is printed in black on a yellow background and measures 2½ by 8 inches and carries the program for the Auditorium on one side and the Midland on the other, with a head reading: "A CONVENIENT BULLETIN FROM WHICH YOU CAN SELECT YOUR FEBRUARY ENTERTAINMENT." And then runs on listing the pictures with a few "clue" lines to inform the patrons of the various type of pictures.

A small space on the bottom of the card carries a footnote to the effect that should any changes be made notice would be made in the daily newspapers. It also requests that the reader consult the local paper for more complete information concerning the current attraction. This was an excellent medium for insuring the reading of the newspaper ad as well as getting a "good-will" plug in with the newspaper.

"Lent is Coming!"

We sounded the first warning of this "coming event" in last week's issue and we hasten to repeat it this week.

You should be planning your campaign of action NOW, unless you want to be caught napping.

Watch the Club pages closely every week for ideas and suggestions that may help you over the "rough spots."

Hamilton Adds a Few New Slants to Pep Up The Palace

Manager R. B. Hamilton of the Warner Brothers Palace Theatre in Norwich, Conn., swamped us with a whole raft of clippings and photographs concerning his always interesting activities at the Palace.

Chief among his latest activities is his promotion of a Stamp Club. Boys and girls purchasing tickets to the Palace received a packet of foreign stamps. And as an added inducement the first fifty youngsters attending the matinee were presented with an album. Hamilton made a very valuable tie-up with the schools, sending personal letters to the principals, as well as sending letters to the prominent civic authorities.

This Stamp Club idea, while not new, is a great business builder for Saturday matinees and we are glad to note that Hamilton is one of the pioneers introducing Norwich to this effective medium of box office building.

Thanks a lot for the interest you are taking in us, "R. B." Don't forget we're always glad to hear from you and we earnestly hope that you enjoy a very prosperous season.

NovelAngleBoosted B. O. on This One For Dave Borland

Dave Borland, Manager of the Metropolitan Theatre in Regina, Saskatchewan, Canada, pulled a pretty nifty gag in connection with the showing of "The Kibitzer" when he addressed a special letter printed in Hebrew to over 500 Jewish families who reside in Regina.

Of course this type of stunt has been successfully engineered in cities with a large Jewish population, or in fact any particular nationality that could be appealed to in a group, but when it comes to putting it over as effectively and successfully as Mr. Borland did, up there in Regina, it really calls for more than passing comment.

In addition he did not overlook the English speaking population that comprise the majority of his patrons, and a most effective letter was addressed to them in the form of a personal message from Mr. Borland and contained many interesting details about the picture that whet their appetites to see the attraction itself, and so when the finish of the picture's run rolled around and Dave made his box office check-up on "The Kibitzer" and found that business had increased somewhat you can bet he knew where it came from and knew how to hang onto it.

This was fine stuff, Dave, and we are certain that the reaction more than proves that your efforts were not in vain when the run of the picture was over.

Let's hear some more from you, and remember us to Pete Egan and the rest of the boys up your way.

MANAGERS' ROUND TABLE CLUB

Assistant Managers as Members!

In order that we may dispel a wrong impression, we want all assistant theatre managers to know they are eligible for membership in the Round Table Club, PROVIDING their manager certifies as to the position they hold.

Many assistant managers have important duties in their respective theatres, such as publicity and exploitation directors, treasurers, etc. We therefore feel that their activities are many times just as important to the Club pages as the managers.

The reason we make this one provision is that it is difficult for us to know whether an applicant who calls himself an assistant manager is really just that. We can check up on the managers, but the managers must help us check up on the assistants and we would rather they expressed their willingness before their assistants joined the Club.

Fourmet Celebrated Theatre's Birthday in Great Style

As a part of its third anniversary celebration, the Texas Theatre, San Antonio, Al Fourmet, manager, conducted an Atwater Kent Radio Show advertised in the San Antonio, by a special eight-page section in the San Antonio Sunday Light. The complete front page of the section was devoted to an attractive drawing, announcing the tie-up. The only advertisement which appeared on this front page was one advertising the feature attraction at the Texas for the anniversary show, Buddy Rogers in "Halfway to Heaven."

All of the ads in the section carried specially made boxes advertising the picture and the stage show, and in addition, the reading matter in the section was devoted almost exclusively to various features of the Texas completed bill, together with cuts of the stars.

Even in this day of special sections, the Texas Theatre's Radio section was unique. To all of which we readily agree that this was of first importance.

Al Fourmet certainly handles himself in a business and showmanlike manner and no doubt his Home Office has found time to pat him on the shoulder for what he has succeeded in accomplishing in this particular piece of exploitation work.

Let's hear from you some more, Al, but don't keep us waiting too long. Your stuff sounds mighty interesting.

C. T. Perrin Uses Many Angles to Exploit His Pictures

C. T. Perrin tied the "Greeley Tribune" to a contest on the "Kibitzer" that netted him eight front page stories when that picture was booked for the Sterling Theatre.

The initial newspaper article gave several definitions of a Kibitzer and then told all those who cared to participate that daily ticket prizes and cash awards would be given to the winners. Of course, each article informed the public that the "Kibitzer" was also a name of a picture coming to the Publix-Sterling Theatre.

The three best definitions were selected daily and the composers of these each received a pair of tickets to see the picture. The contest ran for an entire week. At the conclusion of the contest, cash awards of $3 and $2 respectively were given for the best definitions printed.

The "Kibitzer" contest was one of the most popular Manager Perrin ever promoted; over 400 contestants taking part. The definitions not only proved funny reading matter but also sold the picture to large attendances.

Perrin also distributed 4,000 Kibitzer Union Cards to patrons entering the theatre a week in advance and also through theatre employees giving them to friends. These cards carried copy, "This Certifies That (name) is a member in good standing of the KIBITZER Union—This card entitles bearer to butt-in on any conversation, card game, golf, billiards, etc.; stand behind players, advise them, correct their mistakes, help losers to cry, supply them with towels and buckets for their tears—and give decisions which shall be final."

Here's still another from "C. T." on "The Trespasser." Some forty or forty-five telegrams were sent to as many women clubs with the result that the telegrams were read at the meetings. Copy used was, "Gloria Swanson's first all-talking picture 'THE TRESPASSER' comes to the Sterling Theatre Friday and Saturday this week. Miss Swanson reveals not only a speaking voice of rare quality but a singing voice called by critics the best heard on the audible screen: 'The Trespasser' is a highly dramatic story with special appeal to every woman. We wish to invite your President and Secretary to attend the showing of the Friday night performance. This telegram will serve as your ticket."

Starting the day before opening of "The Trespasser," Perrin arranged a broadcast of an organ recital; these recitals to last one hour and to be broadcasted daily for an indefinite length of time. The program is listed as the "Theatres Hour" and gives Perrin the opportunity of playing the song hits from his current and forthcoming pictures as well as putting over a plug on his attractions.

Thanks for those two stories Perrin, we would hate to publish them without some form of acknowledgment for your thoughtfulness in keeping us posted on the way you are putting these attractions across. It might interest you to know that many of your past activities were used and found mighty interesting and profitable to our other members. Some day we hope to reach that point of efficiency at CLUB headquarters, where we can keep our different members posted on how successfully their stunts are being used or revamped and copied in other cities and theatres. Let's hear some more from you real soon and let's have a photo by return mail, so that we can give you a more intimate introduction on the CLUB pages.

LEONARD GORDON says:

"Can't you arrange for the NEWS to be published twice a week instead of only only once. The more I read from the CLUB pages the more I want to read; although the slightest bit is the greatest help."

MANAGERS' ROUND TABLE CLUB

Store Display Was Effective for H. J. Rice in Brooklyn

That real exploitation in the bigger cities, especially like New York, is not dead, is once more proven by the marvelous exploitation stunt engineered and executed for Columbia's latest talking thriller "Murder on the Roof."

In the first picture we show with this story you will see the effective banners which were strung in front of the theatre, as well as the wording around the marquee on this particular attraction. Knowing this spot in Brooklyn as well as we do, makes it certain in our estimation that it attracted a tremendous amount of attention and, no doubt, this attention reacted favorably at the bo office.

In addition to their many other live-wire explotation stunts in connection with this picture, they arranged a most interesting window display at one of Brooklyn's leading department stores which is shown on the second cut with the story, and it also affords us the opportunity of making you personally acquainted with H. J. Rice, Manager of the Fox Brooklyn Theatre, as well as Justine Rogers, who is one of the most famous artists' models in New York and who posed for the character of "Molly" in the illustrations, which are reproduced in this display in the window and were used in the Liberty Magazine as illustrations for the story.

It seems to me that there ought to be a lot of other peppy stuff forthcoming from this crowd over there at the Fox Theatre in Brooklyn, and we hope that this will just be the beginning of their activity on the pages of the ROUND TABLE CLUB. What do you say, Rice, you're putting across enough stuff over in that house of yours to command attention on our pages every few weeks and if it's not there you're keeping yourself a secret for no reason at all. Come on out in the open and let the rest of the gang know what you are doing and how you're doing it.

Kilpatrick Claims Honors for Breaking House Records

A couple of weeks ago we ran an account of how D. E. Knorr, resident manager of the Embassy Theatre in Allentown, Pa., broke his house record with a four-week showing of a recent production, by some wonderful newspaper publicity and exploitation stunts.

And now George W. Kilpatrick, Manager of the Seville Theatre in Easton, Pa., upon submitting his application for membership states that he has bettered Knorr's record. Which is the spirit of friendly rivalry we like to see.

Kilpatrick claims that he played the picture nine days in a town with a population of 35,000, but when the attendance check-up was concluded they found out that they had played to 39,000. And Kilpatrick is mystified.

Never mind, Kilpatrick, we know lots of managers who would be content to always remain in the dark if they could show to four thousand additional people—but the solution of the mystery probably lies in your exploitation of the picture, it stretching out and bringing in people from the other cities. See if we're not right.

We're glad to enroll you as a member of the CLUB, Kilpatrick, and we'd like to have you include a photo of yourself when you send us in the next news of your activities.

Atmospheric Dress For Staff a Good Gag for P. R. Rhine

Some effective exploitation stunts were used by Manager Perry R. Rhine of the Liberty and Empress Theatres in connection with a campaign on a recent production.

The picture, having a Spanish locale, Rhine rented a mannequin model and dressed it in a Spanish costume. The model was then placed in the center of the lobby with a red spot playing upon it to good effect.

An eighteen foot banner, made up of flashy colors and bearing a picture of the star, was hung across the front of the theatre.

An excellent "flash" was obtained by placing an arrow on top of the marquee with the shaft of the arrow projecting out into the street and the head of the arrow pointing to the theatre. The arrow was twelve feet long and two feet wide with a space inside of a foot, for the placing of two globes with flashers. On the outside, sign cloth carried the name of the attraction and the play dates.

The ushers and doormen of the theatre were costumed in Spanish dress in keeping with the atmosphere of the picture. This stunt created a lot of comment both from the patrons as well as the newspapers.

MAILING LISTS were used for a radius of thirty miles, in which were enclosed heralds containing an announcement of the pictures and also the coming attractions.

Thanks, Rhine, for keeping us up on your doing at the Liberty and Empress and we're glad to know that you're keeping things humming there.

MANAGERS' ROUND TABLE CLUB

Congrats to "Tony" Williams

Anthony "Tony" Williams has just assumed charge of the Hudson County Division of the Stanley-Warner Theatres and it is our privilege to pass this information on to those folks who have not yet become acquainted with this fact.

The MANAGERS' ROUND TABLE CLUB wishes to convey to Mr. Williams their congratulations and best wishes for the success which we know is going to become an assured fact by reason of his marvelous experiences and showmanship over a long period of years.

Keep your eye on "Tony" Williams and the Division which he heads for Stanley-Warner and unquestionably you will hear a great deal more about Mr. Williams and the division through the pages of the ROUND TABLE CLUB section in the immediate future.

Gross Still Sets The Pace for Fast Stuff at Orpheum

"Just to show you how we keep on doing things," writes Mickey Gross, from his stronghold at the RKO New Orpheum Theatre in Sioux City, Ia., "here's a few photographs of recent tie-ups."

Oak, Mickey. And to show you the way we keep on doing things, we're going to reproduce them and tell the rest of the Club what the originals must have looked like.

From the photo on the left you will notice that Mickey has assembled an extremely attractive display on Rudy Vallee in "Vagabond Lover." A cut-out head of Vallee forms the central portion of the display, with cards bearing sheet music copies of the theme song, as well as records of the song hits grouped around. We want to call attention to the usual background Mickey has arranged for the display, by using a modernistic tone in his tinseled beaver board. Also note the cut-out arrangement he uses for advertising the theatre and the attraction.

The "plug" for the theatre is hung from the top of the window, with cut-out letters being set in an elliptical arrangement, and bears in addition to the theatre's name the play dates. The attraction is "plugged" with cut-out letters, sprinkled with tinsel and runs across the entire length of the window.

With work like that Mickey should find it very easy to secure tie-ups, as it is a cinch any dealer would be glad to get a nifty display like the one we're reproducing.

The other photograph shows a tie-up engineered by Mickey with one of the local newspapers and the Majestic Radio Corp. Though we have no "dope" on the subject, we surmise from the photograph that they are trying to pick a Miss Majestic from the business girls of the town, as a hook-up with a popularity contest. The winning girl, in addition to annexing the title, probably receives a radio set. But that's that.

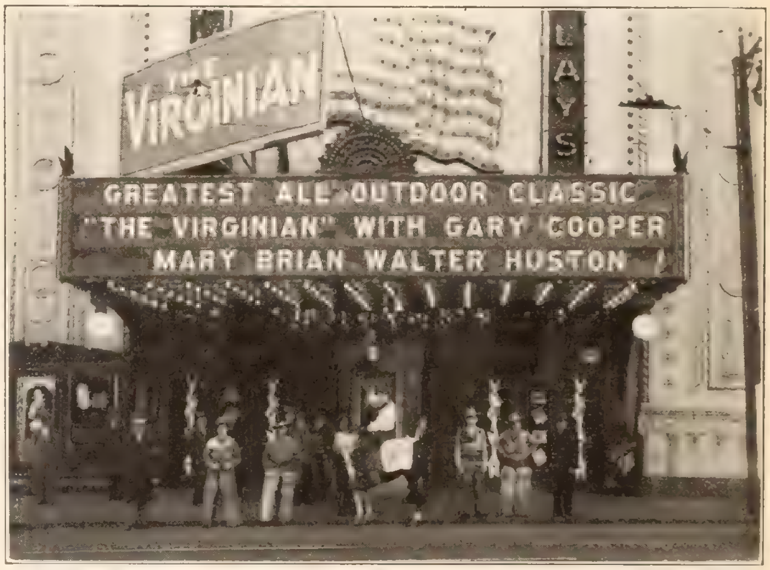
We want you to note the attractive display in the lobby of the theatre that featured the contest. As you will notice a throne has been set up with a sign overhead bearing the question, "Who will be Miss Majestic?" A girl, in an attractive costume, stands in attendance and probably issues votes to patrons requesting them. The votes being dropped in a barrel alongside the throne. The cabinet on the right of the photo evidently contains the prize radio and we notice Mickey has been thorough enough to set up a floor spot to enhance the beauty of the set.

Fine, Mickey; we're glad to chronicle your activities on the ROUND TABLE PAGES whenever we can. Let's hear from you again.

You Will All Want To Meet Ed. Golden Of E. Liberty, Pa.

Step up, fellows, and meet E. J. Golden, live-wire manager of the Liberty Theatre in Pittsburgh, Pa., for the Stanley Warner outfit.

In addition to enclosing his membership application, Mr. Golden has been thoughtful enough to enclose his first contribution, together with his assistant manager's application for membership, and an order for two Club pins, which leads us to believe that Golden is another of those men who believes there is no such word as "procrastination" in the dictionary. We are reproducing a photograph of part of Golden's campaign on "The Virginian" which we think of sufficient value to pass on to you boys.



VIRGINIAN
GREATEST ALL OUTDOOR CLASSIC
"THE VIRGINIAN" WITH GARY COOPER
MARY BRIAN WALTER HUSTON

As you will notice from the photo, Golden dressed his ushers up in cowboy uniforms and had the boys parading around the main streets. Another angle also interesting is the ballyhoo of the usher, dressed like a cowboy, riding a pony around the city, with a banner on the pony's flank reading, "See 'THE VIRGINIAN' at the LIBERTY THEATRE." These stunts did much toward attracting a lot of comment and succeeding in gaining the sort of interest that always reacts favorably toward the box office. The beauty of this type of ballyhoo lies in the valuable returns for the small cost involved in the rental of the pony and the cowboy uniforms.

We also want to call your attention to the marquee carrying "The Virginian's" sales talk. You'll notice that Golden has cashed in on the "classic and outdoor spectacles" angles to the extent of advertising this picture as the "GREATEST ALL OUTDOOR CLASSIC." This is an excellent line to use in connection with the picture as it diverges from the regular run of "catch lines" and is not used as frequently as the other angles, and, because of that, SELLS.

The sign above the marquee seems to be made of beaverboard, with socket holes for lights. This type of "flash" advertising is inexpensive and can be used to good advantage in attracting more than passing attention.

We're glad to welcome you into the Club, Golden, and we're already sold on the idea that some great stuff is going to be forthcoming from you and your assistant, James P. Gelston, and we want Gelston to know that working under a go-getter like yourself, we predict it'll be only a matter of time before he takes up his duties some place as a full-fledged manager and member of the Round Table Club.

MANAGERS' ROUND TABLE CLUB

Ads and Ballyhoo Are Important Factors for Stevenson

D. F. Stevenson, "live wire" of the Lincoln Theatre in Trenton, N. J., came thru with a number of good ideas he used in connection with the exploiting of various pictures that we consider of sufficient merit to pass on to the rest of the Club.

When the Lincoln played "Sweetie," Stevenson arranged a tie-up with a candy company whereby thirty distributors of the Belle Meade product permitted the use of their windows for a ten-day display. One store in the central part of the town conducted a "Guess Contest," offering a prize of a three-months pass to the person who could guess the number of hard candies placed in a jar and featured in the window. This angle caused much comment and was viewed by thousands of passers-by daily.

On the "Hollywood Revue," a tie-up with the local department store through which the store carried an ad on a herald made up in the form of a tabloid newspaper telling about the picture, enabled Stevenson to secure free printing and distribution, as the department store paid for the ad on the back page.

Fifty radio dealers co-operated with Stevenson on the "Love Parade," in what he declares was the "greatest exploitation stunt ever pulled in Trenton." Each Philco dealer provided an attractive window display and also tie-up on a special newspaper "ad" splash which called attention to Chevalier Radio Week. In addition to the newspaper ads the main distributing company posted fifty twenty-four sheets in Trenton and vicinity. Five thousand rotogravure heralds and 3,000 specially made heralds on Chevalier Radio Week were distributed by the dealers and throughout the town. Autographed photos of the star were also given away.

Drug stores, lunch rooms and restaurants were also pressed into service for Stevenson's mammoth campaign by pasting specially prepared posters which read, "Love Parade Sundae" and "Chevauer Salad" on the walls and which were instrumental in securing some added business for the theatre.

Another of the popular candy tie-ups which so many of the Club members are using was effected with a local manufacturer of candy kisses whereby Stevenson secured for free distribution 5,000 kisses and which were given away in conjunction with Greta Garbo in "The Kiss."

"Of course," says Stevenson, "we had the customary music and phonograph window displays in the center of the city, but they are becoming a weekly occurrence and may have lost some of their pep." You're quite right, "D. F.," they may have lost SOME of their pep, but hang on to them always. The public is theme-song conscious now and their first query upon inspecting a piece of music or hearing a new song is, "WHAT PICTURE IS THAT FROM?"

We are reproducing a picture of a truck ballyhoo that Stevenson used on "Sweetie" which was a "natural" as an attention-getter due to its unusuality of design, which, as you will notice from the photo, is "some shakes." The girls alongside the truck are distributing samples of candy.

We want to say a word of praise right now for the snap that characterizes the newspaper ads. Just look at them. You'll notice that extreme care has been taken in lay-out and they've been laid out to SELL. And also note, please, that when a short subject merits plugging it is put in with the feature and PLUGGED. Another interesting angle pounced upon by Stevenson is the carrying of testimonials by local celebrities in the ads, and while this is not a new idea it is nevertheless very effective. And if you think it will help your business try it.

Grab Hold of This One, Then Thank Brother Albertson

The following story was featured on the front page of Jack Albertson's Program for the Indiana Theatre in Indiana Harbor, Ind. Since it contains a "wallop" that may mean something to you, we are hastening to pass it along and incidentally, if you have been confronted with a problem similar to this one, then Jack's way of handling it should certainly interest you.

Here is the way the announcement read:

> NO MORE PARKING WORRIES!
> Ever elert to improving its service to its patrons and always on the watch for ways and means of making theatre-going the pleasantest of recreations, the Indiana management has SOLVED THE PARKING PROBLEMS OF ITS PATRONS.
> No more hunting for parking space . . . no more parking blacks from the theatre . . . no more cramming into tight places! You drive your car right up to the parking station on the corner. Pay the regular parking fee of 25 cents. Then as you purchase your theatre ticket at the Indiana box office, give the cashier your parking check and YOUR 25 CENTS WILL BE REFUNDED. The Indiana has made all the arrangements and bears all the cost.
> We are proud of the fact that the Indiana is the ONLY THEATRE IN THE STATE offering FREE PARKING SERVICE in a paid parking station. Take advantage of this service every time you come to the Indiana.

Thanks Albertson for this one. You may not have realized at the time you sent it that it was something we wanted badly, but now you know it. Let's know some more about that Magnafilm gag of yours. It's created quite a stir and we're at a loss to answer, satisfactorily, the many inquiries put to us.

WELCOMING ANOTHER GROUP

HUGH W. WALLACE, manager of the Kitsiland Theatre in Vancouver, B. C., is another of the Canadian showmen to enroll in the CLUB. We want to extend you a hearty welcome, Wallace, and we hope you will become an active member. Let's have a photo of yourself. Oak.

—Wear Your Club Pin! ! !—

C. C. WHITACRE is the manager of the Romina Theatre in Forest City, N. C., and since he has received a lot of valuable suggestions from the CLUB pages he will no doubt become an active contributor. Let's hear from you soon, "C. C.," and include a photo of yourself. How about it?

—Wear Your Club Pin! ! !—

ROBERT W. RHODES is the assistant manager of the Loew's Theatre in Canton, Ohio, and as Robert comes well recommended by Russell A. Bovim, we feel under that showman's tutelage he'll soon fare forth on his own hook as a full-fledged house manager. Let's hear from you again, Robert, and send us a photograph of yourself.

—Wear Your Club Pin! ! !—

BOB EULER is the manager of the Strand Theatre in Wichita Falls, Tex., for the Publix outfit and we have every reason to believe he will prove an active contributor to the CLUB'S pages. How about it, Bob? Let's hear from you.

—Wear Your Club Pin! ! !—

A. R. NININGER is the manager of the E. J. Sparks Theatres in Fort Lauderdale, Fla., and as we intend to give him a formal introduction on the CLUB'S pages shortly, we'll just bid him welcome at this time and hope he continues the good work he is doing at Fort Lauderdale. Oak, "A. R."

—Wear Your Club Pin! ! !—

E. J. GOLDEN is the manager of the Liberty Theatre in Pittsburgh, Pa. Golden does not really need this type of introduction as we have already told you much about him on the CLUB pages in the NEWS. But since all new members must enter through this portal we must hand E. J. a paragraph or so. Best of luck, "E. J."

ALBERT J. GRASGRIN is the manager of the Rialto Theatre in So. Norwalk, Conn., and knowing what a nice little town So. Norwalk is we feel sure that Albert is using some high pressure showmanship there. Let's hear from you concerning your activities at the Rialto, Albert, and you might include a photo of yourself in your next letter.

DIEHL MERS is the manager of the Orpheum Theatre in Ottawa, Illinois, and though Diehl has been represented on the CLUB pages before we must present him in the usual way on the "initiation" pages. We're glad to note that Diehl has become an active member and we feel sure that he will continue the good work. How about it, Diehl?

—Wear Your Club Pin! ! !—

ELLSWORTH HAMER is the manager of the Croswell and Family Theatres in Adrian, Michigan, and as he has been in the show business for a long time we want Hamer to know that we expect to hear some fine things concerning his activities at the Croswell and Family Theatres. Let's hear from you real soon, Hamer, and send us a photo of yourself so that we can let the rest of the CLUB meet you.

—Wear Your Club Pin! ! !—

FRANK SARGENT is the manager of the Floral Theatre in Floral Park, L. I., New York, and seeing that P. W. Anderson claims that the managers on the Playhouse Operating Co. Circuit "know their stuff," we can expect to tell you a lot about Frank's activities in the near future. Write, Frank? And send us in your photo so that we can let the rest of the world see you.

—Wear Your Club Pin! ! !—

DAVID MURPHY is the manager of the Hollis Theatre in Jamaica, Long Island, N. Y. Murphy is also one of the Playhouse Operating Co.'s managers, and boy! with so many of that circuit's managers represented in the CLUB it looks as though competition will be pretty keen. So let's hear some peppy accounts of your work, David, and when you write enclose your photograph, too.

LAWRENCE BORG manages the Rivoli Theatre in Berkeley, Calif., and knowing the way they do things out on the Coast we look forward to hearing some good things concerning Borg and his activities. Let's hear from you, Lawrence, and you might send us a photo of yourself in order that we can let the rest see what you look like.

—Wear Your Club Pin! ! !—

NORMAN E. FITZ is the manager of the Broadway Theatre in Norwich, Conn., and he wants us to know that there's going to be some mighty nice things in store for us. Oak, Norman. That's the sipirt we like to see. Let's have all the stunts you can shoot into us and if they merit passing on you'll find that you'll get plenty of recognition on the CLUB pages. And you might send us in a photo of yourself so that we can give you a real formal introduction.

—Wear Your Club Pin! ! !—

L. B. SCHULER is the advertising manager of the State and Plaza Theatres in Sandusky, Ohio, for the Schine Circuit. We want you to know, Schuler, that with an important position like yours we expect to hear some mighty nice accounts of your activities. How about it? Let's hear from you real soon and include a photo of yourself so that we can let the rest of the CLUB see you. Oak.

—Wear Your Club Pin! ! !—

HARRY H. KOCH manages the Rowland Theatre in Wilkinsburg, Pa., for the Warner Bros.' Pittsburgh district. And working with a snappy outfit like the Pittsburgh crowd we can expect to hear a lot concerning Koch's activities in the near future. Right, Koch? Let's have a photo of yourself, too, will you?

—Wear Your Club Pin! ! !—

AL FOURMET is the manager of the Texas Theatre in San Antonio, Texas, for the Publix outfit, and from all indications that have reached this office concerning Al's doings, he should become a mighty active member on these pages. How about it, Al? Let's hear from you.

MANAGERS' ROUND TABLE CLUB

OF LIVE-WIRE MEMBERS!

HERBERT BRENON, JR., manages the Isis Theatre in Pensacola, Florida. We want to welcome Brenon into the CLUB and we want him to know that he will have to step high and wide to keep up with that peppy bunch of Florida showmen down there, but we're of the opinion that he, too, is a go-getter and we expect to present his activities on these pages often. How about it, Brenon? Send us in a photo of yourself and a little note so that we can give you a proper introduction on the CLUB pages.

———Wear Your Club Pin! ! !———

G. L. WOOD is the manager of the Publix Plaza Theatre in Paris, Texas. We are always glad to welcome another manager from this circuit into the CLUB and Wood is no exception. We feel sure that he is going to become as active as his brother members on the same circuit and will be frequently represented on these pages. How about it, "G. L."?

———Wear Your Club Pin! ! !———

RALPH E. PHILLIPS is the manager of the State Theatre in Chattanooga, Tenn., and as news has reached this office concerning Ralph's activities at the Egyptian Theatre in Greenville, S. C., we want him to know that we are going to keep our eyes on him at his new house in Chattanooga. Let's hear from you concerning your work at the State, Ralph. Oak.

———Wear Your Club Pin! ! !———

KEN BENSON is the assistant manager of the Vita Temple Theatre in Toledo, Ohio, and we feel that as Ken is working under a showman like Jack O'Connell, it will only be a matter of time, under Jack's apt tutelage, until Ken blossoms forth as a full-fledged showman. We want Ken to know that we are watching his activities out there at the Vita Temple and we know that Jack O'Connell will give him all the credit he deserves.

———Wear Your Club Pin! ! !———

EUGENE J. LANG manages the Ward Theatre in the Bronx, N. Y., and knowing the type of peppy showing operating up there where competition is strong, we are under the impression that we are going to hear a great deal from Eugene. We're glad to welcome you into the Club, Eugene, and we know that you're going to secure some valuable ideas from us, as well as giving some to us. Why not send us in a photo of yourself with your next letter?

———Wear Your Club Pin! ! !———

CHARLES WINKELMANN is the general manager of the Playhouse Operating Co. in Hollis, Long Island, N. Y., and we feel sure that he must be a regular guy, especially when he decides to head his managers by joining the CLUB first and, according to P. W. Anderson, he sure is a regular guy. We're glad to welcome you into the finest organization of showmen in the world, Winkelmann, and we'd like to run your photo and give you a more formal introduction on these pages.

J. ARTHUR SIMON manages the Colonial Theatre in Grand Rapids, Mich., and as J. Arthur makes it a point to have his assistants join the CLUB it gives us the impression—or rather it strengthens the impression—we had of him as a live showman. We ran a little article on J. Arthur not so long ago, but we want him to know that the reason we are giving him this little "intro" is in keeping with the CLUB policy of an initial "informal" introduction, prior to "crashing" our big pages.

———Wear Your Club Pin! ! !———

GERALD LARSEN is the assistant manager of the Colonial Theatre in Grand Rapids, Mich., and we feel sure that, working with a capable showman like J. Arthur Simon, it will only be a short while before Gerald will be ready for his own house. Let's hear from you, Gerald, and we'd like a photo of yourself, too.

———Wear Your Club Pin! ! !———

VERNON REAVER is the manager of Ritz Theatre in Birmingham, Ala., and, according to George Steele, who gives him a fine send-off, we're going to hear of some big doings down in Birmingham. How about it, Vernon? We want to hear from you real soon and don't forget to send us your photo.

H. R. HITCHINSON manages the Parkdale Theatre in Toronto, Ont., and we look forward to hearing some mighty interesting things concerning his activities at the Parkdale. Let's hear from you real soon, "H. R.," and you might include a photograph of yourself with your next letter.

———Wear Your Club Pin! ! !———

JNO. F. MYERS is the manager of the Imperial Theatre in Sarnia, Ont., and, knowing that Myers believes in selling his shows, we may expect some great things from him in the near future. Let's hear from you, Myers, and enclose one of your own photographs so that we can give you another send-off on the CLUB pages.

———Wear Your Club Pin! ! !———

CHARLES S. FERGUSON is the manager of the Strand and Capitol Theatres in Brandon, Manitoba, Canada, and though he undoubtedly is a very busy man handling the two theatres, we've got an idea that we will hear some interesting accounts of his activities. How about it, Ferguson, let's hear from you.

———Wear Your Club Pin! ! !———

ARTHUR K. GRABURN manages the Colonial Theatre in Port Arthur, Ontario. Art has long been a follower of the CLUB'S activities and we know that now he has become an active member we are going to hear some real accounts of his work. How about it, Art? Let's hear from you, and send us in a photo of yourself, too.

———Wear Your Club Pin! ! !———

W. P. McGREACHIE manages the Algoma Theatre in Saulte Ste. Marie, Ont., up around where Jack Allan toils, and when a guy like Jack proposes a man for membership you can be sure that we are going to hear something interesting concerning the man. So don't forget, "W. P.," we want to hear from you real soon.

———Wear Your Club Pin! ! !———

JOHN McGLYNN is the assistant manager of the Central Theatre in Newark, New Jersey, and from the good reports we have been hearing about him we feel we can depend upon him to be a real active member. Let's hear from you concerning your show career, John.

———Wear Your Club Pin! ! !———

PAUL W. KUNZE manages the State Theatre in Stoughton, Mass. We would certainly like to know a whole lot about Paul's activities and what he is doing to boost the old b. o. Let's hear from you, Paul, and you don't want to forget to include your photo with the letter.

———Wear Your Club Pin! ! !———

C. E. GIESSEMAN is the manager of the Norshore Theatre in Chicago, Illinois. We want "C. E." to know that we are pleased to welcome him into the CLUB and that if he expects to keep up with the rest of the "Windy City" gang who are members, he'll have to step. And we know that we're going to hear a lot of interesting things from him. Oak, "C. E." Don't forget to send us in a photo of yourself.

BENEFIT OF COLOR
PENALTY OF COST

COLOR is the order of the day. Sonochrome brings it without the penalty of added cost. Sixteen delicate tints and a warm neutral tone are available at the same price as ordinary black-and-white. This, plus the fact that it gives really faithful sound-on-film, accounts for the success of this series of Eastman tinted positive films.

LAUGH sensations—the real knock-'em-off-their-seats comedy "wows"—have been appearing on Educational's program of talking comedies with a regularity both surprising and gratifying to the exhibitors playing them. But just as gratifying is the fact that there are no "low spots" in between the "wows". The Billboard is voicing the general opinion of critics and exhibitors when it says of Educational's comedies: "They're all good."

NEW POLICY

Announced By

RCA PHOTOPHONE, INC.

Three distinct types of sound reproducing equipment have now been perfected to meet the needs of every exhibitor.

Small theatres having a capacity up to 1,000 seats may now obtain equipment at a new low price—the same price heretofore paid by theatres of 500 seating capacity.

Under the new policy exhibitors will now have the option of cancelling all further payments for service . . . after two years.

Up to now the cost of RCA Photophone sound reproducing equipment for theatres of from 500 to 1,000 seating capacity has been nearly double the cost of the model formerly distributed to theatres of 500 capacity.

An epoch-making achievement . . . Backed by the vast resources, engineering and accoustical skill of

Motion Picture News

Vol. XLI NEW YORK CITY, MARCH 1, 1930 No. 9

"ACTIONS SPEAK LOUDER . . . . ."

WELL, well! So the good old days of the picture business have not gone forever. Hollywood and New York, months late, have re-discovered that the action yarn, fast-moving, zippy and loaded with movement, is still a fundamental in the business of making motion pictures which the public demands.

It seems that the world at large was aware of this startling fact except producers whose job it is to keep in touch with the public they serve. Now, sheep-like, and amusingly enough, the industry is about to take an about-face and travel back over ground well worn until it reaches a point approximately identical with its leaping-off place in sound.

Noise—No Matter What Kind

Talkers that talk have been riding the waves since the pesky innovation stuck its head in the door. All dialogue films certainly have lived up to the literal meaning of the term. When the characters didn't talk, they sang. When and if they didn't sing, a jazz band bellowed forth with hot music, until the point was reached where mention of that quonda feeling of restfulness which the picture theatre once bragged about became an excuse for near-murder.

But now this business of two characters straddling the screen and talking until the audience wishes they would dry up or else, is to be shoved into the background. The good all action yarn—the kind of pictures they formerly made—are to play a return engagement, only this time in sound—sensible, restrained, judicious sound, we hope.

For months the screen has spoken to the audiences of America about Monte Carlo, the African veldt, Paris and far-off places. Now when the story calls for it, the gang out front is going to see what the story talks about as well as hear what the story has to say. That's terrifically important.

Eye and Ear—Why Not Both?

One of the most vital, yet withal intangible, assets of the motion picture always has and always will be its ability to fire the imagination with its pictorial charm. Sound pictures, to date, have made very considerable efforts to replace eye appeal with ear appeal when the logical method was to use both.

The Problem In Advertising

The discussion is on. There are some who naively inquire, "Is picture advertising overstepping the line?" The dear innocents, where have they been?

Probably it is bad form to jog the unsuspecting from their pleasant lethargy, but it does seem to us that it is always the humane thing to do to flag a train before it sticks its nose into a wreck.

So it is this column feels about the situation current today. Whether the fault is traceable to the home offices in New York or overzealousness on the part of showmen in the field is a moot question. It is a fact, however, and definitely so that good taste in selling lines is being ignored for the bad. A dangerous proceeding.

Honky tonk tactics and the sort of salesmanship used to ballyhoo burlesque should have no place in the structure of this industry. While producers, under the aegis of Will H. Hays, worship before the shrine of better and ever better pictures, several of the studios insist upon double-barrelling their dialogue with the fine touch of a garbage collector.

From somewhere and either accidentally, carelessly or by design, advertising is picking up the same tone. Not all advertising, but a lot of it. The consequent situation is as inconsistent as any rational human can well imagine.

Real effort is spent in explaining and convincing women's clubs and better picture movements that producers are sincere in their desire to improve production. Yet the propaganda, entirely legitimate in its purpose, stands in grave danger of defeating itself and from within at that.

The Playing-with-Fire Pastime

The suggestion has been made that if advertising is suggestive the newspapers, through the exercise of self-censorship, should be expected to reject it. True, and very much to be desired. But at the same time, the industry itself should have enough pride in its own reputation to safeguard against any unnecessary criticism that might be levelled in its direction.

There are enough cranks and reformers on the fringe, bricks in hand and ready to throw them. Why, in the name of common sense and invectives, give them that opportunity?

An Insider's Outlook

IT was at the Metropolitan Club a few nights back. There sat John E. Otterson and Harry Stuart—silent men, but important, whether you believe it or not, in the settlement of the muddled Fox affairs.

That night, however, they weren't so silent. They talked and talked and talked over and after their dinner. Two hours' worth of talk to be exact. What they said to each other they, of course, alone knew, but—O. and S. are big business men, and March 5, the reddest of red letter days in Fox history, is not so far away.

The Big Scene

There you have one act of the play. Or maybe it was a prelude. Now the big scene:

The day is Thursday. Behind barricaded doors, a number of headline names are conferring. In the group are represented Otterson and Stuart and members of the Fox cohort that haven't been saying such nice things in print of late about the two men from downtown. Strangely enough and despite what appears to be diverse interests, they don't seem so far apart and, after all, it seems they do talk to one another.

The conclusion—it's always satisfying to draw one—is that before the Fox stockholders meet next Wednesday the troublesome ends may be woven into whatever pattern the final picture assumes with the flag of peace waving on high.

Funny Twists of Fate

They didn't exactly cross the other side of the street when they met, it is true, but not so long ago Fox never issued forth with loud cheers when Louis B. Mayer's name was mentioned. And Louis never enthused particularly about Bill.

You may recall the incidents that trailed Fox's buy into Loew's almost a year ago. Both Mayer and Thalberg hurried East. They were astounded, shocked and a couple of other things that can't be printed. They were going to do this and that about their contracts. They banged on tables. So did Fox, punctuating his punches with a remark which ran something like this:

"Gentlemen, what do you think I paid $50,000,000 for?"

Anyway, Fox eased himself into first place; Mayer in second. And that, please remember, is something Louis B. is not accustomed to.

All that, however, is over. Bill and Louis are bosom friends and they actually smile when they see each other. The conclusion, if again you must have one, is that the day of the near-miraculous is not over.

A PICTURE SO DELICATE IN THEME WE DO NOT RECOMMEND IT FOR CHILDREN!

A Great Drama of Love That Defied Conventions!

"The SACRED FLAME"

A new note in truthful advertising as struck by the Embassy in San Francisco.

Another Big One

That quiet young feller, Herman Starr. Rarely gets into print, yet behind that cigar of his is a brain working efficently and well on behalf of the Warners. Now it's the Brunswick-Balke-Collender outfit Starr is after, with a more than an even chance that he'll nab it. That'll place the Warners in the phonograph as well as wholesale radio business and forge a new link in the formidable music business developing under the Starr gaze.

On the Level

"A picture so delicate in theme we do not recommend it for children." Right in the newspaper copy advertising "The Sacred Flame" at the Embassy, San Francisco and the Rivoli, Baltimore. Smart showmanship and the first evidence of what must inevitably come. Smart because it eliminates deception and subterfuge and, to our mind, a fine instance of service to the public. The Warner theatre department in Philadelphia is responsible, so it is believed. Whoever is deserves a load of credit.

Jack Alicoate Smiles

And why not? He and his Film Daily crew have a real load off their collective chests. The Year Book for 1930 has been turned over to an industry that has learned to lean on it annually as an authoritative and encyclopedic reference work of the various and sundry in motion pictures. A complete job and a handsome job to boot. A staggering compilation of facts and statistics which, in addition to imparting important and necessary information, tends to quicken a fuller realization of how extensive the ramifications of this business really are. The Year Book makes a comfortable companion by the right elbow—not for a few days or a few weeks, but all through the year.

The Little Birdie

Big executive. Spell it this way: BIG. Everybody knows him. His success came with that of the company he serves until today this unknown warrior is real headline stuff.

He may know it. Probably not, however. That he is riding for a tumble. Just as inevitably as m-e-o-w with an "n" anagrams itself into w-o-m-e-n. When? Your guess is as good as ours. But—when the hurdles unseat him from his steed, what a tumble he's slated to take! All the king's horses and all the king's men won't help him any.

Otterson-Stuart Rift with Fox Ends; Refinacing Via Lehman Plan Assured

Merger Again Whispered

If and when government approval of a merger between Fox Film, Fox Theatres and Loew's Inc., is secured, it is understood the theatre holdings of the combined companies will be consolidated under the general name of Fox Theatres.

It is understood that Fox has, on his Washington visits, conferred with officials of the Department of Justice and that satisfactory, although undefined, progress was made in connection with the department's suit against Fox for acquisition of the Loew stock.

Fox Making Drive to Win Proxies

Every stockholder of Fox Film and Fox Theatres in the United States is being directly solicited by representatives of the Fox companies to secure enough proxies to swing the Lehman-Bancamerica-Dillon-Read refinancing plan on March 5.

Every Fox branch manager has been converted into the captain of a team composed of his salesmen. Practically all film selling has been dropped in the last ten days in favor of the drive for proxies. The managers of theatres controlled by Fox Metropolitan Playhouses in the Greater New York territory, as are managers of all Fox houses throughout the country, have been enrolled.

There are approximately 9,000 stockholders of Fox Film and about 10,000 of Fox Theatres. William Fox and the majority of his board of directors have endorsed the Lehman plan; Winfield Sheehan and Saul Rogers are opposed. The race for proxies is growing in intensity as the stockholders' meeting, slated to be held in the Fox headquarters in New York on March 5, approaches.

In addition to the direct solicitation conducted by Fox employees, the three banking groups involved have crews in the field. Fox, through agents, is understood to be buying up large blocks of Fox Film and Theatres stock in order to swing the proxies toward the Lehman plan.

Va. Censors Now To Cut Dialogue

Richmond—State censors have the power to censor dialogue in pictures, under new restrictions voted by the legislature, which has appropriated $7,108 for wiring the projection room in the state office building with a De Forest reproducer. Heretofore, talk was not deleted.

Saperstein Will Represent Illinois at Allied Confabs

Aaron Saperstein was appointed a delegate to all Allied States' meetings when the board of directors of the Illinois Independent Theatre Owners' Ass'n, of which he is president. met the other week.

New Finance Plan Report Is Denied

Prompt and emphatic denial of report that J. S. Bache & Co., and the group of bankers which has formed the new Class "A" stockholders committee, intends to come forward with a new plan to refinance Fox is made to MOTION PICTURE NEWS by Morton F. Stern, chairman of the group.

The committee was formed, he said, by a group which holds large blocks of the stock, in an effort to impress other holders with the fact that unless satisfactory refinancing is agreed to by March 5, a receivership impends. At present, he says, the committee favors the Lehman plan, but will give consideration to any other plan submitted.

Fox Settles with Boylan Upon Payment of $30,000

Hollywood—Fox and Malcolm Stuart Boylan, title writer and dialogotician, have parted company. The two ended their dispute, which arose when Boylan was assigned to the reading department, with the film company settling the writer's two-year contract for a lump sum of $30,000. Boylan has not decided whether to take a vacation or seek another connection immediately.

Funeral Services Held On Coast for Mabel Normand

Los Angeles—Funeral services for Mabel Normand were held here Friday. The well known comedienne of former years lost a game fight with tuberculosis on Sunday at Monrovia.

The film colony, familiar with the pluck which Miss Normand had displayed all through her long illness, knew for some time that death was inevitable.

Pathe Studio Fire Case to Go Before Grand Jury

Grand jury action is planned by the New York district attorney seeking manslaughter indictments for John C. Flinn and Henry F. Lally as an outgrowth of the Pathe studio fire. His decision is the result of delays in bringing the case to trial in the homicide court.

Victory For Fox Is Seen As Internal Agreement Among Bankers Is Reached

The Fox financial situation, long in the spotlight of the industry's discussions, is more definitely on the road to harmonious settlement than ever before.

Electrical Research Products, Inc., and Halsey, Stuart and Co., both heavy creditors of the Fox organizations, stand ready, it is learned, to withdraw their objections to the Lehman, Bancamerica-Dillon, Read refinancing plan and to throw their support in that direction.

This move, a complete surprise in view of the attacks launched upon both organizations by William Fox, developed on Thursday when it was the subject of a long meeting of the directors of Fox Film.

Bankers Clear the Decks

It is understood the way was paved for an amicable internal settlement by a conference of the bankers interested in untangling the Fox situation and that, unless a last minute hitch, now unforeseen, develops, both "Erpi" and Halsey, Stuart will go into the stockholders' meeting in New York next Wednesday ready to support the Lehman plan.

Under this plan, Fox Theatres will pay "Erpi" $15,000,000 due that company, and Fox Film will meet its $12,000,000 note obligation with Halsey, Stuart and Co. With assurance that these debts will be met, it is understood John E. Otterson and Harry Stuart were swung into line on the premise that, with a solution in sight, there was little to be gained by throwing difficulties in the way of its consummation.

Sheehan, Grainger Step Up

With the bankers stepping into control, it is reported there will be no change in management. It is generally recognized in the industry that developments in the Fox organization have been directly attributable to Winfield Sheehan, in charge of production, and James R. Grainger, in charge of sales, working closely and sympathetically with Fox. As a matter of fact their duties will probably become increasingly important under the new line-up.

Differences have arisen over policy from time to time, but the possibility of a permanent rift in this three-cornered arrangement has never assumed serious proportions.

Collections to Decide Fox Meet

Whether the Fox sales convention to be held May 25 will be in New York, Los Angeles or Atlantic City, depends upon collections between the present time and May 1, under a plan mapped by James R. (Jimmy) Grainger, sales manager. Grainger leaves for the Coast March 7. If collections are up to expectations, Los Angeles will be the scene of the convention, otherwise it will be held at either New York or Atlantic City.

Clean-Up of Agency Situation on Coast On Way; Producers Want to Dominate

Players' Representatives to Be Placed in Control of Studio Committee

Hollywood—Determined to clean up the existing agent and manager situation on the coast, the producers' association has appointed a committee of five members to make a detailed and thorough investigation of player representatives and their methods of doing business with the studios.

M. C. Levee heads the committee, which includes J. J. Murdock, Carl Laemmle, Jr., Sol Wurtzel and Jack Warner. This group will make a complete survey and present their recommendations for future operation of agents to the association.

The studio officials are generally agreed that both managers and agents are a necessary part of the production end of the industry but several recent instances of agents tampering with studio contract players and writers, together with an ever-growing total of local agencies, makes it necessary that the entire situation be controlled immediately.

Under M. P. P. A. Wing

It is expected that official machinery will be constructed to bring the agents and managers under jurisdiction of the producers' association. This is clearly indicated by discussions whereby the agencies become franchised to handle talent, with all deals under close scrutiny. By this method, the association could discipline an agent if the latter endeavored to doublecross any producer by forbidding the agent access to any studio for business purposes.

The coast agency situation, always a difficult problem, has become particularly acute during the last year, when the total number was increased to nearly 75. Many of the newcomers have been recruited from the ranks of former studio employees of more or less standing, with many retaining a particular "in" at the studio where they were formerly employed, assuring them of certain business.

Politics Play Part

Others, with social or family friends in executive studio spots, have been enabled to mushroom overnight into leaders of the agency business in point of volume. Several agents have felt themselves firmly intrenched through political connections in one or more studios, and as a consequence have resorted to sharp practices in dealings with the producers.

Whether or not the present list of agents will be reduced is questionable right now. It is expected that at least one-third of the number will be chopped off the official studio list by the time the official recommendations are reported back to the producers association by the committee in charge.

Fall En Route to Coast

Hollywood — Richard Fall, Viennese operetta composer, is due here from Berlin to write the music for Beatrice Lillie's "London Parade," Fox Movietone revue.

Helping the Relatives

Hollywood—The agency business is a grand business—if you happen to have a brother or a cousin at the studio end handing out fat and juicy assignments. There are at least two notorious instances in Hollywood where agents are cleaning up. Both have relatives sitting in the seats of the mighty at two big studios. That's all the explanation necessary to explain why what's going on is what.

Keeping Watchful Eye on Films and Advertising in Philadelphia

Philadelphia—Watchful eye on pictures and advertising used in this city is to be kept by the Civic Club of Philadelphia. It is the plan of the conference to keep in touch with all film conferences and to cooperate with parent-teacher associations, women's clubs and social agencies in furthering exhibition of good and checking exhibition of bad pictures.

Paramount Never Sanctioned Poster Exchange, Claim

Paramount has never sold posters to poster exchanges, James Clark, ad sales manager, told Motion Picture News in connection with report the company is declining to serve the new poster exchange established in Minneapolis by the Northwest exhibitor unit. Minneapolis reports had stated that all other exchanges there were serving the new poster exchange.

The new poster exchange began functioning several weeks ago under W. A. Steffes, president of the Northwest Exhibitor Association.

For some time distributors have been opposing poster exchanges, objecting to them as a matter of policy.

English and Foreign Films Plan of New Coast Co.

Hollywood—Excelsior Film Prod. has been organized to produce films in English and foreign languages. The new firm is sponsored by the Marquis Cesare Manfredo Origo, Italian nobleman. Alfredo Verrico, who recently resigned as general manager of Italotone Film Prod., has associated himself with the company, which will produce at Metropolitan studios.

De Mille Dabbling in Color

Hollywood—"Madame Satan" will not only be Cecil De Mille's first filmusical, but it will be shot practically entirely in color. Multicolor will be used. It is reported the use of color photography will enable De Mille to surpass his former attempts to glorify the American bathtub.

Columbia Signs Al Ray

Hollywood—Al Ray has been signed to direct for Columbia. His first is tentatively titled "Under Western Stars," by Colin Clements and Florence Ryerson.

Split Policy Seen Testing Draw of Films vs. Vaude

Ottawa.—Drawing power of an all-talker bill, as contrasted with a vaudeville, is expected to be demonstrated at B. F. Keith's, which has a split week and split policy. R-K-O vaudeville is featured three days at 60 cents top, and an all-talker policy three days at 50 cents top, Wednesday and Saturday being the change days.

Freed Renews with MGM; Nacio Brown Goes to RKO

Hollywood—Arthur Freed, lyricist of the song writing team of Nacio Herb Brown and Arthur Freed, has signed a new term contract with M-G-M. Herb Brown declined to renew his contract with M-G-M, and has tied up with RKO on a term contract as a composer.

Santa Claus

Hollywood—John Murray Anderson is recipient of a solid platinum cigarette case from Paul Whiteman, who spent twenty grand—Hollywood money—on the gift to show appreciation for the support rendered by Anderson in the production of "King of Jazz" stage numbers.

Paul apparently desired to be everlastingly remembered, because most of the dough went into a basketful of diamonds which adorn the front of the case in a facial likeness of himself. Script lettering was cut out of solid gold and fastened to the case by solid gold rivets.

Whiteman also spent big money on a gift for Junior Laemmle, but the nature of this present remains a dark mystery.

Players' Squawks Against Call Bureau Induces Campaign Seeking Its Removal

Charge Studios Manipulate

Hollywood—Manipulations of players' engagements are saving studio casting offices thousands yearly, Motion Picture News learns. Taking liberties with performers and their services is a condition of which Fred Beetson of the Association of M. P. Producers says he is in ignorance. He claims the standard players contract provides protection for the individual player. A lot of actors don't agree with him.

Actors Claim They Are Given Run-Around by Studios, But Beetson Denies

Hollywood—While the studios are investigating the general agency situation on the coast, it is likely that the call bureau of the producers' association will also come in for some investigation.

A movement is under way whereby a group of actors will formally demand a probe of the bureau in an effort to end certain asserted practices harmful to players. The players interested in the call bureau operations have been delving into various practices for some months, and say they have succeeded in collecting specific cases detrimental to individual actors which need explanation.

The investigation of agents by the producers may clear things up so that there would be no further need for the call bureau, and the players themselves may demand either abolishment of the office or supervision by a representative of the actors.

Originally Aimed at Agents

The call bureau was launched just a year ago by the producers' association for the specific purpose of curbing crooked agents. The office was to serve only as a relay for calls to actors for possible parts at various studios. Under the proposed system, the call bureau would be held responsible in notifying a specific player that he was wanted for an interview at a certain studio. If the player had a bona fide agent, the latter was notified as well. The sole purpose of the office was to get the studio calls to the players, without any responsibility for closing contracts or making terms.

Claim Players Are Harmed

But the call bureau has been utilized for other purposes for the benefit of the studios and to the detriment of the players, it is charged.

Fred Beetson, executive vice-president and secretary of the producers' association, disclaims all knowledge of conditions existing, even though the call bureau is directly under his supervision. It is quite possible that Beetson and the producing heads of the studios are unaware of true conditions, which are being imposed by subordinate studio employees, without the knowledge of the higher-ups.

But present operations of the call bureau allow studios to take advantage of the actors in two different ways. First, one studio obtains prior rights on the services of a particular player over all other companies—without the payment of any money or without any form of agreement with the player himself. A specific instance of this was brought to the attention of MOTION PICTURE NEWS, and investigated from two different angles. An unnamed player was asked

Senate to Investigate Judge Thacher's Record on the Bench

Washington—Investigation of his relations with public utilities is planned by a subcommittee which is to pass upon nomination of Federal Judge Thacher to the post of solicitor general. Senator Norris of the Senate Judiciary Committee is particularly interested personally in the qualifications of the New York jurist, whose mandate outlawed compulsory arbitration in the film industry.

Columbia Pairs Directors on All Future Pictures

Hollywood—Columbia will pair directors on all future productions, assigning a stage director and picture director to each picture. The first was tried in "Guilty," with George B. Seitz handling the silent action and Ira Hards watching dialogue. A. H. Buren and Karl Brown will team on "The Prince of Diamonds," while Bert Glennon and Patterson McNutt will film "Around the Corner."

Talkers Blamed for Drop in Foreign Film Imports

London—European films exported to the United States, according to statistics recently filed here, show a decided decrease for 1929, due to talkers.

High Tax Bugaboo In Hoover Warning On Govt. Budgets

Washington—Bugaboo of increased taxation for the film and other industries was raised in warning sounded to Congress by President Hoover that to grant all requested appropriation would result in a 40 per cent increase in taxes. Applications are ending for more than $1,700,000,000 in addition to budgeted requirements.

The question, however, is more or less academic as Congress usually has the same flood of appropriation bills, few of which are given consideration. The President's purpose was to call attention to the incessant demand for funds for many purposes, the granting of which would place an impossible drain upon the government.

Jannings Film One of Six Ufas Slated in English

English dialogue versions of six Ufa pictures, including Emil Jannings' "The Blue Angel," are to be made for United States distribution. The others are: "Hearts Melody," "The Love Waltz," "Immortal Vagabond," "The Last Company" and "The White Devil." "The Equator Tramp," which has several English songs, is ready for release.

Hays to Decide Next Step in Move to Halt Attacks by Protestant Journal

Libel Suit Threatened Because of Articles Attacking Ass'n and Milliken

Next step in the controversy between Will H. Hays, Carl E. Milliken and the Hays association and "The Churchman," national journal of the Protestant Episcopal Church, await conferences between Hays and his counsel, Cook, Nathan and Lehman, Motion Picture News learns.

Cook, acting for Hays, early this month demanded from the publication a retraction of alleged defamatory articles and that it cease its attacks on the two industry leaders and the Hays organization, under threat of libel suit. Hays returned to New York Tuesday from his trip to the coast.

The religious weekly's reply to this threat of suit takes the form of a complete reproduction of the letter, appearing on the cover of a recent issue and a short appended statement of what it has been doing and will continue to do. Decision as to the course of action to be pursued, whether civil or criminal, has been held up pending Hays' return to New York.

Attorneys Warn of Legal Action Unless "Misrepresentation" Ends

The Churchman Company,
2 West 47th Street,
New York City.
Dear Sirs:

Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America, Inc., Mr. Will H. Hays, Mr. Carl E. Milliken and Col. Jason S. Joy, having requested me to examine the articles appearing each week in THE CHURCHMAN since June 29, 1929, and to render my opinion thereon, I have advised them that substantially all of the articles are civil libels and that in addition many of them are criminal libels.

No one engaged in work in which the public may be said to have an interest and which is of general concern, has a right to object to comment or criticism provided it be fair and be made with an honest purpose, and had your publications been so limited, there could have been no ground for objection by the corporation or the individuals I represent. When comment or criticism, however, exceeds the bounds of fair and honest criticism and becomes an intemperate, aspersive attack on motive and character, an evil and malicious motive for the publication is inferable. The articles you have published show vicious purpose and an actual malice which the law does not tolerate, and which decent-minded people cannot, as a matter of self-respect, permit to go without challenge, especially where it involves not only themselves but disinterested civic groups and individuals who are co-operating in the establishment of high standards in an important industry.

While it has been brought to my attention that the writer of the articles has boasted that his object was to attack the chief officers of Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America, Inc., I am hopeful that he will awake to the recognition that such an animus reflects only on himself, even as I am hopeful that you will conclude that such an atack on individuals, imputing dishonorable motives, unqualifiedly condemned in the law, should not be tolerated by a journal which is claimed to be dedicated to high religious purposes. Even though you may think that these are furthered by your constant references to Mr. Hays as a Presbyterian, to Mr. Milliken as a Baptist, to Col. Joy as a Methodist, and to the movie producers, as shrewd Hebrews who make big money selling crime and shame, thus emphasizing your own Episcopalian creed as something above and apart, I am convinced that your readers cannot accept your attitude, if for no other reason than that it is un-American.

Unless a retraction is forthcoming in your paper, and I can have the prompt assurance of such a change in the character of your articles that they will hereafter substitute for defamation that fair comment and criticism which is everyone's right and which Motion Picture Producers and Distributors and the individuals at all times freely invite, I have been instructed to institute against The Churchman Company and you and your associates, the proceedings which the law provides.

I am, of course, fully aware, and have pointed out to the parties interested, that the steps contemplated may result in giving added publicity to your defamatory activities, but both Mr. Hays, the President, and Mr. Milliken, the Secretary of Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America, Inc., have declared that the objects for which the corporation was formed, and their own earnest efforts to achieve them, must no longer be jeopardized by your campaign of wilful misrepresentation and vilification and that the socially minded groups and individuals whose aid they have enlisted and whom you are pleased to characterize as "suborned by Big Business against the public interest" should no longer be subjected to the deliberate perversion of motive dominating your attacks. If affirmative action is necessary, it will follow.

Very truly yours,
(Signed) ALFRED A. COOK.

"The Churchman's" statement follows:

"The Churchman's" statement follows:

In reply to the above communication, The Churchman can say only that its sole motive in dealing with the motion picture problem and the men who are responsible for creating it, has been to promote the interest of public morality, the welfare of the young, the protection of the American home; to prevent the spreading of ill fame abroad, and to aid the churches in resisting the demoralizing influences arrayed against them in the interest of a sordid money-making combination which stands convicted in the United States Courts of conspiracy and coercion. It has done this, and proposes to continue under the right of a newspaper as laid down by Alexander Hamilton, in the case of Thomas Jefferson, President of the United States, against Henry Croswell, to wit: "It consists in the right to publish with impunity, truth, with good motive, for justifiable ends, though reflecting on government, magistracy or individuals."

"Sunny Side Up" Title Is Issue in Plagiarism Suit

Omaha—Suit for $100,000 against Fox has been filed in the district court here by Will M. Maupin, editor of "The Hastings (Nebraska) Democrat" and former Omaha newspaperman, charging plagiarism of the title, "Sunny Side Up," he says belongs to him by virtue of a book of poems he published under that title. A second suit is to follow against DeSylva, Brown and Henderson, who wrote the title song, Maupin's attorneys state.

The suit asks a temporary injunction restraining nation-wide showing of picture. A hearing is to be demanded within a week. Maupin says the title of the book was copyrighted several years ago and he attributes part of the volume's success to the title. He states that he has been subject to ridicule because of book's association with the picture, which is "entirely artificial, vapid, superficial, distorted and frivolous, and a plagiarism on the Cinderella theme without its merit."

He fears that the sale of Volume II, now being published, will be hurt, as people will think it a story of the picture. Manuscripts now in preparation have been made worthless by the picture, he states. The film has played the Paramount and World in Omaha, but has not begun its state run yet. Maupin was formerly an editorial writer on the Omaha World Herald and Omaha News Bee, having the column "Sunny Side Up" on the latter. The suit is expected to go to the Federal Court.

Fox officials express themselves as undisturbed over the Maupin action. "One of those things," is their general reaction.

Publix Division Office at Kansas City in New Plan

Kansas City—Division office of Publix has been moved to Kansas City from Denver following the addition of the Grubel circuit of Electric theatres in Springfield, Joplin, St. Joseph and Kansas City, Kan. Louis Finske is to remain in charge with headquarters in the Newman. J. H. Elder of Publix was recently in Kansas City to look over the Newman and Royal and the new Publix houses recently added from the Grubel circuit.

Macy Wins Dismissal of Racon Infringement Suit

Macy Manufacturing Corp. did not appropriate any secret design or formula of Racon Electric Co., the Supreme Court, New York, has decided in dismissing suit of the latter on charge of unfair competition. As a result of the court action, Macy has been advised by its attorneys that it is at liberty to manufacture, sell and use, and its customers to use, without infringement, the exponential horns involved in the action. Racon intends to appeal the decision.

Nolte Slated to Head Md. Unit at Meeting March 20

Baltimore—Nominating committee of the Maryland exhibitor unit has selected the following members of that organization to be voted upon at the annual election March 20:

Charles Nolte, president; Louis Garman, vice president; Frank A. Hirnig, treasurer; William E. Stumpf, secretary. Those nominated for the board of directors include Herman A. Blum, now president; Frank H. Durkee, J. Louis Rome, William Kalb, Samuel Soltz, Thomas D. Goldberg and Phillip Miller of Annapolis.

4,912 W. E. Reproducers in Use Throughout World

Western Electric has installed 4,912 reproducers throughout the world. Of this number, 3,575 are in the United States and 1,337 in foreign countries. Projection rooms are rapidly swinging to the wired division. W. E. reports 181 are now equipped.

N. Y. Censors' Deletions on Wane with Betterment of Films, Report Shows

"Double Meaning" Tendency To Be Checked, Annual Report of Board Warns

Albany.—During 1929 there was a total of 2,710 eliminations as against 4,236 the year before, annual report of the state censorship commission show. In explanation of this, Director James Wingate, in his report says that the producers are endeavoring to make pictures from which deletions need not be made, thereby saving expense, delay and embarrassment. In the same paragraph, however, Wingate says:

"We notice an increasing tendency to include in speaking pictures scenes which, when considered in connection with dialogue, offend the statute on account of having a double meaning. We shall endeavor to watch carefully for all such dialogue and scenes which in their combination leave no doubt but that a salacious meaning is intended."

The report shows that out of the 2,710 deletions last year there were 1,479 which the commission regarded as tending to excite crime; 340 indecent, 320 inhuman, 485 immoral, 80 sacrilegious and six obscene. All told, the commission saw fit to reject a total of 16 pictures in their entirety, although eight were finally whipped into shape and so revised as to be acceptable.

Cost Industry $1,525,645

The annual report shows that since censorship started in New York State back in August, 1921, the producers have paid $1,525,645.57 to have their pictures censored. This has brought a net profit to the state of $895,219.19, the expenses of censorship having amounted to $630,426.38. During the past year the net profit to the state from the operations of the commission reached $146,922.23.

There is some question as to locating the New York City bureau, in the new state office building at Albany, which will be occupied in the very near future by a great many of the state departments and bureaus which are now more or less scattered. Judging from Wingate's annual report, he is not in favor of transferring the bureau to Albany, stating that any such move would retard the work of the commission.

Exercise Dialogue Censorship

The report recommends that film used in an aid to classroom instruction in schools be exempt from inspection. The report shows that a total of 8,496,000 feet of film have been screened before the members of the censorship commission during the year. The report has been filed with the board of regents, the censorship commission being really a division in the state department of education.

Wingate continues to maintain that his body has jurisdiction over speech used in connection with the talkers and states that all companies making application for licenses these days are submitting the dialogue along with the picture.

Pathe Comedy Village Being Built at West Coast Studio

Culver City—Pathe will build a complete comedy village at its plant here as a move in plan to transfer comedy production from New York, according to E. B. Derr, executive vice president in charge of production. The village will operate as a unit with John C. Flinn in charge.

New construction planned includes four new studio projection rooms, offices, a group of permanent exterior and interior sets with ten sound stages to be allotted to the department and several thousand dollars' worth of recording equipment installed. William Woolfenden is to be in charge of comedy material and talent.

Monte and Jack Disagree: Blue Bids Warners Adieu

Monte Blue, contract player with Warners for the past seven years, has left and will free-lance. No reason is assigned for his sudden departure from the Warner payroll, but it is known that the company has found it difficult to obtain story material which the player thought acceptable. Blue's contract, which called for three more pictures, was mutually cancelled by both parties—seemingly without regrets.

"U" Grossed More But Net Dropped During Year

Net of $491,358 for the fiscal year ended Nov. 2, 1929, is reported by Universal Pictures, compared with $1,004,644 the preceding year. This is equal to 66 cents on the common, compared with $2.63 last year.

Gross income for the 1929 fiscal year amounted to $29,111,379, an increase of 7 per cent. over that for the preceding year, when it amounted to $27,180,352.

Jesse Weil to Make Series of Talkers for Columbia

Hollywood—Jesse Weil, who recently completed "Maid to Order," starring Julian Eltinge, for release by Sono Art-World wide, is to produce a series for Columbia. He also is to make six more pictures for Sono Art. His first for Columbia will be "Mr. Mulligan and Mr. Garrity," by Ralph Spence.

Free Lance Players' Pact Ratified by Coast Studios

Hollywood—The new standard contract for free-lance actors has been formally adapted and endorsed by the Motion Picture Producers Ass'n. The contract has already been unanimously approved by a representative group of actors, and goes into effect immediately.

Dick Barthelmess and his wife return from Europe. Barthelmess turns westward in a few days to start work in "The Dawn Patrol."

St. Louis Censor Bill Sidetracked

St. Louis—That heralded effort to censor films and advertising here is to await the time when Alderman Samuel Wimer finds out what it's all about, so far as proposed national censorship is concerned. The alderman says he has written to Washington for information on the subject. The local press has reacted unfavorably to the alderman's proposal of a censor ordinance.

Censorship Latest Move to Make Lynn Happy

Lynn, Mass.—And now a censorship to add to the joys of operating theatres in this man's—or possibly it should be mayor's—town, for Mayor Manning has named James P. Linehan acting license inspector to censor films before shown. Stopping a picture after it has been shown defeats his purpose and gives the picture concerned too much advertising, the mayor believes.

Stahl to Produce

Hollywood—After a two months' trip to New York John M. Stahl has returned with film rights to three plays, which he expects to produce this coming year.

Law on Copyright Designs Favored by Patent Chief

Washington—The Vestal bill (H. R. 7243) to provide copyright registration for designs and styles was endorsed in principle by the Commissioner of Patents, Thomas E. Robertson, who appeared at hearings being held on the measure by the House Committee on Patents.

If the bill becomes law, Commissioner Robertson said, it will be necessary to repeal the present section of the copyright law dealing with designs. He said that 70 per cent of design copyrights are approved in from 14 to 30 days.

The bill has the support of the American Bar Association.

Copyright Income Exempt from State Tax is Claim

Income derived from United States copyrights is exempt from taxation, it is contended by a number of distributors, who have obtained a temporary Federal injunction restraining the State of New York from collecting income taxes on money derived from such source.

The action was brought by Educational Film Exchanges for a group including Fox, Warners and others, and will be carried to the Supreme Court if necessary.

Millions of dollars in taxes in New York, Massachusetts, California and other states are involved in the test case. A statutory court has been named by Federal Judge Bondy in New York to hear return of the temporary order next week.

In New York, alone, it is estimated that more than $700,000 in taxes is involved. The distributors contend that rentals received from exhibitors on films leased under United States copyright do not constitute income taxable by any state. The stand is based on a constitutional principle that income derived from copyrights is not taxable.

Six Features Annually for New Small-Levine Firm

Aristocrat Pictures, a combination of Edward Small and Nat Levine, will release six talkers yearly on the state-right market.

Levine, who for many years produced Mascot serials, with headquarters in New York supervising distribution, while Small will have charge of production, working on the Coast. "Clancy in Wall Street," initial release, has been completed.

Charles Reed Jones will handle advertising and publicity.

"Rogue Song" Still Coast's Big Draw

Los Angeles—"The Rogue Song" continues as the big draw here. Business at the Chinese in Hollywood is phenomenal and has been that way since the picture first got under way six weeks ago. This week, the Tibbett attraction grossed $30,200, which is 89 per cent above normal business for that theatre.

"Street of Chance" at the Paramount played to $28,200, or a rating of 113 per cent. "Anna Christie," at the Criterion, in its fifth week, ended up with $12,100 and a percentage of 121. Loew's State finished the week with $31,500, the attraction being "The Bishop Murder Case" and the percentage 117.

"Devil May Care," in its fourth week at the Carthay Circle, drew in $11,400, entitling it to a rating of 91 per cent and indicating its drawing power in that house is on the decline.

The United Artists is not doing so well with "Lummox," which in its second week played to $12,000, or a rating of 89 per cent.

The two Warner theatres played to subnormal business, the Downtown doing $9,500, or 83 per cent, for a second week of "Son of the Gods," and the Hollywood $12,000, or 86 per cent, with "Second Choice." At the RKO, "The Racketeer" played to $18,500, earning for itself a rating of 116 per cent. "The Taming of the Shrew," playing the Egyptian second run, rolled up $11,900, and the Orpheum $14,000 with "Seven Keys to Baldpate." The RKO gross was influenced by a fashion show in which local merchants co-operated.

"Blue" Fight Continues

Macon, Mo.—Whether this town will hold the advantage gained by repeal of the ordinance banning Sunday shows will be decided at the spring election April 1. Effort is to be made to enact a "blue" ordinance at the spring voting.

16 Territories Sold

Sixteen territories are now contracted and are actively selling Big 4 Film Corp.'s new series of all talking outdoor features. The first series, being produced by Harry Webb, is well under way. The first feature, "Beyond the Rio Grande," is completed and will be supplied both sound-on-film and on disc.

Producers Prepare Ethics Code

Hollywood—New code of ethics being prepared for producers must have the aproval of Hays association members in the East before becoming effective. If it is okehed, producers will try the plan of pre-censorship of all scripts before shooting. A six month experimental period is scheduled, as outlined by Hays.

Among Coast people, however, the idea of script censorship generally is not regarded as feasible. This view is shared particularly by the writers.

No Greek

Al Christie passes along a story about a self-styled linguist who applied for the job of supervisor with a film company about to produce some foreign-language talking pictures.

"Sure, I speak every language except Greek," press-agented the would be soop. Besides, I write songs in all languages."

He was hired, and the next day was assigned to write the dialogue for the French version of a two reel comedy.

"I'm sorry," announced the new multi-tongued employee, "but I don't know any French."

"What, you don't know any French! Well, suppose you do the German version."

"Sorry, but I'm not up on German."

The boss took it big and then exploded. "Whaddya mean, you don't know German! I thought you spoke all languages except Greek?"

The new supervisor shrugged his shoulders and answered, "Yes, but those languages are all Greek to me."

Robbins Net $650,000 for Last Eight Months of 1929

Robbins Music Corp. showed net of approximately $650,000 for the final eight months of 1929, according to reports. The firm is owned 50 per cent by M-G-M, with Jack Robbins and his associates holding the other half interest.

Most of the Robbins Corporation profits were derived from sheet music and mechanical sales of "You Were Meant For Me" and "Broadway Melody" from "Broadway Melody," "Singin' In The Rain" and "Your Mother and Mine" from "Hollywood Revue of 1929," "How Am I To Know?" from "Dynamite," "Chant Of The Jungle" and "That Wonderful Something Is Love" from "Untamed," "Just You, Just Me" and "Blondy" from "Marianne" and "The Pagan Love Song" from "The Pagan."

According to J. J. Bregman, general manager of the firm, "the outlook for 1930 is bright." The three songs in Lawrence Tibbett's "The Rogue Song," namely "When I'm Looking At You," "The Rogue Song" and "The Narrative" and "Should I?", "The Woman In The Shoe," "A Bundle Of Old Love Letters" and "Only Love Is Real" from "Lord Byron Of Broadway" are already showing wonderful results although the picture has not yet been released.

Malden Patrons Petition to Retain Sunday Shows

Malden, Mass.—Petitions have been signed by several thousand theatre patrons of Malden for a continuance of Sunday shows, to offset petitions signed in the churches against them. Mayor William A. Hastings, who has the authority to issue or refuse licenses, continues the policy of his predecessor of issuing the permits weekly for four of the picture theatres of the city.

Medford, Mass.—Sunday permits have been issued for the Riverside and Medford and no protest has as yet been made.

Gets Atlanta Branch

Atlanta—U. T. ("Doc") Koch has been appointed feature sales manager here for the Sono Art-World Wide.

The arbitration agreement embodied in the new Paramount contract.

1-1-1 Arbitration Provided for in Agreement; Exchanges to Pass on Credit

First under the wire with a new form of contract to meet the situation caused by the Thacher decision outlawing compulsory arbitration in the industry, Paramount has placed its new form of agreement in use.

The new contract provides for both arbitration and advance deposit, containing two new clauses covering these points. It also has a clause on remedy for breach of the agreement.

With the Paramount contract already in the field, other companies are speeding the drafting of their new agreements. The contracts are being drawn individually, so as not to violate the anti-trust laws, or the terms of the Thacher decree.

Exchanges are to maintain their own credit system, and upon the rating of the individual exhibitor will depend the deposit to be required for performance of the contract and all others existing between the parties. The deposit clause provides for return of the security when the contract is fulfilled.

Disputes arising under the contract are to be arbitrated as follows:

"Arbitration—The arbitration shall be held in the city wherein is situated the exchange out of which the exhibitor is served, unless the parties shall mutually agree upon another place. Three arbitrators shall be selected. One shall be appointed by each party and the two so chosen shall designate the third. Arbitration Ban Causing a Heavy Des Moines Loss

Des Moines—One exchange here estimates its business was affected between $3,000 and $4,000 in one month by the fact that arbitration was not in effect. Several suits are now in process in the courts, following the end of arbitration.

Arbitration in the territory has been out for some time because the Iowa exhibitor association is a unit of Allied States Ass'n, and withdrew when that organization voted discontinuance. E. P. Smith, president of the Iowa unit, was a government witness at the arbitration trial but was not placed upon the stand.

Since discontinuance of arbitration there is declared to have been a recurrence of a number of trade evils.

Conspiracy Suit Dropped at Omaha

Omaha—Case of Classic Pictures Exchange, Omaha, against film exchanges for alleged shutting off of service to its Classic theatre, Newton, Ia., has been dropped. M. Stern, who brought the suits against the film exchanges, did so before joining the Omaha Film Board as Columbia representative. The house now is the Strand and is being operated by Earl Miller.

Confab Fails to Map Arbitration Plan in "Philly"

Philadelphia—Attempt has been made to arrive at some form of arbitration for the territory, but nothing has been done. The local impression seems to be that exchanges are in no position to act officially on arbitration—perhaps on word from New York—but that they would welcome some official assistance from the exhibitor organization here as a moral aid checking up on chronic offenders.

Meanwhile, there is declared returning in the territory a number of trade evils which were regarded as more or less stamped out by arbitration.

"U" to Use Velez in "Storm"

Hollywood—Laura La Plante's flu attack will not hold up work on "The Storm" remake. Universal has signed Lupe Velez for the lead opposite William Boyd. William Wyler will direct.

Similar to Allied Plan

Arbitration set-up called for in the new Paramount contract is almost the same as proposed by Allied States Ass'n at the 5-5-5 conferences in New York. The 1-1-1 plan was favored in the printed proposals, but evoked objection because some distributors are said to have felt that selection of a third man in certain cities where exhibitor leaders operate would prove difficult. This is regarded as provided for in the Paramount contract.

Through Sound, Noted Economist States Industry Reaches New Financial Level

Earnings Up 25 to 100 Per Cent First 9 Months in 1929, Fisher Says

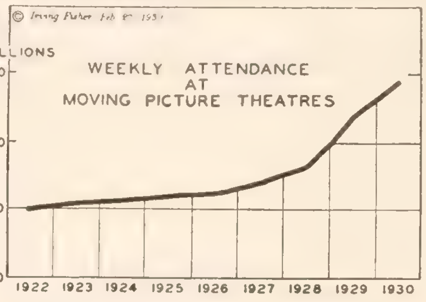
By Irving Fisher
Professor of Economics, Yale University

New Haven—The motion picture industry, torn between doubt and expectancy through the advent of sound accompaniments, is beginning to find the road ahead. To its officials the road looks like one of renewed prosperity—thanks to a spectacular advance in invention. Indeed, the first phase of the talking picture seems to be past. It is practicable, the public demands it. It is ready to settle down to yet more important work of development.

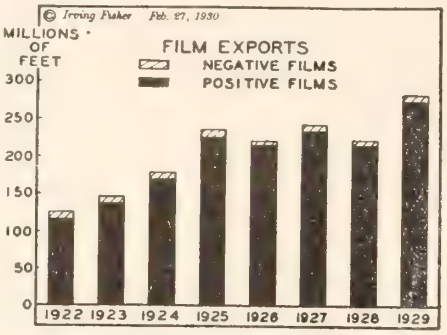
The first success of the sound films was due mostly to the curiosity of the public over a new mechanical device. The experiment drew crowds in 1927 for this reason, but it is no longer an experiment. Despite the fun once poked at the new device, the "talkie" has become a standard form of entertainment more popular, even, than the old silent film. In fact, attendance had been almost static for several years before the new invention came in.

According to the best consensus, the resultant financial renaissance of the industry will last for some years, at least. To be conservative, however, the unfavorable factors must be considered along with the favorable ones.

Initial expenditure for equipment and experimentation in the new field has been, of course, tremendous. But this has been more than offset by increase in attendance. Admissions to film theatres, in gross, have reached about $800,000,000 annually, while film rentals have advanced to approximately $200,000,000. The film theatres felt no decrease in attendance during the stock market slump.



Increased domestic consumption of motion pictures is indicated by rapid increase in attendance during 1928-1929.



General increase in foreign consumption of American motion pictures is indicated by the number of feet of film, negative and positive, exported.

Export Trade Developing

The "talkies" produced in the United States, of course, had no sale outside of English speaking countries. But income from film exports has not diminished, due to the use of silent pictures in non-English speaking countries.

By January, 1930, twenty-two hundred European theatres had been equipped for the showing of "talkies," with the number increasing almost daily. Appreciating this, American film manufacturers are meeting the situation. Several companies are making foreign-language versions of current productions on a simultaneous schedule, while others have established foreign subsidiaries for that purpose. One company has a plan to fit dialogue in foreign languages to pictures already made in English. How well such plans will work out nobody knows. All we are sure of is that the talkies thus far shown in England and on the continent have been quite as successful as those in America.

To estimate the financial outlook, the increased cost of production must be considered.

First, heavy costs of supplying the studios with sound apparatus have been more than met by the sudden profits of a quick success. But it will be necessary to spend a great deal more for further development. Strides have been made in the use of natural color. Both the Technicolor and Multicolor sys-

What Fisher Believes

The industry is beginning to find the road ahead.

It is ready to settle down to yet more important work of development.

According to the best consensus the financial renaissance of the industry will last for some years, at least.

Admissions to theatres, in gross, have reached about $800,000,000 annually, while film rentals have advanced to approximately $200,000,000.

Heavy costs of supplying the studios with sound apparatus have been more than met by the sudden profits of a quick success.

During the first nine months of 1929 the increase in net earnings of all companies ranged from 25 to 100 per cent.

There is every reason to expect the new level of revenue to hold its own.

6 Mos. Columbia Net Equals '28-29 Intake

Columbia Pictures' estimated net intake of $530,000 for the last six months in 1929 will be slightly lower than the net for the entire 12 months in the company's 1928-29 fiscal year, which ended June 29, 1929, when the feature hit a record, jumping to $551,822.

Earnings approximating $2.50 a share on common outstanding for the three months ended Dec. 31, 1929, are anticipated.

Outstanding capitalization consists of 25,000 shares of $3 convertible preference stock and 100,000 shares of no par common.

New Theatrical Company to "Back" Film Ventures

Theatrical Industries Corp. has incorporated under the laws of Delaware to act as: "A central backing organization in the form of an investment trust which will afford to private individuals and the small investor an opportunity to participate in profits of successful theatrical enterprises with a maximum degree of safety."

The company's activities will extend to the picture industry, according to the prospectus, dealing in sale of rights to silent and talking pictures and in possibilities in the television field. On the board of management are included: Sidney Skolsky, former publicity director and columnist; Bernard Sobel, publicity director for Florenz Ziegfeld, and Louis F. Werba, of Werba Theatres.

MGM Switches Niblo from "Red Dust" to Haines Film

Hollywood—Fred Niblo will direct William Haines in the latter's next for M-G-M, an original titled "Easy Going," written by Byron Morgan and Alfred Block, with Joe Farnham assigned to the dialogue.

Niblo was originally scheduled to direct "Red Dust" with an all star cast, but this has been postponed to follow the Haines picture so that Greta Garbo can take the starring assignment in "Red Dust."

German-American Sound Deal Involves Millions

Berlin—A deal involving approximately $37,000,000 which may make a lasting impression in the talker field is seen here in the loan for "a thousand years" of the above amount to Siemens and Halske, sound film concern with interests centered in Klangfilm. The bulk of this loan, announcement states, is to be supplied by the General Electric Co. of the United States in conjunction with RCA.

U. S. Appeal from Credit Committee Decision Won't Come Up Until Fall

Donations Held an Evasion of Old Law

Austin, Tex.—"Operation of a picture show on Sunday through a good-will offering is a subterfuge and evasion of the law which should not be countenanced," according to an opinion of the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals in the case of John M. Sayeg, operator of a theatre in Ennis, who was fined $35.

Sayeg was convicted under a Texas "blue law" of 75 years' standing, of operating a theatre on Sunday. A collection box was maintained in the entrance, and free-will offerings were deposited in lieu of admission prices. Efforts to repeal the Texas Sunday "blue law" by the last legislature failed.

Brooks Breaks Five Years' Jinx to Put House Over

Spokane.—One of the most successful of the smaller theatres in Spokane is the Avalon, which was taken over by Wallace Brooks, formerly manager of the Majestic. Brooks has broken a jinx of nearly five years' standing.

The Hippodrome, now the Avalon, has seen a score of picture, stock and musical tab failures during that period. The last occupant, with silent films and musical tab, lasted three weeks. The house is regarded in Spokane as a jinx.

But Brooks, with high grade second runs, such as "Rio Rita," "Arizona" and other outstanding talking productions, together with a brief musical stage revue, is packing them in and promises to set a record among the smaller theatres as well as breaking the jinx.

Tod Browning with "U" to Remake Silents

Hollywood.—Tod Browning rejoins Universal as director and producer of several talker remakes of his former successes for that company, including "The Virgin of Stamboul" and "Outside the Law." Browning was an "ace" director with Universal about eight years ago, and after a couple of seasons freelancing, tied up with M-G-M for five years. His contract with the latter company expired last fall.

Talker Use Growing Fast in Non-Theatrical Field

Use of talkers in the non-theatrical field is increasing by leaps and bounds, states M. J. Weisfeldt, head of distribution for Talking Picture Epics. Hotels and clubs throughout the country are turning to talkers as a means to stimulate business or attendance, with talking films coming into increasing use in aiding sales of product. As instances he cites showings during the week of company pictures at the New York and Detroit athletic clubs and at the Kiwanis Club, Paterson, N. J.

E. P. Grosvenor, who defended the Hays organization, distributors and Film Boards of Trade in the credit and arbitration cases, is seriously ill with pneumonia.

High Speed Camera May Be Adaptable for Industry

Washington—While its potential application to regular production has not been discussed, it is possible that a new "cinematic spotter" so quick that it photographs shells bursting in the air may be practical enough for use in the studios. The invention is Capt. A. L. Jackson's and has been successfully demonstrated by the War Department. The device employs two cameras, one at the battery position and another a measured distance away on a flank.

From the pictures the anti-aircraft gunners were able to tell accurately whether their shots were close enough to spray the enemy plane with shrapnel or fragments.

$330,000,000 Invested In British Film Trade

London—Figures compiled here claim that £68,000,000, or $330,000,000, is invested in the British industry with total employees numbering 70,000. Statistics are according to survey completed by the International Labor Bureau.

The same report gives investment in France as approximately £15,000,000, or $75,000,000. Figures brought up to the first of the current year show 2,000 theatres in Soviet Russia, Italy and Spain.

Supreme Court Will Decide on Legality of Credit System Upheld by Judge Thacher

Appeal of the government from the credit case decision, handed down by Federal Judge Thacher, is not expected to reach the Supreme Court calendar until fall.

The Dept. of Justice has entered a writ of error, on points covering practically the entire record of the trial court. Under the procedure, the disputed points of the record are first presented to the court, with briefs then presented. Afterward, each side is allowed two hours for argument. Usually, cases appealed from District Court go to the Circuit Court of Appeals, but Dept. of Justice cases go direct to the high court.

First Unit Busy for Fox's New Outdoor Department

Hollywood—George O'Brien is slated for the lead in Zane Grey's "Last of the Duanes," first of eleven outdoor stories to be produced by the newly created Fox "Great Outdoor Romances" department. Material in the group embraces "Alcatraz," "Riders of the Purple Sage," "Rainbow Trail" and "Lost Trail," "Wild Geese," "The Untamed" and "Trailing," "Drag Harlan" and "Brass Commandments," and "The Great K. & A. Train Robbery."

Edward W. Butcher and Harold Lipsitz are in charge.

Gov't Watching Sound Films for Use in Schools

Washington—Close watch of sound picture developments and their possible application to furthering educational activities are being keenly watched by the United States Government, according to Ray Lyman Wilbur, Secretary of the Interior, who claims sound has a definite value for class room work.

Atteridge on Jolson Yarn

Hollywood—Harold Atteridge, Fox contract writer, has been borrowed by Warner to prepare the script of "Big Boy," Al Jolson's final picture under his Warner contract before moving over to United Artists. Atteridge was associated with Jolson as a writer of stage material when "Big Boy" was staged on Broadway.

New Pantages Chain

Los Angeles—Alexander Pantages, in jail here pending his appeal from a one to 50 year penitentiary sentence for alleged criminal assault, is considering plans for a new chain.

The new Hollywood house would be the nucleus of the proposed chain, which his son, Rodney, would operate. Houses are planned at San Diego, Long Beach, Sacramento, San Francisco, Seattle, Portland and downtown Los Angeles. A number of offers for the new Hollywood house have been refused.

Return to Action and "Principles of Film Making," Seen by Jack Cohn

Time to Dump Overboard Films in Which Characters "Just Stand and Talk"

Return to action pictures and others of the type which characterized film making prior to the sound hysteria is predicted for the new year by Jack Cohn, vice-president of Columbia Pictures, who recently returned from Hollywood, where he conferred on production plans for the new season.

"It's time to throw a lot of dialogue scripts into the ash can and for producers to return to the principles of picture making," he said in an interview with Motion Pirture News.

Rather than trying in advance to figure out what kind of picture he can build around dialogue, a producer first should be concerned with how good a picture he can make. The tendency, he said, has been away from motion picture making and toward the photographing of stage plays, in which "the characters just stand and talk."

"Patrons no longer are satisfied with the first, second and third acts, but want to know what goes on in between," he asserts.

For the new production year, Columbia will have a program in which action and outdoor pictures will predominate. Each picture to be made will have a definite selling angle or national tie-up to help the exhibitor put it over. The end of the year will show that action films are the biggest money-makers, he declares. The new year program for Columbia is well under way so far as selection of vehicles is concerned, Cohn states.

Four Remakes Preparing on First National Lot

Hollywood—Preparations for filming four remakes are under way at First National, where Frank Lloyd will direct talker versions of "Captain Blood" and "Right of Way." Doug Fairbanks, Jr., is slated for the lead in "Forever After." Writers are at work on the script for "God's Country and the Woman," to be an all-Technicolor. The latter and "Captain Blood" were old Vitagraphs.

A thrill for Seattle-ites. Ruth Layne and Dave Gordon are singing request numbers in the lobby of the Seattle, a Publix house and the mob there is going for the idea strong.

Songfest in Lobby Intrigues Seattle Picture Regulars

Seattle—Something entirely new in informal theatre entertainment for patrons of the Pacific Coast was introduced at Publix's Seattle by Robert Blair, Northwest division manager for the circuit, with exceptional results. It was the booking of Ruth Layne and Dave Gordon, singer of popular songs, and her partner-accompanist, to appear four times daily in the lobby and sing the numbers that are requested by patrons either entering or leaving the theatre, or waiting for seats.

The popular team works with a small piano attractively decorated with dazzling paint, housed under a small canopy that fits appropriately into the decorative scheme of the house. Posters advertising coming attractions are artistically grouped about the setting. Many patrons remain in the "listeners' circle" for fifteen or twenty minutes during this entertainment.

Not only do Layne and Gordon please house patrons and keep a spirit of informality pervading the atmosphere, but they are used for exploitation as well. Publicity and Advertising Director Bob Armstrong has planned several novel stunts for the team that are means of getting them, with their pictures, into the public print. They appear at club luncheons and banquets, where they are a constant advertisement for the Seattle. Special radio broadcasts feature them, and the theatre reaps additional revenue each week via the personality of the team, and its ability.

"Gyp" Practices in Ticket Field Banned

Washington—Trade practices of ticket manufacturers adversely affecting picture theatres are to be abandoned under a code of ethics adopted at a trade practice conference with the Federal Trade Commission.

The conference was attended by ten representatives of the ticket manufacturers. There are 26 concerns in the industry, but it is believed that a majority will adhere to the code of ethics.

The manufacturers came to Washington with a code already prepared, and there was little difficulty in securing adoption of the various resolutions which will be submitted to the commission for approval.

Practices of interest solely to the ticket industry, such as the gathering of statistics, cost accounting and standardization and simplification, were covered by the resolutions adopted, as well as a number of practices affecting theatres.

Price Discrimination Out

Among the latter were resolutions condemning the inducement or attempted inducement of breach of contract between a competitor and his customers; untruthful defamation of competitors; enticement of competitor's employees; discrimination in price between purchasers of the same class, not on account of difference in grade, quality or quantity, or discrimination in the same or different communities not made in good faith.

The conference also condemned the giving of secret rebates or bribes, in money or otherwise; sales below cost for the purpose of injuring a competitor and with the effect of lessening competition or for any purpose except to meet a price offered by a competitor; discrimination in price by split shipments, that is, booking orders for large quantities of tickets and shipping in small lots, as needed, billing the small lots at the large-quantity price; and contracts which permit the buyer to cancel or secure a reduction in price in the event of market declines but not permitting the seller to cancel or increase the price in the event of a market rise.

Limit Free Ticket Machines

The conference also adopted a resolution providing that free service on ticket issuing machines should not extend beyond one year.

The resolutions adopted by the conference will first be considered by the division of trade practice conferences of the commission, where they will be separated into two groups, one covering practices prohibited by law and the other practices not covered by law but on which the industry has registered its attitude. They will then be submitted to the full commission for acceptance.

Tiffany to Start New Selling Year With 3,000 Franchises, Hanson Says

Did Harry Fall for Clara or Headlines?

Hollywood—With the Harry Richman-Clara Bow romance definitely off, coast gossip figures the "It" girl was gullibly lulled into a deep-rooted publicity campaign to skyrocket the picture name value of the Broadway night club entertainer.

Just who engineered the romantic angle for Richman to crash the press of the country is something the coast colony is still trying to dope out.

One thing is certain, Clara had no intimation of a "plant"—if such it was—that would tie her up in a romance staged only for the benefit of placing Richman in front of the picture audiences of the country while his first filmusical was being made.

Richman arrived in Hollywood last summer to star in one production for United Artists. He immediately got to know Clara, and after the film chatter writers had written reams of copy about the pair, announcement was broadcast to the gullible newspaper crowd that Harry and Clara were engaged. This piece of news was good for the wire services and syndicates, and photographs of the couple were broadcast to the newspapers of the country. Someone saw to it that plenty of news copy was available to the press crowd on the coast, and hardly a week passed without Richman and Clara crashing into the news columns.

Then Richman finished his picture for United Artists, and left for New York, but not before he gave out interviews stating Clara would follow him East for the wedding ceremony early in January. More front page news.

Then Clara departed for New York about a month ago, not knowing whether or not she would marry Richman in the East. But her arrival and subsequent greeting by Richman gave the newspapers of the country more to talk about. They have carried the story through without a break since then.

Then Richman's picture opened in New York. Naturally Clara was there. Shortly thereafter she boarded a train on her way back to Hollywood. Richman's ardor had definitely cooled. His parting greeting was brief and final. After a brief conversation in Clara's Pullman, Richman tucked himself into his raccoon coat and strode out of the car. And he kept on going without looking back and without waiting for the hand-waving ceremony as the train pulled out.

The Richman-Bow romance is recalled as being quite similar to the Pola Negri-Charles Chaplin affair several years ago. At the time, the coast colony felt certain that Chaplin was being used in a definite publicity campaign on behalf of Negri.

Tiffany Adds 6 Outdoor Films To Its Program

Hollywood—Six outdoor musical comedies have been added to the current Tiffany program by Grant L. Cook, company vice-president. Production of the first starts Friday. It is "Down by the Rio Grande," with Don Terry, Armida, Weslie Barry, Marjorie "Babe" Kane, Victor Potel and Harry Von Meter. Others are being prepared. They will be originals, but their titles haven't been decided. The series will have both song and dance ensembles outdoors, as well as original songs for principals.

Silent Remakes Tabooed by Lloyd

Hollywood—Harold Lloyd's long layoff since "Welcome Danger" is understood to be attributable to the star's desire to decide on a story policy for future talkers. Until now it has been a toss-up between originals and silent remakes, and now that the latter have been definitely abandoned, Harold will go to work on gags for his second sound vehicle, arranging the schedule so that actual production will get under way by April 1.

In all of Lloyd's previous efforts the story material was built up as production progressed, but Lloyd has decided that hereafter gags, story and dialogue will be ready before a crank is turned.

Lloyd expects to finish the new piece before fall and start on another before the end of the year, a new policy for him.

Five-Year Contracts Average 50 Weekly—Franchise Has Own Arbitration Plan

Tiffany will enter the new selling season with 3,000 five-year franchises sold and continue its drive toward its goal of 5,000, according to Oscar Hanson, general sales manager, who has just returned from a sales trip in the Middle West.

Franchises now are being sold at the rate of 50 a week, an average maintained for some weeks. More than 2,500 already have been closed, he says.

Tiffany has not been affected adversely by cessation of arbitration, for its franchises set up their own arbitration system, says Hanson. No new plans have been made by the company for writing a new contract, due to the Thacher decision outlawing arbitration. Tiffany now is using the standard contract minus the arbitration clause and is not experiencing nor anticipating any difficulties or disputes.

The franchise provides for arbitration of disputes, the arbitrators to consist of a company representative, Abram F. Myers, head of Allied States Ass'n, and a third to be named by these two.

Rubin to Follow with 'Hot Curves'; Short Signs

Hollywood—Benny Rubin will follow "Sunny Skies" with A. P. Younger's baseball yarn, "Hot Curves." Benny wrote the dialogue for the vehicle.

Tiffany has signed Al Short as musical director. He acted in a similar capacity for Publix and Balaban & Katz.

Ruth Roland in "Reno"

Hollywood—Harry E. Chandlee and Douglas Churchill have completed the adaptation and dialogue of "Reno" for Sono-Art. This will star Ruth Roland in her first talking effort for that company.

Warner Ball Scheduled

The Warner Club will hold its second annual banquet and ball in the grand ballroom of the Hotel Commodore on April 5. Film stage and radio stars will be on hand to entertain. Sam Lannin's Ipana Troubadors will play.

Cohn Nursing Bad Ankle

Hollywood—Harry Cohn, producing head of Columbia Pictures, is nursing a bad ankle. Cohn, who recently took up the game of golf, claims he smacked his ankle with a driver while teeing off.

Play Politics If You Must, But Watch Out How You Play It, Sydney Cohen Says

"King of Indoor Sports" In Film Business and Often Despotic, He States

This subject politics is particularly timely and apropos just now, when our trade journals are carrying such scare-heads leads as "State Bills Hitting Industry Crop Up," "Anti-Chain Theatre Legislation in Texas," etc. And we will hear many more of the same right along as the various State Legislatures convene, and also the proposal of very drastic legislation in Congress. All of this is harmful, and can cost millions, and producers are particularly alive to that fact.

Producer company executives should remember that their financial statements are now public property; as, under the rules of the New York Stock Exchange, they must publish quarterly and yearly reports. So when state legislators receiving salaries of from $300 to $2,500 per annum (and national solons salaries of only a few thousands) read of the millions of profits cleared by the big producing companies, and contemplate the enormous salaries enjoyed by many, while "little fellows" are being put out of business—when, I say, all this is taken into consideration—it is not difficult to realize how easy a matter it might be to sway these legislators to drastic, adverse action.

Now is the time—the actual moment—to discontinue the campaign of elimination and indirect confiscation of the defenseless theatre owner. Keep them in business, whether they be called independent, unaffiliated or anything else. Help open places now closed. Stop the "offensive" of putting them out of business; producers will not get much credit for same. They would get more credit for beating Dupont, Mellon or Morgan; and if there must be a battle let them keep the fight among the giants, and not by overrunning unarmed little people.

Industry Should Unite

Even the navies of the world are now disarming, so that all nations may present an unbroken front in the cause of peace and progress. How essential it is, therefore, for our industry to present as united a front as possible so that any such lines of reasoning, as I have indicated, cannot be used by legislators, and so that any such course of legislation action cannot be taken.

Politics, per se, play a part in every field of human endeavor. They are omnipresent in churches, in all classes of society and in business—"big" or little. But in no industry, to my way of thinking, have they played such a stellar role as in our own.

They have been behind all the startling moves made from time to time, and have been responsible for the elevation of some unworthy factors and the downfall of some of the worthiest the industry has ever known. In fact, so assiduously has this fascinating game of "politics" been played in the motion picture industry that it can be termed "the king of indoor sports."

Funk and Wagnalls, among their definitions of the noun, term it "a branch of civics that treats of * * * the administration of affairs in the interests of peace, prosperity and safety of the state." This is the Pollyannic aspect of politics. Other definitions in this unabridged dictionary are "party intrigues," "trickery," "wire-pulling so as to carry elections," etc.—these latter came nearer the thoughts I have in mind.

I have nothing against politics—clean politics; in fact, being over 21 and having cast my first vote, I realize that they are essential.

Politics have always played a prominent part in human history. From the day of Moses, the law-giver, down to the immediate present, we find an interestingly unbroken line. Every human who stood out above his fellows has played politics of some sort or another. Some have been as subtle as the serpent that beguiled Eve in the Garden of Eden, or the wily diplomat Disraeli (N. B., not an ad for Warners), and some as brutally forth-right as Peter the Great, that Russian despot, who literally slaughtered his political opponents, gaining their quaking awe, if not their respect; or Nero, the notorious fiddler of Rome, after whom they now only name dogs.

Cohen Clears a Point

Since publication of this series of articles was launched in Motion Picture News, Sydney S. Cohen reports he has received a flood of letters from exhibitors evidencing interest in his observations.

In one or two quarters, speculation has been raised as to whether or not Cohen is paving the way to a re-entry into exhibitor organization work. In that connection he says:

"For my part, I have no desire to lead any exhibitor organization again. It is a tough job. I finished at California in 1926. There is no patronage to give. No jobs to hand out. No film to give away, nor money to work with. Just an unremitting round of hard work—and hard knocks—but a post-graduate course in The University of Experience."

To pass from generalities to the specific topic, I wish to discuss, politics have always been played—though not always well played—in this industry of ours, which as an industry is only about 25 years young. The old motion Picture Patents Co. of 21 or 22 years ago was the first considerable manifestation of this "king of indoor sports"; though prior to its formation there had been various guerilla skirmishes.

The Patents Co. became so bound up with politics—fairly constipated with them—that their demise was early and unlamented. The same hold true for the Patents Co.'s offspring. The General Film Co., which for five golden years from 1910 on through 1914 ruled the industry in very much the same gentle manner that Peter the Great employed.

Fox the Conqueror

But as Achilles had one vulnerable spot—his plain, ordinary, every-day heel—so this great company had its weak point. And gigantic Goliath, though they were, the efforts of one small David, one determined fighter, William Fox, at his own expense took them to the U. S. Supreme Court and brought them low, and they are now but a memory.

Shortly after the Patents Co. began to sit comfortably on top of the world, however, some far-sighted exhibitor began to realize their lack of power and influence; and sporadic organizations sprang into being in states and cities in different parts of the country, and with their birth came politics—exhibitor politics.

When these politics partook of Funk and Wagnall's definitions, "party intrigues," etc., and were in the hands of "small-time guys," they, too, failed of their purposes; and though there were attempts at national exhibitor bodies before them, none proved worthy of the name until the Motion Picture Theatre Owners of America was born in Cleveland, in 1920—an infant that reached the efficiency of maturity almost at birth.

Urges Producers Not to Let Politics Drive Out the Small Fellow

During the first few years of the national M. P. T. O. A., their accomplishments were many, and their growth rapid. They put through helpful bills, blocked adverse legislation and earned the everlasting respect of producers by their manifestations of efficiency and power, and their refusal to accept even a penny of producers' money to bring about Sunday openings or to prevent adverse legislation.

After 1921, when the theatre owners showed their strength in such unmistakable ways, certain producers became concerned, and cast about for a way to nullify this exhibitor strength. They succeeded in winning over one of the most influential Republican politicians of the era—Will H. Hays of Indiana, the sovereign state where babies are weaned on political sap, and politics replaces the three R's in school.

"Playing politics" is much the same as running or putting on a show. There must be a star, and all the publicity obtainable, propaganda—and enough money—to put the thing over properly. And there is where Hays has shone. He has never had any difficulty in keeping the limelight centered on him by public press and trade press; his former cabinet office, his ex-chairmanship of the Republican National Committee, and his eldership in the Presbyterian Church have been publicity fodder. And all the human units, men and women, employed by or connected with him everywhere have contributed to this continuous publicity.

Hays Made Things Move

Hays served as a double-edged sword for the producers; when they took him the theatre owners' organization had to be submerged, and legislation had to be stopped. He served to stem the rising tide of censorship and of adverse legislation, and also to give prestige to properly dress the windows for inspiring bankers and Wall Street to develop the industry financially through the issuance of common stock by the various companies, the selling of which would properly finance their projected plans.

Until Indiana entered our industry, and the M. P. D. D. A. became a working reality, exhibitors "hadn't seen nuthin' yet" in politics.

But from then on things began to move and exhibitors "taken for rides" and along many "detours" have never been the same since.

It is an unquestioned fact that the present producer leaders are really extraordinary business men, combining in themselves as they do a keen artistic sense, astute business ability, and a shrewd capacity for taking care of the necessary politics within and without the industry. True, this latter is made more easy by the fact that they are backed by virtually unlimited bank rolls.

There is a danger, though, in a too close association with professional politicians, since this tends to bring about adverse legislation from opposing forces—legislation which has to be "traded" off, and this is frequently very costly.

If you to pay to kill off legislation, you will find the same "bill" on your doorstep each year; or if, on the other hand, you pay to have your desired legislation passed, then you will always have to pay each year to keep from having it removed from the statutes. The use of money only creates a pension system.

In my contacts with representatives of other industries at the national and state capitals, lobbyists were encountered. The only way these people could keep themselves on the pay rolls and justify their salaries and "swindle sheets" (expense a/cs and "entertainment") to their bosses, was to keep their particular industry in trouble by having adverse legislation introduced (?) by friends of theirs; and then through their "efforts" withdrawn or "kept" in committee.

In the early days of Famous Players-Lasky's controversy with M. P. T. O. A., Zukor had a three-man combine who, instead of preventing the contending factors from drawing further apart, did all within their power to foment trouble and breed dissension. They stopped him from settling the Dodge case before it had received any publicity. Upon hearing the facts, Mr. Zukor had promised me to make immediate settlement, but the "intervention" of these three stopped him.

Stressed "Little Fellow" Angle

As time went on, and the producers' association became stronger and more far-reaching in its influence, and the theatre owner body, so solid at Minneapolis and elsewhere, began to disintegrate as a result of politics, within and without, we then commenced to realize how potent a factor politics is.

We sat about round tables, and we gathered around square tables—our leaders and the political leaders of the producers—and "we learned about politics from them."

Yet, had the independent, unaffiliated theatre owners continued to think and feel and act as they did in their first years (when "an injury to one is the concern of all" was a reality and not merely a slogan) for a few years more, I cannot help but feel that the picture today would be a far different one. And that thousands of theatres would still belong to the men who built them.

What producers need most in their organizations is an exhibitor's point of contact They need to get closer to them and try to reopen a large number of theatres that are now closed. For they must remember that every one doesn't want to (nor can every one afford to) patronize expensive de luxe theatres, whether they be in large or small cities. And this large element naturally gravitates to these smaller theatres in neighborhoods and small towns; and it is among these that a sentiment for blue laws, censorship, etc., is most easily aroused and mobilized. If they cannot find any one in their organization who has read both the Old and New Testament let them at least select some one who understands what "live and let live" means to establish this exhibitor contact.

When Politics Entered

Formerly, when we, my M. P. T. O. A. associates and myself, went to Washington or Albany on legislative matters, we took pains to let the legislator know that we were not the big fellows, financially; and in our contacts with cabinet officers and senators, in asking for relief we presented the fact that then 90% of theatres involved were neighborhood houses of one sort or another or theatres in small communities. In fact, in Secretary of the Treasurer Mellon's address suggesting a repeal of the admission tax, these very words were used. I had used them in my written brief which was presented by a committee of the M. P. T. O. A. to the secretary.

We also presented the argument that a theatre owner was a quasi-public service factor through his screen and his rostrum, and was more valuable working in co-operation with the government than any taxes levied on him could offset. The government should consider this angle because this is wherein the Public Service Department of the M. P. T. O. A. did a really marvelous work, for we made contacts with several governmental departments and with many state departments.

This is what the industry needs; it will keep politics in their proper place and relationship to other matters; and might permit the industry to have statesmen of their own, and there would be a more sympathetic populace to deal with, in that they would assist in offsetting adverse legislation.

Paramount's Sound News Now Released Twice eekly

Effective with this week's issue, Paramount Sound News will appear twice weekly, a policy decided upon many months ago.

Ruth and Ralph Together

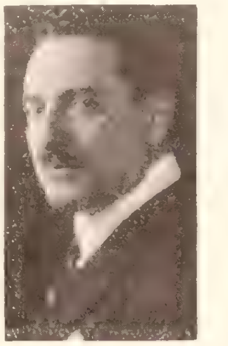
Hollywood—Ruth Chatterton and her husband, Ralph Forbes, will appear together in a talker production for the first time in "The High Road" for M-G-M. Miss Chatterton was borrowed by M-G-M from Paramount originally for "Oliver Twist," but was switched to the featured spot in "The High Road."

Gives Receipts to Fund

Tampa, Fla.—Publix theatres in this city staged a special midnight matinee performance at the Victory, at which a pre-view of "When Love Comes Along" was given. Tickets were sold by all five Publix houses and every cent was given to the Community Chest fund, the company standing all expenses.

Fault of Wrong Speech, Not Recording, Held in Need of Correction

Proper production of the voice is the big problem of talkers today, rather than the mechanical apparatus involved, in the opinion of Dr. P. Mario Marafioti of the Metropolitan Opera Co., New York, who leaves Sunday for the Coast and the M-G-M studio.



Singing of Dr. Marafioti by M-G-M is in the nature of an experiment in vocal work at the studio. He is to become vocal supervisor for a number of stars on the company's roster.

Dr. Marafioti start-with the Metropolitan company 18 years ago a throat specialist, and subsequently became a teacher of voice culture. He formerly was Caruso's physician and advisor and has developed a number of opera and concert singers, among them Grace Moore, who also is under contract to M-G-M. Gloria Swanson trained for her talker debut in "The Trespasser" under the doctor's supervi-

Musical Instinct Important

Any person who can learn to speak properly can learn to sing, but the extent of development depends upon musical instinct, and reaction and application to music, in the doctor's opinion. He is the author of a book on voice development and care, which expounds a number of revolutionary theories concerning voice culture. At present, he is working on a new book for the teaching of voice development at home, to be supplemented by phonograph records.

He first teaches a pupil proper speech, Dr. Marafioti told MOTION PICTURE NEWS in an exclusive interview, and after that trains them for singing. The length of time required, he says, depends upon the individual and the concentration with which the lessons are applied.

Microphone Magnifies Faults

The excellence with which music of the violin and other instruments is reproduced demonstrates that imperfections noted in many cases of speech reproduction are not mechanical, but are the fault of articulation and diction, Dr. Marafioti contends. These faults are magnified by the microphone. Proper training will provide the cure, he is confident, and intends proving it at the studios.

"The Swan" Turns Romantic

Hollywood—Lillian Gish's initial talker production for United Artists, produced under title of "The Swan," will carry release title of "One Romantic Night." The picture is now being cut and edited.

Belle Bennett has been signed by Warners to play the leading role in "Fame." John Halliday, recruited from the stage, will play opposite.

Richard Dix's second Radio picture, now nearing completion, has been titled "Roughneck Lover," adapted from the stage play, "I Love You," by William Le Baron. Mel Brown is directing.

Came the Dawn!

A prominent Hollywood director decided he did not need a press clipping service when one month's bill totaled over $200.

The reason for his sudden popularity in newspapers of the country was through his connection with the trial of an income tax specialist charged with falsifying returns. The director was a customer of the expert and was a government witness at the trial. Hence the newspaper "breaks."

Sound Did Not Darken Houses on a Wholesale Scale, Hays Survey Shows

Contrary to popular impression in certain quarters of the industry that sound threw at least 5,000 theatres in darkness, the revolutionary talker movement did not bring about a wholesale permanent closing of houses in the United States. Theatrical accounts now on the books of distributors total 22,624, a Hays check-up reveals, and, in the entire group, the number of dark houses is estimated at 3,000, indicating a near-normal condition.

Shortly after the birth of sound, hundreds of houses were closed, but only for brief periods for wiring. Two thousand houses are usually on the closed list at all times, one-half of which are temporary shut-downs due to equipment changeovers or remodeling, while the other thousand are closed for periods ranging from two weeks to several months, necessitated by local economic depressions or complete rebuilding.

The new Hays survey, made by secretaries of the 32 Film Boards, who have been working for the past three months in cooperation with key city exchanges, shows an increase of 2,124 accounts over the old figure of 20,500, and a combined capacity of 11,312,000, playing to 120,000,000 weekly.

Total number of sound installations to date is estimated at 10,000, contrary to recent estimates which placed the number of wired houses at anywhere between 7,000 and 9,000. Although less than half of all theatres are wired, the group represents at least 70 per cent of theatre buying power.

Several thousand listings recorded in the survey are not actual theatre buildings, but lodge or church halls in communities which cannot support a regular theatre, although all show places in the count are considered regular accounts by distributors.

Complete analysis of the exhibition field, by states and territories, appears elsewhere on this page.

Cincinnati, St. Louis Lead in Territories

St. Louis, Cincinnati and Minneapolis lead all territories with theatre accounts, according to the Hays check-up. St. Louis serves 1,485. Thirteen hundred are handled from Cincinnati, while Minneapolis serves 1,269.

New York has 913 accounts and Chicago, 867. Other leaders include Boston, with 1,119; Dallas, 1,072; Kansas City, 1,120, and Pittsburgh, with 842. The following chart lists total accounts in all territories:

Alturas, Calif.—George F. King, architect, has drawn plans for a $50,000 picture theatre to be owned and operated, it is reported, by Arthur Yates.

Blackfoot, Ida.—Blackfoot, whose citizens believe in keeping the Indian traditions intact, even in their theatres, witnessed the opening last week of the Blackfoot Talkie Theatre. Paul de Mordaunt and Hugh Drennan are owners.

San Bruno, Cal.—Work has been resumed on the $50,000 house which was interrupted after a start had been made two years ago. No date has been set for opening.

Fayetteville, Ark.—Chi Omega Sorority contemplates the erection on the campus of the University of Arkansas, a 3,000 seat picture theatre. Bids were received last week. Contributions already received Total $25,000.

"Battle of Giants" Is Seen by K. R. S. Sec'y in London

London.—A "battle of the giants" in the immediate future is predicted by Frank Hill, secretary, in his annual report to the Kinematograph Renters' Society. Hill foresees a situation arising in the industry which can only be withstood by the comparatively few. This will occur within the next year or two, Hill predicts in his report, which warns the entire British industry to beware of the progress of technical developments such as sound, color, wide-film and television, because progress of such a rapid nature will cause many to fall by the wayside.

The report covers highlights of the industry in Great Britain in 1929, when the country was turned upside down by sound and the legal complications of interchangeability which followed.

Baclanova Returns to Coast to Work for Fox

Hollywood—After an extended vaudeville tour in this country and abroad, Baclanova is back in Hollywood and will appear in "Alone With You," for Fox, which Sidney Lanfield is directing. The Russian actress was under term contract to Paramount until several months ago, when she was granted an indefinite leave of absence to appear in vaudeville. Before she returned, the agreement was mutually cancelled, with reports stating Paramount found difficulty in casting Baclanova.

Hammons Back in N. Y.

E. W. Hammons, president of Educational, is back in New York after a three weeks' stay in Los Angeles. Hammons had been conferring with the producers of Educational's comedies, including executives at the Educational and Mack Sennett studios. Mrs. Hammons accompanied him.

Brown Signs 2 Year Pact

Hollywood—Joe E. Brown has been placed under a two-year contract by Warners for featured roles in Vitaphone productions. He appears in "Hold Everything," recently completed.

Grand Rapids Houses Bombed

Grand Rapids, Mich.—Two bombings, attributed to labor troubles with theatre unions here, caused damage to the Liberty and Family early Sunday.

Beauty in Stock

Du Pont Pathe has developed a new stock for night shots. Appearing for the first time in Pathe Audio Review, No. 8, it made possible unusual and impressive pictures of night scenes in New York, with its tall structures silhouetted against a skyline which is more realistic than any we have seen.

The tint of the stock allows the camera to catch shadows and lights in a manner exceptionally natural.

CUNNINGHAM

Rogers in "Heads Up" to Be Made by Para. in East

Hollywood—Charles "Buddy" Rogers appears in his first production at the Long Island studio since graduation from the Paramount acting school several years ago when he goes into the featured spot for "Heads Up," the filmusical version of the Aarons and Freedly stage show.

Rogers will make a brief personal appearance tour in Publix houses first. Just as soon as this picture is completed, Rogers returns to the coast to play the lead in Schwab and Mandel's "Follow Through."

"Buddy" Rogers" is appearing at the Paramount, New York, this week.

St. Clair Joins Metro

Hollywood—Mal St. Clair has signed a six month contract with M-G-M to direct, and begins work under the new agreement when he completes "Dangerous Nan McGrew" for Paramount in the East. St. Clair recently made "Montana Moon" for M-G-M, with Joan Crawford starring.

McCary on "Road House"

Hollywood—Bradley King is writing dialogue for "Road House," new Leo McCarey assignment for Fox.

Robber Gets 10 Years

San Antonio, Tex.—S. C. Shipp has been given a ten-year sentence after being found guilty of holding up the Victor Uptown, a local community house.

1st Nat'l to Drop Griffith, Mackaill, Mulhall, Dove?

Hollywood—Jack Warner is directing a barrage at First National. Before he gets finished, the lot out Burbank way will be cluttered with plenty of debris.

Some of his batteries have already hit their mark. Corinne Griffith, whose voice has failed to click in talkers, has had the remaining portion of her contract adjusted on a basis which will allow First National to eliminate her entirely from next year's program.

Billie Dove, who has several pictures to go, is being submitted to the same sort of fire. Miss Dove, a star in the First National firmament for several years, is about to be eclipsed. The company, it is learned, will either buy off the unexpired portion of her contract or swap a couple of Dove starring vehicles for one special.

Jack Mulhall, long in the F. N. line-up, is another who is reported through with the company. Dorothy Mackaill, whose agreement is understood to expire in July, has been farmed out to Fox for one picture. When the summer sun hits the Hollywood hills, the story goes, Warner will not renew her contract. Those on the inside are speculating how far this upheaval will go. Hollywood being what it is, nobody can foretell.

Colony to Switch to a Musical Comedy Policy

B. S. Moss is planning to remodel the Colony, New York, and to reopen it with a musical comedy policy as B. S. Moss' Broadway, perpetuating the name of his former theatre, recently razed to make way for an office building. The theatre, which for some time has been used as Universal's Broadway outlet, goes dark in July when remodeling will begin.

Drop Stage Shows in Dallas

Dallas—Stage shows have been dropped here temporarily by Publix, which recently adopted a new policy of jumping pictures from a split week house to its week stand.

Mankiewicz Re-signed

Hollywood—Herman Mankiewicz, one of the founders of "The New Yorker," has signed a new term contract with Paramount as a writer of originals and dialogue. He has been with Paramount for three years as a scenarist.

Norton With Paramount

Hollywood. — Barry Norton, actor, has been placed under optional term contract by Paramount. Norton was a contract player with Fox for several years.

Realism

Universal had to build the lighthouse you'll see in "Undertow." Director Harry Pollard wasn't satisfied with any on the coast.—Film Fun

Grauman Bitten by Exhibition Urge; Is Coming Back

Hollywood—Sid Grauman, who acknowledges and has been known to admit he is the master showman of the Pacific Coast, and who retired some months ago when he disposed of his interests in Grauman's Chinese, is itching to get back into the theatre business.

When Grauman retired he intended to launch production of a series of filmusicals and was offered releasing deals by several companies.

But the theatre business indicated to Grauman that he would be a piker to produce pictures when audiences were just waiting to be invited into the theatres—and Sid has a showmanship flare that has proved profitable in Los Angeles for 15 years.

Grauman admits he is going back, and is now trying to decide on one of three sites offered him for construction of a house. It is likely he will finally decide on building in Hollywood along the boulevard.

New Sono-Art Branch at Kansas City Is Planned

Sono-Art is preparing to open a Kansas City branch with Midwest Film Distributors in charge. The branch will operate under jurisdiction of Bud Rogers, general sales manager of the company. Educational has been looking after Sono-Art's Kansas City affairs since resignation of Charles Knickerbocker, who resigned to join First National at Oklahoma City several weeks ago.

Sherman Considers Deal

Possibility of affiliating himself with a Florida independent chain will be studied by Benjamin Sherman, president of Manhattan Playhouses, New York, during his vacation in that state. He now is at Havana, accompanied by Mrs. Sherman and a party of friends. J. H. Steinman is substituting for Sherman during the latter's absence.

Preparing "Dixiana"

Hollywood—RKO is lining up the cast for its first original operetta, "Dixiana," written by Harry Tierney. Bebe Daniels will be starred, with others so far signed including Dorothy Lee, Marguerita Padula, Jobyna Howland, Ralf Harolde and Joseph Cawthorne. Luther Reed, who produced both "Rio Rita" and "Hit the Deck" will direct "Dixiana."

Check Baltimore Exits

Baltimore.—Report of the grand jury which investigated theatre exits is expected soon.

Shades of Lincoln!

Albert Grey to candidate for D. W. Griffith's new Abraham Lincoln picture: "And do you know Lincoln's Gettysburg address?"

Said Candidate for Lincoln Picture: "Gee, I didn't even know he lived in Gettysburg."

Before the "Mike" In N. Y. Studios

"IF only it didn't rain in Philadelphia the night of the Tunney-Dempsey fight. This would be a cinch." That's what one of the 400 extras, used in the fight scene over at the Paramount Long Island studios, said while wringing about a barrel of water from his clothes. And he voiced the opinions of the other 399.

The photographers lost a golden opportunity to shoot a mob scene when about 2,000 extras made a rush for the casting office. Outside of quelling the mob, the cops from Precinct 114 had nothing to do.

Monta Bell, directing "Young Man of Manhattan," was very well prepared for "a rainy day." He was rigged out in a sou'western that would put "The Ancient Mariner" to shame.

Tommy Riley, who was the third man in the Tunney-Dempsey argument at Philadelphia, acted the part of the referee in the shooting of the big fight.

All those who participated in the somewhat moist scene were given some hot coffee and lunch, and a good time was had by all. By the time their clothes were dry, the members of the "400" (extras) had to get wet all over again when the "after the battle" (mother) scene was shot.

John W. Green, arranger and musical advisor at the Paramount Astoria studios, was the "ghost saxophonist" for Stuart Erwin during the filming of "Dangerous Nan McGrew" with Helen Kane and James Hall.

Helene Turner, cutter at the Paramount lot, is learning quite a bit about the art of solving murder mysteries and soon should be able to write a typical S. S. Van Dine mystery. She has worked on "Roadhouse Nights," in which a reporter was murdered, and is now at work on "Dangerous Nan McGrew," in which there is another homicide.

Howard Wade Kimsey, formerly with Dr. S. Parks Cadman and nationally known as "the community song leader," just completed a short subject at the Pat Power Caravelle studios in Astoria, for Talking Picture Epics, Inc. Benjamin Listengart, of the Abe Meyer office, was in charge of the musical synchronization. Lora Orth Kimsey was at the piano.

Eddie Buzzell, Ann Codee and Frank Orth threw a beefsteak party in the studio restaurant at the eastern Vitaphone studios, for the entire stage and office personnel. Phil Quinn, assistant director, was master of ceremonies. Of course, we had to be at some other place and miss the free meal.

But we sort of made up for it (sour grapes) when Milton Sands, of the music department at the studios in Flatbush, received about 30 pounds of pecan nuts from Florida. The theme song for the next few days was "I'm Nuts About Nuts."

Milton C. Work, international bridge authority, made a visit to the eastern Vitaphone studios to make a short on the why, where, when, how, who and what of the famous indoor sport which has been blamed for many a divorce. Here's hoping that Work's work shall not have been in vain.

THE STUDIO SLEUTH.

M-G-M Blocked on Western Showing Of "New Moon"

Hollywood—Although M-G-M has purchased film rights to "The New Moon," Sigmund Romberg musical, the picture version cannot be released in the western states until after March, 1931. This condition is a result of contract entered into between the producers of the musical and Louis McLoon, who holds contract rights for the stage play. McLoon's western company is currently playing in Los Angeles, and after the local run, will tour coast cities.

Similar conditions were encountered last year by Warners with the film version of "Desert Song," when the producers discovered that they were prevented from releasing the latter picture on account of McLoon's stage rights for the western territory. As a result, Warners had to hold back release of "Desert Song" for several months.

Second Grand Jury to Sift Roch. Incendiary Charge

Rochester, N. Y.—Orders to submit to a second grand jury evidence in the alleged incendiary fire at Fay's downtown house, which caused $35,000 damage last month, have been issued by Supreme Court Justice Adolph J. Rodenbeck here last week.

Justice Rodenbeck said the evidence justified resubmission. Edward Harding, night watchman at the theatre, although not indicted by the grand jury, has been denied freedom. The theatre is being rebuilt at a cost of $60,000.

More Requests for Product

Washington—Dept. of Commerce has filed additional requests from foreign countries seeking films and equipment. Material asked for, and the department's file number on each follows:

Motion picture equipment, 43963, Berlin, Germany (a or p); motion pictures on alimentation and nutrition, 43960, Valparaiso, Chile (p); motion pictures, out-of-date, low-priced, and new films, 43999, Addis Ababa, Ethiopia (p); motion pictures (stunt and wild west), 43994, Zanzibar, East Africa (a); projectors, machines, and accessories for amateur motion pictures, 44000, Valparaiso, Chile (a).

Favor Sunday Shows

Sebring, Fla.—Sunday shows are to be permitted here under a new ordinance to be submitted to voters. At Bradenton, a special meeting of the council for an open forum on the question of a liberal Sabbath is scheduled Friday.

The Influence of Sound

A loud snore from the Pullman berth, occupied by a film salesman, kept the other passengers in the car awake. Finally, George, the porter, came to the berth from which the snoring came and said: "Boss, is you awake?" The salesman answered: "Yes, I'm awake now, thanks to you." The porter replied: "Well, suh, ah begs yo' pahdon, but wouldst you mind stayin' awake, for a few hours, at least, till de rest ob de passengers get some sleep."

Film Made from New Ingredients to Be Marketed as Relief from Fires

Tit for Tat

Los Angeles.—Bandits entered the hotel rooms occupied by Mr. Sime Silverman, a visitor here, and stole a $40,000 mink coat, a $2,000 ermine wrap, and a traveling clock valued at $35.

Sime is already reported at work on details for another "Variety" special to cover the loss.

Four Leagues to Bat Out Homers In Morris Month

Warner sales organization in the United States and Canada has been divided into four leagues for the playdate drive with which the force will celebrate Sam E. Morris Month in May. Norman Moray, national chairman, says these four groups will be known as the National League, the American League, the American Association and the Canadian League. Each league is made up of a group of offices organized according to sales possibilities.

Members of each will compete among themselves for the league championship, with the office attaining the greatest consummation of business receiving the national championship. Each league has been given a division supervisor. They are: National League, Herbert S. Elder, Boston; American League, L. E. (Nicky) Goldhammer, Minneapolis; American Association, Charles Gilmour, Denver; Canadian League, Frank Mayers, Toronto.

Signs Dorothy McNulty

Hollywood—Another stage personality has been placed under term contract by M-G-M in Dorothy McNulty. Her first assignment is a prominent role in "Good News," being added to a cast which includes Bessie Love, Cliff Edwards, Stanley Smith, Lola Lane, Gus Shy, Frank McGlynn and Mary Lawlor.

O'Neil with United Artists

Kansas City—E. P. O'Neill has been appointed manager of the United Artists branch. He succeeds Leo J. Doty, who has been transferred to New Orleans as branch manager.

Passed After Deletion

Richmond—After a lapse of several months "Three Passions" and "Lion's Roar," in which eliminations were ordered, have just been licensed.

Essem Laboratory Working with Chemical Firm in Developing New Non-Flam Stock

Development of a new non-inflammable film, composed of new ingredients and embodying a hitherto unused chemical process secretly developed by the company, is under way by Essem Laboratories of Washington, which recently opened a branch in New York.

The company, formed to process prints with its preparation, Perfexit, is negotiating with one of the nation's largest chemical manufacturers for commercial manufacture of the new film, said to be absolutely fireproof, pliable and of a quality which will give it durability to outlast standard stock by many runs.

Dr. L. L. Steele, former head of the Bureau of Standards, and Tom Moore, who formerly operated the Rialto, Washington, head the Essem laboratory. According to Moore, the introduction of the new non-flam raw stock will prove revolutionary.

Perfexit, which Essem manufactures, is declared to make film scratch-proof, more durable and pliable. It is a preparation which becomes an integral part of films subjected to the process, without adding thickness or interfering with sound track.

Warners, First National and M-G-M now are using the process, and negotiations with three other firms are declared nearing completion. Plans now are under way, says Moore, for the opening of plants at Hollywood and in European key cities.

33 Films in 6 Months Are Called for on M-G-M List

Hollywood—Thirty-three pictures will be produced by M-G-M during the next six months. One of the chief of these will be a Lawrence Tibbett vehicle in which he will be supported by Grace Moore. Tibbett will resume film work upon completion of his present concert tour.

Spanish Talker Set

Hollywood. — Paramount's first foreign version to be made in the west coast studios will be a Spanish talker of "The Benson Murder Case." The picture is scheduled to start about March 1, and a cast of Spanish linguists and actors is being assembled by Goeffrey Shurlock, head of the Paramount studio foreign department.

Stage Revues in Sound

Hollywood—Craig Hutchinson has started production of Fanchon & Marco stage revue acts in sound at Metropolitan Sound Studios thereby launching a series of talking and musical revue pictures which will be similar to the acts which Fanchon & Marco have been producing for Fox West Coast Theatres. Fanchon and Marco, in association with Hutchinson, are jointly making the new series, and the first picture, a two-reeler, is being filmed via Harris Color.

Kid Shows in Oregon Fought by Clubwomen

Portland, Ore.—Protests approved by the Oregon Council, National M. P. League, the Parent-Teacher Association and the Portland Federation of Women's Clubs have have been submitted to J. J. Parker, Floyd Maxwell and Charles Couche of the Fox theatres, and John Smith and Charles Kurtzman of the Portland Publix theatres, objecting to the children's clubs which theatres of these chains are operating. Copies of the protest, according to Mrs. F. J. Kane, president of the Oregon Council, National M. P. League, are before the Grades and High School Teachers' Ass'ns, the Council of Churches, the Catholic Women's League and the school board for action.

The protests deal with the entertainment provided which is termed "in many instances of an unwholesome and suggestive character" with the requirements made by some of the theatres for admission to the clubs, with the contests promoted among the children with the so-called exploitation of the children for advertising purposes and with the lack of supervision of programs and children.

New Ordinance to Permit Sunday Admission Boost

Watertown, N. Y.—Digging up an old ordinance City Manager Ackerman declared that all picture theatres would not be permitted to charge a larger admission price on Sunday than on week days. Announcement by Ackerman came as a bombshell to the theatre owners of that city. An amendment, however, was prepared by Corporation Counsel Kelly, which will permit the continuance of the Sunday schedule, and peace once more reigns.

"Blue" Election Blocked

Bloomfield, Ia.—Contending that there had been insufficient publication of the election notice and that the election was illegal because the city was not paying for it, four citizens here by injunction blocked holding of a referendum on Sunday shows. H. E. Hayfield, owner of the Bloomfield, had offered to pay costs of the election.

Filming Tiffany Exteriors .

Hollywood—Tiffany is filming exteriors for "Sunny Skies." This is a musical with Benny Rubin, Marceline Day, Rex Lease, Babe Kane, Harry Lee and Greta Granstedt. A. P. Younger wrote the story, with music and lyrics by Will Jason and Pal Burton, and Norman Taurog is directing.

"U" Changes Gibson Title

Hollywood—Universal has changed Hoot Gibson's "Hand 'Em Over" to "Trailing Trouble." Arthur Rosson directed. Margaret Quimby plays opposite.

New Photoelectric Cell, AC System Being Developed by W. E. Engineers

3 Nabbed in New Wis. Bicycling Campaign

Milwaukee—Three cases are on file here against two exhibitors for "bicycling." The exhibitors are Earl Scott of Black River Falls, Wis., and N. J. Thompson of Sparta, Wis. Charges against the exhibitors are for holding over prints and for unauthorized use of pictures in theatres. It is expected that the cases may be reached for trial in the very near future.

The actions are part of the national campaign being conducted by distributors to stamp out "bicycling," declared flourishing in a number of sections as a result of the Thacher decree outlawing compulsory arbitration.

Minneapolis—Earl Scott figured in a "bicycling" action before the Minneapolis arbitration board several years ago, and was fined by the board when denounced as guilty by W. A. Steffes, president of the Northwest exhibitor unit.

Good Roads Ally of Sunday Shows in Iowa Towns

Des Moines—Good roads have become the ally of Sunday shows throughout Iowa, with a number of towns turning to a liberal Sabbath, convinced that people will go elsewhere to see films on Sundays if they feel so inclined. Sunday shows have been voted at Britt, Forest City, Kanawha, Clear Lake and Belmond, with Humboldt and Garner date.

F. P. Boys at Chatham, Ont.

Chatham, Ont.—The theatre now in the course of construction has been purchased by Famous Players Canadian Corp. from the Harris Theatre, Ltd. The Purchase includes building, land and equipment. The price was in the neighborhood of $225,000. The Harris firm will complete the building and turn it over to the new owners about April 1.

All Libson Houses Wired

Cincinnati—The Gifts, Bijou and Star, downtown houses of the Libson circuit, are being wired, making the local Libson chain 100 per cent sound.

Publix Building at Hamilton

Hamilton, O.—The Eagle, oldest film house here, is being razed as portion of site for a 1,900-seat house to be erected for Publix.

Named Epics Representative

Dallas—Al Wolf has been appointed Texas representative for Talking Picture Epics.

Cell Would Cut Amplifier in Projector—Seek AC Without Battery or Generator

Development of a new photoelectric cell, designed to eliminate the projection amplifier, and a reproducer which uses motor generator and alternating current, thus eliminating batteries, is under way by Electrical Research Products. Eventually, it is planned to develop a reproducer using AC current, with both batteries and generator eliminated.

The new photoelectric cell will not be placed on the market for about a year, it is understood, and no date has been set for the marketing of the new DC equipment.

Developing of its field engineers as salesmen of Western Electric reproducers is another plan under way by Electrical Research Products, Motion Picture News learns.

Eastern Capital Planning $2,000,000 House in L. A.

Los Angeles—A combined theatre and office building, to cost $2,000,000, and financed by eastern capital, will be erected on a site on Wilshire Blvd., according to an announcement this week by Mrs. F. C. Casler, who has built a number of downtown structures. A feature of the building will be a high tower above the twelfth story. Plans have been prepared by H. J. Knauer, Los Angeles architect. A radio broadcasting station is included in the plans.

Sams Retiring from Field

Winston-Salem, N. C.—A. Fuller Sams, Jr., for six and one half years manager of the Pilot and Auditorium, is entering the banking field March 1. He will retain presidency of the Winston-Salem Theatre Co., however, and secretaryship and treasurership of the Winston-Salem Theatre Corp. J. Bonner Sams, a brother, will manage the Auditorium.

Smakwitz in New Quarters

Albany—General Manager Charles Smakwitz, of Warner houses in Albany and Troy, is taking over the offices now occupied by the Film Board on the third floor of the Strand building and will relinquish his present headquarters. George Weigan, of New York, is in Albany to become new contact officer for the Warner houses in Albany, Troy, Syracuse and Utica.

Ho Hum

Toronto—Another legit expert predicts a talker slump, Maurice Colbourne, British actor-manager touring Canada with Shaw plays, is winding up his transcontinental tour of interviews with slams at the pictures. "The talker boom is broken," said he to Toronto newspapermen.

Eastman Opens Subsidiary Plant Unit in Tennessee

Kingsport, Tenn.—Tennessee Eastman Corp., subsidiary of Eastman Kodak, this week started operations in its new cellulose acetate plant here. Officials said capacity production would be reached by July.

Manufacture of cellulose acetate, a basic ingredient of safety film for home motion pictures and for safety X-ray film, is manufactured at the Eastman plant in Rochester. Acetic acid and acetic anhydride used in the process is manufactured here.

Mogler House Dark

St. Louis—The Mogler, in the lobby of which State Senator Joseph Mogler was murdered by hold-up men on the morning of December 2 has been closed. A sign announces the house has been closed for repairs. Mogler's widow is said to object to paying the price needed to equip the house for sound pictures. Since Mogler's murder patronage at the house has shown a decided decline.

Plan Oregon Scenes

Portland, Ore.—From recent word received by Mayor George Baker and Governor Norblad, Fox has decided on Oregon as the locals for "The Oregon Trail." It is also expected that a large number of the scenes will be shot in Baker county, known as "the last frontier."

Schools Used for Film Shows

Woodsfield, O.—Until Woodsfield's new theatre is completed, auditoriums of two city schools are being used for pictures. Funds derived thus far have been used to buy radio sets for both buildings.

Keeping Advertising Clean

Des Moines—Suggestive advertising in Iowa territory evidently does not pay for there hasn't even been a suggestion of it for so long that no one can trace any. Managers here make a serious effort to co-operate with Women's clubs and in Des Moines a committee from the Des Moines Women's Club reviews all pictures. The fact that the communities are rather small, make it impossible for a respected citizen to attend a questionable show with any ease.

*Channing Pollock is one of those playwrights who writes salacious dialogue disavowing immortality and then makes speeches before women's clubs telling them what fine, clean plays he writes. "The Locked Door" is adapted from a play he wrote before he discovered that it was easier to make money supporting the Epworth League than by writing robust drama. We can understand why he gave up. "The Locked Door" (known as "The Sign on the Door") was written in the days when it was safe to call all millionaires lecherous fellows and all bachelors were more or less open to suspicion. There is an honest wife who is unjustly suspected when she goes to the bachelor's den and an upright husband who doesn't understand. Go on from there.—*Judge.

Will Hays, supreme arbiter of screenland, was said to have caused Jim Tully, author, and Jack Gilbert to bury the hatchet—and not in each other's heads.

Gilbert and Tully, who staged a fist fight in a cafe recently, shook hands and apologized to one another at the home of a mutual friend.

Gilbert walked in and, seeing Tully, walked over and said: "Jim, this has been a mighty silly business and I'm personally glad it's over."

The stunt man also wore a parachute, but put on a heavy leather coat over it. "How can you use the 'chute with that coat on?" chattered his friend. "Oh," said the stunt man, "I'd have plenty of time to take off the coat before we fell." William Fox was almost kept out of the place because of these instructions and, investigating, learned that the conferences had nothing to do with the business of the firm. Ramsaye to Use Pathe DuPont Stock for 'Audios'

This recently developed hyper-sensitized stock is adaptable to night shots and, in addition to combining high speed qualities of standard stock, is said to have exceptional keeping qualities.

Bargman Returns to N. Y.

S. L. Bargman, secretary of the M. P. Laboratory Ass'n, has returned to New York from a swing through the Middle West to line up key city labs for membership in the organization.

Merritt Crawford addressed the association at its semi-monthly meeting, discussing sound-on-film, and tracing the development from its earliest days.

Application by Consolidated Film Industries for membership in the laboratory group has been filed with Bargman.

Complexion of New York exhibition is in line for a change. Publix is all set to enter Sol Brill's stronghold on Staten Island; Rosenzweig and a new group of associates will build four, averaging 2,500 seats each, on Long Island and Queens; Loew has opened its new house at 175th St. and Broadway, and rumblings link several outfits which had sold out to Fox Metropolitan, with rebuilding chains, in direct opposition to Fox. It is reported that Fox's contracts on local chain purchases last year did not, in all cases, include a stipulation preventing the sellers from developing new circuits.

Rachmil & Katz have combined and reentered the field, opening the third of a proposed string in Brooklyn this week. The new house, called the Windsor, is located on 16th Ave., and is in opposition to the Beverly and Culver. The chain also operates the Stillwell in competition to Fox's Benson and Fox's Marlboro in the Bensonhurst section.

Paramount's entrance into the Staten Island field had been planned for two years. The site is now being negotiated for and it is said that Brill, who has the island sewed up, will have his first opposition when Publix opens.

Fox was dickering for the Brill string, but the latter withdrew just before final papers were signed.

Academy Tests Show That Efficiency of Camera Silencing Devices Varies Widely

Hollywood-Tests conducted by the Academy of M. P. Arts and Sciences on the efficiency of camera silencing devices in production of talkers show the variance is considerable.

Column 1 of the attached chart is a brief description of the nature of the silencing equipment used. Column 2 shows how much louder or softer the noise of the uncovered camera was than average whispering. Column 3 shows the sound insulating ability in db of the various devices tested. Column 4 shows how many db louder or softer is the noise of the camera enclosed in its protecting device than average whispering. The plus sign indicates the noise as shown in the table is louder than normal whispering, whereas the minus sign indicates that it is weaker than whispering. The zero value indicates that it is the same value on the average as whispering.

Note—"Z" refers to special tripod. "W" to standard model tripod.

The data indicates that some of the studios, although having less effective sound insulating equipment, had taken greater pains in the maintenance and care of their cameras and drive mechanisms, so that the low volume of sound is due to the camera and drive making less noise to start with.

Briefly Told

Buying Worcester House?

Worcester, Mass.—While both Radio-Keith-Orpheum and Warner officials are credited with denying that their firms are in the market for the house, reports persist here that a local company is being formed to take over the Plymouth, for the purpose of selling it to one of the national chains. Another report is that former Mark Strand officials are planning to acquire the house. Joseph Levinson of Boston, for many years with the Mark Strand interests refuses to deny or affirm the report.

McFadden, Wyo.—The high school Pep Club has taken over operation of the local theatre. The house will be operated under student management.

Doty at New Orleans

New Orleans—Leo J. Doty now is managing the United Artists branch here, having been transferred from the post of office manager at Kansas City.

Raymond at K. C. House

Kansas City—Charles Raymond is managing Loew's Midland. He succeeds H. H. Maloney, now at Loew's State, Cleveland.

Operator Dies of Burns

Uvalde, Tex.—William Manship was fatally burned in an explosion of films at a local theater.

Rebuilding at Terre Haute

Terre Haute, Ind.—The Swan is being rebuilt following a recent fire. At the time of the fire the theater was crowded with patrons, but the audience filed out without suggestion of a panic.

New Indiana Firm

Indianapolis—Articles of incorporation have been filed by Spencer Theater Corp. of Spencer, Ind. The corporation has an initial capital stock of 1,000 shares having a declared par value of $10 each. The first board of directors is composed of C. Russell Bray, Carl F. Kreis and Adolph Seidensticker.

Sounds Warning

Dallas—Unless exhibitors here keep crime pictures out of Dallas, an ordinance prohibiting attendance of children will be introduced, Mayor Tate has warned.

A Theatre in The Clouds

A THEATRE in the clouds. Fifty stories above the sidewalks of New York. Modernistic design. Fully equipped for sound. Seats 200 persons, with accommodations for 36 in complete mezzanine. Cost $200,000—$1,000 a seat if you care to figure it that way.

That's the Cinema Guild Theatre, housed in the Chanin Building, at Lexington Avenue and 42d Street, New York City.

New York's newest innovation, it is interesting to note, is a motion picture theatre.

Black and silver color scheme throughout this little theatre represents perhaps the world's costliest playhouse for its size.

When fully lighted a rainbow effect is thrown across the proscenium arch and lights of varied hues diffuse through the filigree panels above the stage.

Characteristically modern in conception are the fireplace, the wrought-iron gates leading into the foyer from the elevators, and the sidewalk treatments. The fireplace is in Belgium black marble matching into a setback of red Nubian marble with a plaque of cast bronze as the sole ornamentation. The fire screen is of wrought iron.

The traditional figure of Pan is seen in the gates leading to the foyer, in polished bronze plates which form the chief decorative note. The gates face the elevator lobby. Floor lamps flanking the gates are of wrought iron with alabaster namental fountains on which lights play are here seen along the side walls.

Once in the auditorium the Moorish intent impresses with all the force of the subdued splendor so characteristic of anything the Moors attempted.

Minarets, glittering domes, turrets and crowning battlements—all are there. A stone-arched bridge spans the auditorium along the stage side.

The stage, one of the largest in America, is 80 feet across and 40 feet deep. The proscenium houses a public address system that makes the faintest whisper heard in every nook and corner of this 5,000-seat house.

Commodious dressing rooms, pressing shop, paint shop, engineering and electrical departments—all are included.

Moorish architecture has been employed before in motion picture theatre building, but never before has it been used with a more artistic result evident.

Excellence in taste has been displayed in the furnishings as well as in their placement. There are many corners of this new Fox house that surprise.

The architects set out to combine a place of amusement with the restfulness obtainable in a church or a cathedral. This is evidenced in the minarets and the definite leaning toward Gothic architecture which predomintes in the foyer. Beamed ceilings, always a handsome touch, enhance the attractiveness of this portion of the house. Showmen, through long experience, know how important the lobby of any house is.

The Fox Atlanta is a fine illustration of what judicious architectural and decorative skill can accomplish. The theatre, itself, is one unit of a distinct centre in Atlanta's business.

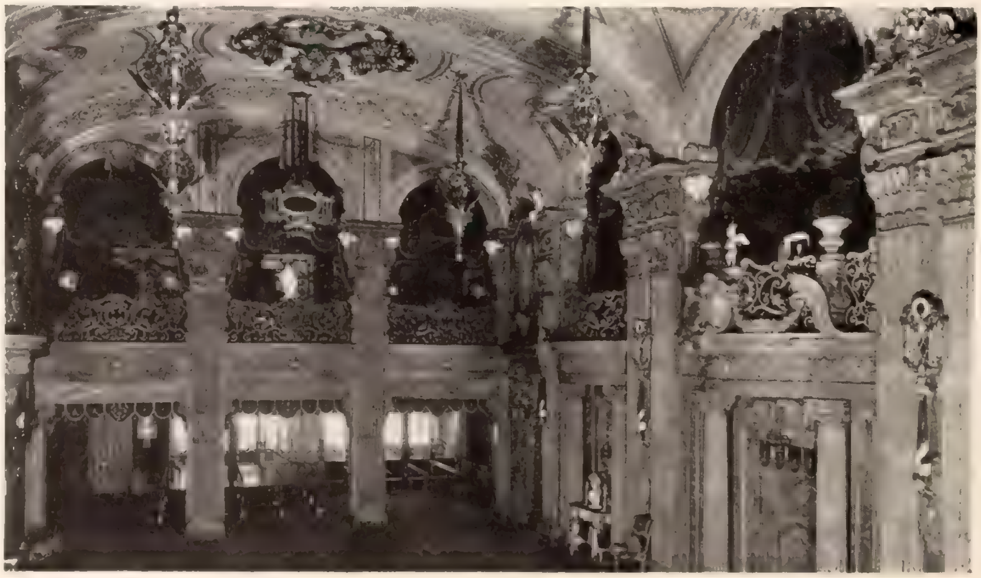
Above a sweeping panorama of auditorium taken from right side of house showing the splendor of the Italian Baroque design, with the infinite detail from floor to ceiling and extending to the proscenium arch. Note the clouded sky effect as though patrons were seated in a huge out-door amphitheatre under the sky.

Loew's Paradise Offers Splendor of A Kingly Palace

In one of the few instances in American theatre building the Italian Baroque style of architecture has been employed in designing Loew's Paradise, in New York City.

In this design John Eberson, the architect, has conceived a formal style, drawing away from the over-elaborateness of the French style of the Louis XV period.

Below is one end and sidewall of foyer where minute detail continues in the design: The massiveness conveyed by stout pillars supporting th ceiling, combined with the splendor of pendant lighting fixtures, together with openings into the mezzanine floor, lends something akin to the colossal reaches of Rome's ancient forums.



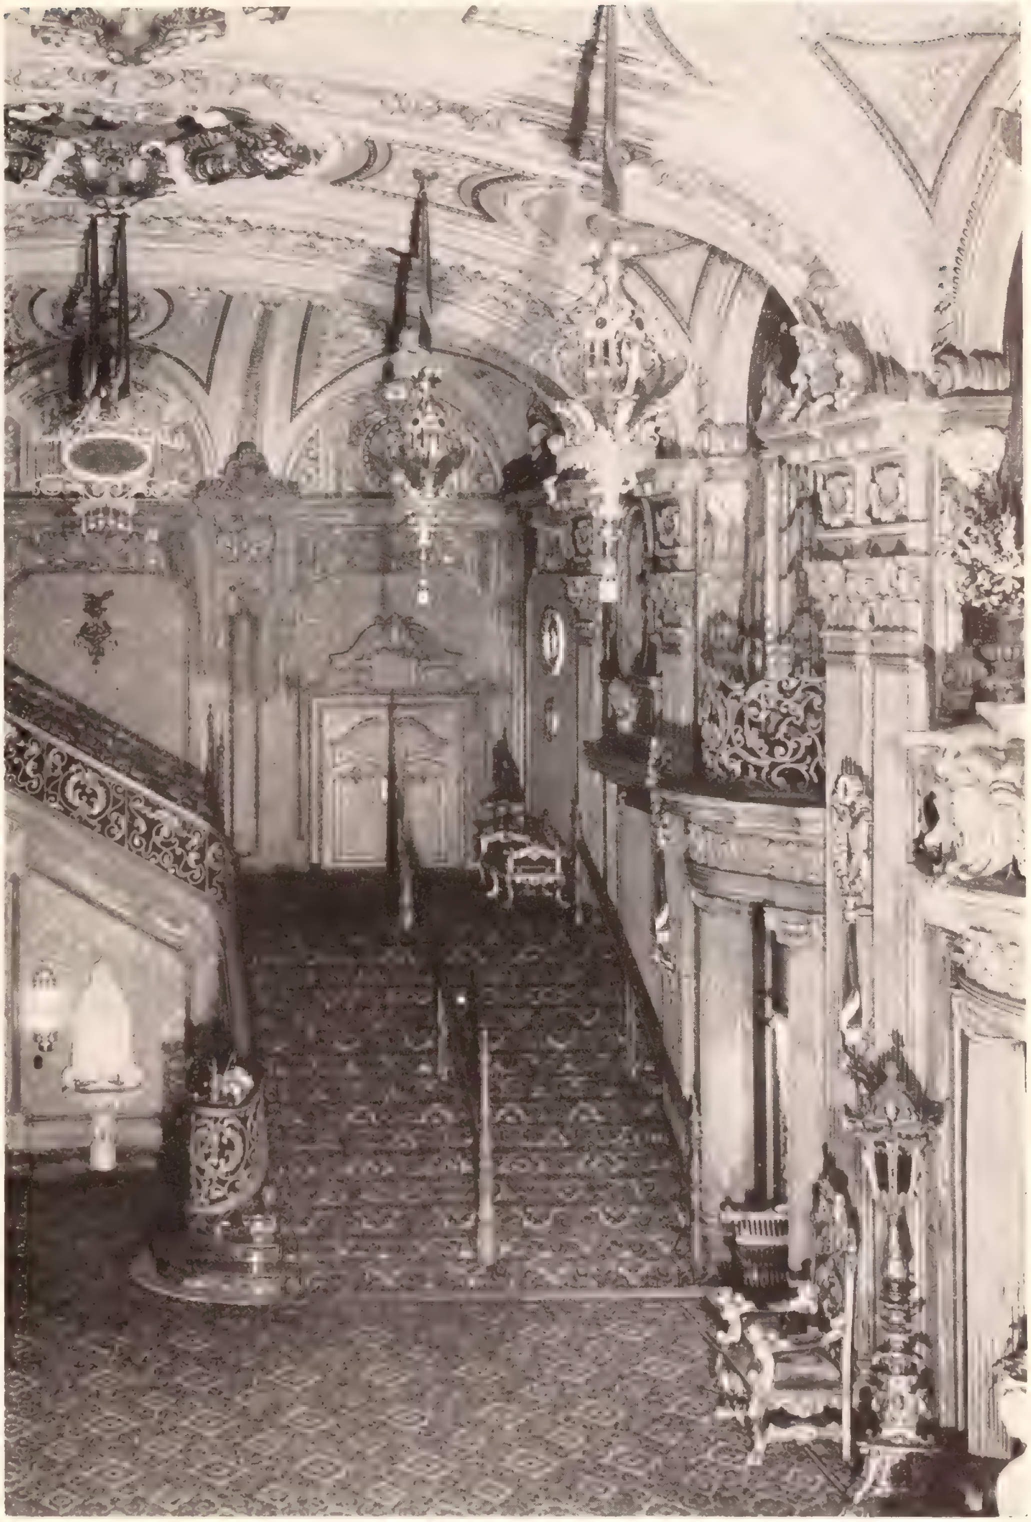
Detail, rather than generalities, has been courted with minute care, statuary playing a most important part in carrying it out.

The grand lobby with its pilasters, its richly carved ceiling and ornamental iron work—all in Italian Baroque—features an Italian marble fountain and a motif of cupids carved in ivory.

The exit portion of the grand lobby, showing unique lighting fixtures, designed to utilize for light and form, employs the modern tube lights and intermediate sized bulbs to gain the effect.

In the auditorium no better example of the Italian Baroque style can be found in American theatres. Here the stupendous conception of space, unlimited, is given by the clouded sky effect with broken lines of architectural work in foreground, backed by foliage and trees, creating a near-perfect illusion of far-distant pictures and skyline.

Loew's Paradise seats 4,000. When this is remembered it can be more readily understood why the architect aimed at "limitless" vision, at the same time keeping every detail within intimate contact with the patron.



The main staircase shows detail work that is found throughout the interior. Here it has been concentrated on sidewall and ceiling with the general effect, straight ahead, of being entirely surrounded by palatial elegance. The arrangement of old period furniture on the first landing aids the impression.

Statuary detail decoration on mezzanine foyer

The grand staircase is a fine example of the advantage to which detail has been extended. Pendant chandeliers, of ornate design, with sidewalls rich in the splendor of the Italian design, stand out without forcing their splendor upon you. A sweeping glance and all the splendor of minute detail seem to concentrate in one focus. Closer examination brings out the countless detail that has been employed.

A certain richness strikes one on entering this theatre—a richness that is never tinged with over-elaborateness. For artistic detail in design Loew's Paradise occupies a niche among theatres-beautiful which will be hard to fill.

Splendor often serves a purpose where simplicity would fall far short. The average motion picture patron leaves simple surroundings following the day's work and when he goes to the theatre he goes with the hope of finding a contrast to his simple home life. Loew's Paradise answers this.

answers this. It satisfies a certain longing for a setting that enables a patron to visualize life as he or she would like to live it. It takes one away from the everyday hubbub of life's workaday world. It supplies that something for which persons in all stations of life, long—the ideal surroundings suggesting plentitude, ease and comfort.

Color Seen Through Layman's Eyes

Process By Which Natural Tints Are Brought To Screen Explained in Non-Technical Terms

Bebe Daniels and John Boles in color sequence of "Rio Rita"

SINCE Technicolor now is being used in 15 per cent. of production work in Hollywood, according to officials of that company, THE SHOWMAN believes it pertinent to explain how it's done. With the industry literally stampeding to sound and color and more recently giving serious thought to wide film it is interesting to note that one hundred features are scheduled in whole or in part for color in 1930. These will be done by Technicolor process. So persistent has been production's demand for color that some of the industry's leading figures, including Jesse L. Lasky, are predicting the early death knell of black and white pictures. The development of Technicolor to its present state has engaged the undivided attention of a group of scientists for more than a dozen years. It is not, in its entirety, a photographic process. In fact, after the negative has been exposed, it virtually ceases to be a photographic process at all, but takes on much the same process as that used in lithographic work. Unlike the lithographic process, however, the colors are not put on by a heavy impression as in the printing of a colored plate or paper.

Color goes on Technicolor negatives by what is known as the imbibition process, which means that the emulsion on the film drinks in the colors which are in form of liquid dyes when applied.

SLIGHT NEGATIVE CHANGE

A Technicolor negative differs slightly from the ordinary run of negative, except for a necessary chemical treatment added to the usual photographic emulsion. With these exceptions the negative is the same as that used in the ordinary black and white photography.

Exactly twice as much time is consumed in photographing color because while in a black and white scene only one frame is exposed at a given time, in the Technicolor process two frames are exposed simultaneously.

To get the positive of this double negative printed on one side of a strip of film so that it may be presented on a screen the following procedure is necessary: A positive film, hardened by chemical action, is treated with hot water after which a "green" etching, or relief map of the scene, is recorded upon it. A "red" relief map is obtained by the same process on another negative film which has been exposed to the "red" part of the negative. While "red" and "green" are used here to designate two parts of the negative, neither an absolute red or green is meant. The first is used to signify the warm colors of the spectrum; the latter, the cold colors.

The two relief map films are the matrices from which are made the prints. With the two matrices ready a blank celluloid ribbon, later to be used in the theatre, is treated with gelatin so that it will receive color dyes in liquid form. The positive which bears the outlines, or microscopic hills and valleys, of the red matrix is soaked with dye and applied like a master printing plate to the blank strip of gelatin-coated celluloid.

PROCESS CONTINUED

The result is that the red parts of the image, or scene, are impressed on the gelatin-coated celluloid film and the latter drinks in from the red matrix all the color necessary to furnish the gradations of red in the picture. The process is repeated with the strip of positive film which has been exposed to the green portions of the negative, making a green matrix in the same manner as the red one was made.

This green matrix then is laid over the gelatin-coated strip directly over the color which already has resulted from the red image. The gelatin layer now is penetrated by both dyes—red and green—in exact proportions as shades existed in the scenes as originally photographed.

Because of the process of putting the color all on one side of the film, projection machine operators can run the film exactly the same as a black and white film is run with no special appliances on the machine necessary.

Until comparatively recently the color was printed on both sides of double-coated film. This made the completed film thicker and caused readjustment of projection machines before the color film could be projected. The perfected process eliminates this inconvenience.

MANY ADVANCES MADE

Many advances have been made in color as used on film. The process has been used more or less for several years but only to emphasize highlights in scattered sequences.

It was not until comparatively recent times—in fact it was not until after the advent of sound that color came into real prominence. It arrived with all the suddenness of sound and has made almost as radical a departure in the exhibition of pictures.

There are a number of color processes. Their aim, necessarily, is the same—to accentuate sequences where such accentuation will add to the dramatic appeal of a picture.

Fashions always lend themselves admirably to color because there always is a variety of color with which to deal the minute a woman's wardrobe is visualized.

OUTDOOR ADVANTAGES

Outdoor scenes—especially those bringing sunsets into prominence of a flowered garden. Exteriors in countries where color plays an important part in the everyday life of the inhabitants, as in Mexico or in Spain, always lend themselves to color.

If a producer were to lay the action of the story he is filming in the Painted Desert, for instance, in the Southwest, there would be a call for plenty of color, as the Painted Desert is just what the name implies—a rainbow of colors.

The same would apply to scenes being taken with the Grand Canyon as a background, a setting where colors are eternally changing and where every color in the spectrum is evident in the rocks of the canyon walls.

Many interior scenes will not lend themselves to color, as for instance, sequences that must necessarily run through a story with a courtroom scene as the highlight.

Color can place as a dramatic part in a screen presentation as any of the leading actors if it be used in a dramatic sense—placing color where color will speak and eliminating it in other places. This psychological aspect of color as applied to pictures is considered so very important that Technicolor has established a special department in Hollywood under the supervision of experts to render expert advice on when, where and why color should be used in this and that story. Many of the feature productions scheduled for the current year will be entirely in color. Many productions now in release or scheduled for near-future release are entirely in color.

The demand for color has been enormous, equaling if not exceeding i nsome instances the demand for sound.

It must be remembered that color has but one effect on a picture—it heightens the dramatic power or, to put it more plainly, lends realism to actualities.

RECENT ACCLAIM

The public, for a long time, either refused to accept color in screen presentations, or it was just indifferent to color. The fact remains that not until comparatively recent months has color played an important role on the screen.

One authority on the subject of what the public wants and what it doesn't want explains it by saying that the psychological effect on an audience when color is given where color is expected results in as big a thrill as the real thrilling sequence would give, and by a real thrilling sequence, he refers to the hero falling over a cliff or an automobile plunging into the rushing waters of a river from a high embankment.

They build PROFIT FOR YOUR HOUSE!

TODAY it's good sound plus good seats! The talkies have placed metropolitan and neighborhood theatres on a more even basis than ever before. No longer does the small house have to compete with so many "presentations," "jazz bands," and "vaudeville novelties." Nowadays, the battle for profits depends largely on the comfort you offer to your patrons. That is why Heywood-Wakefield seats will pay big dividends at your box office. They have been developed to give luxurious, restful comfort—the kind that builds "IT" and "PROFIT" for your house. . . . . . Publix, Warner Brothers, West Coast, Roxy, and scores of others have specified Heywood-Wakefield seats because they have "IT"—patron appeal—box office pull. These smartly and comfortably designed chairs will do the same for your house, too. Sees Big Chance For Equipment Abroad

Best Results Would Come From Pooling Distribution, Gov't Man States

By NATHAN D. GOLDEN

NATHAN D. GOLDEN
Assistant Chief, M. P. Division
Department of Commerce, Washington

AMERICAN equipment manufacturers, regardless of low price competition on the part of foreign manufacturers, have been successful in the past few years in marketing a fair percentage of their product in foreign countries. The wiring of theatres abroad is chiefly responsible for the sale of the latest type of projectors, screens, arc lamps and other equipment recently developed for sound picture projection.

There is no question as to the superior quality of our equipment as compared with that manufactured by foreign concerns. Invariably reports from the field representatives of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce show that owners of theatres in the foreign countries admit such superiority, not only in the quality of the product, but also in its performance. The big questions facing the foreign theatre owner are the increased cost of American projection equipment over that of domestic manufacturers and credit allowance for its purchase. Foreign theatre owners are not as fortunate as American exhibitors in raising capital for the financing of new equipment. Money is tight, interest rates are high and profits are very small after the state, municipal and other taxes are deducted from his gross receipts. The result being that, while he would like to replace his old worn-out equipment with the up-to-date apparatus which is being manufactured in the United States, he has but one alternative—to worry along on the equipment he now has. If American manufacturers can devise some way of helping foreign theatre owners in financing their new equipment, increased sales will surely result.

ANCIENT PROJECTORS

There are thousands of theatres in foreign countries whose projectors are at least from ten to fifteen years old. All of these projectors have outlived their usefulness and are, therefore, ready for replacement with up-to-date equipment. There are also as many theatres in foreign countries employing but one projector.

Showmen abroad and also distributors of projection equipment prefer to enter negotiations with authorized representatives of equipment manufacturers, rather than to carry on negotiations by mail or examining equipment from catalogues. Missionary men, therefore, should be employed to demonstrate and teach foreign projectionists the handling of American equipment. In the last analysis it is the projectionist to a large degree who recommends the purchase of equipment that goes into the projection room.

In some countries projectionists claim that American projectors are more complicated to handle as compared with those in use, also that film that has been slightly mutilated has difficulty in passing through the projector. Probably the outstanding objection to our American projectors, not only from the point of view of the projectionist, but also the theatre owner, is that parts and repairs can not be secured as rapidly as for those projectors of domestic manufacture. The foreign projectionist is not as adept as our American projectionists in repairing a projector when it has gone wrong. He, therefore, will not recommend a machine that he knows he can not get service on as quickly as his domestic make.

REMEDY SUGGESTED

All of the above obstacles might easily be overcome by the American manufacturer, by the pooling of interests for distribution purposes. Distribution centers could be established in various parts of the world, out of which service and missionary men could operate. By such a plan, service to the theatre could be established and representatives could visit theatres and maintain that personal contact the foreign theatre owner desires. While this will probably be a heavy theatrical venture at the outset on the part of American equipment manufacturers, the results in increased sales should more than pay profits over a period of time.

A comparative resume of 35 mm. motion picture projectors for the years 1928 and 1929 is not available, inasmuch as the year just finished was the first in which a separate classification of 16 mm. and 35 mm. projectors was attempted.

During 1929 there were exported to all foreign countries 1,869 American projectors of 35 mm. gauge with a declared value of $592,319 and 2,311 American projectors of 16 mm. gauge with a value of $212,947. The combined total of these two types of projectors is 773 short of our exports during 1928 when there were 5,953 American projectors of both types with a value of $950,202 exported.

Europe, as in 1928, when 35 and 16 mm. projectors were grouped under one classification, remains our leading market for the professional type projector. During 1929, 837 projectors of 35 mm. gauge, having a declared value of $260,736, were exported to all the countries of Europe. Projection exports of 16 mm. gauge during 1929 to Europe amounted to 689 with a value of $65,885.

SOUND BOOSTS TRADE

Installation of sound motion picture equipment in the theatres of the United Kingdom is largely responsible for the import of the large number of 35 mm. projectors of American origin during 1929. During this period 552 American projectors of this type with a value of $152,958 were imported. In the amateur field 228 projectors of 16 mm. gauge with a value of $14,167 were brought into Great Britain from America.

The second largest market in Europe for American 35 mm. projectors, and fifth throughout the world, is France. During 1929 France imported 80 American projectors valued at $38,368 in the 35 mm. class and 30 American projectors of 16 mm. gauge, valued at $4,322. Our third largest market in Europe and tenth among world markets, is Spain, importing 46 American projectors of 35 mm. gauge, valued at $20,207, during 1929, and 49 projectors of 16 mm. gauge, valued at $3,686. Other important markets of Europe were Italy, with 44, Sweden with 30 and Germany with 23 American 35 mm. projectors. In the 16 mm. field, the other leading markets of Europe during 1929 were: Germany 185, Switzerland with 70 and Italy with 53.

FAR EAST SECOND

Our second important regional market is the Far East. During 1929, 399 American projectors of 35 mm. gauge, valued at $119,764, were exported to this market and 1,263 American 16 mm. gauge projectors, valued at $103,952, were exported.

From examination of custom reports for the last eight months of 1929, sound equipment of all types, which include

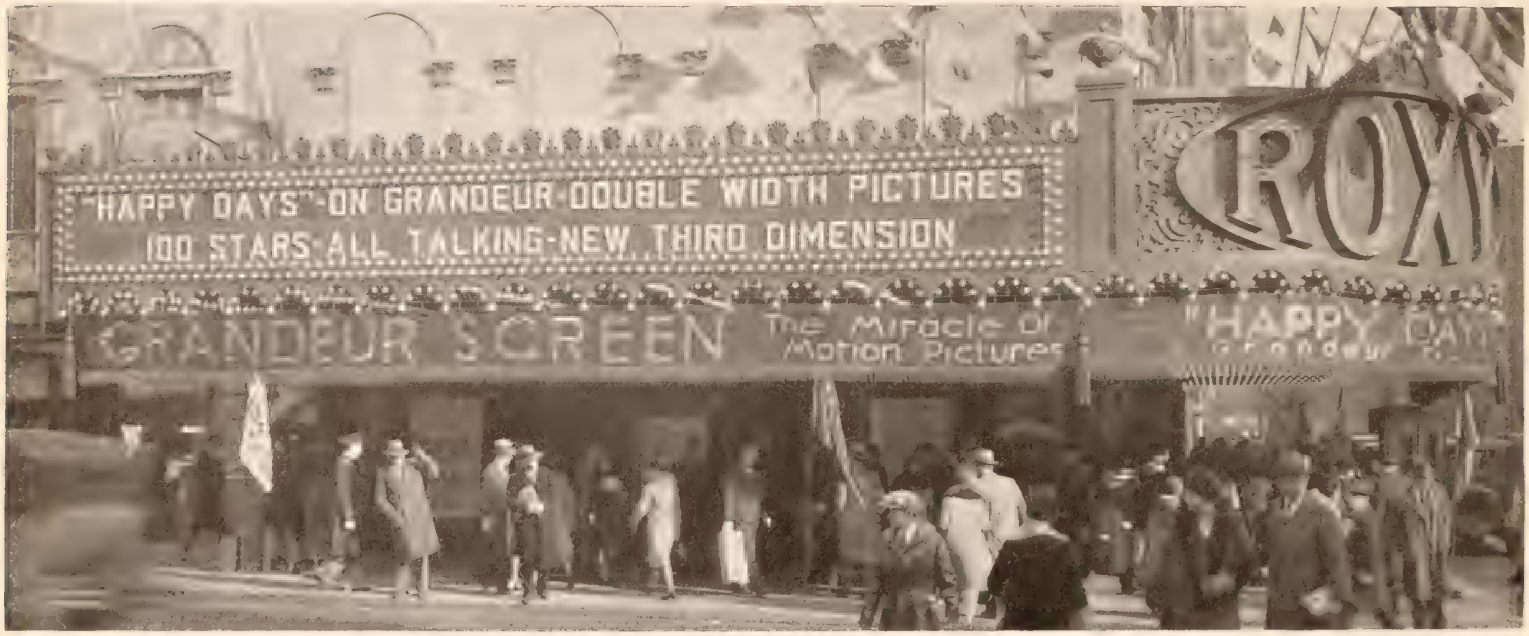
Wide Film Captures Old Broadway

Fox Grandeur Showing Life-Sized Pictures Makes Big Hit with Cosmopolitan Audiences



"HAPPY DAYS"-ON GRANDEUR-DOUBLE WIDTH PICTURES
100 STARS-ALL TALKING-NEW THIRD DIMENSION ROXY
GRANDEUR SCREEN
The Miracle of Motion Pictures
"HAPPY DAYS"

By Joseph L. Kelley

THE first question the motion picture industry asks on the occasion of an innovation is, "Will it last?", followed closely by, "Is it practical?"

No one can answer these questions but the millions who pay to see or hear such innovations.

Fox Grandeur film is the latest innovation and, therefore, very pertinent as another problem with which the industry has to deal.

When a picture measuring 42 by 21 feet is thrown on a screen, and this is compared with the standard picture of 24 by 18 feet which the millions have been accustomed to see, something has to be done about it.

Something was done about it only recently when Grandeur's first subject, "Happy Days," was projected at the Roxy in New York.

What was done was concentrated in one loud burst of acclaim from Broadway. That should be enough, but it isn't. What Broadway does and what the audience on Main Street does are two different and distinct things as many showmen have found out to the dismay of their checking account.

MAIN STREET WAITS

The theatre owner on Main Street can, and often does, do everything the owner on Broadway does, if in so doing, he is pleasing his patrons and, at the same time, showing a profit at the box-office.

A Main Street dollar is as good as a Broadway dollar. To "step out" on Main Street now is to "go to the movies." To step out on Broadway often leads through other channels with pictures forgotten.

The major problem which Grandeur has to face is, "Can Main Street profit by installing the large screen necessary to project wide film and is the average theatre large enough to accommodate such a change?"

However these questions are answered Grandeur is being made, and all the accessories that go with its projection are being made. Therefore the question arises, "Is there a spot for it on the theatre program!"

Again—no one can answer these questions excepting the millions who go nightly to the motion picture theatre.

The purpose of this article is not to even attempt to answer questions but to place Grandeur before those interested in such a way as to give some conception of what it's all about.

COMPARISON IN WIDTH

The standard film measures 35 mm. in width. Grandeur measures 70 mm. The process by which this wide film is turned out is not a magnification of objects on standard-sized film. The pictures are made in specially constructed cameras on film twice the width of standard film. New widescope lenses are used. Projection machines of a radically different type are used.

To incorporate the sound innovation Grandeur has taken every precaution. The sound track on a standard film is one-tenth of an inch wide. On Grandeur this sound track is one-quarter of an inch wide.

Advantage: improved sound tone quality with much of usual sound distortion eliminated because sound must be amplified only half as much to get the same volume from the horns as it does from horns reproducing sound via standard film.

CLOSE-UP ELIMINATED

Then you have the virtual elimination of the so-called "close-up" for with wide film pictures are always in close-up unless purposely set off in long shots.

A musical comedy chorus, for instance, necessarily taken in long shot with standard film, can, with Grandeur, be brought into a close-up—not one or two members of the chorus but the entire chorus.

As far back as October of 1929, Grandeur film was projected on Broadway when Fox showed "Movietone Follies" at the Gaiety. Going further back to mid-summer of last year, the Spoor wide film was demonstrated by RCA Photophone in New York. One act of a musical show by Earl Carroll was the subject matter.

EIGHT YEARS PERFECTING

Going back still further it is found that latter day experiments that led to the development of Grandeur were begun eight years ago by John D. Elms, in a Staten Island (N. Y.) laboratory. Elms was one of the pioneers in the industry and figured that the average 20-foot screens were fixed only because the early films were shown in narrow buildings, usually former stores.

With the development of theatres like the Roxy, seating 6,000, Elms felt the ordinary screen was unnaturally small. He further contended that audiences sitting further away from screens found it increasingly difficult to see the picture properly without distortion.

EARLY EXPERIMENTS

Elms' early experiments were carried on with two cameras, running simultaneously. The difficulty arose when he tried to match the pictures on the screen. He then concentrated on double-width film and a new camera lens that would take in the increased scope of the scene being photographed.

William E. Waddell, another film pioneer, had arrived at the same conclusion at about the same time. He was active in the industry in the early days of the Kinetoscope and peep shows. Waddell had invented a home projector which he called the Bipak. In the days of Edison films he was studio manager for Thomas A. Edison.

During the pioneer days when stage actors were called in for screen tests they objected to the restricted space in which they were confined by the narrow camera range. Waddell felt that the scope of pictures would be limited until this could be overcome. He met Elms later. They combined forces.

FOX INTERESTS IN 1928

The adoption of Movietone some time later resulted in cutting down the picture's width on the film a tenth of an inch. Waddell presented his wide film idea to William Fox two years ago. Fox was impressed by its possibilities, both for the improvement of pictures and the enhancement of sound. He agreed to finance further experiments.

Last September the showing of a Grandeur version of the "Fox Movietone Follies of 1929" and special Movietone News shots at the Gaiety in New York was the first time the public saw the new films.

Since that time many improvements have been made. Set designers, technicians and directors have studied its use at Movietone City at the direction of Winfield Sheehan, vice president and general manager of Fox.

At the present time the Roxy is the only theatre in the world equipped to show Grandeur film, but plans have been made for equipping other large theatres in important cities. The width of the proscenium arch in the Roxy permits a screen 60 feet wide, but if all of this space had been spanned, its proportionate height would have made it impossible for persons sitting in the back rows of the orchestra seats to see the top of the picture.

When the "Follies" were filmed in Grandeur the big cameras were set up in front of sets designed for the standard width film. As a result, the effects possible on the wide film were not realized to the full. In "Happy Days" the sets were massive, for the designers had the same freedom from camera limitations that a stage producer has.

HOW IT IS DONE

It is possible, with a Grandeur camera, to photograph a chorus of twenty-five girls with the camera only a few feet from them, and to show them all on the screen life size. The effect is the same as though the spectator were sitting six or eight rows back in an orchestra seat and looking at a production on a stage forty feet wide. With the old type of film the individuals in a scene of this kind would be almost unrecognizable when photographed en masse because they would be so tiny.

A number of problems have been overcome in the development of Grandeur. Waddell and Elms urged seventy milimeters as the width from the start, because of the simplicity of the mathematics—double the old film. This made it easier to experiment with the new lenses. One of the raw film makers who was consulted favored it because raw stock comes in wide sheets and it is possible to cut it at this width without wastage by making half the number of cuts used in manufacturing the old film.

INVENTOR COMMENTS

New cameras have been made, laboratories have been fitted to handle the 70 mm. film, and projection machines entirely new and revolutionary in principle have been constructed for use wherever the wide screen is being installed.

Another advantage resulting is the illusion of stereoscopy or depth. This illusion is created by reason of the new cameras keeping the backgrounds in sharp focus so that their full value is seen.

Waddell says about Grandeur:

"If sound amplification by radio tubes had been in existence when pictures first became popular there never would have been any silent pantomime pictures. If large theatres, instead of narrow stores, had been used for films at the start, there never would have been any narrow film. It would have been perfectly natural to have begun the early development with the figures life size, using the stage as a model. Sound pictures are a perfectly natural development. I predict for them a popularity as sudden and as sweeping as sound, once the public has seen

A large part of the effect created through the Grandeur projector is dependent upon the mechanical advances incorporated. It is impossible to get this result by using the standard projector.

In spite of the revolutionary size of the image cast on the enlarged screen a striking result of Grandeur is claimed to be the complete elimination of distortion.

It would be natural to suppose that with this greatly enlarged image before them on the screen patrons sitting down front would see an intensification of the distortion present in standard-sized pictures, but the large image definitely reduces distortion.

Grandeur involves a complete system starting with the camera and including special panoramic lenses and new projectors. The development of the projectors represented ten years of almost continuous effort.

RADICAL DEPARTURE

Like all other radical departures, years of experimentation in the optical sciences and the mechanics of projection have brought this wide film brand just as near perfection as the leading scientists in this particular field of endeavor have approached.

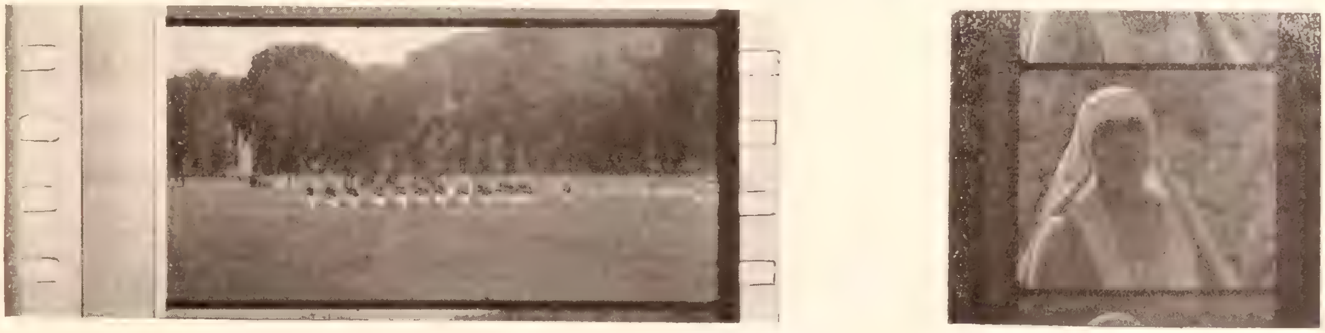
When experiments were started in this field there were no precedents to guide the workers. Wide film is something new in every sense of the word. Not one person in a thousand ever dreamed that as he sat watching the standard-sized picture flash over the screen a year ago there could or would be an improvement in size of the picture. The standard siz ewas accepted, as a matter of course, in the same spirit as a standard loaf of bread is accepted by the housewife.

FUTURE VISIONED

When any number of scientists or inventors are willing to devote their time over a period of years to any subject, there must be something to it aside fro mmere experimentation. Before setting out on such a task these men have visioned the completed task; they have a mental picture of what they are endeavoring to accomplish before them constantly.

It was so in the case of Grandeur wide film. The men who gave their time to perfecting it saw in their work something that would improve pictures as seen on a screen. They worked to that end.

Only one work remains—that work represents the verdict handed in by the millions of people who will pass judgment on this innovation. There will be no jury fixing; there will be no technicalities to squabble over. It will be final.



Above (left) is shown a strip of Grandeur film, actual size as it runs through specially equipped projection machine, the picture on the film measuring 2⅞ inches wide, as contrasted with actual width of standard film at right, of 1 5/16 inches. Figures represent actual width of picture, not including sprocket tracks for sound or power. Wide film shows West Point Cadets on parade, an entire company, being brought into close-up at a distance. The standard strip shows Queen Marie in close-up.

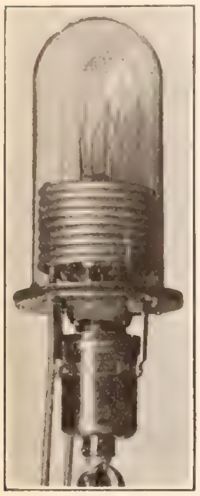
Water Cooled Lamp Aids Sound Work

Water-Cooled Lamp

Color and talking pictures have necessitated a radical change in illuminating lighting systems.

The electrical industry now has in development a new water-cooled incandescent lamp for special use in such cases.

An extract from John Liston's Annual Review of the Electrical Industry for 1929, under the section devoted to "Lighting," herein reprinted, sets forth the peculiar properties of this new invention.



THE ordinary applications of incandescent lamps seldom bring to our attention or consideration the quantity of heat which is produced as a necessary consequence of the light emitted by incandescent tungsten. However, in certain special applications of high-intensity illumination, the heat generated is not only brought to our attention, but is impressed on our minds through physical discomfort. Some of these special applications are in studio lighting for colored and talking motion pictures, projection of motion-picture films, opaque projection and the lighting of the operating tables in hospitals.

In round numbers, 85 per cent of the energy radiating by a 1,500-watt tungsten stitutes the heat which we desire to eliminate. This is achieved by absorbing the heat in some liquid, which absorbs much of the heat but transmits most of the light. Water or some solution such as copper chloride may be used as the absorbing medium and the heat may be dissipated by means of a cooling coil.

The unit at present in the process of development consists of a lamp immersed directly in the absorbing liquid which is confined by an outer glass jacket. A cooling coil through which tap water is circulated is also immersed in the absorbing liquid. Convection currents set up within the liquid are sufficient to maintain a circulation, and no mechanical stirring is necessary. The lamp, cooling coil, and outer jacket are all supported from a base plate on which the lamp socket is mounted. Two gaskets, one between the base plate and the jacket, and the other between the base plate and the lamp at a point just below the base, make the unit water tight.

This arrangement has several advantages. The absorbing layer of liquid practically surrounds the light source so that almost no radiation reaches the atmosphere of the room except through the absorbing medium. Cooling water is circulated in and confined by the coil so that either distilled water or some heat-absorbing solution may be kept permanently in the jacket. The jacket and lamp surfaces are thus kept clean and free from the deposits of ordinary tap water, although tap water is the cooling agent. Another advantage is the possible use of smaller bulb sizes; the temperature of the bulb not being a limiting factor in this case.

In one series of tests, a 1500-watt 115-volt filament was mounted in a special 2½-in. tubular bulb and ordinary tap water (16 deg. C.) flowing at the rate of 20 gal. per hr. through the cooling coil maintained the temperature of the absorbing cell at 45 deg. C. Eleven hundred and twenty-five watts (75 per cent) were dissipated in the cooling water while the absorption of light due to the water cell was only five to seven per cent.

Next Best Thing

Baltimore — Scarcity of wide films did not stop J. Lawrence Shanberger from installing a full-stage-width screen at Keiths'. Upon completion of the installation by Walker Screen, Shanebrger projected "Shows of Shows" in the center of the new green and let it go at that. Others in town are expected to follow suit, including the Belnord, residenttal house in the Durkee string, and Warner's Uptown.

New Pickup Device

The Projectionist Model is the title given a new type electro-magnetic pick-up developed by the Presto Machine Products Co., Brooklyn, N. Y. The pick-up has been especially designed to meet the particular practical considerations involved in theatre sound reproduction

New Sound Device

A new device for sustaining and intensifying the tone of a piano, known as the Crea-Tone and invented by Simon Cooper, Brooklyn scientist, is reported to have been successfully demonstrated. Its principle is the prolongation of vibrations of piano strings by electro-magnets operated by current from a battery of the radio type.

Seeking Sunday Shows

Albany—Many residents of Gouverneur, N. Y., are endeavoring to secure Sunday shows. A petition has been circulated and has many signatures. It will be presented to the village board this month and asked to have the whole proposition submitted to the electors with a definite understanding that if the ordinance is adopted giving Sunday shows, they will not start until after 1 P. M.

New Clay Seen As Acoustic Aid

Columbus, O.—Delegates attending the Structural Clay Tile Ass'n meeting here this week were told that talking pictures will be better 100 per cent if a new clay now in process of development becomes universal in use. Because of its absorbent qualities, sponsors said, the clay had attracted attention of picture producers and theatre owners. The capacity of the clay to make for better acoustics is the quality on which the manufacturers base their assumption.

The clay also is said to offer advantages as plastering for the theatre interiors. Shrill and scratchy sounds are entirely eliminated by the absorbent qualities of the substance, it is claimed.

I. A. T. S. E. Active

Albany—Edgar T. Stewart, New York, representing the International Alliance of Theatre Stage Employees and Motion Picture Machine Operators, appeared at the state capitol in connection with the Williams bill, already introduced, which provides for one day of rest in seven for projectionists. The operators have taken a stand against the Swartz measure which amends the general city law as it relates to licensing operators in first class cities by providing that the applicant must have the signature of the fire commissioner and the city clerk that he is of good moral character and responsible, a citizen of 21 years or over, and has served six months' apprenticeship.

Specially Built Organ

St. Louis—A pipe organ claimed to possess many new tones and constructed at a cost of $250,000, recently was shipped to the Hal Roach studio in Culver City. It was built by George Kilgen and Son, Inc., and is said to be one of the largest liturgical organs in the world.

Equipment Furnished

Continental Theatres Accessories, of New York City, has contracted to furnish complete equipment for the New Windsor in Brooklyn.

Stocked Up

Decision of Louis K. Sidney to discontinue sales of sheet music and records in Loew theatres has left the circuit with a stock of records on its hands. Efforts to peddle job lots at cut prices have hit a snag, it is said, due to the fact that dealers are stocked up.

Doctor For Film Show Ailments Tells Growth of Circuit Idea

One of the Foremost Leaders in Theatre String Management Shows How Policy Was Built

By JOE LEO

(President, Fox Metropolitan Playhouses)

THE application of the principles of modern business efficiency to the problems of theatre management constitute the biggest single and most far-reaching contribution motion pictures have made to the show business. Motion pictures have put show business on a sound basis of management and operation. The entire field of entertainment has profited by that change. There is more need for consistency, and, more than anything else, it is the development of successful circuit operation that has made this possible.

The need for business economics, reduction of risk, and the necessity for standardization has resulted in the merging and unification that is now rapidly being completed by theatre operators everywhere.

The grouping of a number of theatres into a single, unified circuit has made possible many valuable economics in every phase of theatre operation.

Before the development of circuits the individual operator found it physically impossible to give the necessary attention to the many and varied details of operation. This resulted in uncertainties and the business, as a consequence, was ever in a precarious and unstable condition. This, of course, applied to the operator who had more than one theatre to look after.

GREATER EFFICIENCY

Today every well-organized circuit provides the individual manager with the service of efficient departments, each manned by an expert in that particular phase of theatre operation. The various phases include: buying, booking, real estate, advertising, publicity and exploitation, cost control, construction, maintenance, projection, insurance, inspection and legal procedure.

The services of all these departments are coordinated with the central department of general management. The combined resources of this central department are at the immediate disposal of the individual manager.

The growing importance of the circuit business, its consistency of operation, and its rank in the field of industry has provided a real incentive for the best brains in the country.

MAN-POWER DEVELOPED

In return the circuit has provided a fertile field for the development of manpower on a scale that never before has been possible within the theatre management field.

The greater element of economic security the show business offers today has made employment more continuous and more consistent. The labor turnover becomes smaller and smaller.

Careful selection of manpower for ability and character and careful training according to the ethics of modern business and genuine service has not only been advantageous to the business but it has had its beneficial effect on the public at large.

The circuit has provided, in addition to other numerous advantages, each community where one is located with a standard institution that the public can depend upon for the utmost in entertainment, service, comfort and relaxation.

"Dr." Joe Leo

A GLANCE back over the career of Joe Leo immediately reveals his [illegible] speak with authority on the operation of circuits.

Ever since he took over his first "sick" circuit and nursed it back to vigorous health he has been tabbed a "doctor of ills for show business." He has made profitable theatres out of old and run-down material.

Leo took over the Ascher circuit in Chicago when it was in the toils of a receivership and made of it a free and independent agent. He took over another string, an adjunct of the Ascher circuit, and merged it with the first into a well-knit chain of profitable houses now known as the Fox Chicago Theatres.

Leo then "doctored" the Saxe circuit in Wisconsin. Within a year he had transformed a losing proposition into the nucleus of the present powerful Fox Midwesco chain.

He was sent East to take over the operation of eight different circuits and proceeded to prescribe the same medicine as a curative. Within three months he had built the Fox Metropolitan Playhouses into a unit of efficiency and profit.

LEADERSHIP MADE AN ART

Inspired and conscientious leadership is a great factor in providing a closely-knit organization. A powerful factor in bringing about this spirit of cooperation is the practice of holding frequent and regular meetings.

These meetings, held in each theatre, district, division and circuit headquarters, afford an opportunity for an interchange of ideas that would be impossible otherwise. The meetings go far towards maintaining and renewing loyalty and enthusiasm. A "concert pitch" is kept in the moral of the organization.

A well-edited and newsy house organ provides still another medium for the interchange of ideas, this interchange probably doing more for the general good of the unit and collective bodies than any other one medium.

In all this the modern theatre operator is doing only what other men throughout an efficient business would do—applying the lessons of modern business efficiency to the problems of theatre management.

JUDICIOUS SPENDING

Economical operation is the process of judicious spending. The modern theatre operator sets his expectancy figure on the basis of past experience, not, as in the past, on the "feel of things." He strives to sell his theatre as a permanent institution of entertainment on the basis of scientific and up-to-date operation. This, too, is a product of modern motion picture circuit operation.

Successful circuit operation has transformed the show business from a "game" into a business. There is more consistent trend in the business today than ever before, all due to the coordinating influence of the circuit ideas. Anticipated results come closer to the actual grosses.

The same process of elimination of the unfit in the motion picture theatre field goes on in the field of the legitimate theatre. This proves almost conclusively that the motion picture show business, especially, has outgrown its swaddling clothes and has taken its place among the major industries of the nation. Here is where it rightly belongs.

IMPORTANCE OF CIRCUIT IDEA

Probably no one factor in the industry has done more to revolutionize the methods of handling shows than the circuit idea.

Before the circuit idea became practical, and virtually universal in practice, each exhibitor played a lone hand.

The circuit idea changed all this. Any exhibitor still is free to play a lone hand but he has the added advantage of benefiting by the ideas of the many as compared with the idea of one where the advantages of the circuit operation are not available.

Cooperation is absolutely essential to all big business. That is what the circuit idea primarily does—not only inspires but actually enforces cooperation.

WORK CO-ORDINATED

The exhibitor on Main Street knows to an iota what the exhibitor on Broadway is doing to promote better interests between theatre owner and patron. He knows how this and that thing was done, almost in the same breath with the man on Broadway.

The need of business economy at this time, especially, puts the circuit idea to the acid test.

It should be unnecessary to convince any business man that cooperation and unification can mean nothing but improvement—whether the business to which it is applied be a collection of peanut stands of a collection of million dollar enterprises.

It is absolutely assured that some kind of assistance will be given that never has entered the business life before as a helpmate.

INDIVIDUALISM ATTAINED

The individual manager idea, I feel compelled to elaborate on more fully. Too much can not be said about this particular phase of conducting a circuit.

It necessarily follows that individual managership is necessary insofar as links in the theatre chain are scattered. The prevailing idea, and the one big idea in this phase, is that the individual manager not only is "on the ground" watching every aspect of his individual theatre but he is watching it with a thermometer trained upon it that is gauged to the utmost possible accuracy, not by his single idea but by the united ideas of the best brains in the central organization. This, too, is bound to bring nothing but the very best results.

INCENTIVE ENGENDERED

Theatre management is no small matter. With the motion picture industry ranking well up in front with our country's most important businesses, the manager of a motion picture theatre need not consider himself a cog in a wheel of small proportions.

The theatre manager of today is just as important to the motion picture industry as a member of the nation, for it is such businesses as the motion picture industry with its millions involved that place our country in the lead of all other countries in volume of business transacted.

As Leo Sees It

SUCCESSFUL circuit operation has transformed show business from a "game" to a business.

Need for business economics, reduction of risk and necessity for standardization have bade theatre merging and unification necessary.

Well organized circuits provide individual manager with services of efficient department specialists.

Growing importance of theatre management provides real incentive for best brains in country.

Circuit organization provides development of manpower.

The greater element of economic security show business offers makes employment more continuous and consistent.

Labor turnover is made smaller and smaller.

Every community where circuit is established has been provided with an institution.

Spirit of co-operation instilled by practice of frequent and regular meetings.

Co-operation has instilled economical operation which in turn sets up process of judicious spending.

ACTS AS STABILIZER

Manpower, too, I am compelled to dwell upon in more detail.

As with the advent of machinery which replaced countless work by manual labor, the country first was startled because it was thought machinery eventually would deprive the manpower of the country from labor sources.

Not so, as everyone has found out to his or her thorough satisfaction.

The circuit idea was in much the same sort of temporary predicament, and remained in that predicament, until it was found that by centralizing the brains of the particular branch of the industry auplying to theatre management, not only more work was made possible but work of a more specialized nature, thereby increasing the weekly pay check.

Emphasis can not be laid too strongly on the vast difference the circuit idea made in the general community gatherings.

Any institution that brings together ideas from the four corners of any land will with those ideas promote community gatherings.

The very nature of the circuit idea presupposes this. The mainspring idea of the circuit is the get-together spirit, the exchange of ideas and the eventual merging of these ideas into a one harmonious whole.

REGULAR MEETINGS

This brings me to the meetings which result. Despite the fact that circuit members gather primarily for business, and business of a big nature, there never is that need so urgent that the social element does not enter into such meeting, unless, of course, the meeting be called for the specific purpose of coming together o nsome major problem.

The average meeting, and there are many of them, necessitated by the very nature of the business involved, is as much social as it is business and not only the one immediately concerned in the business phase but their families are among those present.

Few people realize what a tremendous amount of concentrated effort and thought it took to place the circuit idea on a practical, working basis, and it must be admitted that the idea is both of these.

ORGANIuATION EXPLAINED

Organization—that's the answer. I can best give the theatre man's explanation of just what organization means by picturing the work of a country school teacher, new to the community, and with a lot of carefree, foot-loose youngsters to drive into something like a class. It is a big problem for any young woman. It is a situation with which we all are familiar.

If the school teacher's task be difficult the average person can get some idea, by contrast, of just the problem that faces one who sets out to arrange into a class widely scattered theatres and their personnel.

Once organization is put under way—and by that I mean a definite line of action with men at the head who know in detail their specialized work—the matter becomes as simple as adding two and two, always providing the organizer has had foresight enough to surround himself with men of brains.

EXPERIMENT WORKS

This I have tried to do. The work I have attempted to do speaks for itself. Fox Metropolitan Playhouses functions like a well-oiled piece of machinery—thanks to the men I have around me.

The circuit idea was not only an absolute necessity, but it was inevitable. An industry of the proportions of the motion picture industry could not function without the co-operative idea uppermost.

In putting the idea into practice I merely carried out the principles of good business

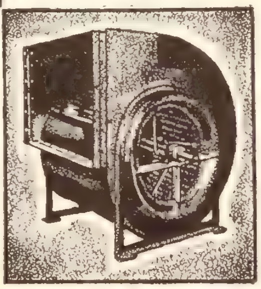
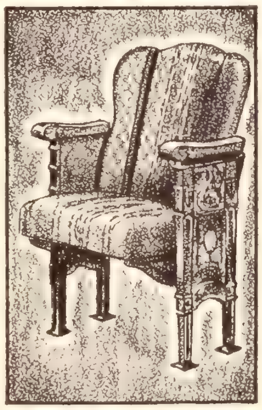
4 NECESSITIES FOR GOOD ACOUSTICS

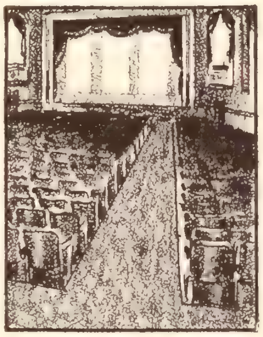


Any exhibitor can show talking pictures—most of them do. But to satisfy the theatre going public of today they have to show more than just talking pictures—they have to show good ones! Reverberations, echoes, indistinct voices, won't do. The question of getting better acoustics is today uppermost in the mind of every progressive showman. . . . Here are four practical answers to that question:



1. For good acoustics a silent ventilating system is a genuine necessity. . . . And now the new American Blower Fan is ready for you. Designed especially for talking picture houses, its capacity has been increased to provide the same ventilation at lower speeds. This means absolute silence in operation. . . . No interference with the talking program.

2. Every veneer chair in a talking picture house is a sounding board that causes echo and reverberation. Replacement with upholstered chairs will bring a decided improvement in acoustics.



3. Good carpets, properly installed, take care of resounding floor spaces and thus contribute to better acoustics in addition to increasing the attractiveness of any theatre.

4. Draperies hung for acoustical improvement help to break the echo and decorate otherwise unsightly sound-insulating materials.

Good acoustics in the average theatre cannot be attained without the consideration of these four necessary phases of modern sound equipment. Ask your nearest National Branch for further information, quotations and terms.

Answers to Questions on Sound Asked in January Showman Issue

BY JOHN F. RIDER

FEELING that the service man, as well as the expert projectionist, should qualify as a practical authority on the proper operation of sound equipment, I endeavored to ask a number of pertinent questions in the January issue of THE SHOWMAN.

The answers to those questions are given below. I have endeavored to answer them in simple, non-technical terms, as far as possible, so that the service man may readily grasp their practical meaning.

Service work in sound encompasses numerous fields, as I set forth in my list of questions, embracing acoustics, resonance, filter circuits and the like.

The application of these questions and answers is general and, once mastered, the service man can readily adapt himself to any new innovation in sound reproduction.

The questions began with a consideration of sound. Each question was numbered. They are answered, with the answer to each question asked, numbered accordingly, as follows:

SOUND

1. Sound as we hear it consists of a series of compressions and rarefactions that are set up by a vibrating body. For normal interpretation it is the equivalent of air particles in motion, oscillating around a point or rest in such fashion that the energy from one oscillating particle is imparted to another, the sound progressing in the form of waves of definite length and periodicity.

2. Sound travels in all directions from the point of generation, but under normal conditions displays directional characteristics, being strongest in the direction of propagation. Sound waves created by a vibrating body may be propagated through air (gases, solids or liquids). The velocity of travel depends upon the elasticity, the density of the medium and temperature, according to the simple formula, $v = \sqrt{E \div d}$. The velocity of sound through air is about 1,100 feet per second.

3. When a sound wave strikes a surface of different elasticity, some of the sound is reflected, some absorbed and some transmitted. Porous materials absorb a good deal of sound. Solid materials reflect a good deal of sound. The degree of absorption or transmission depends upon the thickness of the material, but as a linear function. Sound waves may be transmitted through solids by virtue of the air particles setting into motion the molecules of the solid substance, or they may pass through the air spaces of a porous substance.

4. Reverberation is the prolongation of sound due to reflection from solid surfaces after the original impulse has ceased. Thus one word may mix with the next, creating poor intelligibility. Reverberation is expressed in time, usually a fraction of or a unit number of seconds representing the period of prolongation of a sound. Complete elimination of reverberation has been found injurious to good reproduction, but excessive reverberation must be avoided.

5. Cavity resonance is vibration of the air in the cavity at a resonant frequency for a prolonged period, in excess of the duration of the original impulse, thus creating a hangover which interferes with good reproduction. It is due to insufficient circulation of air in the cavity, be it an alcove or a speaker housing.

6. Walls vibrate, the periodicity depending upon the mass. The thinner the wall the higher the frequency vibration. Sound waves striking a wall may set it into vibration and if the frequency of the impulse coincides with the natural frequency of the wall, vibration will be prolonged for a long period. The rigidity of the wall is also important, loose walls vibrating more readily than rigid walls, since less energy is dissipated setting the wall into vibration.

7. An echo is a reflection of a sound from a solid surface with a lapse of time between the original impulse and the audible reflected sound. Thus the same sound is heard twice or more times; first from the point of generation and then from the reflecting surface or surfaces as the case may be. A lapse of about one-sixteenth of a second or more must occur in order that an echo be discernible.

8. The period of reverberation in a room may be reduced by proper acoustic treatment of the reflecting surfaces, which means the use of materials which will absorb rather than reflect sound. Care must be exercised not to treat to an excessive extent. Such treatment will cause a loss of the upper audio register.

> 9. Incorrct connection of speaker windings will inflence the action of the speaker vibrating surfaces and cause diminution of the sound at various parts of the theatre and excessive intensity at other points.

10. A very low period of reverberation will cause a loss of brilliance when listening to music and will tend to create an effect similar to a reduction of the pitch of the music. The period of reverberation in a theatre is governed by many factors, such as the structure of the theatre, the volume of space, the draperies, hangings, seats, carpets, audience; in general, the quantity of absorbing material present in the chamber.

11. The sound heard in the balcony of a theatre does not come directly from the original source of sound. Instead, the sound heard is that direct from the source, that reflected from the walls on both sides and that reflected from the ceiling. The possible number of reflections prior to the arrival of the sound at the balcony is governed by the structure of the theatre and the character of the reflecting surfaces, such as their shape. In certain instances sound may be projected upon the balcony because of focussing by some reflecting surface.

12. Sound does not travel at constant speed through all media. This is shown by the formula in reply to question number 2. The following table affords an idea of the relative speed of sound through various elements.

Medium	Speed (Ft. per second)
Air	1100
Water	4700
Brick	12000
Steel	16400

13. Reflection of sound can best be described by comparing it with the reflection of light. The degree of reflection depends upon the character of the reflecting surface. The more solid the surface the greater the intensity of the reflected sound, just as the more polished the surface, the greater the intensity of the reflected light. Further, reflection of sound is not always in the direction of the original source of sound. This is governed by the manner in which the original sound strikes the reflecting surface and the character of the reflecting surface. The degree of reflection is best determined by the difference in elasticity of the original conveying medium and the reflecting medium.

14. Reflection can be minimized by the use of surfaces which possess absorbing rather than reflecting properties. Such materials are of porous nature with small air channels and of appreciable thickness.

PHONOGRAPH PICKUPS

1. All phonograph pickups are not suited for use with any one amplifier installation because coordination of electrical characteristics is essential in order that the correct quality of reproduction be secured.

2. In order that a phonograph pickup be suitable for use with an amplifier, it is necessary that the correct coupling device, frequently spoken of as an "impedance matching transformer," being used to link the pickup to the amplifier so that the proper transfer of energy from the pickup to the amplifier input circuit be secured.

3. Excessive tension upon the pickup

BACKED BY THE GUARANTEES OF TWO GREAT INSTITUTIONS!

Greatest beauty, comfort and mechanical excellence that assure maximum serviceability are the three elements that determine the most advantageous buy in theater chairs.

Of the first two you are the sole judge. You can see and try them. But of the third factor, serviceability, the length of time those chairs will retain their beauty and comfort, you must, unless keenly technically minded, rely greatly on the guarantee of those behind the product.

And herein lies double assurance of obtaining the greatest possible value when you select STEEL Furniture Company chairs — to our unrestricted guarantee of highest quality as manufacturers is added that of the National Theatre Supply Company — guarantees on which are staked the reputations of two great institutions long noted for the exceptional quality of their merchandise, service and fair dealing.

Chair No. 6932 shown is one of a large variety of upholstered models incorporating among their many superiorities the advantages of steel over cast iron—greater strength—less weight—and material savings in freight.

6. Unstead reproduction may be due to:
   1. Non-uniform speed of motor.
   2. Excessive weight upon disc.

7. The difference between a "low impedance" and a "high impedance" pickup is a matter of design and the contemplated position in the amplying system. The high impedance pickup is intended for application to the grid-filament circuit of a vacuum tube, whereas the low impedance unit is intended for use with a transformer. The majority of talkie pickup units are of the low impedance type.

8. Steady D. C. operating or polarizing potentials are NOT required for correct operation of the pickup device. Direct current does not flow through the pickup winding. This is true even when the coupling transformer is a part of a tube circuit when the pick up is in use.

9. The function of the impedance matching transformer is to so line the pickup to the remainder of the circuit that the electric circuits are correctly coupled and best condition for energy transfer obtains between the pickup and the remainder of the amplifying system. This is necessary because the pickup is a reactive impedance and the voltage developed is a function of the load impedance.

10. The voltage output of the magnetic phonograph pickup is a function of the load impedance.

1. A beam of light impinged upon the active surface within the cell causes the emission of electrons by the active surface, thus converting light variations into electric currents.

2. The function of the collector ring within the cell is to attract the electrons emitted by the active element, thus creating a stream between the active element and the collector ring. This is similar to the electronic stream between the filament and the plate of the two-element vacuum tube.

3. The action of the polarizing potential is to create the required difference of potential between the active element and the collector ring whereby the direction of the electronic stream is prearranged. This battery also serves to supply the current consumed during the operation of the cell.

4. The polarizing potential is so applied that the active surface is the cathode or (—) and the collector ring is the anode or (+). Further, the potential is applied through a high external resistance, so that the current variations occasioned by any variation in the intensity of the light impinged upon the cell will develop a voltage across the resistance which may then be transferred to the associated amplifying system. The operation of the cell is so arranged that the current in the cell is proportional to the intensity of the incident light and with a fixed resistance in the external circuit, the voltage developed across this resistance is proportional to the incident light.

5. The function of the gas deliberately inserted into the cell is to increase its sensitivity by supplying current carriers so that sufficient current carriers are provided with a low polarizing potential and low values of light impinged upon the cell. The presence of the gas eliminates the need of a large amount of light to create the current and voltage output required for normal operation.

6. A glow within the cell indicates ionization of the gas, in which state the cell cannot function as it should. The remedy lies in the reduction of the polarizing voltage.

7. Two simple methods may be employed to test the photo-electric cell when it is in the circuit. One is to pass a paper between the light and the cell, thus cutting off the light. A distinct click should be audible. Another simple test is to place a lamp lighted by 60-cycle current within the vision of the cell. The hum of the lighting system frequency should be audible. In both cases it is necessary that the complete amplifier system be connected into the circuit so that the click or the hum is audible in the speakers.

8. Insufficient polarizing voltage will reduce the output of the cell.

FILTERS, EQUALIZERS

1. The difference between a series and a parallel resonant circuit is found in the paths provided for the current in the circuit. In the series arrangement the same value of current flows through all elements, or, if expressed in a different manner, one single circuit is provided for the current path. In the parallel resonant circuit two or more paths are provided for the current.

2. A parallel resonant circuit offers a high impedance at resonance, whereas a series resonant circuit offers a low impedance at resonance. This means minimum current flow through a parallel circuit at resonance and maximum current flow through a series circuit at resonance.

3. A series resonant circuit is best suited to remove the scratch frequency in connection with the phonograph pickup.

4. (Impractical to answer this without illustration.)

5. The series resonant circuit finds application in the effort to remove a "bump" in the speaker response characteristic.

6. The impedance of the filter circuit will be 18 ohms and it is connected across the voice coil of the speaker. The filter circuit is of the series resonant type.

7. (Impractical to answer this without illustration.)

8. Illustration, the total impedance of the filter must be 230 ohms. Since the D. C. resistance of the coil is .6 ohm, a negligible value with respect to its reactance a series resistance of 230 — .6 or 229.4 ohms will be required in conjunction with the inductance and the capacity.

VACUUM TUBES

1. Amplification Constant, Plate Impedance, Mutual Conductance are the three important constants of a vacuum tube.

2. A high value of amplification constant with a low value of plate impedance results in a high value of mutual conductance, thus affording the maximum plate current variation for a unit input voltage upon the grid.

3. Voltage amplifiers are arranged to possess a high value of amplification constant so that the voltage developed in the plate circuit shall be maximum for transfer to the succeeding amplifying tubes. Tubes suitable for power amplifiers are those with a low plate impedance and a high value of mutual conductance, so that the maximum plate current change is secured for a unit voltage change upon the grid.

4. The function of the grid bias voltage is to adjust the operating axis of the vacuum tube in order to secure the closest approach to distortionless amplification. This, of course, when the tube is used as an amplifier. When the tube is employed in connection with a level indicator, the grid bias arranges the operating axis, so that it is possible to interpret plate current variations in signal input quantities.

5. The amplification constant of a vacuum tube limits its location in the amplifier to some point where the signal voltage shall not be in excess of the maximum grid bias which may be applied to the tube. Thus tubes with high amplification constant may be used only where the signal voltage is low because the grid bias applied to the tube is low.

6. The output voltage of a voltage amplifier tube or a tube employed as a voltage amplifier is a function of the load impedance and varies in proportion to the input voltage.

7. The output power or the power output of a tube employed as a power amplifier varies as the square of the input voltage. That is, if the input voltage is doubled the power output is increased four times and if the input voltage is halved the power output decreases to one-fourth of its original value.

9. An overloaded tube is one to which is being applied more than the permissible input voltage as determined by the grid bias. At the same time it can be applied to a tube which is being subjected to operating potentials in excess of the rated values.

10. Grid current is that current which flows between the grid and filament of the vacuum tube when a positive potential is applied to the grid. This potential may be the positive cycle of the input signal voltage, in which case the grid acts as a miniature plate. The grid current is of D. C. character and will be indicated upon a D. C. current meter. Plate current flows in between the plate and filament of the vacuum tube within the tube and through the external circuit connected to the plate and filament. Its D. C. magnitude depends upon the operating potentials applied to the tube.

ARCTIC NU-AIR

BIG, happy audiences, steady summer profits, new high attendance records . . . are your reasons for the nation-wide adoption of Arctic Nu-Air!

It gives these thousands of theatres hot weather comfort and relief never before possible except at prohibitive cost. It makes a clean sweep of the heat, humidity and objectionable odors. It constantly fills the entire house with a gentle deluge of cooling current.

The 1930 Arctic Nu-Air Cooling and Ventilating System embodies new exclusive features. It meets today's needs in a new efficient manner. It is quiet . . . no roar, no flapping noises, no rattles.

Be ready for the first hot night. Arctic Nu-Air will replace the hot weather slump with profits. Write us now for this book on 1930 Arctic Nu-Air. Send in the coupon.

Old King Coal Losing Theatre Throne

Usurper Oil Has Stepped In To Replace Hard Fuel As Heat In Modern Houses

OLD KING COAL, according to statistics recently compiled by the Oil Heating Institute, of New York, is fast losing favor with exhibitors. The Old Monarch who has reigned supreme almost since the theatre's inception is rapidly losing one of its most profitable customers. A benevolent young usurper known as Oil Burner has stepped in within the past year and taken over Old King Coal's throne. Oil heating, according to a recent survey, has placed theatre heating on an entirely new basis of efficiency and economy. It has been accepted as one of the most profitable advances in theatre operation. One of the primary reasons for this radical difference between oil and solid fuel heating, in the final estimate of theatre upkeep, is the faculty of the oil burner to operate only when heat is necessary.

PARAMOUNT THEATRE USES OIL FOR HEAT

Reasons given in the report on the comprehensive survey made of the Oil Institute includes:

The known fact that the average picture theatre is operated on an average of twelve hours out of the twenty-four, two of these hours being given over for cleaning purposes. During these two hours a full supply of heat is unnecessary, even in continuous program houses. Where oil burners are installed the supply of heat can be regulated by merely pressing a button.

EXPENSE ITEMS COMPARED

Under the old system of solid fuel heating a crew of workmen was necessary to keep furnaces running properly. There were ashes to cart away. There were other incidental necessities, all of which required more or less expense. Fires had to be banked over night and the consumption of fuel went on. The survey, by actual figures, shows that this practice has been wasteful but accepted because it was unavoidable.

When no heat is needed the oil burner is shut down and the consumption of fuel is stopped at a moment's notice. When heat is needed it may be obtained automatically or by the trifling effort of pressing a button.

This flexible control of heating has been found particularly saving in the spring and fall months when the mornings and evenings retain a chill and midday is comfortably warm.

Roxy's Latest

ROXY, the man of showmanship ideas, springs his latest. Each week a new perfume to provide the Roxy Theatre with "new atmosphere" is selected, thus creating, as he explains, an appeal to the sense of smell as well as to sight and hearing.

The latest perfume to scent the palatial Roxy is a new creation by a well known Paris perfumer. Instead of spraying it through the theatre Roxy has the scent distributed by means of the ventilating system.

And the weekly cost, he explains, approaches $900. Any woman patron especially captivated by the scene may repair to the lounge and resort to the atomizers at Milady's disposal.

With a fully equipped hospital and coffee served at all times, Roxy boasts an unique and all-inclusive theatre service.

During long or short periods when outside temperatures range from 50 to 65 degrees a relatively small amount of heat is needed to keep a theatre adequately warm. Under the old system coal fires were kept alive for days and weeks to supply this minimum need.

The report further shows that comfort and convenience are big factors. The cost, the report says, is not prohibitive. Specific examples of theatres in various parts of the country which have installed oil burners are given and a comparison made between the cost when hard fuel was used and when oil was burned.

THEATRES USING OIL

Among the theatres now using oil burners are:

Capitol and Stadium in Brooklyn; Hempstead theatre, Hempstead, L. I.; Paramount, in New York City; Crystal, Detroit; Cinderella, St. Louis; Royal, Providence, R. I.; Columbian, Seattle; Pearl, Chicago; Orpheum, New Orleans; Bagdad, Portland, Ore.; Strand, Hartford, Conn.; Stanley, Newark, N. J.

The Brooklyn Capitol, the report shows, was using coal in 1923-24. The fuel bill for the winter seasons during the two years, averaged $1,538.12, not estimating the cost of janitor and stoker service. In 1925 the oil burner system was installed. The winter bill that season was $947.63, representing a net saving of approximately 33 1/3 per cent.

The Stadium in the same Brooklyn neighborhood effected a similar percentage in saving with a previous coal bill of $1,850.01, following with an oil fuel bill for the same period of $1,236.00.

INSTALLATION INEXPENSIVE

The Hempstead theatre on Long Island reduced its heating bill from $3,600 to $2,600 in a single year by changing from coal to oil. The ratio of savings runs about the same in the other theatres mentioned, the report sets forth.

Large theatres found that the oil burner cuts their boiler room labor in half. The smaller theatres, where full control is had automatically, found they could do away with their heating crew altogether.

Concluding, the report points out that it is unnecessary to change heating plants when making the switch from coal to oil. The oil burner is installed in the old heating plant. New expense includes the oil burner and storage equipment.

ONLY WHEN NEEDED

The faculty of the oil burner to operate only when actually needed spells one of its principal advantages over hard fuel, and the coal stoker.

When the business is shut down completely, necessitating no consumption of fuel, no heat is necessary.

Convenience and the elimination of all possible dust and gas fumes are two big factors in theatre operation. Oil burners make for convenience because of the simplified methods of handling and regulating the flow of heat and eliminate dust and fumes.

AN INNOVATION

Like sound, color and wide film, the oil burner is an innovation, as far as its application to the theatre is concerned. It is an innovation, however, that many believe gives every evidence of becoming a well-established method by which theatres, especially theatres built in the future, will be heated.

Great encouragement is seen in the satisfactory manner oil has proven as a heat medium in the theatre in which burners already have been installed.

Every feature of the oil burner system points to the always important phases of any innovation—practicability and economy.

Regardless of how unique or all-important any innovation may be, if it isn't practical it cannot find itself in universal use or in public favor.

IMPORTANCE OF HEAT

It is generally conceded that a well-heated theatre is a very valuable asset. It is unnecessary to prove this, especially in localities where Old Man Winter makes his yearly visit. It is a feature as much to be expected by a patron as his or her daily meals. Therefore, it is worth a lot of consideration.

Oil burners have proved satisfactory in the limited number of theatres already using them. Anything that gives satisfaction and is needed has gone a long way toward establishing a permanent birth for itself.

Gentlemen:-

We take pleasure in advising you that the suit brought by the Racon Electric Co.,Inc. against you for alleged unfair competition in trade, which involved the exponential horn, was tried by Judge Mitchell of the Supreme Court of New York County. Said case was dismissed and decided on the merits in your favor on the ground that you did not appropriate any alleged secret formula or design of the Racon Electric Co.,Inc.

In view of the dismissal of this suit you are at liberty to manufacture, sell and use exponential horns of the type which you have been manufacturing and selling without infringement and your customers have the right to use said horns and can not in any way be enjoined or prohibited in said use by the Racon Electric Co.,Inc.

Very truly yours,

Judgment of New York Supreme Court Says—

Case Dismissed

Read the letter opposite advising us of a Supreme Court decision, which disposes of the unwarranted charge of unfair competition, secret formulas, special designs, etc.; made by Racon Electric Co., Inc. Unfortunately for our competitor, it was not any one man or firm who mastered the principles of acoustics, therefore the sound principles of the MACY HORN being entirely different, sound engineers "who know" recognized it as standard of quality and the charges as made naturally are without foundation.

MACY HORN WINS

—not only does it win from a legal standpoint, but by actual comparison and merit of true sound value, WITH ANY EXPONENTIAL HORN.

Every motion picture theatre owner knows that the horn and the unit is the heart of the "talkies" and the important part played by the exponential horn cannot be overestimated for if your equipment does not respond with natural lifelike tones the fault generally can be traced to the inferior quality of the horn or unit.

Artist Explains Hand Color Role

Pioneer in Work Sees This Method As Indispensable to Treatment of Fire Sequences

By GUSTAV BROCK

WITH public interest ever increasing for realism on the screen, especially for color since the sudden advent of talking pictures, hand-colored film should complete the ideal in realism. Not only is this method of bringing to the screen natural colors artistically perfect but from a financial standpoint it is far from prohibitive. Hand-colored film, intelligently done, is, in my opinion, more realistic than any other coloring method that has come to my attention. The field in which hand-coloring stands supreme as undisputed master is that embracing fire and light effects, night scenes with flames, torches, lanterns, fireworks, candles and lampions. These effects are elevated to true realism by hand-colored work.

Gustav Brock

When an audience looks upon scenes of flames playing into the air or fireworks bursting on all sides the impression on the nerve of sight is so overwhelming that it eliminates the impression of any surrounding color.

The scenes are reduced to half-light and shadow. If this same footage be hand-colored the scenes become vivid on black and white film. The flame or fireworks scene alone will impress the sight. The surrounding background is thrown into a half-light and shadow impression.

As a result the hand-colored scenes will remain in the memory of the audience as though they had seen an actual fire. And this, producers inform me, is the major reason for inserting fire scenes—to leave a realistic impression.

I recall a picture, now eight years old, "Foolish Wives," I believe it was, whose fire sequences remain as vividly in my memory as though I had seen them yesterday. The fire scenes in "Foolish Wives" were hand-colored.

A motion picture audience may not be particularly interested in whether a dress is colored pink or blue or green, but if there be a sudden appearance of color in one of the dresses the entire scene will be disturbed. The average person looking at a black and white film unconsciously pictures in his or her mind just what the coloring of a dress or frock should be—that is—what he or she would like to have it.

An Artist Speaks

GUSTAV BROCK, authority on hand-coloring in motion pictures and an artist of standing, tells, in the accompanying article, just what hand-coloring means to present-day crave for realism on the screen.

Brock has spent much time in research work devoted to perfecting the hand-colored process. He believes this process to be the nearest approach to perfection in bringing out fire and night scenes as has been reached.

BASIC REASON EVIDENT

With fire scenes the psychology governing the minds of the audience is entirely different. The reaction on the mind is directly opposite to that taking place when a dress parade, for instance, is being held across the screen. A white, or uncolored representation of a fire scene will destroy the picture framed in our imagination.

It is in such instances that the hand-coloring of film plays an important part, and I might say, an indispensable part.

At this time when motion picture audiences wherever films are shown are becoming "color conscious" they are keenly disappointed if they are viewing a picture in which there are fire scenes and these scenes are not made to represent the actually coloring of flames.

ROXY SAW ADVANTAGE

S. L. Rothafel, known to the millions as Roxy, and a showman of undisputed ability and keenness has, for years, used hand-coloring in the pictures he exhibits wherever such coloring may be employed with emphasis. He not only has used hand-coloring in his feature pictures but has extended the coloring to short subjects and newsreels.

Roxy introduced hand-coloring into his program with the showing of "What Price Glory," lending such realism to the fire coloring incident to the explosion of shells and gun fire that interest in the picture was increased a good percentage evidenced by the unusual applause when these sequences were flashed on the screen. Fox Film Corporation adopted this innovation on many prints of this picture.

Of the various color processes now in use I firmly believe there is not one of them that can successfully compete with hand-coloring where fire scenes are concerned. There is no reason why the hand-coloring process should not be combined with any or all of the other processes.

DE MILLE USED PROCESS

Cecil De Mille proved this in the coloring of his "The King of Kings," in which he used the hand-coloring process in the night scenes in Gethsemanae Garden where the bluish-white moonlight was emphasized and contrasted so vividly.

I believe that a picture containing hand-colored sequences should be advertised with this particular feature in mind.

Hand-colored sequences are an outstanding feature of any screen presentation for they have proved their worth.

Particularly is this true of a production where only an occasional sequence adapts itself to color.

I have shown where hand color adapts itself as near to perfection as any color process yet invented to scenes showing leaping flames or night lights.

Naturally a production isn't going to be one continuous scene of night or fire sequences. Therefore any production employing night or fire scenes should be treated by the hand color process which I am explaining.

Color in motion pictures presumably is here to stay. There has been almost the same general acclaim for it on the part of motion picture patrons as there has been for sound.

Color lends itself to any work of art. Even in sculpture, as you all know, the Italians especially, sought the natural colored marbles from which to carve their masterpieces.

In no other field does color lend itself to greater advantage than in the motion picture. The color, however, must be as nearly perfect as science can make it and science has approached no nearer the perfect in color than in the paint from the artist's brush.

Everything points to color remaining as permanent a feature of motion picture production as sound or even the story itself. In view of this, it naturally behooves producers not only to use color where demanded, but to use the most realistic process. I have shown that the hand-color process is the only one to employ in accentuating fire and night scenes. It is only a question of time when the hand-color method may be employed in every phase of picture production with as practical results as any of the many processes now being used.

MUTUAL CONDUCTANCE

THE action of a vacuum tube as an amplifier is to convert an electrical impulse applied to the grid into voltage and current of magnified form in the plate circuit for transfer to other tubes. Hence the equation $Gm \; \frac{mu}{rp}$ represents a term known as mutual conductance which is employed as a figure of merit of a vacuum tube. The higher the value of mutual conductance when tubes of like design and intended for the same purpose are being compared, the better that tube as an amplifier. The above equation however is also the equation for the current output per volt input.

The two are identical but are expressed in different terms. The expression "mutual conductance," quoted in Mhos, the reciprocal of an ohm designates the factor which controls the value of current change in the plate circuit for a unit voltage input. For example, a tube with a mu of 3 and a plate resistance of 2000 ohms has a mutual conductance of .0015 mho since $\frac{3}{2000} = .0015$ mho.

The same tube if the input voltage is one volt affords a current output of .0015 ampere. Hence the mutual conductance is allied with current output. As a matter of fact, a tube is said to have a mutual conductance value of .001 mho or 1000 micromhos if the current output is .001 ampere or 1 milliampere per volt input. Based upon what has been said the mutual conductance of a tube is the reciprocal of that resistance which governs the voltage output per volt input.

We said that the current output of the above tube was .0015 ampere per volt input. Some resistance in the system due perhaps to the operating voltages or the structure of the tube limits the current output to .0015 ampere or 1.5 milliampere, hence $Gm = \frac{1}{\frac{1}{.0015}} = .0015$ mho or 1500 micromhos.

As is obvious, this term involves every known factor in the vacuum tube, since it makes necessary consideration of the factors which control both "mu" and "rp." Upon first glance such calculation may appear quite complex and a test even more complex. As a matter of fact the test is very simple. It is nothing more than the changing of the bias applied to a tube already connected into an installation and noting of the change in plate current when the bias voltage is changed. Such a test may be made without disrupting the amplifying system, since the required change in bias need not be more than a few volts.

PLATE RESISTANCE

IF WE have current variation in the plate circuit and a voltage is also present in the plate circuit, the third component, resistance must also be present. It is present in the form of the action of the electrons. The electronic affinity of the atoms found in the source of electrons requires the expenditure of a certain amount of energy when the electrons move towards the plate. During this motion, a repelling action is present among the electrons since they are of like polarity. This, too, involves the expenditure of a certain amount of energy on the part of the electrons. This expenditure of energy is dissipated in the form of heat.

The current controlling effect is known as the plate resistance of the vacuum tube and when designated would appear as a resistance located between the filament and plate of the tube. The normal D. C. resistance of the tube would be equal to the plate voltage/the plate current. The A. C. resistance of the tube, however, is a different matter. It is equal to the instantaneous value of plate voltage/the instantaneous value of plate current, which would ensue when an alternating voltage is applied to the grid of the tube. This condition is secured when a change in the plate voltage causes a change in the plate current with constant grid bias.

Suppose that the plate voltage is 90 volts and the plate current is 5 mils. A change in plate voltage of 5 volts, reducing the plate voltage to 85 volts, reduces the plate current to 4 mils, a change of 1 mil.

Hence $\frac{dEg = 90-85}{dIp = .005-.004} = \frac{5}{.001} = 5000$ ohms.

Hence the A. C. plate resistance of this tube is 5000 ohms. In the event that the D. C. resistance of the tube is known and the above calculation is impossible, the A. C. resistance is approximately equal to the D. C. resistance/2. The usual quotation of plate resistance or plate impedance contained in tube manufacturers' literature is the A. C. resistance of the tube.

The plate resistance of a vacuum tube is closely allied with the amplification constant. The higher the amplification constant of a vacuum tube, the higher its plate resistance. If the separation between the grid and plate are increased in order to increase the "mu" of the tube, the plate resistance increases, since with a fixed position for the filament, the separation between the plate and filament is increased.

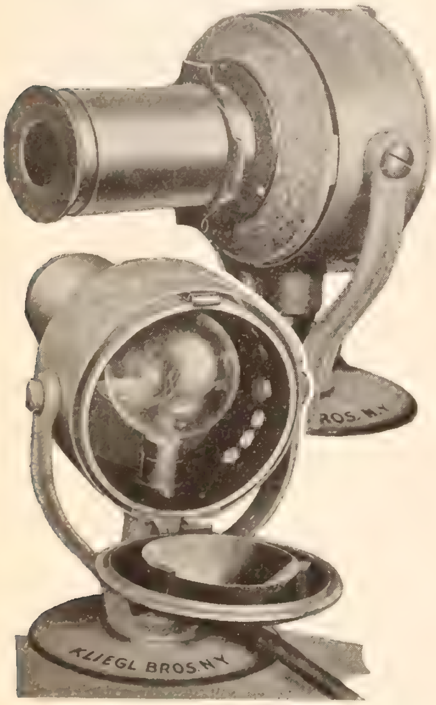
New and Improved Equipment

A Review of the Latest Developments in Theatre Engineering

Baby Spotlight Serves Theatres

A miniature spotlight possessing all the flexibility and control features of larger models, is being found adaptable to the peculiar needs of the picture theatre. It is one of the products of Kliegl Brothers Universal Electric Stage Lighting Company, of New York.

The Kliegl miniature is equipped with adjustable framing shutters which allow regulation of the size and shape of the projected light beam. It provides a relatively narrow beam, of high intensity, furnishes a clear, white light and covers a maximum circular area 30 inches in diameter at a distance of three feet. The coverage may be varied.



Mianiature Spotlight

It is used, according to the manufacturer, for lighting pictures in art galleries or fashionable homes and for lighting works of art in the lobbies of many theatres. In addition, it is used as a light source for work with photo-electric cells and photomicrography. It is provided with condensing and objective lenses, and furnished complete with lens, framing shutters, nine-foot extension cord, attachment plug and lamp. Modifications can be made on order, the company states.

Houses Wired In Britian

Western Electric installations throughout the British Isles total 519 as of Feb. 1.

National Offers Operator's Desk

National Theatre Supply Company has placed on the market a projectionist's desk. It is fashioned to supply every demand of the operator and designed to fill its place in any booth no matter how crowded.

It is known as the Neumade Operator's Desk. It serves also as a filing cabinet. Primarily it is offered as the sort of place projectionists have been looking for to "keep their house in order."

When in use, an up-turned film can or an empty carbon box finds its proper place. There is place for cue sheets, trailers, tools and other necessary accessories to all projectionists.

Film Phonograph Under Experiment

A new wrinkle in sound reproduction equipment is the film phonograph now in the experimental stage at the General Electric Laboratory in New York.

When and if perfected the mechanism will consist of a continuous band of film recording the sound. Because of its compact nature it is thought possible to place a program of several hours' duration on one film.

Commercial importance of such a mechanism has immense possibilities, according to the company's report on its experiments.

Figures on Sound Survey

According to a survey just completed of the sound situation in Missouri, there are 258 houses fully wired. Montana has 51 houses wired.

Makers Of Saf-3 Aid Exhibitors

Answering the ever-increasing demands bv exhibitors seeking enlightenment on their sound equipment, Simplimus, Inc., manufacturers of the Saf-3 selector of audible frequencies, has organized a department of consulting engineers. This department is, the company states, at the services of all exhibitors desiring information on their sound equipment.

The company reminds that the pronunciation of the English language is composed of about 40 different sounds located in different parts of the frequency range, ranging from 30 to 9,000 frequencies and goes on to explain that the ear can detect frequencies from 20 to 20,000, but not with the same degree of sensitivity, being most sensitive to frequencies between 550 and 4,000.

Since every theatre has a different resonance and every pick-up, fader, amplifier and speaker has a different frequency response the company experimented with a device to unify and correlate these obstacles and divert them into harmonious channels. The Saf-3 detector was the result.

Volume of business on Saf-3 Mixer, Simplimus, Inc., reports, has so increased that it has been found necessary to create a subsidiary company for the sole purpose of producing and distributing the product. All correspondence, the report says, should be addressed to Saf Electrical Engineering Co., 261 Franklin Street, Boston.

Radio Tube Organ Stands Acid Test

Pittsburgh—An organ based on the properties of radio tube oscillation recently has been demonstrated at the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Laboratories here.

Dr. Charles Heinroth, Carnegie Music Hall organist, touched a keyboard in the laboratories, minus all the usual accoutrements of the conventional organ. Instead of pipes, he was surrounded by numerous controls and eighty radio tubes and coils. The notes recorded were those of a nicely attuned organ.

It is the invention of R. C. Hitchcock, research engineer. The organ tubes are made to generate electrical impulses of low frequencies, audible by means of a loud speaker. Notes of different pitch are produced by varying the size of the coils and condensers. The music is amplified by pressing foot pedals.

The electrical impulses the organ generates can be impressed on the broadcast transmitter without the need of microphones.

In Every Theatre built by Fox...you will find American Chairs

MORE than 25 years ago, the founder of the Fox Theatres chose "American" chairs for his first theatre. Today he continues to buy them for his great network of theatres the country over.

A significant record . . . a patronage founded on sterling performance—and consistent, unrelenting building of quality into "American" chairs. Beyond this, features of comfort, beauty and durability have always been factors in moulding the great exhibitor preference for theatre chairs built by this organization.

A booklet, "Acoustics and Its Relation to Seating," will interest exhibitors who desire to solve the problem of echo and reverberation in their theatre. A copy sent free for the asking.

SOUND MAY CALL FOR THEATRE REMODELING

Timely Suggestions Made To Owner Contemplating House Changes Given by Architect

By An Architect

THE necessity for remodeling of motion picture theatres has become an acute question since the advent of sound.

In many instances theatres housed in old buildings have proved impractical for proper reproduction with the result that remodeling had to be carried out.

Often it has been found necessary to remodel a theatre building solely from the standpoint of financial protection. In other words the neighborhood in which the theatre is located may have so advanced in real estate values that it has become necessary to improve that theatre to insure income equivalent with the rise in the real estate values.

SOME REASONS WHY

Any architect will tell you that such a procedure depends upon many circumstances. The above is one of the most important. A remodeling job becomes necessary as soon as its earning capacity is less than the potential value of the ground it occupies.

Some of the reasons which support remodeling in preference to new buildings are:

When the situation and neighborhood remain practically unchanged; when your class of patronage remains the same; when shift of trade is unlikely; when slight changes can bring about desired results; when the rising value of property is looked for.

Good reasons why a new structure should go up in the place of the old one and in preference to remodeling are:

WHEN NEW ONE NEEDED

When the neighborhood in which your theatre is located has changed radically; when another class of people has become your source of patronage; when changes are necessary in height as well as size of your theatre building; when the rising value of property offers bright prospects and will reimburse you to the extent of the difference and more.

It is clear, too, that no fixed rules can be laid down to govern when and why you should remodel and when and why you should replace the old structure with a new building.

The above generalities are gathered strictly on an economic basis and, as a usual procedure, hold true.

No one theatre, whether new or old, can be pointed at and designated for this and that particular change.

In deciding upon the step to remodel, always there are numerous things to take into account.

WHEN TO PLAN

It is pretty generally known that when a motion picture theatre is unable to accommodate increasing crowds, crowds that continue, night after night, to storm the doors and find it impossible to get inside, that it is time to do something about it.

The something must necessarily be to remodel or tear down and build a new theatre.

Perhaps the new theatre would be advisable, but it is discovered that there is not ground plot enough to accommodate a new house. There is nothing to be done—nothing that can be done about this, excepting to move the location. This isn't always practical nor is it logical.

BIG PROBLEM FACED

In this case perhaps it can be found that the theatre will lend itself to enlargement by building back or to the sides. Then it is that remodeling not only is the right move, but the only move that can be made unless the owner feels that he can attract his patronage to some other locality. This last decision always is a big gamble, but—it has been done.

Whatever move is made a big problem is faced.

Urn Marketed As Lobby Decoration

H. A. Bernhardt, Inc., of Chicago, manufacturers of ornamental urns for decorative purposes, has started a special campaign designed to appeal directly to exhibitors.

A Distinctive Model

The ornamental sand urn is said to be particularly adaptable for use in theatre lobbies, giving, as the manufacturers put it, "the final touch of gentility."

Urns are recommended also as decoration for elevator lobbies and as an aid in keeping floor space clean in those parts of the theatre where patrons are most likely to cast away refuse such as waste paper or cigar and cigarette butts.

Smoke And Fire Detector Tested

A smoke detector which may be used for fire prevention recently was demonstrated in the Hudson tube, connecting New York and Jersey City.

The invention illustrates the application of the photo-electric tube. In the tube the smoke detector, or visibility meter, is placed in the exhaust duct. If the exhausting smoke becomes dense the photo-electric tube gives warning and attendants put additional exhaust fans to work. If used for fire prevention instead of smoke detector the relay operates a buzzer or bell instead of the fan.

. . . THAT'S THE RULE OF THE GAME

The day of the "silent" is over so face facts squarely. "The stock of cheap silents is exhausted. States rights distributors admit that they can do nothing more to keep unwired houses going. Small independent silent exhibitors realize this and are equipping for sound and talk without unnecessary waste of time" reports a leading "film paper" after an investigation.

"Those who don't get in the parade will have to step aside and watch it go by." So it's either get in or get out.

Theatre Building Points to Record Year

Projects Announced from January 15, to February 15, Calls For $75,640,000 Expenditure

NEW theatre projects announced during the period of this report—January 15 to February 15—reached a total of 53, calling for an estimated expenditure of $15,640,000 and to provide 76,325 new seats.

Thus, despite temporary conditions generally conceded to be unfavorable to new building, projected operations in the theatre construction line indicate that 1930 will surpass the records of the preceding year both as to the amount of investment and the number of projects.

Comparison with the 1929 figures for a similar period show that new building contemplated in announced projects this year exceed those of last year, when the total investment as indicated in THE SHOWMAN reports was $15,204,000, calling for the erection of 54 theatres in the United States and Canada. The current report is for the United States only. Also it does not include the large number of renovation jobs of considerable proportion which were announced during the period.

In seven districts of the United States the report shows the Middle States leading with announcement of 18 new projects to cost a total of $5,550,000, and adding 23,790 new seats. Average cost per project is $308,333.

In second place is the West Coast group with 12 new projects to add 20,485 new seats at an estimated cost of $4,475,000. Average cost per project, therefore, is $372,916.

NORTH ATLANTIC THIRD

The North Atlantic district is third with 11 new projects announced. The estimated total cost of the operations is $4,125,000, and the total number of new seats is 19,300. Average cost per project is $375,000.

In the Southwest six new theatres were announced to be erected at a total estimated cost of $560,000.

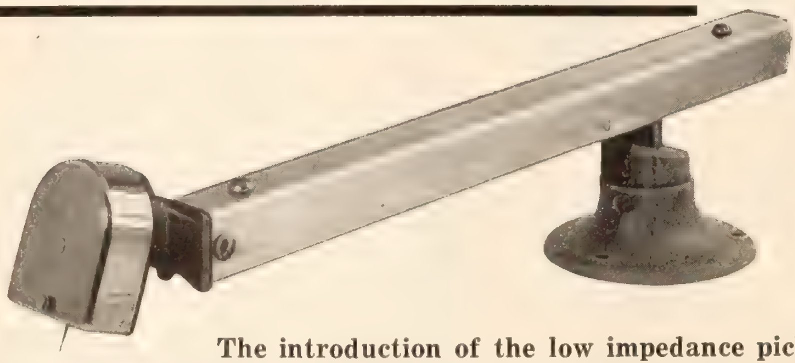
The Western district with four new projects announced, New England and the Southeast, each with only one new theatre, are the trailers in this report.

AVERAGES FOR COUNTRY

Averages for the whole country are as follows: Average cost per project, $295,094; average number of seats per project, 1,440; average cost per seat, $205. Average for the same period last year were: Average cost per project, $281,555; average seating, 1,377; average cost per seat, $204..50.

According to reliable sources of information there are many ambitious theatre building programs in preparation and the launching of which awaits only the clearing up of the current situation, causing a stringency in the money market. Funds that will be available for theatre building projects because of the excellent showing made at box-offices last year and continued these first two months of 1930, will be forthcoming this spring, according to the viewpoint of many well informed builders, and the predictions of financial men.

HIGHER STANDARDS OF TONE QUALITY



The introduction of the low impedance pick-ups has set a new standard in tone reproduction. Fuller and richer tones; and the faithful preservation of voice character, so long sought, is now a reality.

electrical equipment, turn tables, horns, sound records, amplifiers and other allied equipment, amounted to nearly $2,500,000 according to the declared export value. There is no doubt that this is but a small percentage of the real value of sound equipment units exported. Some firms declare various parts of their units under different export declarations, thereby making it impossible to secure an accurate picture of our sound equipment exports.

In this geographical region are three of our ten leading projector markets. Japan, the first important market in the Far East and third in our world markets, imported 130 American 35 mm. gauge projectors with a value of $22,876, and 883 projectors of 16 mm. with a declared value of $70,268.

The second leading market in the Far East and seventh among the leading ten markets of the world for American projectors, is Australia. During 1929, 66 American 35 mm. projectors, with a declared value of $29,492, and 166 projectors of 16 mm. gauge, with a value of $8,302, were imported from the United States.

The third important market in the Far East is China. During 1929, 57 American 35 mm. projectors with a value of $9,392 were imported into China, thereby establishing this country as our ninth important market throughout the world and 88 American 16 mm. projectors, valued at $11,795, were also imported for amateur use. Following these three mentioned countries is New Zealand, importing from the United States 44 35 mm. projectors and 24 of 16 mm. type. British India, too, has imported from the United States during 1929 32 projectors of 35 mm. gauge and 25 projectors of 16 mm. gauge.

Latin America

During 1929, Latin America has imported 348 American projectors of 35 mm. gauge with a value of $114,092 and 128 projectors of 16 mm. gauge valued at $16,682.

The leading individual markets for American projectors in this market are Argentina, Brazil, Colombia and Mexico.

Argentina, our fourth largest world market, during 1929, imported 92 projectors of 35 mm. gauge, valued at $26,764, and 25 projectors of 16 mm. gauge, valued at $3,283.

There were exported to Brazil, our eighth world market, during 1929, 62 American projectors of 35 mm. gauge with a declared value of $27,817 and 16 projectors of 16 mm. gauge with a value of $2,372. Colombia took 40 American 35 mm. projectors valued at $9,917 and 19 American 16 mm. machines valued at $1,714 during 1929. Next in importance in Latin America is Mexico, with 38 American 35 mm. projectors valued at $9,552 and 17 projectors of 16 mm. gauge with a value of $1,641 for the year 1929.

Canada, while considered by the industry as being more or less part of our domestic market, imported 330 American projectors of 35 mm. gauge valued at $74,475 and 214 projectors of 16 mm. gauge valued at $24,185 during 1929.

Near East and Africa

The Near East and Africa during 1929 imported 75 American projectors of 35 mm. gauge valued at $23,252 and 17 projectors of 16 mm. gauge valued at $2,442. British South Africa is our sixth important market for standard projectors. For the year 1929 this region of Africa imported 72 American 35 mm. projectors with a value of $22,679 and 11 projectors of 16 mm. gauge valued at $1,928.

Since no specific classification was created during 1929 for the export of sound apparatus, accurate figures on the export of this commodity are not available.

New Use For Film Projector Found During World War

THE mystery of the "angels of the Mons" who hovered high in the skies during the bloodiest battles of the Great War, has been solved.

The "angels" were the work of motion-picture projection machines mounted in German airplanes.

Col. Friedrich Herzenwirth, formerly of the Imperial German Intelligence Service, explains pictures of the Virgin and Child were projected onto the clouds above the enemy to throw the Allied troops into retreat.

The mystery's solution has been attempted by some of the world's most eminent psychologists ever since the war.

French, British and Russian troops, during the fiercest fighting, saw in the clouds over the battlefields life-sized "visions" of the Virgin and Child.

GERMAN PURPOSE FAILS

Colonel Herzenwirth explains that the troops actually saw the "visions" thrown out onto the powder-clouds from projection machines mounted in German airplanes.

British Tommies in the historic Mons retreat of Aug. 24, 1914, reported the appearance of "angels" the size of men who seemed

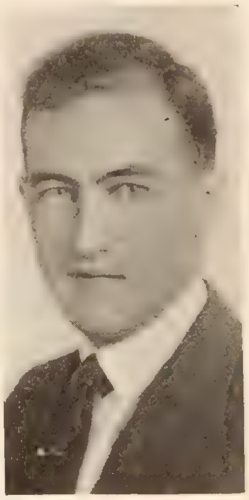
New Device Adds To Life Of Films

J. F. Lyons, head of the National Film Renovating and Process Company, of New York City, now has on the market what he calls the Preservotone Film Process, by which he claims to extend the life of prints.



J. F. LYONS

The new device looks very much like the arrangement used in drying film fresh from the laboratory, but on a much smaller scale.

A print is run through a specially prepared liquid, composed of eleven different ingredients, the invention of S. E. Hartmann, of Jersey City. When fully equipped with these drying machines Lyons claims he will be able to handle from 800 to 900 reels a day.

The average print before going under this treatment is subject to scratching at the slightest provocation. Under the Lyons process the film is claimed to be invulnerable to scratches under ordinary conditions. The process not only preserves the life of the film but it is thoroughly cleansed in running through the drying cabinet, Lyons says.

The process also keeps in order the sound track, increases runs and protects color prints from oil, blotches and scratches.

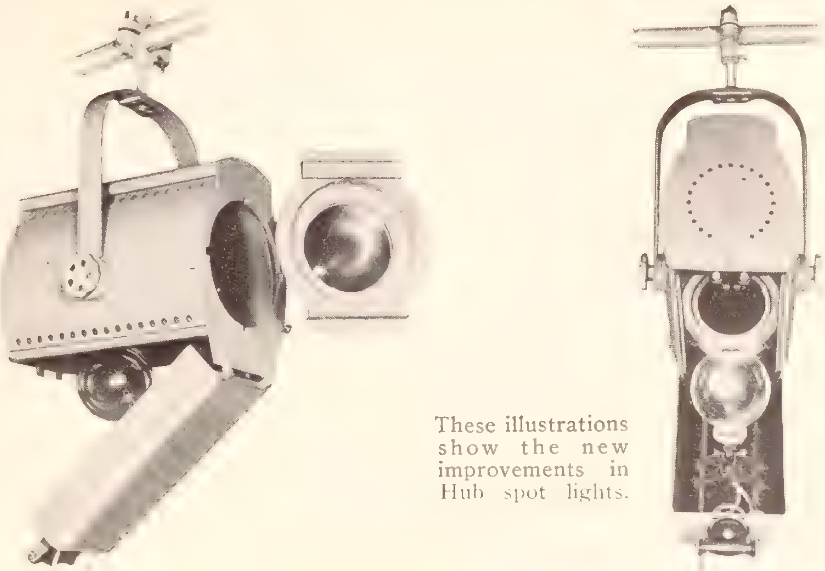
Loew's Operating Own Scenic Studio

Loew's Theatres Scenic Studios in the Bronx section of New York, recently put in operation at an estimated cost of $500,000, is reported to be a big saving to the circuit.

The studio furnishes all scenery, draperies and other accessories for staging revues, and other presentations in the Loew theatres. Heretofore the work has been turned over to jobbers. A. S. Howard, art director, is in charge of the new department. All musical, technical branches concerned with unit production are housed in the studio.



These illustrations show the new improvements in Hub spot lights.

More Improvements in the Hub Spot Light With Interchangeable Lenses

Our latest model has hinged drop bottom to facilitate changing of lamps without waiting for cooling.

It is now possible to use a 2,000 watt lamp in this housing. The new automatic adjustable socket assures correct lamp center in all positions. The traveling high speed lamp carriage allows the most delicate adjustment. One of these new housings equals six of the old style in efficiency and capacity. Permits operator to use any number of 5, 6, or 8-inch condensers in different focal lengths; all he needs is an assortment of lens holders, and by a simple twist of the wrist, he changes his lamp to meet any condition, without removing the lamp house.

Patents on new improvements pending.

Incorrect Needle May Ruin Picture

With this admonition Columbia Pictures Co., in the interest of perfect sound reproduction, has issued a four-page leaflet on the proper use of recording needles.

Eight illustrations are given showing the contrast between the condition of an unknown needle as compared to a standard needle after playing a 16-inch record.

Sound recording, the leaflet informs, results from an improper understanding of the use of needles rather than poor recording.

One of the primary difficulties arises when the shoulders on both sides of the needle begin to wear on the walls of the record, thus causing a blunt surface which raises the needle point above the threat track in the record.

A needle should be used only once, the leaflet informs.

Where scant or no attention is paid to the selection of needles, exhibitors often find their recording of a dull and lifeless nature.

Carrier To Speak At WNYC Station

Willis H. Carrier, head of the Carrier Engineering Corporation, will broadcast a talk on air conditioning in public buildings over WNYC at 7:35 P. M., March 13, under the auspices of the C. C. N. Y. College of Modern Progress. One of the most recent applications of air conditioning made by this company is the installation of a system to "manufacture weather," in a mining shaft 7,000 feet underground in a Brazilian mine.

Why Be So Technical?

Only young doctors tell you your ailment in Latin words. The more experienced the doctor, the more simple his language.

So — for Projection troubles, we also prescribe in a very few words—

"Use the TRANSVERTER daily. With normal care and intelligence, it will serve you satisfactorily for years—in giving you a uniform, accurate current supply at just the voltage you desire."

It's simple — It's sure — and best of all — It's economical to use.

Answer To Rider Queries On Sound

11. Insufficient grid bias will cause a flattening of the positive half of the A. C. plate current component, thus creating distortion. Excessive grid bias produces the same effect by flattening the negative half of the A. C. plate current component.

12. Insufficient plate voltage reduces the current output per volt input because it increases the plate resistance. This is the equivalent of a reduction in mutual conductance and a reduction in the actual amplification secured with the tube in the circuit. If the input signal voltage is normal and the plate voltage insufficient distortion will take place. The above mentioned condition will also occur when the filament voltage is insufficient because it reduces the electronic emission.

13. The difference between the filament type of A. C. tube and a cathode type of A. C. tube is that in the former the filament is the source of electrons, whereas in the latter the filament is the agent which heats the cathode to the temperature required for electronic emission by the cathode.

14. Illustration in any battery wiring.

15. The load impedance must be equal to the tube impedance for maximum power output. For maximum undistorted power output the load impedance must be equal to twice the numerical value of tube plate impedance. The former condition for maximum power output is not used because the percentage of distortion due to the characteristic of the vacuum tube produced under such conditions is excessive.

BATTERIES

1. Illustration in any battery as matter of fixed connection formula.

2. Illustration in any battery as matter of fixed connection formula.

3. The resistance required when charging four 6-volt batteries in series parallel from a 120-volt line with a 5-ampere charge through each battery must be 10.8 ohms.

4. The power rating of this resistance is equal to the current flow squared times the resistance or 102 × 10.8 or 1,080 watts.

5. It is possible to reduce the resistance of a fixed resistor in a circuit which can not undergo a physical change by connecting in shunt with that resistor another of fixed predetermined value or a variable resistance.

6. During the period of discharge in the lead-acid type of storage battery the electrolyte is broken up and sulphuric acid combines with the lead plates and the lead peroxide plates. During the period of charge the sulphuric acid is removed from the plates and returned to the electrolyte.

7. The specific gravity of such cells i a question of design. Recent developments have produced a cell with a low specific gravity. This cell is fully charged at 1,220 and satisfactory charge is indicated at 1,210. Such batteries are now in use in talkie systems. 1,125 indicates total discharge.

MOTORS, GENERATORS

1. The principle underlying the generation of D. C. or A. C. voltage is the action of a moving conductor in a magnetic field. The difference between A. C. and D. C. is a matter allied with the design of a machine relative to the connection of the external circuit to the moving conductors.

2. Commutation in a D. C. generator is an arrangement of contacts connected to the conductors so that the current flow in the external circuit is always maintained in one direction.

3. Slip rings are the contacts connected to the conductors in an A. C. generator which link the external circuit to the generator.

4. A ripple in the output of the D. C. generator is due to the commutator segments and the speed of the armature. In an A. C. generator the frequency is due to the speed of the armature and the number of poles passed by the conductors.

5. A motor generator set is a complete unit consisting of a motor which drives a generator. The motor receives its power from the line and the generator supplies power to whatever devices require voltages and consume current.

6. A power rating applied to a generator in connection with a specified voltage output designates the amount of current which may flow in the circuit at the prescribed value of voltage. For example, a rating of 300 watts and 1,000 watts means that .3 ampere or 300 milliamperes is the current output at 1,000 volts. This is derived from the following formula: Watts = volts × current and current = watts / volts.

7. Dirty brushes will cause fluctuation in voltage and current and, sparking at the contact, thus unnecessarily increasing the resistance of the contact.

8. Sparking at the commutator will cause fluctuating voltage, possibly noise and general deterioration of the brushes.

9. Excessive line voltage will tend to increase the speed of the motor.

10. A Universal Motor is one which is designed to function on A. C. and D. C. power lines.

Glattly Invents New Sound Track

John H. Glattly, a projectionist of Paterson, N. J., has developed a sound track device which, he claims, will make possible the full width of standard film in sound.

JOHN H. GLATTLY

The invention consists in providing a film wider than the size now accepted as standard having three rows of perforations instead of two. This permits the utilization of standard film and at the same time recording sound, he asserts.

The object, as Glattly states in his application for patent rights, is "to make possible, with the standard apparatus now used, the reproduction of moving pictures of full size together with sound track."

The present practice is to record sound on standard film between two rows of perforations, by means of which the film is driven, or unreeled. The space so utilized for sound recording causes the size of the picture to be reduced.

ECONOMICS NOTED

To equip any standard projection machine for the reception of Glattly's wider film, less than $60 expenditure is necessary, he claims. Improvements include work on sprocket and roller, improved film trap, and improved armature plate.

Another economy which Glattly claims is that the picture portion of the film or the sound portion may be used as separate entities as desired. This enables the projectionist to use his machine for standard film to record sound, or to run silent pictures alone, or the sound film alone, or for use during prologues, overtures, special announcements, speeches and such.

ADDS TO WIDTH

Glattly's invention adds 5/16 of an inch in the width of the standard film. With this exception and the changes in sprocket and roller arrangements on the projection machine, virtually no changes are necessary in equipment, he says.

Neither the picture portion nor the sound portion of the film are pressed upon by the gate and are, therefore, not subject to rapid wear, the inventor asserts.

Health Insurance

Carrier Engineering Corporation, in conjunction with its theatre cooling and conditioning system, has got out a decorative insignia, designed especially for the lobby of theatres equipped with the air conditioning plant.

The insignia is an artistic bronze tablet, which gives patrons that insurance they unconsciously ask—insurance against contaminated air. The insignia is furnished on request by the company.

Projectors Find New Use in War

to form the rear guard of a retreating army. Superstition and wartime propaganda seized upon these reports and interpreted the "visions" as divine intervention.

Colonel Herzenwirth goes on to explain the Germans miscalculated for the primary object of the pictures had been to create superstitious terror among the troops of the Allies. This was calculated to produce a panic and eventually a refusal on the part of the Allied troops to fight. Instead the English turned the "visions" to their own good.

The Germans, he explained further, were more successful with their cloud motion pictures in 1915 on the Russian front.

When the czar's army was sweeping through the Carpathians and threatened to take over Austria, the pictures were found to be effective. A dense snowbank in the sky served as a screen. The projectors in the German planes were enveloped in the night and a drum fire in the trenches, prearranged, prevented the Russians from hearing the whirring of the plane's motors.

Giving Dimmers Their Proper Place In the Picture

C-H "Simplicity" Dimmer Plates are supplied by leading switchboard manufacturers with the board they install. Fig. 1 shows the front of a typical board. Fig. 2 the rear view showing C-H Dimmer plates and Fig. 3 a single plate. Dimmer plates are the heart of any lighting control board. Make sure the C-H trademark is on your plates for long life, smooth lighting control and low maintenance.

DIMMER plates—hidden as they are behind the switchboard—too often fail to receive the proper amount of attention when lighting equipment is selected. The board which throws lights into full brilliance for a burst of color must also be able to wipe them quickly, smoothly into "black out." This is the test of the dimmer plates behind the switchboard.

Cutler-Hammer "Simplicity" Dimmers were providing flickerless light control in leading show houses over a quarter of a century ago. Their superior construction, their freedom from burnouts and other dimmer faults have made C-H Dimmers the choice of theater owners ever since. Constant improvement in C-H dimmer design has kept pace with modern electrical requirements. Today the mark of Cutler-Hammer on the dimmer plates behind the switchboard assures careful showmen that their lighting control is correct as well as modern.

Long experience in theatrical lighting problems, improved dimmer plate design and construction—these are the advantages which Cutler-Hammer offers you when you specify C-H Dimmers. They can be had on any board you install . . . and be enlarged with the growth of your requirements.

Your architect or electrician can tell you more about C-H "Simplicity" Dimmers. Ask for the C-H Booklet "Illumination Control for Modern Theaters." It shows many typical C-H Dimmer installations in leading theaters throughout the country.

Grandeur Sent in With a Big Plug by Critics Who See "Great Possibilities"

Best for Big Stage Sets, or Outdoor Stuff, Many N. Y. Reviewers Believe

New Wide-Film Process Makes Projection Clearer, Sound More Distinct, They State

New York newspaper critics are generally impressed by the possibilities afforded by Grandeur, Fox wide film process, and demonstrated to the public via "Happy Days," which played the Roxy recently.

"THE increased realism made possible by the advent of Grandeur, more than justifies the six years of experimentation in both photography and projection which have made the great screen possible," in the opinion of Regina Crewe, "New York American."

Irene Thirer, however, writing in the "Daily News," points out that musicals and mysteries are the best bets for production of Grandeur material. "It is indeed an enhancement to the musicinema," stated the "News" critic, but, she claims, it is "not a necessary measure to the talkie drama or straight comedy. The photography is as clear as the ordinary screen exhibits, and there is no jumpiness—just an occasional holdup when one shot is fading into another. The depth which street and marine shots assume" gave Miss Thirer "a mighty fine thrill," and "the revue stage looks dandy," she declared.

Bland Johanneson, "Daily Mirror," accepted Grandeur as "an impressive spectacle," while "the increased photographic scope, particularly in the ensemble numbers," suggested to Betty Colfax, "Evening Graphic," the "remarkable possibilities of this invention," which, she stated, "adds a new sense of realism to the projected entertainment." Miss Colfax reported that "Movietone recording is accomplished with the same clarity and volume as on the smaller screen," and dubbed the development "an important new step in motion picture entertainment."

Richard Watts, Jr., describing his reactions to Grandeur in the "Herald-Tribune," declared: "It still seems, as it did when the process was first revealed, that the new method is most successful in outdoor scenes and in chorus numbers. With the increased range of its camera, it can show you vast sweeps of country in a way its limited predecessor could never offer. It has the strange result, too, of increasing the effectiveness of a scene of motion. The onward rush of a locomotive becomes considerably more realistic and impressive on the Grandeur screen. In addition, a revue number, through the vaster proscenium offered it, tends, if properly handled, to capture more of the values of a stage musical show than could the restricted standard screen. On the other hand, the more intimate episodes, the scenes showing two or three people, are made a bit more difficult to follow by the new process; at least for those of us accustomed to the assistance in concentration offered by the conventional method. At the first showing at the Roxy . . . it appeared, also, that the ensemble scenes tended to be blurred on frequent occasions."

"The improvement and advantages" of Grandeur were "readily seen" by Rose Pelswick, "Evening Journal," who stated that "the projection is clear and the recording distinct. Grandeur and the enlarged screen add greatly to the development of talking pictures," in her opinion. Willela Waldorf, "Evening Post," likewise believes that the wide-film process "opens up further uses for the camera and increases the visual scope by means of which a new technique in motion pictures may develop."

"The Sun" throws a wet blanket with this: "'The Fox Movietone Follies' was first presented in this film width, which made the chorus numbers, the spectacular scenes, quite effective. At the Roxy, the screen now covers almost the width of the proscenium. On it 'Happy Days' sings and dances away in the wake of the first Fox Follies, which it resembles to a degree. The chief difference, though, is that it isn't quite as good."

"As a result of the increased film width, the values of the entertainment seem doubly impressive in most instances," according to "The Telegram" reviewer, who claimed "this is especially true of the various scenes in which the choruses appear. The backgrounds also profit by the increased size of the film in that an illusion of stereoscopic depth is obtained. Actual stereoscopic depth, or what is known as the third dimension, is not obtained. However, the resultant illusion is effective, especially when the scenes are well composed and lighted."

"That the double-width film and its proportionately wider screen have vast possibilities for improving the science of motion picture projection are proved" to Pierre de Rohan, "Morning Tele-

"Riches Await" Wide Picture Producers

Los Angeles—"Earnestly, energetically and almost frantically, each Hollywood studio is experimenting on the best way to introduce wide film. Just as sound took possession of our movies and made Warners independently rich, so will the first company to bring out a successful film shown on a wide screen win fame and wealth," reports Louella O. Parsons, of Universal Service.

Grandeur Fine for Stage Numbers and Spectacle; Gives 3rd Dimension Effect; But Distortion Stays, NEWS Says

Grandeur, demonstrated as an experiment some months ago with "Fox Movietone Follies" at the Gaiety, New York, is now definitely in the ring for public favor. "Happy Days," first Fox picture to be filmed with wide angle cameras, made its debut at the Roxy yesterday.

In intimate scenes, impressive only in that it made the images larger—if impressive that can be called. Claims that distortion is eliminated were not borne out from where this reviewer sat, at least. In some instances, the sound was barrelly and smothered and the figures often amazingly tall and angular. From orchestra center, half way back; the picture lost what was often its unnatural proportions.

As soon as "Happy Days" swung into its full stage stuff however, the benefits of Grandeur became apparent. The first view of the curtain was majestic, carried a sweep unobtainable with 35 mm. film and conveyed a definite impression of third dimension. The sets assumed depth and height commensurate with their actual size. You seem to feel that you are looking at the real thing. Potentially that's very significant for it opens up a wide vista of possibilities. Particularly in the filming of sporting and news events will Grandeur prove of great value.

KANN

WIDER sweep for dramatic portrayals and a full stage effect are brought to the screen by Grandeur. The new wide film process gives the picture a greater definition and clearer sound reproduction.

The much sought-after third dimension effect is gained to a degree by Grandeur, although there is considerable to be desired from this angle. There is an improvement over the earlier Grandeur film shown some time ago. From a loge seat, the conclusions are that Grandeur's chief contribution so far is clearer sound reproduction and better definition. The future, no doubt will bring development of more comprehensive dramatic presentations, with the close-up replaced and resort to flashbacks unnecessary by reason of the opportunities offered for simultaneous presentation of the action. This is possible because of the panoramic values of the new camera which permits photographing of more action distributed over larger sets with the necessity of long and medium shots and the consequent interruption in dramatic emphasis eliminated.

HYNES

PROBABLY no other part of the theatre will benefit from wide film on a wide screen as much as the shelf where the balcany crowds may be expected to go for Grandeur in a big way.

The distance from the last row of the balcony at the Roxy to the screen is perhaps the greatest of any theatre in the country, yet Grandeur from all corners of it left little to be desired. The enlargement of the images of the players made the screen figures more definite to the eye and, therefore, more pleasant to watch.

The stage scenes and long shots in "Happy Days" benefitted far more than close-ups and medium shots. The close-ups created an impression of unnaturalness, entirely because of size.

Considerable must be done, it would appear, to relieve intimate shots of the emptiness of their backgrounds. There seems to be miles of empty pictures around the figures themselves.

From the extreme sides of the balcony, Grandeur appeared identical. The clarity of the dialogue, however, was often impaired from this post.

CUNNINGHAM

Text of Hudson Bill Which Seeks to Fasten Gov't Censorship on Industry

Measure Would Cripple Trade and Place All Business Under Gov't Wing

9 Members, 4 of Them Women, Would Constitute Board Exercising Control

To protect the motion-picture industry against unfair trade practices and monopoly; to provide just settlement of complaints of unfair dealings; to provide for the manufacture of wholesome motion pictures, both silent and talking, at the sources of production; to create a Federal Motion Picture Commission, to define its powers; and for other purposes.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled.

Definitions

Section 1. "Dealer," as used herein, means any person or trade association engaged directly or indirectly in the production, exchange, or exhibition of motion pictures in commerce.

"Commission," as used in this Act, means "Federal Motion Picture Commission."

"Person" or "persons," where used herein, shall be deemed to include individuals, partnerships, corporations, and trade associations existing under or authorized by the laws of either of the United States, the laws of the Territories, the laws of any State, or the laws of any foreign country.

"Trade associations" as used herein, means any association composed of members who separately are engaged in some one or more lines or branches of the motion-picture business or cognate or contributory industries, whether the association is voluntary or incorporated, except for purely social, charitable, or religious purposes.

"Producer" shall mean any person engaged in photographing scenes, plays, entertainments, events or scenes of news interest, or historical or educational value, and the like on negative motion-picture film for the purpose of making positive prints therefrom or otherwise for exhibition in motion-picture theatres, whether or not such person also is engaged, directly or indirectly, in the distribution or exhibition of such films.

"Distributor" shall mean any person engaged in selling, leasing, or renting copyrighted motion-picture films to exhibitors, whether or not such person also is engaged, directly or indirectly, in the production of such films.

"Exhibitor" shall include any person owning or operating a motion-picture theatre or theatres or other place where motion pictures are regularly exhibited as all or part of a program of entertainment, whether or not such person also is engaged, directly or indirectly, in the production or distribution of films.

The "booking" of a film is the making of a contract of lease, license, or sale between a distributor and an exhibitor, whereby the latter is given the right to make public exhibitions thereof.

Federal Motion Picture Commission

Sec. 2. That a commission is hereby created and established to be known as the Federal Motion Picture Commission, composed of nine members, four of whom shall be women. The commissioners shall be appointed by the President of the United States, who shall designate one as chairman. The commissioners shall be citizens of the United States, qualified by character, experience, and training for the duties of the office.

Not more than five of the nine commissioners shall be members of the same political party. They shall be appointed without party designation or without party responsibility.

The appointment shall not be given to any person who at any time during the five years next preceding his appointment has had any direct or indirect financial interest or other connection with any motion-picture producing, distributing, or exhibiting business, or any cognate or related business.

The Civil Service Commission after examining the persons under oath and through corroborating investigations shall certify to the President of the United States that the persons chosen by him for the office comply with the provisions of this Act.

The commissioners shall be appointed for a term of six years by the President of the United States within sixty days after this Act becomes a law. Three shall be appointed for a term of six years; three for four years; and three for two years, and thereafter at the expiration of their terms all appointments shall be made for a term of six years.

No member of the commission, or any deputy commissioner, or employee of the commission shall hold any office or carry on any employment, business, or profession inconsistent with the performance of his duties, nor shall he directly or indirectly (a) have any interest in any business or undertaking having for its object the production, rental, sale, or exhibition of moving pictures; (b) hold, acquire, or be interested in any stock or share, or any bond, debenture, or other security or evidence of indebtedness, issued by any person carrying on or interested in such business; (c) have any interst in any device, appliance, machine, patented process or article, or in any part thereof, which may be used for the purposes of such business and which could not be useful for the purposes of any other business.

No vacancy in the commission shall impair the right of the remaining commissioners to exercise all the powers of the commission. Any deputy commissioner or employee who shall have any pecuniary interest in the production, exchange, or exhibition of motion pictures, or violate any provision of this section, shall be summarily discharged by the commission.

Salaries, Expenses

Sec. 3. That each commissioner shall receive an annual salary of $9,000, except that the annual salary of the chairman shall be $10,000. The salary shall not be diminished during continuance in office. The commission shall have autohrity to employ and fix the compensation of deputy commissioners and such other employees as it may find necessary to the proper performance of its duties. Until otherwise provided by law, the commission may hire suitable offices for its use and shall have authority to procure all necessary office supplies and equipment.

Offices

Sec. 4. That the principal office of the commission shall be in Washington, District of Columbia, but it may establish and maintain offices or bureaus wherever efficiency, economy, and the public interest require. Each bureau or office which is designated by the commission as a place for the submission of films shall be in charge of a commissioner or a deputy commissioner, who shall be vested by the commission with authority, to issue licenses and permits, as hereinafter described.

Duties of the Commission

Sec. 5. The duties of the commission shall be to protect the motion-picture industry from unfair trade practices and monopoly, to provide for the just settlement of trade complaints, to supervise the production of silent and talking motion pictures at the source, and to provide for the proper distribution and exhibition thereof.

Not a Chance

Washington — Possibilities that Representative Hudson's bill to place the industry under the unfriendly thumb of a Federal censor commission will be enacted are growing slimmer daily.

The Congressman from Michigan who would have a government group determine the length or otherwise of a kiss, among other drastic restrictive regulations, is doomed for a disappointment.

Unfair and Deceptive Practices Forbidden

Sec. 6. The motion-picture industry is hereby declared to be a public utility. It shall be unlawful—

(a) For any dealer to engage in or use any unfair, unjustly discriminatory, or deceptive practice or device in commerce; or

(b) For any dealer to use or agree to use any contract for the sale, leasing, or licensing of films which in anywise limits the freedom of the exhibitor for any wrong suffered to seek redress in the courts, or to use any contract which compels an exhibitor to agree in advance to submit any claim or controversy arising under the film-service contract to the decision of an arbitration board; or

(d) For any dealer to increase the price for the rental of films in commerce to any undue or unreasonable degree or unduly or unreasonably to increase the admission fees to motion-picture theatres in commerce; or

(e) For any producer or distributor to allocate, lease, or rent any films to theatres which are affiliated directly or indirectly with such producers or distributors or with any other producer or distributor, without affording all competing exhibitors an equal opportunity to bid for such films in free and open competition; or

(f) For any dealer in commerce to lease, or offer for lease, for exhibition in any theatre motion pictures in a block or group of two or more films at a designated lump-sum price for the entire block or group only, and to require the exhibitor to lease all such films or permit him to lease none; or to lease or offer for lease for exhibition such motion-picture films in a block or group of two or more at a designated lump-sum price for the entire block or group and at separate and several prices for separate and several films, or for a number or numbers thereof less than the total number, which total or lump-sum price and separate and several prices shall bear to each other such relation as to operate as an unreasonable restraint upon the freedom of an exhibitor to select and lease for use and exhibition only such film or films of such block or group as he may desire and prefer to procure for exhibition, or shall bear such relation to each other as to tend to require an exhibitor to lease such an entire block or group or forego the lease of a portion or portions thereof, or shall bear such relation to each other that the effect of such proposed contract for the lease of such films may be substantially to lessen competition or tend to create a monopoly in any part of the certain line of commerce among the several States, to wit, the business of the production, distribution, and exhibition of motion-picture films: Provided, however, That nothing in this section shall be interpreted to forbid such wholesale booking or leasing of films for exhibition as will not restrain trade or prevent free competition: Provided further, That nothing in this Act shall prevent the renting of weekly programs of films for a year or any extended period of time; or

(g) For any producer or distributor to enter into an exclusive contract or to ask for as the only condition upon which he will rent his film an exclusive contract containing protection clauses for first-run or other theatres in such manner as to tend to or have the effect of restraining commerce or of creating a monopoly; or

(h) To book or lease one or more pictures to any circuit, group, or quantity of theatres at prices or upon terms which discriminate in favor of a booking combination or theatre circuit and against the individual theatre in the same community or in a near-by theatre; or

(i) Make or give, in commerce, any undue or unreasonable preference or advantage to any particular person or locality in any respect whatsoever, or subject, in commerce, any particular person or locality to any undue or unreasonable prejudice or disadvantage in any respect whatsoever; or

(j) Sell or otherwise transfer to or for any other dealer, or buy or otherwise receive from or for any other dealer, any article for the purpose or with the effect of apportioning such films, film rights, or privileges between any such dealers if such apportionment has the tendency or effect of restraining commerce or of creating a monopoly in commerce; or

(k) Sell or otherwise transfer to or for any other person, or buy or otherwise receive from or for any other person any article for the purpose or with the effect of manipulating or controlling prices in commerce, or of creating a monopoly in the acquisition of buying, selling, or dealing in any article in commerce, or of restraining commerce; or

(l) Engage in any course of business or do any act for the purpose or with the effect of manipulating or controlling prices in commerce, or of creating a monopoly in the acquisition of buying, selling, or dealing in any article in commerce, or of restraining commerce; or

(m) Conspire, combine, agree, or arrange with any other person (1) to apportion territory for carrying on business in commerce, or (2) to apportion purchases or sales of any article in commerce, or (3) to manipulate or control prices in commerce; or

(n) Conspire, combine, agree, or arrange with any other person to do, or aid or abet the doing of, any act made unlawful by subdivision (a), (b), (c), (d), (e), (f), (g), (h), (i), (j), (k), or (l).

The prohibitions against all the unfair methods of commerce enacted in all the paragraphs of this section and the remedies for enforcing these prohibitions contained in this Act shall be construed as extending to unfair methods of competition used in export trade against competitors engaged in export trade, even though the acts constituting such unfair methods are done without the territorial jurisdiction of the United States.

Construction of the Powers of the Commission

Sec. 7. Nothing contained in this Act, except as otherwise provided herein, shall be construed—

(a) To prevent or interfere with the enforcement of, or the procedure under, the provisions of the Act entitled "An Act to protect trade and commerce against unlawful restraints and monopolies," approved July 2, 1890, the Act entitled "An Act to supplement existing laws against unlawful restraints and monopolies, and for other purposes," approved October 15, 1914, the Interstate Commerce Act as amended, the Act entitled "An Act to promote export trade, and for other purposes," approved April 10, 1918, or sections 73 to 77, inclusive, of the Act of August 27, 1894, entitled "An Act to reduce taxation, to provide revenue for the Government, and for other purposes," as amended by the Act entitled "An Act to amend sections 73 and 76 of the Act of August 27, 1894, entitled 'An Act to reduce taxation, to provide revenue for the Government, and for other purposes,' " approved February 12, 1913; or

(b) To alter, modify, or repeal such Acts or any part or parts thereof; or

(c) To prevent or interfere with any investigation, proceeding, or prosecution begun and pending at the time this Act becomes effective.

Application of the Powers of the Federal Trade Commission

Sec. 8. For the efficient execution of the provisions of this Act, and in order to provide information for the use of Congress, the provisions (including penalties) of sections 5, 6, 8, 9, and 10 of the Act entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its power and duties, and for other purposes," approved September 26, 1914, are made applicable to the jurisdiction, powers, and duties of the commission in enforcing the provisions of this Act and to any person subject to the provisions of this Act, whether or not a corporation. The commission itself or by such agents as it may designate may prosecute any inquiry necessary to its duties under this Act in any part of the United States

Power of Federal Trade Commission Modified

Sec. 9. On and after the enactment of this Act, and so long as it remains in effect, the Federal Trade Commission shall have no power or jurisdiction so far as relating to any matter which by this Act is made subject to the jurisdiction of the commission, except in cases in which, before the enactment of this Act, complaint has been served under section 5 of the Act entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes," approved September 26, 1914, or under section 11 of the Act entitled "An Act to supplement existing laws against unlawful restraints and monopolies, and for other purposes," approved October 15, 1914, and except when the commission, in the exercise of its duties hereunder, shall request of the said Federal Trade Commission that it make investigations and reports in any case

Neutral and Impartial Distribution of Motion Pictures

Sec. 10. The commission shall have power to regulate the distribution of all motion pictures in commerce and may at its discretion create facilities to provide an equitable basis of distribution in a manner that will insure free competition among producers, exhibitors, and other persons in securing for rental and in the renting of all motion pictures.

Registration of Dealers

Sec. 11. After the expiration of thirty days after this Act has taken effect, no person, firm, or/and corporation shall carry on any branch of the motion-picture business in commerce as producer, distributor, or exhibitor unless he has been and is registered with the commission under such rules and regulations as the commission may prescribe.

No person shall be permitted by the commission to register as a dealer unless he shall have entered into a registered valid contract with the commission whereby he agrees if he is a producer to have the motion pictures which he produces conform to the standards mentioned in section 14 upon penalty of having his registration revoked and of forfeiting his right to produce motion pictures.

The commission is empowered to revoke the registration of any dealer upon proof that the dealer has broken his contract with the commission or with a producer.

Trade Associations

Sec. 12. That every trade association shall file with the commission a statement of its general character and proposed activities, a complete list of the names and addresses of its members, officers, directors, or other managing agents, together with a true copy of its constitution or articles of association, and other information as required by the commission. Trade associations shall operate under such rules and regulations as the commission may prescribe.

Power Over Records

Sec. 13. Every dealer shall keep such accounts, records, and memoranda as fully and correctly disclose all transactions involved in his business, including the true ownership of such business by stockholding or otherwise. Whenever the commission finds that the accounts, records, and memoranda of any such person do not fully and correctly disclose all transactions involved in his business, the commission may prescribe the manner and form in which such accounts, records, and memoranda shall be kept.

Licenses, Permits

Sec. 14. (1) No Motion picture shall enter commerce unless it shall have received a license from the commission certifying that it has been supervised at the source of production and found to conform to the standards of production fixed by this section, and has been catalogued and classified according to a factual analysis of the contents of the picture except those granted permits as hereinafter provided in this section.

A. The selection and treatment of subject material for motion pictures, silent or talking, shall be in accord with public welfare and no license shall be granted to motion pictures—

First. Which emphasize and exaggerate sex appeal or depict scenes therein exploiting interest in sex in an improper or suggestive form or manner.

Second. Based upon white slavery or commercialized vice, or scenes showing the procurement of women or any of the activities attendant upon this traffic.

Third. Thematically making prominent an illicit love affair which tends to make virtue odious and vice attractive.

Fourth. With scenes which exhibit nakedness or persons scantily dressed, particularly suggestive bedroom and bathroom scenes and scenes of inciting dances.

Fifth. With scenes which unnecessarily prolong expressions or demonstrations of passionate love.

Sixth. Predominantly concerned with the underworld or vice and crime, and like scenes, unless the scenes are part of an essential conflict between good and evil.

Seventh. Of stories which make drunkenness and gambling attractive, or with scenes which show the use of narcotics and other unnatural practices dangerous to social morality.

Eighth. Of stories and scenes which may instruct the morally feeble in methods of committing crimes or by cumulative processes emphasize crime and the commission of crime.

Ninth. Of stories or scenes which ridicule or deprecate public officials, officers of the law, the United States Army, the United States Navy, or other governmental authority, or which tend to weaken the authority of the law.

Tenth. Of stories or scenes or incidents which offend the religious belief of any person, creed, or sect or ridicule ministers, priests, rabbis, or recognized leaders of any religious sect, and also which are disrespectful to objects or symbols used in connection with any religion.

Eleventh. Of stories or with scenes which unduly emphasize bloodshed and violence without justification in the structure of the story.

Twelfth. Of stories or with scenes which are vulgar and portray improper gestures, posturing, and attitudes.

Thirteen. With salacious titles, and subtitles in connection with their presentation or exhibition, and the use of salacious advertising matter, photographs, and lithographs in connection therewith.

B. No license shall be granted to any motion picture which is harmful to the public or to any part thereof in any respect or which distorts representations of the national life, literature, manners, and customs of this country or disturbs public peace or impairs friendly relations with foreign nations.

All pictures violating the foregoing standards in subsections (A) and (B) are hereby declared unlawful in commerce, and their production, sale, rental, or exhibition within the jurisdiction of the United States is made a misdemeanor.

C. No license shall be granted to any motion picture which aims to or does assist the election or defeat of any political candidate. Provided, however, That nothing herein shall prevent the commission granting a license or a permit in commerce for a film, otherwise complying with the standards of this section, which aims to or does assist the election or defeat of any political candidate: Provided, That in the license or permit granted and in the seal furnished there is the statement of the condition that it shall not be exhibited in licensed places of amusement: And provided further, That nothing herein shall forbid such use of actual news reels as gives no more publicity or approval of one candidate for office than another or to any one or more political parties than to any other. Nothing herein shall prevent the use of stereoptican slides on the motion-picture screen in licensed places of amusement assisting the election or defeat of any political candidate: Provided, That all the candidates shall have an equal opportunity for publicity for reasonable fees such as shall be fixed by the commission.

If the commission shall not license any film for any of the above reasons, it shall furnish to the applicant a written report clearly setting forth the reasons for its refusal and a description of each rejected part of any film not disapproved in toto, and upon the applicant's filing in the office in which the application for license is filed a statement under oath by the owner or lessee of said film that the part or parts described have been eliminated from the film and all copies thereof, a license shall be issued forthwith.

Examination of Scenario

(2) Upon the payment of a fee determined by the commission, it shall receive and examine any scenario submitted to it, provided the scenario shall be accompanied with the working script and dialogue for spoken parts and shall be complete in details and titles according to forms to be provided by the commission. The commission shall approve every such scenario, providing that it conforms to the standard required in this section. In case the scenario or script shall not conform to the said standards the commission shall either reject it entirely or suggest modifications.

Supervision of Production in Studio

(3) The commission shall appoint supervisors to assist producers and directors, in the process of production, in applying the standards of this Act, as interpreted by the commission.

Scientific, Educational, Industrial, Charitable, and Religious Films

(4) The commission may without inspection issue permits for motion-picture films intended solely for scientific, education, industrial, charitable, or religious purposes, provided that the owner thereof, either personally or by his duly authorized representative, shall file a sworn description of the film and a statement that the film is not to be exhibited at any private or public place of amusement.

Current Event Films

(5) The commission may at any time issue a permit for the entrance into commerce of any film portraying current events which contains nothing contrary to the standards required for license under section 14 and is not otherwise prohibited by law without inspection thereof upon the producer thereof filing the prescribed application duly sworn to by himself or his duly authorized agent affirming that the said film contains nothing contrary to the standards for a license under section 14: Provided, That such producer shall keep filed with the commission a bond or bonds for the full unimpaired amount of $50,000, undiminished by any fines or penalties imposed by the commission, conditioned for the faithful fulfillment of the provisions of this Act, with two sureties or one surety company thereto, each duly approved by the Secretary of the Treasury: Provided, That when any application for such permit is made the chairman shall designate three commissioners or deputies, of whom a majority shall determine whether the application shall be granted: Provided further, That any permit so granted may be or shall be revoked by the concurring votes of any two commissioners or deputies upon ten days' notice in writing to the applicant, in accordance with the provision in this section for the revocation of the permits for ordinary films.

Thereupon the film may be submitted to the commission for license, as though no permit had ever been granted or revoked.

A copy of each license or permit, or a certificate of its issuance, shall be provided by the commission to accompany each copy or duplicate film licensed or permitted, as in this and the preceding sections provided in commerce.

Used Films

(6) The commission shall, without inspecting it, issue for any motion picture which has been publicly exhibited prior to the enactment of this Act and six months thereafter a permit to enter commerce: Provided, That application is made under section 16 of this Act.

Labels for Films

(7) The commission shall furnish for each original film or copy a label of film which shall be a permanent title portion of each picture or film which shall state whether it has a "license" or a "permit," and whether it is for family use as provided in section 22. The forgery of any label or the use of any label with any film to which it does not belong shall be a violation of this Act, and, in addition to other penalties, shall forfeit the ownership of the film to the commission.

Revocation of Licenses and Permits

Sec. 15. The commission may at any time recall a licensed film and after review revoke it upon the ground that it violates any of the provisions of section 14.

Any change or alteration in a film after license or permit, except the elimination of a part or except upon written direction of the commission, shall be a violation of this Act and shall also make immediately void the license or permit therefor.

Any permit issued as herein provided may be revoked by the commission upon complaint that it violates any of the standards required for a license under section 14 and must be revoked upon the complaint of any United States district attorney, or the attorney general of any State or Territory ten days after notice in writing is mailed to the applicant at the address named in the application. Thereafter any such film may be submitted to the commission only in the manner provided for license.

The action of any United States court or of any court of record in any State, officially condemning any film or of any State censor board or any State motion-picture commission, refusing to license any film or any part of any film, shall per se revoke any outstanding permit for said film and the commission shall cause notice thereof to be sent to the applicant or applicants. But such action of any court, board, or commission shall not prevent the submission of said film for a license as provided in section 14 of this Act.

Applications

Sec. 16. That any person, firm, or corporation desiring a Federal license or permit for interstate or foreign commerce for any film shall first make sworn application in writing in the form and substance prescribed by the commission and shall pay the required fee. Said written application shall contain a duly attested statement of the date of the release that the said film and none of is copies has ever been condemned by any court or by any city or State motion-picture commission and is in no way contrary to the laws of the United States, and has nothing in it which in section 14 prohibits the granting of a license to any film in commerce. Every such application shall immediately be given a serial number which shall by the commission be made a permanent part of the principal title portion of the corresponding film and every copy thereof.

But any license or permit obtained upon a false or misleading affidavit or application shall be wholly void ab initio.

Fees

Sec. 17. That the commission shall collect from each applicant for a license or a permit except those granted under subsection 4 of section 14 of this Act, a license fee of $10 for each one thousand feet or fraction thereof of film and $5 for each additional copy thereof licensed by the commission: Provided, however, That upon the expiration of six months from the date of approval of this Act, and from time to time thereafter as circumstances warrant, the commission shall revise and fix the fees at such sums as will produce no larger income than is necessary to support the work of the commission, including salaries and all other expenses.

The revocation or cancellation of any license or permit issued shall not entitle the grantee thereof to the OLD Man Law of Averages is still on the job. Since Broadway is going to California to enter the "talkies," California is coming to Broadway to enter the "eaties." To date there are the Hollywood restaurant and the California on the main stem. At this rate the time is not far off when the actor in Hollywood will have to fly to Broadway to eat.

We had an appointment with Will Osborne the other night and found that so had a few others. At first we thought that the "Song pluggers' First Annual Frolic" was in the offing, but later found out that the boys were merely trying to get their respective songs broadcast during Will Osborne's WABC hookup. Among those present were, Al Friedman, of Joe Morris, who admitted that "All He Was Asking Was Sympathy," Murray Baker of Shapiro-Bernstein & Co., "The Man From The South With The Big Cigar In His Mouth," Murray Wizel, the best dressed man in Robbins (with the exception of the boss), Charles Lang, boss, errand boy, and shipping clerk, for Bibo-Lang, Inc., Al Porgy, the Yonkers Go-Getter, for the Famous Music Co., Johnny White, of Leo Feist, Inc., Ed Kelly of Bincent Youmans, Inc., Charlie Isaacson of Berlin, Inc., whose first remark to the Maestros is "I'm Following You," Nat Chaiken of Davis, Coots & Engel, Inc., Bobby Scheuing, the dapper plugger for Radio Music Co., and even Nat Madison of DeSylva, Brown & Henderson's Boston office was very much in evidence. Al Porgy won about three dollars—Al Friedman won—but, that's another story.

Al Koppel, writer of "Let's Incorporate," says, "Why go to the West Coast to write when the East Coast is so much nearer?" There must be a reason Al, 50,000 (more or less) writers can't be wrong.

Joe Fuchs, Philadelphia manager for M. Witmark & Sons, has taken unto himself a bride. Congratulations, Joe, but that's what happens when you "Swing On the Garden Gate Saying Goodnight."

Robbins Music Corp. also has a great song in "Chasing Rainbows," entitled "Love Ain't Nothin' But the Blues." This tune has been getting a concentrated plug over the air and bids fair to keep climbing to the top. Joe Goodwin wrote the lyrics and Louis Alter the music.

Pat Flaherty, vice president and general manager of Red Star Music Co., tells us "it's a boy." As one new papa to another, congratulations.

Unlike Fanny Brice

Rose Pelswick, in "New York Journal," relates the line pulled by Benny Rubin back in 1921, when, after finishing a two-reel comedy directed by Slim Summerville, the latter asked Benny to appear in a series, but suggested he have his nose reshaped for the occasion.

Benny shook his head. Nope, couldn't be did, he chirped, because he wouldn't "cut off his nose to spite his race."

That was in 1921. Benny starts his second Tiffany feature soon, a baseball yarn which he wrote. And Slim will be in the comedy support.

Radio enters its operatic star in the ring. Ernest Marshall has just signed to star in a series for that company.

"WATCHING MY DREAMS GO BY," the principal song in Winnie Lightner's new Vitaphone production, "She Couldn't Say No," is on the way to great popularity. In the comparatively short time since publication, it has sold twice as many copies as "Tip-Toe Through the Tulips" and "Painting the Clouds With Sunshine" from the Warner flicker "Gold Diggers of Broadway." M. Witmark & Sons is publisher of these tunes.

John Hall, in the Hollywood Filmograph, says: "Time was when it used to be, don't step on it: it may be Lon Chaney. Now it's don't step on it: it may be a song writer."

The theme song for the Mobiloil Hour over WEAF, "Road of Romance," was written by Sammy Lerner and Nathaniel Skilret. DeSylva, Brown & Henderson is publisher of this tune.

Al Woods, of Gene Austin, Inc., not only is lining up some of the best air plugs in town, but also does a little plugging himself. He is featured with Roemer's Homers over station WMCA, the Tea-Timers over WEAF and also gives the WOR "mike" a break once a week. "I Knew We Two Were One," "Please Come Back to Me" and "Dreary Night" are three of the Austin numbers that are selling fast.

One of the best current sellers is "Happy Days Are Here Again," written by Milton Ager and Jack Yellen for the M-G-M production, "Chasing Rainbows." Ager, Yellen & Bornstein is publisher of this song. Wouldn't it be great if all the music publishers could feel that way?

Song Racket War On at Cleveland

This action was taken following complaints from music publishers, who claim that the racket is in violation of the copyright laws.

Coast Players' Squawk Against Call Bureau

for by a particular studio through the call bureau.

He was reserved for that studio on a card record at the bureau. Some time later, a second studio put in a call for the actor, but was advised that company number one had first reservation. The second company asked that they have first call if the first producer took him off the reserved list, and this was done. The next day a third studio put in a call for the player, and was advised there were two previous requests. The last company started manipulations to have the first two release the player, as he was needed for a picture starting immediately. After three days, this was accomplished, and the player finally went to work—unaware up to that time of the juggling that had been done.

A Flagrant Case

Another alleged instance, now under investigation, resulted in the pulling of a player out of a picture where he had been assured of ten weeks' work, after he had been playing two days. In this case, the player had made a test at another studio about ten days previously, but had received no word about a pending engagement. Meeting a director friend, the latter asked the player if he was working and when the answer was "No," the two returned to the studio and the actor was signed for ten weeks.

When the picture was in production for two days, the first studio decided the actor should be in their picture, and had the player yanked to do his part for which he was tested. The studio pointed to its prior right through its reservation with the call bureau. The director friend of the actor had not bothered to register the actor with the call bureau when he put him in the picture.

There have been numerous recent complaints by actors on methods of studios in signing them for parts in pictures—using them for a certain period, and then dropping the players from the payroll with the excuse that further work in the production has been eliminated through script changes.

Another Gag

After two, three, or four weeks without a studio call of any kind, the player is called back by the casting office and told his other work in the production has been put back into the script and he can go to work again on the picture for an additional period of time. The studio is protected in that the particular player will not tie up with another picture through reservation at the call bureau on the player's services. When other studios call for the actor, they are informed the individual is being reserved by another company, consequently the inquirer lays off and seeks another actor.

Keeping Secrets

Pity the poor house organ editor. There's one told about a recent issue of a house organ, which contained a big front page yarn about a real news event. The story displeased company officials and was ordered yanked.

Faced with a spacious hole to fill, the editor was dumbfounded to learn that as a filler he would be given the story of a change of officers which had taken place a few days previous.

Industry Reaches New Financial Level

tems have been widely employed by producers, and other processes are being experimented with by different companies. Stereopticon and wide-screen effects are other future developments. The latter innovation has already been exhibited. Most of the leading producers have patents covering some method for achieving this end. The "Magnafilm" of Paramount, the "Grandeur Pictures" of Fox, and the "Spoor-Berggren Process" of Radio-Keith-Orpheum all call for a much larger screen and afford a much greater chance for the inclusion of detail. Having made the leap from silence to sound, the film industry will not stop there.

The total increase in costs runs about thirty per cent over the old silent films. This takes into consideration money spent for experimentation. During the first nine months of 1929 the increase in net earnings of all companies ranged from 25 to 100 per cent, according to the Standard Statistics Company. Thus far profits have greatly exceeded costs. It seems safe to expect the present rate of profits to continue through 1930, judging by attendance records.

No Longer a Luxury

It is an accepted fact that motion pictures are no longer a luxury, but a necessary form of recreation for the masses. The average family has been so accustomed to placing "movies" on its weekly budget that attendance receipts were almost stabilized before the advent of the "talkie." Since then motion pictures have sustained only a few desertions and gained a vast army of new friends. This added revenue can be expected to defray further production and experimental costs. There is every reason—now that the talkies are proving to be no flash in the pan—to expect the new level of revenue at least to hold its own.

This is a conservative view. But many of the more important executives expect larger and larger profits from the new medium and the developments that are sure to come. As the quality of the entertainment keeps improving, along with the advent of color perfection and the stereoscope, there is ample reason to look for even greater interest by the public, with a consequent rising increase in revenue. On this account common shares in the motion picture group may rise in value. The February earnings bulletin of Standard Statistics shows a ratio of stock prices to earnings of less than 9 to 1 in this group. From a proper appraisal of the prospects of motion pictures, that seems a low ratio.

N. Y. Critics Give Grandeur a Big Plug

graph," "in a short subject which precedes the feature," in which "the Niagara Falls are shown from various angles, in various lights. A great sweep and depth, much more impressive than anything ever shown before on the screen, testify that in outdoor scenes, particularly those in which remote objects are important to the picture, 'Grandeur Films' surpasses anything yet brought forward in motion picture engineering. The feature picture, however, fails to utilize the full possibilities of the new medium. It is a conventional stage revue, photographed after the manner made familiar by the 'Hollywood Revue' and 'Show of Shows.' The only difference appears to be that the new process allows a few more dancing girls to be used in the monotonous choruses which make up its bulk."

An important advantage of Grandeur, in the opinion of Mordaunt Hall, "New York Times," is that "it permits the sound track to be three times as wide as that of standard film. "This increased space," he states, "results in the voices being more modulated, and in the incidental sounds being more natural." Hall points out that while "Happy Days" is "enlightening concerning the benefits of Grandeur film, it is not one that gives as full a conception of the possibilities as future films of this type will probably do. That is to say, those offerings on the same scale with a definite dramatic story, accompanied by indoor and outdoor scenes, will perhaps prove more impressive."

Quinn Martin, "Morning World," claims that "this readjustment of the visual aspect of the picture in nowise detracts from the effectiveness of the sound and speech, since the recording experts have synchronized the voice and movement of the players to fit in with the advanced device. It seemed to me to provide a remarkably realistic piece of work, marking another important step in the progress of the films toward their ultimate goal of naturalness in the reproducing of plays upon a screen."

George Gerhard, "Evening World," was "duly impressed with this new child of Hollywood."

Clancy in Wall Street

(Aristocrat Pictures—All Talker)

Irish-Scotch Partnership for Laughs

(Reviewed by Walter R. Greene)

THE stock market forms the background for this comedy of an Irish-Scotch firm of plumbers. The story network is vaguely similar to "McFadden Flats," which Edward Small produced successfully a few years ago. Charles Murray gives a most satisfactory characterization of Clancy, who becomes involved in the market on margin against the advice of his partner. There are plenty of enjoyable laughs all through, in addition to a human interest thread and a dash of romance.

Geared for the week-run bookings and through the split week runs in cities and towns, the picture looks good for satisfactory business because of its timeliness and entertaining qualities.

Clancy, the plumber, stumbles into the stock market, and his partnership is dissolved when the Scotchman refuses to gamble with him. Clancy has a run of good luck, and moves uptown, but finally loses all in the crash and goes back to the plumbing business with MacIntosh.

Short filmusicals and cartoons will round out bill here.

Produced by Edward Small. Released by Aristocrat Pictures. Directed by Ted Wilde. Adaptation by Ralph Bell and Jack Wagner. Dialogue by William Dugan. Photographed by Harry Jackson. Running time, 1 hour, 10 minutes.

Vengeance

(Columbia—All Talker)

Fair Program

(Reviewed by Charles F. Hynes)

COINCIDENTALLY this is patterned along similar lines as "White Cargo," current in New York, in that it contains a number of similar events and situations. Its trite story is compensated by swift telling, so that the picture moves forward at a good clip. It tells the yarn of a woman brought to the Congo by her selfish husband, who is pretty much of a heel from all angles. However, Jack Holt comes to her aid and wins her when the bogies stage a convenient uprising and bump off the hubby.

This is all outdoor stuff, and the Congo shots are fair, although obvious studio stuff. Holt and Dorothy Revier offer a selling angle, for they've teamed in other pictures. The action fans will like it. There is sufficient comedy to carry it over, and there is kick in the drumming of the tom-toms which signifies the blacks are on the warpath. Holt, however, has no difficulty in subduing the frenzied natives with a few words, in the most approved fillum manner.

The Big Party

(Fox—All Talker)

Ordinary—Very

(Reviewed by Red Kann)

SHAME to take such a pleasant bunch of youngsters and give them the sort of stuff of which "The Big Party" is made. Here you get Dixie Lee, hot "blues" singer and personable; Sue Carol, with little to do; and Richard Keene and Frank Albertson with Walter Catlett, Charles Judels and "Whispering Jack" Smith flanking them. Tip top cast; territory story, indifferent direction equal just a picture.

In this year of grace 1930, this yarn would have you believe that Dixie Lee, poor sales girl, has wished on her a swell bungalow apartment by the heavy without ever suspecting he has designs on her. Of course, she finds out; socks him and goes back to the hall room and the boy friend. Pretty weak.

Sue Carol has practically nothing to do, and despite her billing ahead of Dixie Lee, it is the latter recruit from the vaudeville stage who is No. 1 woman. "Bluer Than Blue Over You" and "Good for Nothing But Love" are the two best song numbers in the piece.

Strong shorts would help.

Produced and distributed by Fox. Story by Harlan Thompson. Directed by John Blystone. Continuity and dialogue by Harlan Thompson. Edited by Eddie Robbins. Photographed by George Schneiderman. Length, 6200 feet. Running time, 1 hour, 7 minutes. Release date, Feb. 25.

The Cowboy and the Outlaw

(Big Prod.—Silent)

Not Up To Series Standard

(Review by Joseph Kelley)

REAL western atmosphere, leathery-faced western types, some shooting and more horses, with a girl thrown in for good measure and, the curled-haired hero, of course—that's this one all through its approximate five reels. The always good plot formula of the son avenging his father's death at the hands of horse thieves is done to perfection. Nothing is lacking, even to the lost button that puts the son hot on the trail of the killer.

Horseflesh is at a premium in Solida County, somewhere in the great open spaces. Outlaws appear, drive off a herd of hawses, the owner goes to town for bankroll and is held-up and killed on return. Son steps out and tracks the killer to earth with faithful six shooter.

Bob Steele, an excellent Broadway type of cowboy, who really and truly can ride horseflesh, does the expected. So does Edna Aslin, the only female in the picture. This offering is not up to the hard-ridin', hard-shootin' pictures of this series that have gone before. J. P. McGowan, a wizard for action, directed and acted up to standard. Bud Osborne lives up to his villianous reputation.

Good sound shorts are necessary.

White Cargo

A Man's Picture

(Reviewed by Charles F. Hynes)

GREAT intelligence and restraint are shown in the making of this picture, based upon the play of the same name. It was produced by W. P. Film Co. of London. RCA Photophone recording is used.

The picture is characterized by fine acting, with the work of Leslie Faber predominant. The action is drawn out, slowing up the picture, a fault which could be eliminated by cutting.

Production of the play in film form is declared to have been frowned upon by American producers because of the inter-racial marriage angle. This may lead to difficulties in most spots, but the picture is handled in a manner which does not give any real offense.

The chief difficulty is the sordidness of the atmosphere, which exercises a rather depressing effect. For this reason, plus the lack of real love interest, it is not a picture which will appeal to women.

Audiences who like fine acting and a sophisticated story will react to this. It has strong moments of fine drama and a few comedy bits. It ranks among the best of the British pictures to reach the United States.

Light shorts essential.

Produced by W. P. Film Co., Ltd. Distributed by Harold Auten. Directed by J. B. Williams and A. W. Barnes. Adapted from story, "Hell's Playground," by Vera Simonton and play by Leon Gordon. Running time, 1 hour, 12 mins. Release date not set.

Not So Hot, But Clean

(Reviewed by Joseph Kelley)

IF you did business with "Skinner Steps Out' in sound, you will do business with this one. They are two peas in a pod with both traveling neck and neck for money in the so-so class. It is domestic comedy with scattered situations that may force a laugh but no guarantee goes with this statement. The story should have been confined to not more than two reels. Johnny Arthur's following may go for it. Sally star, his chief support, is just another actress trying to get along.

The story is another "Skinner" yarn, twisted a bit as to situations to give a newness. When reviewed something either went wrong with the sound equipment or else. Fact was there were multiple feet run off in which the principals' lips moved desperately but no articulation was audible. Perhaps it was just as well. Silence is golden more times than seldom.

Johnny Arthur is a distinct type of comedian. Put him in the right spot and he is good as was the case in Winnie Lightner's "She Couldn't Say No." He certainly isn't spotted favorably here. Leo Kohlmar, in a German role, takes the thunder away from all others. He is a big relief. Yes—there is a Junior in it.

Musical and scenic sound shorts would do a lot here.

Produced and distributed by Columbia. Directed by Victor Heerman. Continuity and dialogue by Gladys Lehman. Edited by David Berg. Photographed by Ted Tetzlaff. Length, 6,304 feet. Running time 1 hour and 10 minutes. Release date, Feb. 18, 1930.

Nice Assortment of Shorts This Week; No Highlights

"The Love Boat"

(Vitaphone Varieties No. 955)

Scintillating Fun

A BIT of sex appeal permeating any atmosphere in which Herman Timberg may be always spells something just a trifle different. This is it. Herman is a semi-clownish individual who crashes right into the midst of girlies who are broad-minded. He fiddles (and very well) and other things. Barbara Blair does a clinging-singing number with Herman that is really funny. A bit of slapstick bedroom stuff at the end might better be left on the cutting room floor. Running time, 10 minutes.

As in the case of castoria, they'll cry for more.

Audio Review No. 9

(Pathe Sound—2 Reels)

Only Fair

THRILLING shots of a Florida alligator farm redeem the remaining three weak units in Terry Ramsaye's newest assortment of novelties, which embraces a Pathechrome record of a Canadian Indian reservation, some more free (?) plugs for modernistic table dodads, and a youngster rendering a Scotch song, supposedly in imitation of Harry Lauder as a kid. The reel could get along very nicely without the latter. Weak, but it'll probably get by with the 'gator shots. Running time, 10 minutes.

Slip it in with a light feature and a snappy comedy short.

Some Show

(Universal—Silent—2 Reels)

Average Stuff

UP to series standard, with Arthur Lake offering more than a few chuckles in a story handled as well as can be expected, considering the type of material plugged for gags. Arthur is hard at work on his part in the club play, which he upsets in true slapstick style, and, while rehearsing with the heroine in a park, encounters a funny-looking character whom he believes is an escaped inmate of the nearby asylum. The supposed mamas likewise also pampers Lake in the belief that Arthur has a screw loose, and the situation is played for plenty. Gus Meins directed. Running time, 19 minutes.

A musical short with a dramatic feature and this and you're all set.

Screen Snapshots No. 12

(Columbia—Dialogue—1 Reel)

Just Fair

AL ST. JOHN is the master of ceremonies in this subject, continuing the visits through the film capital. It has a song by John Boles, played via a record and some good shots selling the jungle sequence of "Vengeance," winding up with the escape of a lion which makes a good climax. These subjects have considerable following, and this will please fairly well. Running time about 10 minutes.

Fine with any feature.

Neighbors

(Universal—Talker—2 Reels)

They'll Like It

SUFFICIENT comedy interest in Sunny Jim's new two-reeler to please the average audience. And the youngsters will find it even more entertaining. Young Jim puts his dad and mother in a tough spot at a dinner party in honor of the father's boss, but the old man suddenly realizes that he has been too meek in office matters, particularly where a long-overdue raise was concerned. He pulls a line of rough chatter on his employer. Of course he gets the raise. This one is a little slow in spots, but, generally, amusing fare. Beaudine directed. Running time, 20 minutes.

Almost any good feature without comedy will go hand-in-hand with this.

Alice Gentle

(Vitaphone Varieties No. 389-96)

Opera At Its Best

ALICE GENTLE not only possesses a captivating voice but has screen personality. She sings an aria from "Carmen" with a chorus that is far and away the best appearing in those Varieties dealing with opera. Her voice records excellently and, as an operatic vamp, lends a bit of acting as welcome as her voice. Ten short minutes on the screen. Technicolor adds a lot.

Intelligent audiences will appreciate it. Out for all others.

Law In the Saddle

(Universal—Silent—2 Reels)

Ride 'Em Mountie

NOT a thing in this one to rave about, just a typical old-line mounted police yarn, which follows the line of least resistance. However, the mere fact that it is typical adventure stuff recommends it to certain houses where they demand excitement centering around the wide-open spaces, fast hoss riding and a fistic encounter between the hero mountie and the leader of the gang. Josef Levigard directed. Running time, 16 minutes.

Give them a strong comedy six-reeler with this.

"His Birthday Stuff"

(Pathe—Talker—2 Reels)

Slapstick to the Extreme

SLAPSTICK laid on thickly—and of an ancient vintage at that. It concerns the "Great Hokey," a master magician who is highlighting a vaudeville bill with his "presto" chatter, done in a comedy vein. Where they like real old slapstick, they'll go for this, but don't give it to a particular audience. Dr. Carl Herman, the magician, is featured. He did the best he could. Gordon Bostock produced. Running time, 21 minutes.

Fit this in a bill where the feature is strong, preferably a heavy vehicle.

Spike Speaks

(Columbia—Victor Gem—1 Reel)

No So Good

THERE isn't much to this, which is tiresome despite the fact it runs but twelve minutes. Too much repetition and a subject fashioned more as a vaudeville skit than as screen fare. The set is a warden's office and the convicts do their stuff preparing for a musical show. Frank Moulan is the leading player. Running time about 12 minutes.

Strong support needed.

Topics of the Day

(Pathe—Talker—1 Reel)

Same Old Stuff

NIFTY and the professor probably have their followers, and for those, the gags culled from the humor columns of newspapers might get a laugh. It's the usual lineup, nothing more or nothing less. Running time, 5 minutes.

Run this as light (very light) comedy material tagged on after a heavy feature.

Reverse English

Florenz Ziegfeld isn't doing much toward paving the way for his talker debut by the advertising being used for "Simple Simon," new Edwyn Wynn show. One of the selling lines used is NOT CANNED, with emphasis given the LIVING players. However, the copy unblushingly lifts the "See and Hear" copy, so common to talker advertising.

Warner Warriors Wallop Worries

"The Warner Club Gaieties" have come and gone. For one night, the boys and girls of Warners, First National, Stanley, Witmark and all the other companies in the West 44th Street family cut capers at Chanin's 46th Street Theatre in New York.

Everybody who was not in the show was in the audience, from the top to the bottom of the organization. The "Gaieties" revealed all kinds of talent in songs, dances, sketches and ensemble numbers, introducing a pulchritudinous chorus.

What happened runs somthing like this:

In the first row, center, right behind the musical director, sat Horace Liveright, prominent book publisher and play producer. There was no more enthusiastic spectator than he. He was particularly interested in Mildred Winston, former member of the American Opera Company in Chicago. If Liveright puts on a musical show, you may expect to see Mildred in a part worth mentioning.

Ted Krassner and Sol Reiner, two of the smoothest dancers of the evening, developed their own routine from start to finish. The audience couldn't get enough of these nimble terpsichoreans.

Sam Morris came in for personal mention in the "Film Salesman" act, put over with a bang by A. W. Schwalberg and Earl Bell.

"The Theme Song," by Cliff Hess and George Bilson, made a capital climax of the evening. Rudy Hagen did a swell job in leading the singing of "Warner Brothers, I Love You."

Herb Crooker, master of ceremonies, filled in the gaps in an easy, debonair manner. His "Floradora Hossie" number was one of the screams of the evening.

Libby Holman has a rival in Bess Fink, who can moan low or high. Take your choice.

It is understood that she gave Herman Starr an opportunity to create the world's long-distance laugh record. The president of First National began laughing at 8:30 and was still going at midnight.

Gradwell Sears, Andy Smith and Mrs. Smith were all dolled up like a Metropolitan opera premiere. They said they liked the music better.

H. A. Bandy picked up some American humor to take abroad with him when he sails Saturday.

Warren C. Boothby was discovered in the box-office, checking the house.

Buddy and Mrs. Morris rushed back from Atlantic City to make the performance.

Louis Warner goes on record as believing that the show, properly edited, would make an A1 Vitaphone short.

Abel Carey Thomas, when asked about the show, was non-committal (He's a laugh.)

Stanleigh Friedman, author of "Marching Down the Field," Yale football classic, contributed the song, "Tiny Chinese Moon." Friedman said it might have been bigger, but he wrote it during a lunch hour.

Three stenographer-chorus girls were heard to pull lines with double meanings.

Spyros Skouras was on the verge of booking the whole show for the Ambassador, St. Louis. He is waiting a wire from Charlie.

Meyer Lesser's son, Albert Lee, famous jokester and juvenile racketeer, spotted every joke on the bill.

One of the bright moments of the evening was provided by a chorus pony who broke past the barrier and ran into Monroe Silvers at the finish line.

Weekly Box Office Check-Up And Showmen's Ad. Tips

In Figuring Percentage Rating On Pictures, The Normal Or Average Business Of The Theatre Is Taken As 100%

Alibi (U.A.)

VANCOUVER—Strand (1,800), 25c-60c, 6 days. Other attractions, Paramount News, Jackie Souders and his band. Weather, rainy. Opposition, "Seven Days Leave," "The Trespasser," "Marriage Playground," British Guild Players. Rating, 95%.

Ad Tips—Featured this as a 100% spoken underworld drama, in which a policeman's daughter gets mixed up with a crook and is rescued by a detective. Use strong scene cut and print comments on the play by Lillian Gish and Norma Talmadge. Audience appeal, general.—D. P. DeWees, Mgr., Strand, Vancouver.

Anna Christie (M-G-M)

CLEVELAND—Stillman (1,900), 7 days, 40 and 75 cents. Weather, fine. Other attractions, "A Night in a Shooting Gallery" (M-G-M); "Spookeasy" (Columbia Disney cartoon); Hearst Metrotone News. Opposition, "Hit the Deck" (2nd week), "Street of Chance," "Burning Up," "Officer O'Brien," "In the Next Room," "Cameo Kirby." Stage, Otis Skinner in "Papa Juan," "Naughty Marietta." Rating, 105%.

DES MOINES—Paramount (1,700), 3 days, 25c-35c-50c-65c. Other attractions, M-G-M comedy, "A Perfect Day," Paramount News. Opposition, "Devil May Care," "The Return of Sherlock Holmes," "Hallelujah," "Lone Star Ranger," "No, No, Nannette." Weather, pleasant. Rating, 300%.

LOS ANGELES—Fox Criterion (1,652), 7 days, 35 to 65 cents. Other attractions, Fox Movietone News and Silly Symphony. Opposition, "Street of Chance," "Bishop Murder Case," "Lummox," "Seven Keys to Baldpate," "Racketeer," "Son of the Gods." Weather, fine. Rating, 121% (5th week).

OMAHA—Paramount (2,900), 25c-60c, 4 days. Other attractions, "Blotto" (M-G-M), Paramount News, organ, stage and pit band. Weather, warm. Opposition, "Her Unborn Child," "Hit the Deck," "Sunny Side Up." Rating, 125%.

PORTLAND, ORE.—Fox United Artists (945), 50 and 60 cents, 7 days. Other attractions, Fox Movietone News, Vitaphone acts. Opposition, "Slightly Scarlet," "Bishop Murder Case," "Dames Ahoy," "Rich People," "Love Comes Along." Rating, 100% (2nd week).

Ad Tips—Good work of Greta Garbo continued strong feminine appeal for a second week's good business. Marie Dressler's especially good as Marty. Never a better characterization.—J. J. Parker, Mgr., United Artists, Portland, Ore.

SAN FRANCISCO—Warfield, 50c-60c-90c. Other attractions, Harry Langdon talking comedy, Fox Movietone and Metrotone News, organ selections. Weather, fine. Opposition, "Party Girl," "Lummox," "So Long Letty" (2nd week), "Sky Hawk," "Son of the Gods," "Hit the Deck" (3rd week), "Street of Chance." Rating, 85%.

Ad Tips—Consisted of front street car signs, and large banners over theatre saying "Garbo Talks." All copy proclaimed that Garbo talks. Interest, curiosity were aroused by the advertising. The picture appealed strongly to all lovers of good drama.—George Gilliam, Mgr., Stillman, Cleveland.

Applause (Para)

PROVIDENCE—Strand (2,200), 15 and 50 cents, 7 days. Other attractions, "Family Next Door," "Sugar Plum Papa," Paramount Sound News. Weather, snow, cold. Opposition, "Hit the Deck," "New York Nights," "Seven Days Leave." Rating, 90%.

Ad Tip—An exploitation idea for this one is to get a local radio station to feature records by Helen Morgan and tie up directly with picture. Here the fact that Jack Cameron, a local boy, plays opposite her in the first part of the film, helped to draw. Has appeal for adolescents and adults.—Ed Reed, Mgr., Strand, Providence.

Bishop Murder Case (M-G-M)

DALLAS—Greater Palace, (2,350), 7 days, 25c-35c-60c. Publix presentation: "The Song Shop" with Jimmie Ellard and Greater Palace Stage Band, Johnny Winters in organ novelty and Paramount Sound News. Weather, fair. Opposition, "The Sky Hawk," "Tanned Legs," "Hell Harbor," and "Woman Racket." Rating 110%.

LOS ANGELES—Fox Carthay Circle (1,650), twice daily, 75 to $1.50. Other attractions, M-G-M "College Hounds," Fox Movietone News and Elinor's orchestra. Weather, fine. Rating 91% (4th week).

OMAHA—Paramount (2,900), 25 to 60 cents, 3 days. Other attractions, Publix "Painted Melodies" unit, Paramount News, orchestra and organ. Weather, warm. Opposition, "Sunny Side Up," "Her Unborn Child," "Hit the Deck." Rating, 100%.

Ad Tips—Use name of Novarro large in all billing and in newspaper ad use name in black in upper left with title beneath with large black eagle with spread wings to right and under it line cut of Novarro holding Dorothy Jordon in his arms with gag in her mouth to keep her from screaming. Tell them "The Pagan" sings and loves again. Here is a chance to tie up with radio, phonograph, record and music dealers with co-operative advertisements and window displays. Audience appeal, strong for those who like good singing by men and women combined with a romantic drama that holds attention.—Howard Price Kingsmore, gen'l mgr., Loew's Stanley, Baltimore.

Ad Tips—Ramon Novarro is the business getter for this picture and should be given plenty of publicity. The title is good and interesting since it is Novarro's first all-talking picture. In our newspaper copy we played up fact that Liberty Magazine awarded this picture a four star rating which means that it is unusually good. Audience appeal—general. James Lander, Mgr., Greater Palace, Dallas.

Disraeli (W. B.)

OKLAHOMA CITY—Capitol (1,200), 7 days, 35 and 50 cents. Other attractions, Metrotone News, Charles Ruggles in "The Family Next Door." Weather, cold. Opposition, "Sailor's Holiday," "Condemned," "Hot for Paris," "Hit the Deck," "They Had to See Paris," "Untamed." Rating, 100%.

General Crack (W. B.)

ALBANY, N. Y.—Mark Strand (2,000), 35 and 50 cents, 6 days. Other attractions, Paramount Sound News, two Vitaphone acts. Weather, from extreme cold to warm. Opposition, "Untamed," "Bishop Murder Case," "Cameo Kirby," "Pointed Heels." Rating, 135%.

TROY, N. Y.—Troy (2,000), 35 and 50 cents, 3 days. Other attractions, sound news, one Vitaphone act, a Krazy Kat cartoon. Weather, warm. Opposition, "The Sap." Rating, 98%.

Ad Tips—Call attention to the fact that this picture has for its star the original Arliss who starred in the Broadway stage presentation. Audience appeal, general.—Benjamin Stern, Mgr., The Troy, Troy, N. Y.

Hallelujah (M-G-M)

DES MOINES—Strand (1,100), 3 days, 20c-30c. Other attractions, Kinograms, "Sister's Pest"; song novelty, "If I Can't Have Your Kisses, I Don't Want Your Love"; Oswald cartoon, "Pussy Willow." Opposition, "Anna Christie," "Return of Sherlock Holmes," "Lone Star Ranger," "Devil May Care," "No, No, Nanette." Weather, pleasant. Rating, 110%.

Hell Harbor (U.A.)

DALLAS.—Melba, (1,800), 7 days, 25c-35c-50c. Two Vitaphone shorts and Paramount Sound News. Weather, fair. Opposition, "Sky Hawk," "Devil May Care," "Tanned Legs," and "Woman Racket." Rating, 105%.

Ad Tips—Has both the star and title box office draw. We played up the fact that it was the first time shown on any screen. Play up Lupe Velez as it is up to her to get the business. Newspaper copy used—"Fiery—Flaming —Fascinating Lupe Velez in Henry King's mammoth production from Rita Johnson Young's famous novel "Out of the Night." Also mention Jean Hersholt and John Holland in copy and let the public know that it is all talking. Audience appeal—general.—F. F. Smith, Mgr., Melba, Dallas.

Hit the Deck (R-K-O)

BALTIMORE—Auditorium (1,600), 6 days, 35 cents to $1.50, with four reserved seat shows daily. Other attractions, Pathe Sound News, travel talks on Madrid. Weather, clear, cold first two days, then clear and warm for rest of week. Opposition, "Ship from Shanghai," "Vengeance," "Party Girl," "Wonderful Lies of Nina Petrowna," "She Couldn't Say No," "Not for Paris," "Sacred Flame," "Devil-May-Care," "Wedding Rings," "Their Own Desire," Stage, "The Apple Cart," Vagabond Players in "Juno and the Paycock," "Girls from the Follies" with Gladys Clark, Philadelphia orchestra and Gigli one night each. Rating, 40% (3rd week).

CLEVELAND—Hippodrome (4,500), 7 days, 35 and 75 cents. Weather, fine. Other attractions, Fox Movietone News, "Sugar Plum Papa" (Edu'l). Opposition, "Anna Christie," "Street of Chance," "Burnin' Up," "Officer O'Brien," "In the Next Room," "Cameo Kirby." Stage: Otis Skinner in "Papa Juan," Ilse Marvenga in "Naughty Marietta." Rating, 83%.

OKLAHOMA CITY—Empress (1,500) 25 and 50 cents, 7 days. Other attractions, Pathe News; Oswald cartoon, "Chile Con Carmen." Weather, cold. Opposition, "Sailor's Holiday," "Condemned," "Hot for Paris," "They Had to See Paris," "Untamed." Rating, 100%.

OMAHA—Orpheum (3,000), 25 to 60 cents, 7 days. Other attractions, Five acts of RKO vaudeville, Pathe News and cartoon. Weather, warm. Opposition, "Her Unborn Child," "Sunny Side Up," "Anna Christie," "Devil May Care." Rating, 140%.

Ad Tips—Advertising consisting of letting loose several hundred balloons with "Hit the Deck" printed on them in popular dance cabarets, and a tie-up with U. S. Marines, in which local company paraded downtown in full uniform with the company marching into the theatre to see the show as guests of the management. The picture was very well liked by all types of audience.—William Watson, Mgr., Hippodrome, Cleveland.

Hot for Paris (Fox)

drew on success of stage play for ballyhoo. A stunt that can work successfully is to invite all "gobs" in town to a free showing. Most papers will give publicity on this. Has general appeal for old and young because of its breezy story.—Harry Storin, Mgr., Victory, Providence.

Ad Tips—Announced McLaglen, Brendel, Fifi Dorsay and Polly Moran as "The greatest laugh-getting cast in talking pictures." Red lamps were used in the electric signs on the front while the painted signs were also in a brilliant red. There was no reference to "Cock-Eyed World" in connection with the advertising for "Hot for Paris" although it was apparent that the latter is a sequel to it. McLaglen is typically McLaglen but he is not so good when he tries to sing. Male portion of the public was enthusiastic for "Hot for Paris" but women were rather cool. Incidentally, the story has nothing to do with Paris.—J. M. Franklin, Mgr., B. F. Keith's, Ottawa.

Hunting Tigers in India (Talking Picture Epics)

CHICAGO.—Castle, (300), 50c-75c, 7 days. Other attractions, Mickey Mouse cartoon. Opposition, "Royal Box," "Tabloid Talkies," "Sunny Side Up," "Show Boat." Weather, fine. Rating, 100%.

In the Next Room (F. N.)

CLEVELAND—Cameo (1,200), 7 days, 25 and 35 cents. Weather, fine. Other attractions, "Shiverin' Shakespeare" (MGM); "Overture of 1912," Hearst Metrotone News. Opposition, "Anna Christie," "Hit the Deck (2nd week), "Street of Chance," "Burning," "Officer O'Brien," "Cameo Kirby." Rating, 78%.

It's a Great Life (M-G-M)

MILWAUKEE—Wisconsin (3,275), 25 and 60 cents, 7 days. Other attractions, Fanchon & Marco's "Idea in Green," Fox Movietone News. Weather, fair and mild. Opposition, "Love Parade," "Chasing Rainbows,' "The Virginian," "Their Own Desire," "She Couldn't Say No," "Locked Door." Rating, 100%.

OTTAWA.—Avalon, (990), 3 days, 25c-35c. Other attractions, "Collegians," Fox Movietone News, "Soul Mates," Jan Garber's Band. Weather, fair and mild. Opposition, "Sally," "Hot for Paris," "Their Own Desire," "Pointed Heels," "Conquest." Rating, 95%.

Ad Tips—You won't go wrong by playing up the Duncan Sisters and their capers. Story starts out with a shop girl angle that makes a direct appeal to the working girls. Announced it as an "extravaganza with Technicolor and scenes on the Magnoscope." Revue stuff was excellent on the enlarged screen. The Magnascope has certainly proved worth while and the big color scenes are invariably good. The picture has its attractiveness for both old and young and all classes.—P. J. Nolan, Mgr., Avalon, Ottawa.

Locked Door (U. A.)

MILWAUKEE—Palace-Orpheum (2,587), 25 and 60 cents, 7 days. Other attractions, Pathe Sound News. Weather, fair and mild. Opposition, "It's a Great Life," "Love Parade," "Chasing Rainbows," "Their Own Desire," "She Couldn't Say No," "The Virginian." Rating, 100%.

Lone Star Ranger (Fox)

TROY, N. Y.—Proctor's (2,000), 25 and 60 cents, 4 days. Other attractions, Vaudeville acts. Weather, cold. Opposition, "Love Parade," "Bishop Murder Case." Rating, 120%.

Love Comes Along (R-K-O)

PORTLAND, ME.—Tebbetts Oriental (1,600), 25 and 35 cents, 7 days, 5 shows. Other attractions, Pathe Sound News, "Amos and Andy" broadcast from stage. First house to adopt this novelty here. Special kiddie matinees. Glen Shelley organ concert. Weather, rain. Opposition, "Slightly Scarlet," "Dames Ahoy," "Bishop Murder Case," "Anna Christie," "Rich People." Rating, 120%.

Love Parade (Para.)

MILWAUKEE—Strand (1,406), 25 and 60 cents, 7 days. Other attractions, Fox Movietone News. Weather, fair and mild. Opposition, "It's a Great Life," "Chasing Rainbows," "The Virginian," "Their Own Desire," "She Couldn't Say No," "Locked Door." Rating, 115%.

TROY, N. Y.—Troy (2,000), 35 and 50 cents, 4 days. Other attractions, Paramount Sound News, one Vitaphone act. Weather, very cold. Opposition, "Bishop Murder Case," "Lone Star Ranger." Rating, 122%.

Ad Tips—Called upon people of Troy in all newspaper advertising with a slogan of "Let's Go" to see and hear this all singing, all talking and all daring production, saying that this is the show that wowed New York at an $11 admission. Started things going with a midnight premiere with all seats at 50 cents. In all newspaper ads featured Chevalier's songs. Audience appeal, general.—Benjamin Stern, Mgr., Troy, Troy, N. Y.

Lummox (U. A.)

LOS ANGELES—United Artists (2,100), 7 days, 35 and 75 cents. Other attractions, Christie Talker comedy, Grantland Rice Sport, Paramount Sound News. Opposition, "Anna Christie," "Bishop Murder Case," "Street of Chance," "Seven Keys to Baldpate," "Racketeer," "Sons of the Gods." Weather, fine. Rating, 89% (2nd week)

SAN FRANCISCO—St. Francis, 50c, 65c, 90c, 7 days. Other attractions, Yacht Club Boys "on the High C's," "A Screaming Comedy," Paramount News. Weather, fine. Opposition, "Hit the Deck" (3rd week), "Street of Chance," "Anna Christie," "Son of the Gods," "Sky Hawk,' "Party Girl,' 'So Long Letty" (2nd week). Rating, 100%.

Box Office Check-Up And Ad. Tips

"Their Own Desire," "Hot for Paris," "Her Private Life?", "It's a Great Life." Rating, 80%.

Ad Tips—The story is bright, but the picture lacks a definite punch to put it across big. William Powell is the standout personality and for once he is a villain with a soft heart. There are some who tire of Helen Kane although her work fits nicely into the story this time. The song hit, "I Have to Have You," is catchy and was played up in the advertising. There is the usual Technicolor revue scenes, but lack of sharpness is causing comment. The presence of "Skeets" Gallagher in the cast is important and due reference is made to him in the newspaper displays. It is a picture for both old and young.—Ray Tubman, Mgr., Imperial, Ottawa.

Private Life (F.N.)

OTTAWA.—Avalon (990), 3 days, 25c-35c. Other attractions, "Clancy at the Bat," "When the Wife's Away," Fox Movietone News. Weather, fair. Opposition, "Sally," "Hot for Paris," "Their Own Desire," "Pointed Heels," "Salute." Rating, 85%.

Ad Tips—Billie Dove is pretty nearly the whole show in this story and her name was used in the lights and in the newspaper ads. in a prominent way. Her portrayal of a titled English woman is effective. A lively fox hunt is one of the talking points for the advertising. Adults particularly were attracted by this feature.—P. J. Nolan, Mgr., Avalon, Ottawa.

Racketeer, The (Pathe)

LOS ANGELES—RKO (2,700), 7 days, 35 and 65 cents. Other attractions, RKO Vaudeville Revue, Pathe Sound News. Opposition, "Anna Christie," "Bishop Murder Case," "Street of Chance," "Lummox," "Seven Keys to Baldpate," "Son of the Gods." Weather, fine. Rating, 116%.

Return of Sherlock Holmes (Para)

DES MOINES—Strand (1,100), 4 days, 20c-30c. Other attractions, Pathe News, Columbia act, "Dizzy Fingers," Educ'l comedy, "Boiler Down." Opposition, "Hallelujah," "Lone Star Ranger," "Devil May Care," "Anna Christie," "The Return of Sherlock Holmes." Weather, pleasant. Rating, 95%.

Rich People (Pathe)

PORTLAND, ORE.—Rialto (1,498), 25 and 50 cents, 7 days. Other attractions, Paramount News, Geo. Price in "Station Bunk," Screen Snapshots, Lloyd Hamilton in "Grass Skirts." Weather, rain. Opposition, "Slightly Scarlet," "Dames Ahoy," "Bishop Murder Case," "Love Comes Along," "Anna Christie." Rating, 100%.

Rogue Song (M-G-M)

HOLLYWOOD—Grauman's Chinese (2,023), twice daily, 75 cents to $1.50. Other attractions, Abe Lyman and Band, Fox Movietone News. Weather, fine. Rating, 189% (6th week).

Romance of Rio Grande (Fox)

KANSAS CITY—Pantages (2,166), 25 and 50 cents, 7 days. Other attractions, On the stage, Loie Bridge Players in "In Bad—In Bed." Weather, pleasant. Opposition, "Seven Keys to Baldpate," "Seven Days' Leave," Street of Chance," "New York Nights." Rating, 150%.

Ad Tips—A big campaign was staged. The lobby was dressed up in Spanish effects and all the ushers, cashiers, and ticket-takers were in Spanish costumes all week. The manager wore a Spanish outfit all week and says that he was a very effective Jewish Spaniard.—Louis Charninsky, Mgr., Pantages, Kansas City, Mo.

Royal Box (W.B.)

CHICAGO—Orpheum (751), 50c-75c, 7 days. Other attractions, overture with Vitaphone sound shorts (entire program, including shorts, in German). Weather, fine. Opposition, "Hunting Tigers in India," "Sunny Side Up," "Show Boat," "Tabloid Talkies." Gross, $12,000 (average for house is $8,750).

Sacred Flame (W. B.)

BALTIMORE—Rivoli (1,982), 6 days, 25 and 50 cents. Other attractions, Pathe Sound and Movietone News, "Rubeville Night Club" (all-talking comedy), May and Oakes and Joe Frisco (Vitaphone Varieties), Edgar Burgan in "The Operation" (all-talking comedy). Weather, clear and cold first two days, then clear and warm rest of week. Opposition, "Hit the Deck," "Ship From Shanghai," "Vengeance," "Party Girl," "Wonderful Lies of Nina Petrowna," "She Couldn't Say No," "Hot for Paris," "Devil-May-Care," "Wedding Rings," "Their Own Desire." Stage: "The Apple Cart," Vagabond Players in "Juno and the Paycock," "Girls from the Follies" with Gladys Clark, Philadelphia orchestra and Gigli one night each. Rating, 200%.

Ad Tips—In all your advertising use the lines "So delicate in theme we do not recommend it for children." Use this in morticed box at top of ad directly under signature, and in the black border in white letters on each side have the words "all-talking drama." In center have mortised flame with half-tone cuts of Nagel to left, Byron and Lee to right, in upper part, then cuts of head of Frederick and Courtenay to left and right at bottom. In the flame use the copy "A love that defied the conventions." Then use title with names of big players. Have added attractions under that. Audience appeal is strong for women and fine for men.—Frank Price, Jr., Mgr., Rivoli, Baltimore.

Sailor's Holiday (Pathe)

OKLAHOMA CITY—Orpheum (1,500), 25 and 50 cents, 3 days. Other attractions, Fox News, RKO big-time vaudeville presenting "Palm Beach Girls" and Samaroff and Sonia in "A Bit of Old Russia," Talent and Merit in "Over the Plate," Kramer and Boyle in "Happy-Go-Lucky Pair." Weather, cold. Opposition, "Condemned," "Disraeli," "Hot for Paris," "Hit the Deck," "They Had to See Paris," Untamed." Rating, 125%.

Sally (F.N.)

OTTAWA.—Centre, (1,200), 6 days, 15c-50c. Other attractions, Fox (silent) News, talking comedy. Weather, fair and mild. Opposition, "Their Own Desire," "Hot for Paris," "Pointed Heels," "Private Life," "It's a Great Life." Rating, 100%.

Ad Tips—This is a feature that provides plenty of advertising copy. Local reviewers rated it as one of the best to play Ottawa since the screen went talkie. Crowds were so immense that the feature was held over for a second week although it was not intended to do so. We announced Marilyn Miller as "The New Sweetheart of the Screen" and played up the point that she was appearing in a production in which she gained wide fame on the stage. Another innovation was an enlarged screen, occupying practically the whole stage, which was employed for the revue scenes. Further attention was drawn to the combination of a Technicolor feature and the Magnascope screen. Everything combined made it a presentation that brought plaudits from old and young. —Don Stapleton, Mgr., Centre, Ottawa.

Sap, The (W. B.)

TROY, N. Y.—Lincoln (1,000), 25 and 35 cents, 3 days. Other attractions, Sound News, one Vitaphone act all-talking comedy. Weather, pleasant. Opposition, "Green Goddess." Rating, 75%.

Second Choice (W. B.)

HOLLYWOOD—Warner Brothers' Hollywood (3,000), 5 days after first week, 35 and 65 cents. Other attractions, Vitaphone Varieties and sound news. Weather, fine. Rating, 86%.

PROVIDENCE—Majestic (2,400), 15 and 50 cents, 7 days. Other attractions, "Enchanted Forest," "Hired Husbands," Vitaphone shorts and Paramount Sound News. Weather, snow, cold. Opposition, "Hit the Deck," "New York Nights," "Applause." Rating, 110%.

VANCOUVER.—Dominion (800), 6 days, 25c-50c. Other attractions, "Hollywood Star" (Mack Sennett) scenic. Weather, rainy. Opposition, "The Trespasser," "Marriage Playground," "Alibi." British Guild Players. Rating, 110%.

Ad Tips—Played this up as one of Barrie's famous plays, with Gary Cooper, fresh from triumphs in "The Virginian," being sympathetic work with Beryl Mercer. Audience appeal, chiefly adult. I. F. W. Ackery, Mgr., Dominion, Vancouver.

Ad Tips—Play Gary Cooper's name to the skies as star has tremendous appeal. Exploit as based on stage play by Sir James M. Barrie. Not a war story, but has one brief war scene. Film appeals largely to adults.—Sol Braunig, Mgr., Majestic, Providence.

Ad Tips—Since this picture had a very definite class appeal, an appeal to adults, we gained support of the women's clubs by giving an advanced screening for members of the clubs. By gaining their co-operation in advance we had their influence in advertising the picture and were able to make it do a good business.—E. S. C. Coppock, Mgr., Royal, Kansas City.

HOUSTON—Kirby (1,654), 25c to 50 cents, 7 days. Other attractions, Song novelty, Pathe Sound News, Lloyd Hamilton in "His Grass Skirt." Weather, warm and fair. Opposition, "Street of Chance," "Sunny Side Up" and "Chasing Rainbows." Rating, 100%.

KANSAS CITY—Mainstreet (3,067), 35 to 60 cents, 7 days. Other attractions, Pathe Audio Review and vaudeville program headlining Ken Murray, stage comedian. Weather, pleasant. Opposition, "Romance of Rio Grande," "Seven Days' Leave," "New York Nights," "Street of Chance." Rating, 90%.

LOS ANGELES—Orpheum (2,750), 7 days, 35 cents to 75 cents. Other attractions, Talker comedy and Pathe Sound News. Opposition, "Anna Christie," "Bishop Murder Case," "Street of Chance," "Lummox," "Racketeer," "Son of the Gods." Weather, fine. Gross $14,000.

She Couldn't Say No (W. B.)

BALTIMORE—Metropolitan (1,500), 6 days, 15 to 60 cents. Other attractions, Kinograms, "Jazz Mamas" (Sennett all-talking color comedy), organ. Weather, clear, cold first two days, then clear and warm rest of week. Opposition, "Hit the Deck," "Ship from Shanghai," "Vengeance," "Party Girl," "Wonderful Lies of Nina Petrowna," "Hot for Paris," "Sacred Flame," "Devil-May-Care," "Wedding Rings," "Their Own Desire." Stage: "The Apple Cart," Vagabond Players in "Juno and the Paycock," "Girls from the Follies" with Gladys Clark, Philadelphia Orchestra and Gigli one night each. Rating, 175%.

MILWAUKEE—Garden (1,150), 25 to 60 cents, 7 days. Other attractions, Comedy, news reel. Weather, fair and mild. Opposition, "It's

Ship From Shanghai (M-G-M)

BALTIMORE Loew's Century (3,221), 6 days, 25 to 60 cents. Other attractions, Fox Movietone and M-G-M News, Loew-Publix unit, "Bermuda Bound," headed by Teddy Joyce, organlogue, orchestra, "Great Gobs" (all-talking comedy). Weather clear, cold first two days, others clear and warm. Opposition, "Hit the Deck," "Vengeance," "Party Girl," "Wonderful Lies of Nina Petrowna" "She Couldn't Say No," "Hot for Paris," "Sacred Flame," "Devil-May-Care," "Wedding Rings," "Their Own Desire." Stage: "The Apple Cart," Vagabond Players in "Juno and the Paycock," "Girls from the Follies" with Gladys Clark, Philadelphia Orchestra and Gigli one night each. Rating, 114%.

South Sea Rose (Fox)

Ad Tips—Exploit title with a line cut of deck of demasted ship with Conrad Nagel and Kay Johnson in clinch seated on deck. Emphasize names of all prominent members of cast. Call it a cargo of romance and a great sea thriller with the screen's blue blood cast. Good chance here to tie-up with steamship agencies with window displays and co-operative advertising. Audience appeal is here for all classes and ages with its fine romance, stirring action and tense situations.—Howard Price Kingsmore, Gen'l Mgr., Loew's Century, Baltimore.

Show Boat (Univ.)

CHICAGO—Roosevelt (1,528), second and final week, 35 to 75 cents. Other attractions, Paramount news reel, sound shorts. Weather, fine. Opposition, "Sunny Side Up," "Royal Box," "Hunting Tigers in India," "Phantom of the Opera," "Night Ride." Rating, 80%.

Sky Hawk (Fox)

DALLAS.—Majestic, (2,895), 7 days, 25c-35c-60c. Interstate vaudeville headlined by Herb Williams and Fox Movietone News. Weather, fair. Opposition, "Devil May Care," "Woman Racket," "Tanned Legs," and "Hell's Harbor." Rating, 100%.

Ad Tips—This picture will bring in the business if given plenty of publicity most of which should be expended on the title, although Helen Chandler and John Garrick will bring in a small portion. Stress the aviation angle Newspaper copy used—"a punch-packed drama of youth fighting against odds . . . to happiness at last. A melodrama of the skies with realistic and heartstopping scenes. You will thrill as never before." Audience appeal—general.—John H. Thoma, Mgr., Majestic, Dallas.

Slightly Scarlet (Para.)

PORTLAND, ORE.—Portland (3,068), 25 to 60 cents, 7 days. Other attractions, "A Trip in Our Zeppelin," Paramount Sound News, Eddie Magill, Travel talk "In Old Madrid" and Ron and Don at Wurlitzer. Weather, rain. Opposition, "Dames Ahoy," "Bishop Murder Case," "Anna Christie," "Rich People," "Love Comes Along." Rating, 97%.

CLEVELAND—Allen (3,300), 7 days, 30 and 60 cents. Weather, fine. Other attractions, "Blotto" (MGM), Screen Snap Shots (Columbia), Hearst Metrotone News. Opposition, "Hit the Deck" (2nd week), "Anna Christie," "Burning Up," "Officer O'Brien," "In the Next Room," "Cameo Kirby." Stage: Otis Skinner in "Papa Juan," "Naughty Marietta." Rating, 86%.

HOUSTON—Metropolitan (2,512), 25 to 60 cents, 7 days. Other attractions, "Duke of Dublin" with Charles Murray; "Frances White and Her Yacht Boys"; Paramount Sound News; Fashion News. Weather, fair and warm. Opposition, "Sunny Side Up," "Seven Keys to Baldpate" and "Chasing Rainbows." Rating, 100%.

KANSAS CITY—Newman (2,000), 25 to 50 cents, 7 days. Other attractions, Mack Sennett comedy, "Sugar Plum Papa'; Van and Schenck in "St. Louis Blues"; Aesop's Fables. Weather, pleasant. Opposition, "Seven Keys to Baldpate," "Seven Days' Leave," "Romance of Rio Grande," "New York Nights." Rating, 125%.

LOS ANGELES—Paramount (3,596), 7 days, 35 to 65 cents. Other attractions, Christie comedy, song cartoon, Paramount Sound News, Milton Charles organ concert. Opposition, "Anna Christie," "Bishop Murder Case," "Lummox," "Seven Keys to Baldpate," "Racketeer," "Son of the Gods." Weather, fine. Rating, 113%.

Ad Tips—Paramount ads stressing the street where women weep and men risk their lives—the Broadway which lurks behind the bright lights in darkened rooms—is the best exploitation angle. William Powell as a poker-faced gambler, and the unattractiveness of crime are fine points of the picture. Kay Francis deserves billing for excellent work. Appeal is to youth and adults.—Eddie Collins, Mgr., Metropolitan, Houston.

Sunny Side Up (Fox)

HOUSTON—Majestic (2,250), 25 to 60 cents, 7 days. Other attractions, Three acts vaudeville, Fox Movietone News, Aesop's Fables. Weather, fair and warm. Opposition, "Street of Chance," "Seven Keys to Baldpate," and "Chasing Rainbows." Rating, 135%.

OMAHA—World (2,500), 25 and 50 cents, 7 days. Other attractions, "Shade of the Old Apple Tree" (Para.), Pathe News. Weather, warm. Opposition, "Her Unborn Child," "Anna Christie," "Devil May Care," "Hit the Deck." Rating, 100%.

Ad Tips—"Magic melody, lovely romance, love's young dream of the screen's sweetest young lovers—Janet Gaynor and Charles Farrell in their first 'dress up' roles." This will a play on the singing is enough. The picture has played to a third more people than any other in town. Appeal is to every class of audience, and every age, young and old.—Eddie Bremer, Mgr., Majestic, Houston.

HOLLYWOOD — Grauman's Egyptian (1,800), 7 days, 35 to 65 cents. Other attractions, Fanchon-Marco "Eyes" Idea, "Copy," Fox Movietone News. Weather, fine. Gross, $11,900.

Tanned Legs (R-K-O)

DALLAS.—Capitol, (1,040), 7 days, 20c-25c-35c. Two Vitaphone shorts and Universal News. Weather, fair. Opposition, "Sky Hawk," "Devil May Care," "Woman Racket," and "Hell's Harbor." Rating, 100%.

Ad Tips—Ann Pennington will bring in most of the business on this picture. Title is unusually well suited to the star. June Clyde, Dorothy Revier and Arthur Lake should also be mentioned in copy. We described this picture—"reckless as a beach petting party—eager as a flapper in love—romantic as the August moon." Audience appeal, general.—Ray J. Stinnett, Mgr., Capitol, Dallas.

Their Own Desire (M-G-M)

BALTIMORE—Loew's Parkway (shown after one week at the Century downtown) (1,092), 6 days, 15 to 35 cents. Other attractions, Metrotone News, "Night Owls" (all-talking comedy), Colortone Revue. Weather, clear, cold first two days, then clear and warm other days. Opposition, "Hit the Deck," "Ship From Shanghai," Vengeance," "Party Girl," "Wonderful Lies of Nina Petrowna," "She Couldn't Say No," "Hot for Paris," "Sacred Flame," "Devil-May-Care," "Wedding Rings." Stage: "The Apple Cart," Vagabond Players in "Juno and the Paycock," "Girls from the Follies" with Gladys Clark, Philadelphia Orchestra and Gigli one night each. Rating, 100%.

MILWAUKEE—Majestic (1,990), 25 to 60 cents, 7 days. Other attractions, Comedy, Fox Movietone News. Weather, fair and mild. Opposition, "It's a Great Life," "Love Parade," "Chasing Rainbows," "She Couldn't Say No," "Locked Door, "The Virginian." Rating, 110%.

OTTAWA.—Regent (614), 25c-60c, 6 days. Other attractions, Laurel and Hardy in "In the Hoosegow"; Fox Movietone News, dog derby special, orchestra overture. Weather, fair and mild. Opposition, "Hot for Paris," "Pointed Heels," "Sally," "Her Private Life," "It's a Great Life." Rating, 95% based on available seats.

Ad Tips—We had a hectic week with "Their Own Desire," with a fire causing considerable destruction in the balcony on the opening night. Balcony was closed but re-opened ground floor and had waiting and standing crowds four days, second day being off. Norma Shearer, being a Canadian, is a big favorite here so her name was larger than the title of the picture in the billing. The fire necessitated increased advertising to announce immediate re-opening of the Regent but regular space was used for the show proper. Patronage was largely adults.—T. R. Tubman, Mgr., Regent, Ottawa.

return of any fee paid, but the amount of any permit fee paid shall be credited upon the amount otherwise due for any subsequent license fee for the same film.

All fees received by the commission shall be paid monthly into the Treasury of the United States.

Appeals and Review

Sec. 18. Appeals may be made from the decisions of one or more commissioners to the whole board, and from the commission to the circuit court of appeals: Provided, however, That the decision of the commission shall stand until reversed by the court.

In any case where a license has been granted without the film being viewed by three commissioners, any three citizens of any State, Territory, or the District of Columbia may, within ninety days after public exhibition thereof in any licensed place of amusement in said State, Territory, or the District of Columbia, appeal to the full commission; and if the license has been approved by a majority vote of the full commission, any three citizens of any State, Territory, or the District of Columbia may appeal to the Court of Appeals ot the District of Columbia within ninety days after the film has been first shown in said State, Territory, or the District of Columbia. Any appeal made by three citizens, as herein provided, shall be made out in form to either the commission or the court, to be forwarded to the court with jurisdiction. The film shall not be exhibited thereafter until the final appeal has been rejected.

Unlawful Transportation

Sec. 19. That no person, firm, or corporation shall carry or transport, or cause to be carried or transported, any motion-picture film in commerce unless there is for such film at the time in full force and effect a valid license or permit of the Federal Motion Picture Commission, as in this Act specified: Provided, That nothing herein shall be construed to prevent the carriage or transportation of any film consigned to or by the commission: Provided, further, That the provisions of this Act shall not be construed to prevent the carriage or transportation without a license or permit by or for the producer of his own original film in good faith for any purpose other than for exhibition for hire and before said film shall be wholly or in part copied, reproduced, or in any manner made the subject of duplication.

Neither shall any motion-picture film be exported into any foreign country or imported into this country without such license or permit. Nine months after the approval of this Act by the President no motion picture shall be imported or exported without a license.

Unlawful Exhibition

Sec. 20. That no motion-picture film shall be sold, leased, or loaned, for exhibition or be exhibited in any place of amusement for pay or in connection with any business, either in the District of Columbia or in any Territory of the United States or in any place where the local police power is under Federal jurisdiction, unless there is then in full force and effect such film a license or permit of the Federal Motion Picture Commission, and unless such film shall contain and exhibit upon the screen either a license or permit as in this Act provided in the substance, style, length, and time which the commission shall prescribe.

Posters and Advertisements

Sec. 21. It shall also be the duty of the commission, in accordance with rules which it shall prescribe, to supervise all posters, banners, and all advertising matter, wherever used, in connection with and to advertise all motion pictures in commerce. Wherever any advertisement is used for the sale, renting, or exhibition of any film which misrepresents the motion picture as containing scenes, subjects, and titles which it does not, and whenever the advertising matter shall contain the things forbidden for films in section 14 the commission shall revoke any outstanding license or permit of said film: Provided, however, That the commission shall have no power to require that such advertising matter to be used in the daily papers or periodicals shall be submitted in advance for the approval of the commission, but shall have authority to revoke the license or permit of any motion picture which has been illegally advertised in the newspapers or periodicals in violation of this section, even though such unlawful advertising in the newspapers and periodicals has been done without the knowledge or consent of the owner of such film.

Classifying and Cataloguing Motion Pictures

Sec. 22. The commission shall make a factual analysis of each motion picture and shall catalogue it according to its title, contents, and producer. It shall have power to give a special mark of approval of such films as are especially beneficial for children and young people both in their amusement, educational and character building values and shall place upon the label as provided in section 14 the words "for family use."

Control of All Government Films

Sec. 23. The commission shall have supervision and control of all films owned by the various departments of the Government of the United States.

Rules, Regulations, and Orders

Sec. 24. The commission may make such rules, regulations, and orders as may be necessary to carry out the provisions of this Act and may cooperate with any department or agency of the Government or its possessions, any State, Territory, or the District of Columbia, or any political subdivision thereof, or any organization, agency, department or any person; and shall have the power to appoint, remove, and fix the compensation of such officers and employees, not in conflict with existing law, and make such expenditures as shall be necessary to the administration of this Act in all places under the jurisdiction of the United States.

The commission shall have power to enforce the provisions and purposes of this Act and to act for the general welfare of the motion-picture business and of the people.

Reports

Sec. 25. That the commission shall, on or before the 1st day of December in each year, make a report, which shall be transmitted to Congress, and copies of which shall be distributed as are the other reports transmitted to Congress.

Dealer Responsible as Well as His Agent

Sec. 26. When construing and enforcing the provisions of this Act, the act, omission, or failure of any agent, officer, or other person acting for or employed by any dealer, within the scope of his employment or office, shall in every case also be deemed the act, omission, or failure of such dealer, as well as that of such agent, officer, or other person.

Prosecution by the Attorney General

Sec. 27. The commission may report any violation of this Act to the Attorney General of the United States, who shall cause appropriate proceedings to be commenced and prosecuted in the proper courts of the United States without delay.

Penalties and Forfeitures

Sec. 28. (A) Any dealer, or any officer, director, agent, or employee of a dealer, who violates any of the provisions of this Act shall on conviction be fined not less than $500 nor more than $10,000 or imprisoned for not less than six months nor more than five years, or both. Each day during which such violation continues shall be deemed a separate offense.

(B) All films produced, distributed, or exhibited, or changed in violation of the provisions of this Act shall be confiscated by the commission and held pending the action of the commission or/and the court having jurisdiction.

Whenever it appears that any film has been produced, distributed, or exhibited, or received from shipment in commerce, or changed in violation of the provisions of this Act, the commission may cause the immediate seizure of such film while it is in commerce, or held in any State, Territory, or the District of Columbia, and thereupon shall at once cause notice of the fact to be given to the United States district attorney for the district in which the film is seized. Such district attorney shall proceed without delay against such film in any court of the United States in such district for confiscation of process of libel for condemnation. If, in the opinion of the court, the film has been produced, shipped, or received from shipment in commerce, or exhibited in any State, Territory, or the District of Columbia, in violation of any of the provisions of this Act, the film shall be immediately disposed of in the discretion of the court, either by destruction or by delivery to the commission for its confiscation. The proceedings in such libel for condemnation shall conform, as nearly as may be, to proceedings in admiralty, and shall be at the suit and in the name of the United States.

It shall be the duty of the various district attorneys, under the direction of the Attorney General, to prosecute for the recovery of fines and forfeitures. The cost and expense of such prosecution shall be paid out of the appropriation for the expenses of the courts of the United States.

(C) Any dealer who knowingly fails to obey any order provided by the commission under the provisions of this Act shall forfeit to the United States the sum of $500 for each offense. Each distinct violation shall be a separate offense and in case of a continuing violation each day shall be deemed a separate offense. Such forfeiture shall be recoverable in a civil suit in the name of the United States.

The circuit court of appeals shall have exclusive jurisdiction to review, and to affirm, set aside, or modify, such orders of the commission, and the decree of such court shall be final except that it shall be subject to review by the Supreme Court of the United States upon certiorari, as provided in section 240 of the Judicial Code, if such writ is duly applied for within sixty days after the entry of the decree.

Constitutionality

Sec. 29. If any provision of this Act or the application thereof to any person or circumstances is held invalid, the validity of the remainder of the Act and of the application of such provision to other persons and circumstances shall not be affected thereby.

Appropriations

Sec. 30. That the sum of $150,000, or so much thereof as may be necessary, be, and hereby is, authorized to be appropriated, out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, for the purpose of carrying into effect the provisions of this Act.

Sec. 31. That this Act shall take effect sixty days after its approval by the President. Except that sections 19, 20, 21, and 22 may not take effect until six months after said approval; and that the commission may extend or modify the time for the enforcement of any of the provisions of this Act affecting contracts made previous to the approval of this Act: Provided, however, That the time shall not be extended beyond one year after this Act becomes a law.

Neckers' Rights Defined—And How In Chicago Suit

The married couple who mistakes a loge seat for a davenport, and in consequence is ejected from the theatre, has been wronged, a Chicago jury decided in returning a verdict of $1,250 in favor of Ruby and Peter Dogert.

The couple attended the Crawford some time ago and, the management charges, indulged in some earnest necking. The doorman was instructed to warn them in the event they ever came back. They did and he did. They demanded an apology, but all they were given was their price of admission which, they charged, was not handed to them, but thrown at them. Their complaint states they were further humiliated by being ushered forcibly through a crowded lobby to the street.

The wife then brought suit against Lubliner & Trinz, at that time the owners of the theatre, and was awarded a verdict of $800. This verdict was contested and later set aside. Mrs. Dogert promptly sued again, and was awarded the $1,250 verdict. In defense, the management contended it did not know the couple was married, but judge and jury were not impressed.

A subsequent survey of marriage license applicants here reveals that, like the orchid, romance flowers best in the darkened interior, so conveniently supplied by the theatre. A majority of the applicants confessed to having made considerable amorous progress inside a picture house—so many, in fact, that it appeared doubtful whether a crop of jurists with the viewpoint of a theatre manager could ever be raised here.

Wabash Ave.—South

Chicago

IF, in the dim past, you saw "The Sophomore" you will recall the football broadcast scene wherein the announcer refused to be interrupted until the game was over and had completed his broadcast—at which time he was advised by the gent whom he had refused to heed until then, that the microphone had been disconnected early in the game and the balance of his broadcast had not been heard at all. If you recall this, you may be convinced, when you consider the case of Irving Mack, that such things really do happen. "Irv" purchased a new dictaphone for his office recently. In the rush of a Monday morning's business he hastily dictated six or seven letters into the machine, and promptly forgot about them until they had failed to turn up for his signature that evening. He was on the point of rebuking the stenographer when the above-mentioned incident from "The Sophomore" halted him. He went to the dictaphone and examined it. His morning's dictation, he found, had been addressed to a machine without a record in it.

We had heard of this man from various sources along Wabash Avenue, but always took the tale that was told of him and his little 250-seat theatre with a grain of aspirin. It seemed hardly credible that such a thing could be going on in this day and age in a town of 750 population, so when we heard his story repeated we merely shrugged and went on about our business, crediting the whole thing to some berserk imagination. But the story would not down. It kept cropping up in the most unexpected places, and always with a sameness of background and similarity of detail that removed it from idle gossip and eventually made it impressive. We decided to investigate. We did. Down in Walkerton, Indiana, population, 750, we located Albert Schultz, the owner of the Rialto there, and ran the story to earth. It was true. Albert Schultz's 250-seat theatre is making money. KANE.

Move on to Show New Pictures to Chi Fans Faster

Heretofore, when Chicago's boys and girls, back at college after a vacation, were asked if they had seen "any good movies" while home, they hung their heads and blushed. With reason, too, since inevitably the pictures showing in the country's second largest metropolis had been in the little college town months before.

Now there is a possibility—just a bare one—that all that may be changed. The day is in prospect when the Chicago boy and girl can return to their college towns and point superciliously at new films and say "We seen that in Chi already."

The explanation—or the local hope, rather—is that RKO may make a policy of giving Chicago "world premieres." "Hit the Deck" opened here within a few weeks after its national release date—a truly remarkable incident in the experience of local fans. Consider, also, that "The Case of Sergeant Grischa" was given its world premiere here.

That declaration is of significance to the local clientele who, if they do nothing else, at least read their fan magazines. The bulk of them, because of their reading habits, are aware that Chicago's "first runs" are months old, and have been shown halfway around the world before ever they see daylight on State or Randolph Streets. And they resent it. They look to RKO's announcement with hope. It may furnish the competition, they believe, which will eventually force the loop houses into a policy of showing pictures when they are new with an occasional "world premiere" thrown in.

Things You May or May Not Have Heard

THAT Bob Speck has closed the Kenwood and that all furnishing and equipment have been removed from it. . . . That the Ada will be reopened as a silent house by Ignatius Turon, a Hessville, Ind., theatre owner. . . . That G. L. Sears, F. N. sales executive, was in town en route from New York to the coast on a sales trip. . . . That Leo Solkan, formerly with Marks Bros., is now managing the new Publix-B. & K. Century; while Harry Brown has gone to the Crystal in the same capacity. . . . That H. Schoenstadt is taking over the Palace, Cicero. . . . That Steve Montgomery is the best ex-officio trade paper reported in the central west. . . . That the new $350,000 El-Tovar at Crystal Lake has been taken over by Polka Bros. . . . That R. C. "Looking Ahead"

NO man was ever shot for trying to better himself or to strengthen his outlook for the future. In fact, we commend those who have so broad a vision and compliment them on their good sense.

BUT: not at the expense of the job you are holding now.

You owe a certain amount of loyalty to your present employers and all others vested with the authority of supervising the work you are doing, and should you be wasting a lot of valuable time seeking other connections, to the extent of neglecting your job, then you are not entitled to any more consideration from your bosses than you are showing them.

We find ourselves in a most unusual position to detect the trend of such conditions, by reason of our tremendous contact with managers and showmen.

Loyalty is what you are preaching to every employee in your theatre, or at any rate, should be preaching. But do you practice what you preach when it comes to your own actions?

Did you ever hear that story of the prospector (yes it's been told in a hundred different costumes) who owned a stake, but insisted on digging everywhere but in his own little patch? Well, so the story runs, after it was too late he found that "there wus gold in them thar hills" right in his own stake, but he never had the brains to find it out for himself.

Maybe you will question the parallel we have drawn, but just the same, we would heartily recommend that you first prospect the possibilities of "pay dirt" (meaning advancement and more salary) in your own theatre before you set out to look for it elsewhere.

Right here in New York there are a certain number of ex-managers who are really "marked men." By that expression, we mean, men who stand hardly a ghost of a chance to get a theatre again because they have earned that most distasteful reputation of constantly seeking new jobs as soon as they get located.

We used to call them "curb managers" in the days when 729 Seventh Ave. was the gathering place for everybody in the industry. Now they have no place to gather, so they drift from one theatre office to another trying to get located. But they have a tough reputation to live down and the best move they could possibly make would be into another line of business.

If opportunity knocks at your door, be prepared to give it a hearty welcome, but while you are plugging for a certain theatre, remember your loyalty to those who have placed faith and confidence in you and do them justice.

Lasky Engineering Great Stunts for Springfield House

A letter from Lawrence Lasky, publicity man for the Paramount Theatre in Springfield, Mass., is pretty certain to be productive of ideas which we can pass on to Club members. And hasn't failed us yet.

We're going to let his letter tell you of his activities down at the Paramount. Look it over and see whether there isn't something you might be able to use.

1. Cake secured at no cost to theatre. Placed in lobby for two weeks, prior to giving it away.
2. Life safers given by company at NO COST TO THEATRE. Given out on Main Street by Pretty girls week before run of picture. 7,500 envelopes given out.
3. Kisses given out in like fashion. 10,000 kisses sent to us at NO COST TO THEATRE. Story with photo in paper covering about 18 inches of space.
4. Five hundred cards given out by drivers of Checker Cab Company week prior to run of picture. We paid for printing ONLY.
5. Seven hundred fifty cards placed on menus (front page) in leading two lunch rooms in town. No passes given.
6. Seven hundred fifty paper fliers given out weekly with every sheet of music sold at Kresge's store.
7. Afternoon tea at Paramount Theatre. Secured FREE 10,000 tea bags, 10,000 lumps American sugar, 12,500 cookies, and about 750 cup cakes to be given out over period. Paper napkins and tea carts FREE. We give them nothing but the advertising they receive out of it.
8. Postal Telegraph had a receiving set and sending set placed in theatre. Telegrams sent from "room" in back to receiving desk in lobby, where the operator gave them to postal boy, who in turn handed them to patrons.
9. On THE GIRL FROM WOOLWORTH'S 10,000 fliers in packages, window signs, 18 half sheets in store all featuring picture, play dates, theatre, etc.

With the hope that some of this material will "sell tickets" for others as it has for us.

(Signed) LAWRENCE LASKY.

That's certainly an imposing array of stuff, isn't it? We're reproducing as much of his exploitation as we can. We want to mention at this time in connection with the free candy and matinee tea gag that here is something it will pay you to look into. All of the biggest business enterprises, being up to the minute concerns, are gradually becoming conscious of the tremendous value of showmanship, and, as a consequence, if you've got a good proposition and you want to tie-in with them they'll be more than glad to listen to you. We notice that a great many showmen have taken advantage of the candy and free tea gag and in every instance reports come in of a successful campaign.

Lasky has sent us in another angle that consists of a flier bearing the picture of the organist at the Paramount over his indorsement of a local cleaning and pressing establishment. The fliers cost the theatre nothing, the tailor shop paying for everything, with both the theatre and the shop coming in for plenty of publicity as the fliers were wrapped up with every suit that went out of the shop in addition to being distributed from house to house. He arranged the same sort of tie-up with the Woolworth Corporation in conjunction with "The Girl From Woolworth's," the flier plugging the five and ten's lunch counter and the picture.

"THE LOVE PARADE"
Week of Jan. 4th

The picture of the girl at the receiving machine of the Postal Telegraph Company was taken in the Paramount lobby. The telegraph authorities furnished a machine, which during the run of "The Love Parade" was supposed to receive congratulatory messages from celebrities, each "wire" received being posted on a bulletin board. The line was, of course, tapped off, but this idea created a lot of comment from the spectators. The little card reproduced above was distributed to taxi drivers, who handed it to patrons of the cabs when leaving or entering the machine. Lasky used an excellent make-up for his copy on the "Love Doctor" candy distribution gag by reproducing a prescription form on the envelope with Richard Dix headlining as the doctor. Part of the copy read, "A kiss is the best prescription for a broken heart," and was signed "The Love Doctor." Upon opening the envelope a candy kiss furnished by a local manufacturer was found to be inside.

Lasky wants us to let you boys know that he was aided a lot in his tie-ups by Arthur Goldstein, the assistant manager of the Broadway Theatre, which makes us feel that Lasky is a regular guy and believes in giving credit where credit is due.

Thanks, Lasky—we want you to know that we appreciate this and we're glad to pass on your activities to the other members of the Club. We want to hear more about Goldstein, too, because if you're interested in him, so are we. Why not send us in a couple of photographs, Oak?

Leonard Gordon Says:

MANAGERS' ROUND TABLE CLUB

Smithies Knows the Value Of Local Co-Operation

The value of local good will, especially where a manager has been active in the Kiwanis, Rotary or Lions Club or the Chamber of Commerce, has always worked wonders, not only for the manager as an individual, but the theatre as a whole.

There is one lesson we could all learn from the majority of the Canadian boys, because it seems to us that practically every one of them is actively connected with some number of local organizations and they all find it both valuable as well as useful in the operation of their theatres.

Among the latest to pass along something in this respect was Ernie Smithies, of the Capitol Theatre, Kingston, Ont., Can.

Among the many notes contained in a two column story about the Kiwanis Club of that City the Capitol Theatre received a lot of fine comment because of the wonderful Show they ran for the kiddies as recently announced on the ROUND TABLE CLUB pages.

Good work, Ernie, that's the type of stuff that is making many showman step out head and shoulders above the less aggressive type of theatre manager.

Wienshienk, Witte & Ronan Pulled a Great Radio Gag

I. Wienshienk, of the Majestic Theatre, LaSalle, Ill., and Manager Paul Witte of the Lincoln Theatre, Decatur, Ill., working in cooperation with their District Manager, Thomas P. Ronan, used a novel idea for radio station announcement in connection with their showings of "Hollywood Revue."

It was announced over the station that at a certain time each day, during the run of "Hollywood Revue" in LaSalle and Decatur, a "password" would be broadcast, and that the first ten persons giving the password at the theatre would be admitted free.

The program was further made valuable to the theatre by announcements about the picture and the use of the various song hits from "Hollywood Revue."

Both managers report that the stunt created much comment and that there were lines forming to gain entrance to the theatre much earlier than usual, even with such an outstanding attraction.

Bakery Tie-Up Meant More Than Dough for Bob Hicks

Robert E. Hicks arranged a tie-up with a local bakery that resulted in lots of publicity for Harold Lloyd in "Welcome Danger," playing at the Publix-Paramount Theatre, Atlanta, Ga.

The Bakery printed at their expense and inserted in each loaf of Bamby Bread, coupon-heralds — five of which were redeemable at the box-office of the theatre for one Harold Lloyd Doll.

The heralds, which were printed on both sides and generously plugged the picture, were distributed daily a full week in advance of opening and during the run, making a total of approximately 300,000 coupon-heralds in the space of two weeks.

The theatre agreed to furnish the dolls to the extent of 10,000, which limited the theatre's expense to $100.

In addition to printing the coupons, the baking company also printed large placards calling attention to the doll distribution—and one or more of these were placed in each store in the city selling Bamby Bread—and that took in nearly every store in the city.

The Baking Company also carried several display ads in the newspapers featuring the doll distribution as well as plugging the picture repeatedly in their weekly broadcast.

Lee Recognizes Need of Good House Programs

Despite the fact that we have commented on numerous occasions upon Harold Lee's programs at the Babcock Theatre in Bath, N. Y., we cannot help but continue to praise them regardless of whether he personally is responsible for them, or whether he is being aided with them by someone in his organization.

One of his programs to reach us is for the week of January 12th and the very front page carries an eye-arresting line reading "FAVORITE STARS AT THE BABCOCK NEXT WEEK." It then lists eight prominent movie stars whose appearance will be made on the talking screen of the Babcock Theatre for the week mentioned above.

This strikes us as being a mighty sensible medium for attracting attention without necessarily playing up the name of the feature in which they are going to appear, and it is a little bit different and therefore valuable.

We don't know how fast his scrip books are selling, but if they are not going over big, it is no fault of Harold's because we have ample proof that he has been plugging them to beat the band and is entitled to meet with some big measure of success in result of sales of these books.

Good stuff, Harold, keep it up, and keep on letting us know what you are doing out there in Bath, N. Y.

Always:

All For One."

MANAGERS' ROUND TABLE CLUB

"Thank You, Tom"

We reprint below a little story which Tom Olsen ran in one of his recent issues of "From the Firing Line," the peppy news-letter of the Fox-Metropolitan Upstate Division.

While we are immensely flattered by this recognition from Tom and his newsletter, we are really more pleased with the fact that he has "hit the bull's eye" in what he has to say about the Round Table Club.

This article, "The Other Fellow," is just what we are always trying to convey in our own little way, week in and week out, but it remained for Tom to put it into the right kind of words.

THE OTHER FELLOW

Watch the other fellow . . . study what he is doing . . . the manager who isn't too proud to use some other's idea for his own theatre is usually the successful manager . . . the oldness of a stunt has nothing to do with its effectiveness . . . disregard scoffs of those who mumble "Joe Blotz used that gag 15 years ago" . . . for after all the box office tells the story.

Chick Lewis and his Round Table Club in the "Motion Picture News" does a great work for all of us. . . . Hardly a week passes that a manager can't get scores of ideas that can be revamped and used in his local situation . . . those who aren't filing these away for future reference are making a great mistake.

Thanks Tom, and remember us to all the boys up your way. M.R.T.C.

Hendricks Keeps Up Showmanship Activities at Capitol

General Manager William L. Hendricks, of the Capitol Theatre in Steubenville, Ohio, pulled an opening a la Hollywood which had the Steubenvillites sitting up and taking notice.

On the opening in question "Flight" was the picture shown, and Hendricks arranged for an airplane to transport the film from Cleveland to Steubenville. This angle immediately drew plenty of attention from the local newspapers. In fact, it drew so much attention that the Mayor of the town himself greeted the plane and received the film from Hendricks and Pilot Saltis.

The opening night of "Flight" marked the first formal opening in the history of Steubenville. Invitations were sent to the town's celebrities, the papers carried big stories announcing the opening and a tie-up with the local radio station enabled Hendricks to install a "mike" at the entrance to the theatre. The front of the theatre looked just like one of those spectacular Hollywood openings, with a canvas canopy running from the center doors, runner of carpet to the edge of the sidewalk, a uniformed footman opening car doors, and the radio announcer requesting the arrivals to say a few words to the invisible audience. The front of the theatre was brilliantly lighted. A photographer was on hand "shooting" the local celebs.

The local newspapers carried announcements to the effect that seats were also on sale to the general public, who were admitted at the same time as the invited guests. This stunt caused a lot of comment.

A tie-up with a junior aviation club netted Hendricks some wonderful models of airplanes which he displayed in the window of a local dealer, and making the display doubly attractive by building a miniature airport. A great deal of attention was focussed on this display and no doubt resulted in some excellent publicity for the theatre.

In addition to the above Hendricks also arranged for a plane, with "Flight" lettered on its wings, to stunt and fly above the town. Heralds, cardboard models of airplanes and free tickets were dropped from the clouds.

We want to commend Hendricks for the very fine campaign which he put over in Steubenville. This type of showmanship will always react favorably towards the box office, but we must caution the too excessive use of it in a town which may have what we term in the showman's language, "limited possibilities," as the people of the town will soon tire of the spectacular if too often repeated. Not a criticism of Hendricks' work, but a warning to other showmen.

Good work, Hendricks. And we want to hear from you again.

Lake Theatre Already Responding To Belcher's Pep

Here is an example of W. E. Belcher's live wire activities in connection with his new position at the Lake Theatre at Rochester, N. Y.

We have shown you many theatre programs printed in the form of monthly calendars before, but the angle that this one possesses is that the few ads at the right hand side of the program practically pay for the entire stunt giving him and his theatre the rest of the type space for their own use.

This is just typical of Belcher's method of doing things and as you will note on this February program the Lake Theatre announces that Mr. Belcher is now in personal supervision of the Lake Theatre.

It seems to us that this house is in for some mighty fine breaks in the line of exploitations, publicity and business in general under the handling of this fine showman and we expect to hear many more interesting things about him in the near future.

Keep your eye on the Lake Theatre in Rochester and you'll get some mighty clever tips as to what is going on up that way.

MANAGERS' ROUND TABLE CLUB

We Ask You Earle, Is This a "Fish-Story" Or Not—?

If there is any member of the ROUND TABLE CLUB whose letters are always a source of great pleasure to us that member is Earle M. Holden, Manager of the Fairfax Theatre, Miami, Fla.

To hear from Earle that he has been keeping his nose to the grindstone, the result is clicking at the box office; it's like a tonic to a dying man and it certainly gave us a great thrill of satisfaction to know that his hard work is reacting so favorably.

When a Manager in one of the Florida resort cities can break records which were established in the old "boom" days then he is certainly deserving of the right to crow about it. And since Earl won't crow we will have to do the crowing for him.

One of the exploitation stunts pulled by Holden on "Dr. Fu Manchu" was a special built front on this particular attraction in which the chief display consisted of the front being completely covered with 8 by 10 stills from the attraction. Over three hundred of these photographs were used and you can imagine the time it took the mob of people stopping in front of the theatre to look them all over as they wanted to get an eyeful of what the picture was all about.

O. K. Earle. We will wait for that photograph so as to bear out your claim that the waiting line was so long that it took 45 minutes to get them into the theatre. Otherwise, we will have to steal your own expression and brand it as a "fish-story."

Monster Cut-Out a Feature of Luke's Fine Showmanship

C. A. Luke is the assistant manager of the Bijou and Ritz Theatres in Brunswick, Ga., and with both those houses to handle we surmise that "C. A." must be a pretty busy man. Especially so since he does his own art work.

We want to tell you a little bit about Luke's art work because we think it merits recognition here.

On the picture "Dance of Life," Luke made a mammoth cutout of the star of the picture which was placed in front of the theatre. As the cutout was made from a twenty-four sheet you can easily imagine the comment it created. This was an excellent medium too for obtaining a flash from passing autoists and pedestrians as its size made it a certainty to attract more than a passing interest.

We are reproducing a picture of the front of the theatre which shows the cutout made by Luke, and also, if you look closely you will notice the rest of the attractive display he has arranged.

And that's the kind of work that will go a long way towards making a full-fledged manager out of Luke and we feel if he continues the good work it will just be a short time before he is handling his own house, as work such as his does not go unrewarded for long.

We want to hear more concerning your activities down South there Luke, so keep in touch with us and let us know what you're doing to boost up the weekly receipts, and let's have some more photos of those fine posters you are turning out down there at the Ritz and Bijou as we are firmly of the opinion that work such as that should not go unnoticed, especially when so many of the boys are more than glad to use any new angles which would happen to fit any particular problem they have on hand because if there's anything the boys like to do it's to try out the other fellow's idea in order to solve their own problem, and when we say that if another member's idea is used you can bet your bottom dollar that the original idea is credited to the man who deserves it. Oke.

MANAGERS' ROUND TABLE CLUB

"—And Larry Goux"

Now brother members and showmen you may step up and shake the hand of Larry Goux, live-wire manager of the Rivoli and Alto Theatres for the Fox West Coast outfit up in Pendleton, Oregon.

Larry, as you will note from the photograph, is a great booster, not only of Motion Picture News but the Managers' Round Table Club and his certificate is very much in evidence on the wall among the other photographs which make his office a typical attractive showman's den.

We are grateful for Larry's frank expression about the ROUND TABLE CLUB wherein he tells us that he really thought the CLUB was only going to be a flash in the pan but realizes today that it is something that will last forever and bears out our contention that this is the best organization of its kind in the world.

We are looking forward to the other stuff that you promised us, Larry, and in the meantime we hope you will convey to our many friends and boosters, out in your part of the country, our best regards.

Experience Forms Background for H. E. Stevens Future

Here's extending a great big "hello" to Manager H. E. Stevens of the Central Theatre in Fairbury, Illinois, who has just joined the Club.

Prior to his present position at the Central, Stevens was Assistant Manager and Exploitation man of the Home Theatres Corp. of Danville, Ill., and took care of their three houses for a long time. He promises us the same brand of work that he displayed down in Danville so we surmise that we may expect some good things from him.

One of his activities at the Central Theatre netting him a great deal of publicity is a loud speaker installed on the main corner of the town. The current and coming attractions are broadcast direct from the theatre. Another good stunt was the always clicking good-will show. In this case Stevens invited all the kids of the town to be his guest on Christmas morning. A tie-up with the merchants enabled him to procure a lot of candy which he distributed to the children, employing a man dressed as Santa Claus for that purpose. This stunt reacted very favorably toward the box office and was an excellent medium for the introduction of Steven's to the town.

There are a number of restrictions in the town against parking, so Steven's had some heralds printed which read, "DON'T PARK TOO FAR FROM THE CENTRAL THEATRE." The rest of the heralds carried four boxes listing his feature picture and SHORT SUBJECTS. A hole was punched on top of the herald from which a rubber band was projected. The heralds were then hung on automobile doors and house doors throughout the town. Black type on a red background constituted the color scheme of the herald.

We extend you a hearty welcome, Stevens, and if you do all that you expect to out there at the Central we're sure that your boss will be more than satisfied with you and the box office. You might send us a photo of yourself when you send us news of your activities, so that we can publish it.

C. H. Brown Finds Theatre Newspaper A Valuable Angle

We predicted many great things for Cauldwell H. Brown and the peppy organization that he heads out in Zanesville, Ohio, on our trip to that portion of the country in the summer of 1928. Subsequent events seems to bear out our statement that the are really giving the Zanesville theatregoing public plenty to talk about in the line of entertainment and activity.

We are showing with this story the front cover of their "Good Time Herald," turned out as a business booster for the theatre and containing many important angles that other theatres throughout the country, regardless of size of town or theatre, would do well to copy.

A most interesting editorial written by Cauldwell Brown himself appears in this "Good Time Herald" and sets forth many of the important details of their theatre's equipment and activities.

We hope that Mr. Brown will make it a point to encourage his various house managers to become active contributors to the ROUND TABLE CLUB pages, and we are certain that his own, as well as their, activities will be mighty interesting reading on these pages.

Let's hear some more from you, Mr. Brown, and we'll hope that Gus Sun decides to renew his Cedar Point shindig this summer so that the opportunity will be afforded the writer to meet you personally once more.

"DON'T BE PANICKY"

First I want to ask a few questions that each manager can answer in his own mind and then I will proceed to analyze them from my viewpoint.

Do you know whether every one of your exit doors work freely?

When was the last time you personally inspected them?

Do you make it a point to see that there are no obstructions in lobby or foyer that would interfere with the exit of your patrons?

Have you ever timed the exit of your audience after a full house?

Have you instructed your stage manager in case of fire or any other disturbance that might cause confusion to your audience; that his first duty is to turn on all available house lights?

Do you know the exact location of every fire extinguisher in your theatre?

Do your ushers and entire house staff know?

Do you inspect them and see that they are fit to meet any emergency?

Do you visit the booth frequently and check up on any possible fire hazard such as operator's smoking, oil rags scattered around, re-wind motors that may throw off sparks?

Do you insist that odds and ends of film be kept in a fireproof container and are not scattered over the work bench?

Have you ever had a fire drill for your help?

Do you train your ushers intelligently how to avoid a panic?

Do you allow an usher or any employee to ever RUN in your theatre?

Do you become excited and panicky when your projecting machine goes out of sync or no sound?

Do you rush to the booth nervous and excited?

Have you a slide ready for an emergency to tell your audience of mechanical trouble?

Do you stay in your theatre and watch your auditorium closely ESPECIALLY on Saturday matinees WHEN YOUR THEATRE IS CROWDED WITH CHILDREN?

Above all have you trained your staff that under no circumstances should they become excited but act cool and calm?

ARE YOU PREPARED?

A TIMELY TOPIC

By Milton W. Korach, Manager,
Elmwood Theatre, Buffalo, N. Y.

In theatre operation it is not just a question of giving patrons shows, accepting their admission fees and then forgetting about their safety. While they are in our theatres they are under our protection especially the children. Parents send them to us to be entertained in safety. Little children can be filled with fright more quickly than adults, making it doubly essential for us to protect them by eliminating every hazard. Then safety will prevail.

It is true that the laws are very strict in this respect but the law does not school our house staff on how to meet emergency situations. It is entirely up to the manager of the theatre. Many a manager is entirely familiar with the questions I have asked. However I will go ahead and explain why I attach so much importance to them.

If an exit door doesn't work freely, it is a death trap where people will pile up if they cannot get out and their first thought in case of hasty exit is to reach an exit door. The fact that your exit signs are illuminated does not relieve you of responsibility.

In the winter snow and ice pile against your exit doors. The janitor should be instructed to keep it away and clear each day.

Obstructions in lobbies do not give you clear sailing for an exit.

Timing the exit of your audience after a regular performance gives you an idea how quickly you can empty your house without rushing. You will be surprised how short a time it takes. With your house staff well trained, you can exit them the same way any time in case of trouble.

The turning up of house lights is very important in case of trouble, as crowds can be handled more easily when there are lights in the theatre. It affords a quicker exit as it is difficult to control frightened people in the dark.

It is important that you and your house staff know the exact location of every fire extinguisher and make it a point to see that the chemicals are fresh and will be effective in case of emergency.

Your inspection visits to the booth should be made daily and yet I know of managers who let weeks and months slip by without going there. Each day investigate any fire hazard at the same time noting if your operators are on the alert. For with all the new equipment and new devices, they should be on the job every minute.

Frequent fire drills are very essential as they serve to train your staff on how to instil a sense of effective orderliness in frightened patrons and avoid a possible panic.

Never allow an usher or any other employee, no matter what the circumstance, to run in your theatre. It immediately causes alarm to the patrons. They may walk fast and not be noticed but running is conducive to panic.

Up in your booth you have a fine mechanical equipment—equipment that is only in its infancy and is sensitive to trouble—so there are many causes for pictures going out of sync or no sound but don't become excited. Just give your operators a few moments at least to right the wrong because your rushing up to the booth as exciting them does not help the situation. If within three or four minutes they have not corrected the fault, then find out how serious the trouble is and proceed accordingly, and, if you decide it necessary, a slide stating MECHANICAL TROUBLE thrown on the screen will relieve the situation somewhat until the trouble can be eliminated.

Now the most important thing of all is the caring for children in your theatre. This necessitates your being on the job yourself. During your children's matinees is the one time you should be on the floor every minute. You and your house staff should know exactly what to do and how to handle the children in case of trouble.

Children can be trained in a theater the same as in school and if you permit them to run up and down the aisles, change seats and be noisy, then you have no control over them and you most certainly could not control them in case of trouble so it is imperative that you and your usher staff teach them to walk to their seats, sit quietly and stay put throughout the show.

Then if an emergency arises they will respond orderly and respect your ushers requests. Thus you will avoid crowding and panic. If they know they have to be orderly when they come in your theatre and while they are there, they will have that same understanding about leaving even under circumstances which are unusual.

Don't wait until a tragedy makes you realize that preparedness would have averted it and saved a lot of heartache. It's such a simple matter to always "be prepared."

Though many of us are entirely familiar with the contents of this article, it is a subject which no manager can afford to look upon lightly in his duties of operating a theatre, and if anything in it spares a single child or adult from injury or worse—I feel that my efforts will be more than worth while.

Statistics show us that panic causes more injuries and loss of life than actual fire in a theatre. This behooves us not to wait until a disaster sends out a warning but to be prepared on WHAT TO DO in our theatre in case of trouble.

MANAGERS' ROUND TABLE CLUB

"SAYS HAROLD—"

Managers' Round Table Club.

For the past many months we have been cutting out and saving the pages of the MANAGERS' ROUND TABLE CLUB as they are published in the MOTION PICTURE NEWS each week and now we have a big stack of good publicity and exploitation material that comes in mighty handy at all times.

By cutting out the club pages as we have been doing we find it rather difficult to place these away in neat order.

Wouldn't it be possible to have the club pages inserted each week as a supplement? This would cost more, but would make it possible to file away the supplements each week and make a regular book of them. There is material on both sides of the pages now so it is impossible to paste them in press books.

P. S.—More power to you and the Club.

Yours very truly,

HAROLD S. KNUDSON,

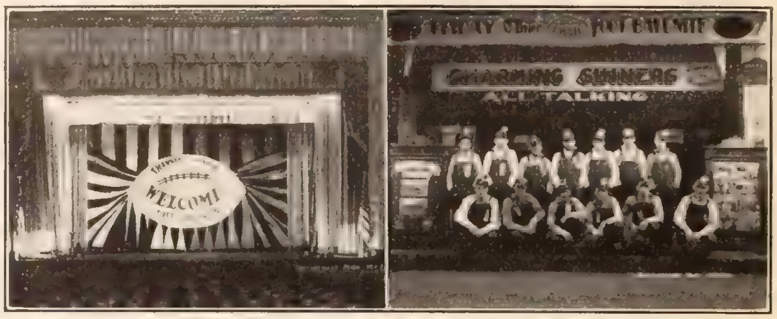
Take Some Good Tips from Showman William A. Roberts

If we ever were to attempt to set forth all the leading showmen in this great big industry of ours we would certainly have to take into consideration, and place near the top of the list, our good friend William A. Roberts, President of the Shawnee Amusement Company and General Manager of the theatres operated by that company in Plymouth, Pennsylvania.

With the opening of the beautiful new Plymouth, he achieved the ambition of a life-time and at the same time presented the city of Plymouth with a theatre worthy of a progressive city of that type.

While we have published, from time to time on these pages, some of Mr. Roberts' activities we have certainly been wanting to say a whole lot more about him, and it was only quite by accident that we were able to lay our hands on some tear sheets dating back to May, 1925, that we could get the real low down on this wide-awake and aggressive showman.

In talking about his showmanlike activities we will not be out of order in going back a few months to the past football season when he engineered one of the finest "Football Nights" at the Plymouth that has ever been worked out in any theatre anywhere. As you will note from the two photographs shown with this story he dressed his ushers as miners, and this atmospheric costuming went a long way in helping the general festivities of the occasion. In addition, you will also notice the marvelous stage dressing which welcomed the boys, meaning the rival football teams from Plymouth and a neighboring city, as well as carrying out the idea of the picture shown at that time, namely, "Salute."



From time to time in our busy existence in the show business, we have heard various stories about Mr. Roberts and we certainly jumped at the first opportunity that presented itself for us to do a little shouting about him. There was one thing about Bill for which he is quite famous, that is his marvelous personality and ability to get the most out of his employees by reason of keeping the most faithful with him over a long period of years rather than making continuous changes, which is an unfortunate epidemic in many of the theatres and circuits that we have come in contact with during the last few years. Perhaps, even they, with all of their efficiency and financial backing could learn a lesson or two from this "leader of men," and I am sure he would be delighted to tell them how he gets this marvelous loyalty out of those who are working for him and his company.

The above photograph will convey just a slight idea of some of the mob which stormed the theatre for the Football night and if you don't believe that he hung them off the ceiling for this occasion then you're a hard crowd to convince.

Mr. Roberts is associated with Comerford outfit in connection with this theatre and, at his recent anniversary, there was quite a celebration at the Plymouth that brought out some of the leading lights in the theatrical world as well as the political life of the state. We would certainly welcome every opportunity that presents itself for us to tell you more about Mr. Roberts and his activities and we want to thank him for his thoughtfulness in keeping us posted on what he is putting across up there in Plymouth.

Raleigh Injects Many Novel Slants To Boost the B. O.

Manager A. C. Raleigh of the Fox Liberty Theatre in Olympia, Washington, sends your chairman an idea in form of a humorous herald that has b. o. value.

Using a card about three and a half by two, Raleigh proceeded to make the public conscious of his new attraction, "Sunny Side Up," by imprinting in bold type, humorous pieces of verses which would end in "Sunny Side Up."

His cards, all attractively colored, carried copy reading: "Eat lobster and cake. Your tummy won't ache, if you keep your SUNNY SIDE UP" and were distributed throughout the town, causing many laughs wherever distributed as there was eight different cards, all carrying various funny verses relating to the picture. Some of the residents of Olympia, says Raleigh, used them as valentine cards and sent them to friends, especially one concerning a saxaphone player.

We are reproducing a few of the cards on the page here in the event that any of the boys might find it of service. It is an ideal gag for getting a laugh. Raleigh did not imprint the name of the theatre and play dates and the heralds were distributed as a supplement to the newspaper ads, but he informs us that he did a pretty fair business on the picture, so the stunt evidently "clicked."

Nothing can always be Found in an empty bottle but Keep your–

Sunny Side Up

Eat lobster and cake
Your tummy won't ache
If you keep your--

Sunny Side Up

You may go out for feathers
And come home picked--but Keep Your

Sunny Side Up

Raleigh also informs us that he, too, has fallen in line with the "Coffee and Tea serving matinee idea," and has tied up with a local grocer with the grocer furnishing coffee and cake every Wednesday matinee. This tie-up was secured without cost, the grocer receiving only the advertising value of the plan. A good many theatres have adopted this angle and we want to mention at this time that if things are slow with you, give it a trial.

We're glad to hear from you, Raleigh, and it tickles us to know that you are working under the supervision of Frank Whitbeck, and we feel sure that Frank is only too glad to hand you a compliment when the stunt merits it.

A Sound Suggestion!

Following our last week's discussion about the volume of sound, we want you to know about a suggestion we made to several managers around the city here, that worked out so well, they are making it a permanent part of their routine.

One usher on duty in the theatre is designated as "sound detector" and under proper training from the manager, he keeps the booth posted on volume, etc., regarding the sound reproduction.

The selection of the right usher for this task is merely a matter of elimination and when the right one is selected he will soon learn the ropes.

Here is an angle worthy of more than just passing attention because the average house manager, as carefully as he may watch his sound and projection, is compelled to leave the auditorium for different purposes during the course of a performance, and if he is confident that he has someone watching the sound volume, etc., like a hawk, he will naturally be more at ease if business takes him away for a little while.

But, regardless of whether our suggestion appeals to you or not, we would certainly urge every one of you to pay far more attention to your sound reproduction than we have found to be the general rule in the average neighborhood theatre.

David A. Miller's Activities Will be On M.R.T.C. Pages

Meet one of our newest members, David A. Miller is the new owner and manager of the Merryland Theatre in Los Angeles, Calif. Mr. Miller is twenty-seven years old, and it is to be noted with interest that he started in the show game at an early age and made quite a name for himself. Just to show you the type of showman we believe Mr. Miller to be, we want you to know that the Merryland is one of the few remaining independent SILENT houses in the country. But that didn't stop Mr. Miller from stepping in and trying to put it across after the former owners had run it way into the red.

He started off by laying out an exploitation campaign on "New Orleans" that set the residents talking. He decorated the front of his theatre in carnival style, using confetti, streamers, banners and pennants. He thoughtfully enclosed a couple of photographs of his display on "New Orleans," but the night picture was too dark for reproduction. However, we are reproducing the other photo showing the front of Miller's house. On "The Pagan," Miller transferred the South Sea Islands to his lobby, producing the desired effect by using palms, sand, etc. It is this type of ballyhoo and conscientious attention to pleasing and attracting the public that enables the "indies" to hang on tenaciously in the face of strong opposition. And it is men like Miller who can look at the opposition and laugh. We know from Miller's letter that he believes "There's enough for all, just go out and get it," and it's that type of man that we HAVE in the CLUB, and it's that type of man that we WANT in the Club.

We notice on Miller's program—which he places in the hotels and stores in the vicinity, that he shows five acts of preview vaudeville once a week. With vaudeville supposedly on the decline, here's a showman who believes in it. Another thing we're glad to note in Miller's up-to-the-minute showmanship is his adoption of an idea, which though instituted by a major circuit, is adaptable to all types of house. And we mean the Profit Sharing Idea.

Miller allows a certain refund on each ticket which after a fixed sum has been reached entitled the holder to a free admission. Write in and let us know more about this Miller.

We feel sure Miller, that you're going to make a big success of the Merryland, for your activities to date spell SHOWMANSHIP and we're glad to be able to welcome you into the Club because we know we're going to receive some wonderful ideas from you that we'll be able to pass on to your fellow members. And don't forget to enclose one of your own photographs the next time you write.

Stage Wedding Was A "Knockout" For Frank J. Holland

We have recounted the details of many real stage weddings, but we doubt whether any of them would overshadow the fine showmanlike way that Frank J. Holland, Manager of the Murray Theatre in Richmond, Indiana, manoeuvered the one at his theatre.

As you will note on the accompanying cut the thing was done in real high-class style from the invitation right down to the actual wedding itself and was surrounded with a certain touch of showmanship that lent, not only entertainment, but dignity to the occasion.

We show one of the invitations which were sent out, a two-column story of the bride and groom, the portion of the "ad" announcing the wedding, and the two-column story which followed the actual stage wedding and was dressed up in real newspaper style by the reporter who covered this great occasion.

Through Mr. Holland's activity in lining up this fine stunt (which was offered in connection with a stage presentation entitled "Her Wedding Day") they secured valuable presents from over one hundred and five local merchants which included everything from the wedding ring to the bridal suite at the leading hotel in the town.

This is certainly a marvelous brand of showmanship and we would be delighted if Mr. Holland would offer us many other occasions to pass along the details of his fine showmanlike activities out there in Richmond, a town which we know quite well from visiting personally in the summer of 1928. Let's hope we get around to it again this coming summer so that we can shake hands with Frank as well as the other live-wire showmen who we know out that way.

Credit Frank Whitbeck, of the Fox West Coast Outfit, with the group of newspaper ads reproduced below. Just look them ALL over carefully and note the effectiveness of the layouts on each individual ad, the sensible use of white space where white space is necessary, the clever wording and all the other essentials, typical of "F.W." and his marvelous showmanship out in Los Angeles.

Without laying particular stress upon the picture itself, this group of ads contains many value points tha tevery showman in the business would do well to closely observe.

Many thanks, Frank, for sending these along. How about some more? You should be contributing regularly to the Round Table pages with some phase of your West Coast activites. Better hustle some more stuff along or we may knock on your door in the near future and ask for an explanation.

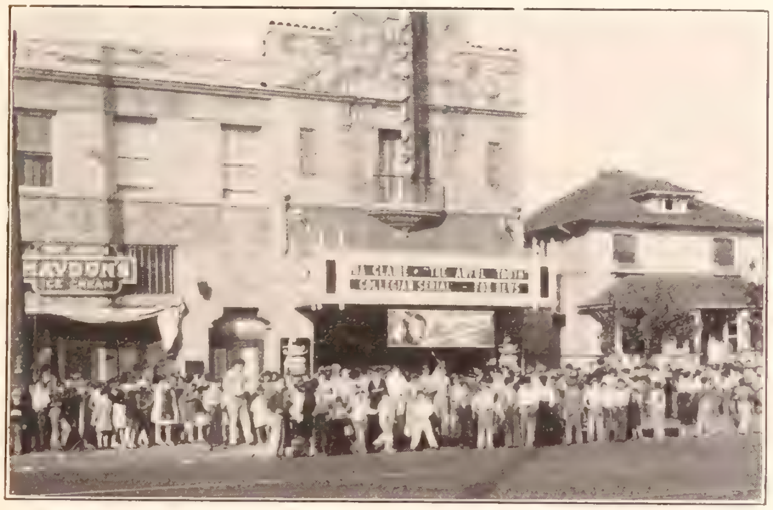
MANAGERS' ROUND TABLE CLUB

Joe Buse Knows a Good Way to Boost Up the Kiddie Biz.

The activities of Joe Buse, manager of the Fox San Carlos Theatre in Los Angeles, Cal., and his assistant, H. Kreutzenberger, have resulted in many interesting doings for that peppy coast theatre, and among them we want you to know that they succeeded in building up a kiddies trade that it would probably be the hardest thing in the world to find the equal of anywhere in the country, and that's quite a broad statement.

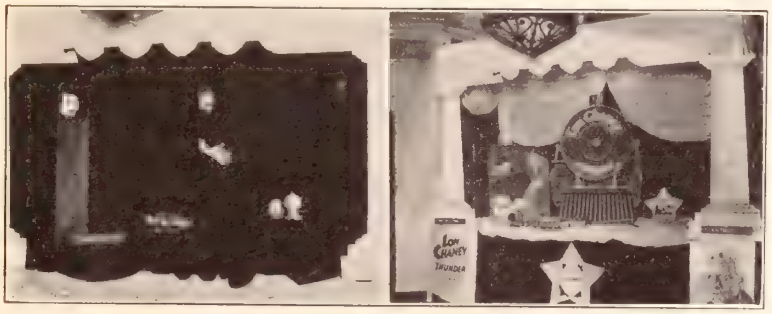
Just to give you a faint idea of what they have accomplished along the lines of Kiddie business, we want you to see this photograph of a few of the youngsters, but unfortunately the photograph does not show the lines to the left and right which extended almost an entire block and was four to six deep at certain points.



We might add that the San Carlos is a small silent theatre and it has been Mr. Buse's aim to build up the Saturday afternoon business to a point where it would really produce money at the B. O. In this respect, he was absolutely successful as subsequent reports have shown.

One of the most important factors in building up this Kiddie trade was a tie-up whereby an advertising company sold tickets in blocks to neighborhood merchants at greatly reduced rates, and passed them out free to the kiddies who made purchases in their stores. The very first matinee under this new plan brought out over 1,200 kiddies, and this figure came up to 1,500 on succeeding Saturdays, until now it is a sell-out right to the ceiling every Saturday afternoon with the kiddies lining up early in the morning to make sure they get in.

Another one of their recent stunts along showmanship activities was the use of a blackout box in the foyer for an effective advance display on coming attractions. As the cut shows, this is the type of stuff that is bound to attract attention from the folks passing through the lobby and unquestionably it can be so worked that it will fit into many different types of pictures regardless of the mystery or spiritual angle itself.



One feature that we liked about this layout, that after serving as an advance plug for the picture several weeks before the play date, the entire gag was moved across the street into a vacant store window where it was kept during the early run of the picture. This was done not only on "The Unholy Night" but also on other attractions, such as "Marianne," and still more that they now have in work. For example, we show you the same spot in the lobby fixed up for Lon Chaney's picture "Thunder" which was also moved to the empty store across the street shortly before the opening date, and we are certain that you will all agree with us that it is a mighty effective piece of showmanship.

Thank you, Mr. Buse, for your kindness in sending the material and convey our kindest regards to Mr. Kreutzberger for his fine CLUB spirit as well as your own. Let's hear some more from you and if possible send us one of your own photographs so that the rest of the gang can get an idea of what you look like.

"YOUR PROBLEMS AND MINE"

We announced, only a short time ago, that we would run a series of stories dealing with the various local problems that confront a manager in the operation of his theatre.

In response to our request, many of our members and readers have shown a marvelous spirit and they came through with many such problems.

¶ What they encountered!

¶ How they handled themselves!

¶ How they created Good-Will where hard feelings existed before!

¶ How they warmed up to the local newspaper editor!

¶ And a hundred and one other important points.

Starting with next week's issue we will set forth these various problems for whatever value they will hold for you and your theatre. Unquestionably, many of the items discussed will parallel your own situations.

We urge you to follow the series carefully and to keep them for future reference. They should be of tremendous value to you.

"Chats" Via His Program is Angle Borland Uses Now

Hugh S. Borland, manager of the Calo Theatre in Chicago, Ill., has instituted a most successful series of chats and announcements on the front page of his program which are really a credit to the theatre and Mr. Borland's fine showmanship.

We have frequently called attention to this particular phase of using the theatre's house organ to get across a sales idea, either in connection with a particular attraction or an institutional angle in connection with the house itself, and when Mr. Borland does it so nicely, we cannot help but comment on it.

Let's hear some more from you, Hugh, we haven't heard from you in quite some time, and we always like to keep in touch with our many members regardless of where they are located. Also remember us to our many other friends out there in Chicago, and let's hope that the next time I hit the Windy City, I will have a whole lot more time than the last trip, when I had to see so many people in such a short time.

A Smash For Any Program!

Happening into one of upper Broadway's better sound theatres, I was fortunate enough to catch sight of "More Sinned Against Than Usual," and writing strictly from a patron's viewpoint, this one certainly "knocked them cold" and had everyone in the audience shouting with glee.

Patterned after the old-fashioned melodrama, practically the entire house was entering into the spirit of the "occasion" and did their bit by hissing the villain and applauding the hero and heroine.

Regardless of what class of short subjects you may be running, we heartily recommend putting this on the first chance you get and give your customers a treat.

Vegetable Matinee Was the "Berries" For Benson's Biz.

Cashing in on his former success at running a Vegetable Matinee, Walter Benson, live wire manager of the Strand Theatre for the Publix Outfit in Pawtucket, Rhode Island, is no doubt gratified at the second success of his "Vegetable Stunt."

Benson arranged a special showing of a Tom Mix picture and a Charlie Chaplin comedy to be held early in the morning at the Strand. He advertised in the newspapers

PAWTUCKET

His newspaper ad which we are reproducing with this article was very attractively made up, carrying all he wished to convey, stating that all children bringing a vegetable or vegetables would be granted free admission to the theatre, and also announcing that the proceeds of the stunt would go to the Salvation Army for distribution to the town's neediest cases. The newspapers lit on the idea like wildfire and gave it plenty of free publicity as it was the first time a stunt like this had been pulled in Pawtucket, though Benson had worked it before in Brockton, Mass. The papers gave it a big splash and assigned a reporter to cover it. The success of Benson's stunt can be seen when it is known that over 2,800 children appeared with arms loaded with vegetables. In fact, as the theatre seats only two thousand, eight hundred disappointed youngsters were turned away. Benson tried to promote an "overflow" show at one of the other local houses, but was unable to reach his operators in time.

We have always advocated this type of business-getter and good-will promoter as always coming in handy. And we want to state again that you don't have to wait for any special time of the year to roll around, if there's needy cases today there will be needy cases tomorrow. Get behind these "charity" shows more often and you'll find that in the end, due to the tremendous drawing power of "good will" that your box office will show a decided increase. Your local newspapers and charities will always be ready to co-operate with you whenever you run a charity show.

Benson has been thoughtful enough to send us the newspaper clippings of his "Vegetable Matinee," and we notice that the editors of the local theatres thought enough of the idea to comment editorially upon it.

We're mighty glad to see that you're keeping up the good work, Benson, and we want you to know that we think you're doing some darn fine things in Pawtucket to build up good will and the box office. Keep up the fine work and we'll guarantee that with an outfit like Publix you'll get all the credit that you deserve. Let's hear from you again.

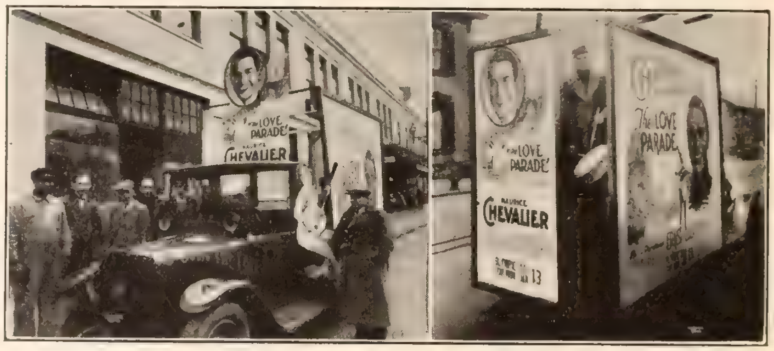
Delis Puts Over A Very Effective Street Ballyhoo

Here's a neat ballyhood arranged by Manager George A. Delis of the Olympic Theatre in Steubenville, Ohio, which attracted considerable comment throughout the town and aided in bringing in some extra dough to the box office.

Delis hired a truck to cruise around the streets with a couple of six-sheet boards, bearing posters announcing "The Love Parade" and play dates. The truck was painted up with copy reading "Join the Love Parade" with a lot of giant hearts plastered over the body of it.

You will notice from the photographs a life-size cut-out of a girl playing a banjo which, though it has no bearing upon the photoplay, is evidently intended to appeal to the "aesthetic" sense of "the gay bloods" of the town. Right, Delis?

A novel touch was added to the ballyhoo by having a drummer play march tunes from the picture. This drew considerable attention to the truck and was very valuable in securing interest.



Delis must have considerable drag with the local authorities, as he tells us the city council gave him permission to park the car on the main street corners. This stunt drew loads of attention, especially as the drummer was banging out the songs.

On the front of the truck you will notice a cut-out of the star in the picture which makes an excellent display. The rear of the truck carried a three-sheet board bearing a poster of the picture, with an opening through which the drummer could be seen. While this idea is a good one and worked okay for Delis, we would suggest that if any of you boys employs this type of street ballyhoo the drummer may be concealed, as anything mystifying will cause a bit more comment and attract more interest, appealing as it does to curiosity.

Thanks, Delis, for letting us see this. We might (?) tell the boys that you are the prosperous looking gent in the fur coat.

MANAGERS' ROUND TABLE CLUB

DOES THE SHOE FIT?

Must a theatre company take into consideration the type of town when staging a formal opening of a new theatre? An example of what happened in a Wisconsin town of approximately 20,000 population when theatres were opened by two opposing concerns and the reaction in each case may serve to answer this question at least partially.

The one house was formally opened on Thanksgiving Day. Important executives of the large theatre chain organization were on hand for the occasion. The publicity and advertising staff of the organization had been on hand for several days before the opening furnishing the newspaper with plenty of copy concerning the wealth and efficiency of this well known and far reaching theatre organization.

Banners were strung from lamp posts in the city's downtown section; stickers were fastened to store windows and posts throughout the city and the opening of the new house was emblazoned from many vantage points.

All this, although it was excellent showmanship, didn't set so well with the conservative citizens of this Badger town. The Chamber of Commerce of the city and the merchants rather resented this loud hue and cry concerning the greatness of the theatre organization and what it was doing to boost the city as well as the fact that it was rather despoiling the beauty of the city with its stickers, handbills, street banners and what-not.

On Christmas Day another organization opened a house in the same city. It was not a new theatre but one rebuilt from a house which was operated by an independent exhibitor for many years and bore the name of the city. The new concern, also a chain organization, retained the name of the theatre, which gained the goodwill of the city.

There was no sort of loud huzzahs in opening the house but rather a consistent and well planned newspaper advertising campaign. This theatre gained the respect of the citizens of the town largely through its quiet, conservative and unassuming manner in which the theatre was formally opened.

The pictures going into the theatre have been very carefully watched and the management has thrown out all culls even though he has had to pay for them. The result is that the house has been enjoying a very fine business since its formal opening.

The fact that the latter theatre scored the greatest success in staging its formal opening was borne out by the fact that before its opening a member of its organization met the president of the Association of Commerce of the town in question on the train. The member of the theatre concern knew the Association of Commerce official, who, however, did not know the theatre man.

Talk drifted to the new theatre and both agreed it was a big asset to the city. Voluntarily, then, the President of the Association criticised the methods used in the opening of the new house. He outlined to the theatre man the type of opening he believed better suited for the city in question. It was just the type of opening then being planned by the concern which the theatre man represented.

Later when the theatre was opened and the member of the circuit presented himself at the Association of Commerce to take out a membership, he again met the president who was very much suprised, but nevertheless, delighted to learn that his traveling companion was a member of the theatre organization which had opened the latter house.

"Tod" Browning is Active as Usual & Now Broadcasting

Our good friend Harry "Tod" Browning, whose hurryings and scurryings around Boston way as he pursues his duties of Publicity Director for the Metropolitan Theatre are often recorded on these pages, hastens to inform us of his latest activities there.

Harry has tied up with one of the prominent newspapers, the "Boston Traveler," and the sheet has offered to co-operate in the presentation of a radio program from the stage of the Metropolitan every Tuesday evening. This is the first time a show has been broadcast from the Metropolitan and will be made a regular weekly feature.

The broadcast cut in on the regular show, starting at 10:30 P. M. and continued for a half hour, with the stars of the current stage unit, which preceded the broadcast, "doing their stuff" again, but this time before the mike for the edification of the patrons.

The newspapers carried ads and stories to the effect that the public was invited to witness the broadcast of the program, with the radio sections giving it a big play.

This type of business getter "clicked" from the start and the Met's box office reaped in a harvest of dollars.

We're also in receipt of a newspaper tear sheet showing a group of girls from the Met's stage show, draped around a monster radio, in connection with the awarding of a Radio Set, to contestants in an essay contest engineered by Browning, as an exploitation boost for "The Love Parade."

It is this type of work which makes us think that Harry is more than instrumental in dragging in extra gold to the box office and we're sure that the rest of you boys who follow his activities will agree.

We want to thank you for submitting the news of your activities to us, Harry, and we know you're pretty busy at the Met., but you should be able to find time to send us a photo and a resume of your career to date so that we can give you another "personal" appearance on these pages.

Braunig's Tie-Ups Always Good for a Lot of Free Advt.

Sol Braunig, manager of the Majestic Theatre in Providence, R. I., effected some snappy window tie-ups as part of his exploitation campaign on the "Awful Truth."

Large window cards, showing stills from the production which featured the star in exquisite gowns were placed in leading dress and lingerie shops. Another scene in the picture showing the star robed in furs provided a tie-up with a fur shop.

And now to show you what we mean when we say all pictures are "naturals" for exploitation. A still showed the star of the picture using a cigarette lighter. Braunig arranged a tie-up with the local cigar stores and was able to effect a lot of free publicity which was advantageous to the stores as well as to the theatre. The same stunt was worked with another scene in the picture, showing an atomizer being used.

It's the easiest thing in the world to secure a maximum of results with your pictures by just using the old bean, and running through your stills devise something that will have great exploitation and box office value. We want to hand Braunig a compliment for cashing in on a little, though darned important angle as he has, with his lighter and atomizer ideas.

Twenty-four displays were used by Braunig and this coupled with the help of half page advertisements in the local newspaper did a lot toward making the box office bulge out with extra cash.

Let's hear some more of your activities at the Majestic, Braunig. We're always glad to know what you're doing up there in Providence. And we'd like to have a couple of photographs of yourself if you'll just send them along. Oak?

"Harry Keeps Steppin'"

Only last week we told you about Harry Lewis (no relation) and his association at the Mt. Eden Theatre in upper New York. Now we must give him another story, but it is certainly with pleasure that we do so.

Harry is now House Manager of the Colony Theatre in New York, right here on Times Square, and working under Henry Seigel.

Great stuff Harry! Keep right on mounting that ladder. You're on Broadway now, and will you make the grade? We'll say you will.

ESTABLISHING A GROUP NEWS-PROGRAM

By Larry Cowen

When you give thought to the enormous amount of money circuits pay for newspaper space, and just what they get for this large sum, where after all it is competitive advertising, as every theatre in Town is crammed on the same page with you, and Mr. Theatre-Goer has his choice at a glance; and if the old opposition has a better show than you (which does happen at times) just where do you come off?

Now with this in mind we decided to print our own newspaper advertising. First our current Show, the same as is done on the amusement page of a newspaper, only now without the HELP of the opposition.

Secondly, we print as newspapers new pictures playing Broadway, which will come to the A. H. SCHWARTZ Century Circuit theatres sooner or later. These stories are written in this office, and we remind our readers that by waiting they will see the picture at popular prices.

The back page of the weekly we devote to the latest Broadway jokes, wise cracks or what have you, and so—there you have the comic section for your weekly newspaper. We call this the Century Circuit Weekly and it is in the theatres not later than Wednesday, is given to the patrons on their way out of the theatre, and is selling the weekly bill, beginning the coming Saturday.

Beside the Brooklyn and Long Island houses Newsette, we have a combined sixteen page mailing newsette, for Brooklyn alone, the same way, with all the theatres carrying a page.

We do not go after a mailing list, we do not ask for it, they must be requested by the patron, or the patron fill in a coupon which is printed in the weekly. Long Island has their own weekly, and distributes and mails in the same manner.

Now with newspaper methods as a foundation, with myself the Editor, each and every Manager is his own Circulation Manager, and it is up to him to increase his circulation. This is very carefully checked, and the boys realize the importance of this personal message to patrons and knowing the limited amount of exploitation a city of this size offers, give great effort in devising schemes for greater distribution. Some of them have little boxes holding the newsetts with Patio Theatre—Please take one—painted on front, acting as "silent" salesmen in large stores.

We have proved to ourselves that this medium, if done correctly, is not only a great advertising medium, but also abounds in goodwill building—just take out a handful of names from the mailing dept. and hear the squawks that come in. We recently held a "revival" picture vote campaign devoting the entire back page to names of old cinema favorites and requested that patrons interested in seeing these pictures again mail their vote to their favorite Century Circuit theatre. We got back thousands of requests. THAT'S THE PROOF OF THE PUDDING—THEY WERE READ, and every patron had to spend two cents to return it to us.

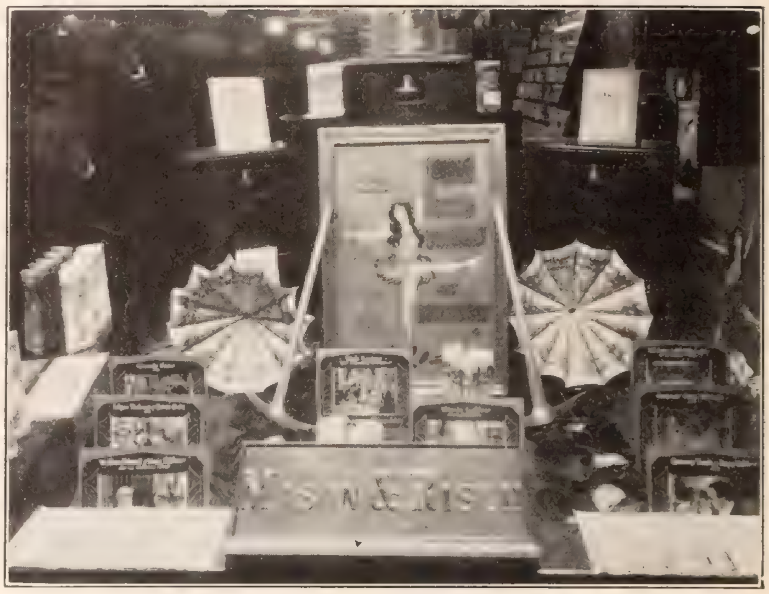
Minor Details Are Not Minor to Ward As You Will Note

If anyone wants to get a rise out of me in the future all they'll have to do is declare that our Canadian members can't exploit their attractions as well as the States showmen.

And when we get through telling you of the recent activities of John V. Ward, manager of the Capitol Theatre in Hamilton, Ont., you'll agree that the boy is some shakes as an exploiter.

Cast your eyes upon that cut of Ward's window display on "Gold Diggers of Broadway," which we are reproducing. Notice the song hits and the way they are arranged? And the stills, the way they're placed on a mounting representing a screen? And that big card in the background plugging the picture? Oak. But how many of you would have placed a couple of PICKS in the window for atmosphere? Answer me that. There's showmanship for you.



And he has even put a few gold "nuggets" in the window!

Tuesday or Wednesday January 14 15

The other cut we are reproducing is part of a tie-up with a local confectioner, who agreed to concoct a dish called "Sweetie" Sundae. Ward made up a quantity of the cards of the type we are showing in the cut which carried a catch line reading, "Try our Sweetie Sundae; then take your sweetie to see "SWEETIE" at the Capitol Theatre." While this tie-up is not an original idea it nevertheless is a good one, as it is always productive of exploitation value.

We want to say a word at this time about the layout of Ward's heralds. The heralds are about postcard size and the one we have reference to now is printed in two tones, blue and black, the scene cuts being done in blue and the copy in black. We are not going to laud the herald as being original. What we want to convey is that by the judicious use of cuts and colors Ward has conceived a very compact herald that sells.

Oak, Ward. We'd like to state at this time that yours is the type of work we would expect from a member of Jack Allan's gang and, incidentally, when you see Jack tell him to hand you a compliment for us, and don't forget we're always eager to hear what you boys are doing up there in Canada to put your houses across.

"Introducing Rudy"

It was our pleasure to make the personal acquaintance of Rudolph A. Kuehn, General Manager for the Consolidated Amusement Enterprises in New York City and one of the oldest independent circuits still remaining "independent" in this part of the country.

We learned some great facts from Mr. Kuehn and we are going to look forward to the opportunity of writing some interesting stories about his own activities as well as those of the different managers on the circuit of which he is General Manager.

Very glad to meet you Rudy, and here's hoping that we see a whole lot more of you.

MANAGERS' ROUND TABLE CLUB

Month At a Time Is How Neu Keeps Patrons Informed

E. N. Neu, manager of the Earle Theatre in Carroll, Iowa, sends us in his application blank for membership and also enclosed a contribution of his theatre program which because of its novelty of design we are reproducing below.

As you will notice from the cut, Neu has laid out the entire months program in the form of a calendar. The program is done in black and white. And we want to mention that this is the first instance we have come across of a house organ carrying a full month's program. There is nothing ostentatious about the layout, its beauty being in its use of plain, straight lines.

This Program Subject to Change

Thank you, Neu, and we're glad to welcome you into the Club, and after having given us one good idea, you'll want to pass some more on to us. So when you send us your next letter don't forget to enclose a photograph of yourself so that we can let the rest of the boys meet you.

"You Know Me Al" And I Know You; Meet "Al" Unger

Whoever created the expression that "It's a mighty small world" must have known what he was talking about, because subsequent events ever since the term was created have proven that it carries an awful wallop in truth when you stop to consider the number of people you meet in one part of the country and then run up against in some other place where you least expect them to turn up or run into them.

Which leads up to an introduction to our old friend, Al Unger.

Al first made our acquaintance when he was working for Gottesman at the Commodore Hull Theatre in Derby, Conn., and we later heard from him when he moved into Norwich, Conn., where he remained until just before the Gottesman-Warner deal put the former circuit out of existence.

Al is now plugging for the Fox Metropolitan Chain at the Cameo Theatre in Jersey City, N. J., with a live-wire policy of vaudeville and pictures and has been doing very well ever since he located close to the Metropolitan District again. Listen, Al, there's no reason why you have not been communicating with us and tipping us off as to what your activities consist of for the Fox crowd, so this will have to serve as both a personal introduction as well as a little "dig" to make you realize that we are waiting to get some of your dope on these pages. Incidentally, if you want to know where we got your photograph from, ask Santy Claus and if he mentions Cliff Gill, don't tell Cliff that we mentioned the fact at all.

"DIRT AND DECEIT"

There are few editors in the motion picture field better qualified to know what it's all about than "Red" Kann of MOTION PICTURE NEWS, and from "Red" we take up the fight to eliminate "dirt and deceit" from YOUR theatre's advertising.

Too much of it has been coming into the lime-light and we are rather inclined to feel that it is accidental rather than intentional.

Lincoln knew what he was talking about when he told the world that you can't fool the people all the time. And those theatre men, managers or otherwise, who have "put one over" on the so-called fool public, will awaken to find themselves in a rather tough fix. (Figure that one out any way you want to.)

The angle of salacious material, or phrases, in newspaper advertising is of supreme importance because it opens the door to future trouble, not only for those guilty of such bad errors of judgment, but for the industry as a whole.

Don't provide the enemies of our business with ammunition to fight us. Every time you run a questionable ad you are giving them another reason to demand censorship and legislation that ties the show game into knots rather hard to untangle.

To be a little more specific, we would suggest: if you can't keep "dirt and deceit" out of your theatre's advertising, try the grocery store or boot-black business. You'll land there anyway and you might as well take a short cut.

"Chick"

Two Tone Herald Used by H. Waugh Proved Good Angle

Our old friend Howard Waugh, manager of the Palace Theatre in Meriden, Conn., for the Fox-New England outfit, sends us in a letter and encloses a sample of a two-tone herald he distributed throughout the town.

Howard's herald was printed on manila cardboard stock with the upper half bearing copy reading, "IT'S FUNNIER THAN THE 'Cock Eyed World'—Now the boys are doing their stuff in Paris! Victor McLaglen continuing His Adventures with Fifi Dorsay and El Brendel in 'Hot for Paris.'"

The layout is exceptionally well made up. Half of the picture's title being represented with manila letters on a red background of the sun with the other half in blue. The rest of the copy printed in blue letters carries the play dates of the attraction, while the theatre's name is set in a blue background. On each side of the herald a picture of the star and the leading feminine player was reproduced and completed the effectiveness of the herald.

MANAGERS' ROUND TABLE CLUB

C. J. Latta Gets And Holds Good-Will for Theatre

When C. J. Latta, managing director of the Roger Sherman Theatre in New Haven, Conn., joined the Round Table Club a while back we predicted that we'd hear more from him. And he's more than justified our opinion by sending us in his complete campaign on the "Isle of Lost Ships," which was instrumental in keeping the house crowded to capacity during the entire run of the picture.

He tied up in his newspaper advertising with the town's leading department store and arranged for distribution of free tickets for the Roger Sherman to children under twelve years old. The ticket stated that all children be accompanied by an adult, hence he managed to bring in some extra biz., as the adults had to accompany the children. And, believe me, when you give a kid a ticket to a show, that kid is going to see the show.

Latta promoted another tie-up with the local dry goods company supplying the merchant with a mat of a "maze" showing ships trapped in seaweed, with blind alleys leading out. The trick lying in rescuing the ships through a single avenue of escape which can be found only after diligent searching. The dry goods company paid for casting and the imprinting of these puzzles on stiff cardboard. The completed card bearing copy concerning the picture at the Roger Sherman and complimentary line of the Stanley Dry Goods Company.

Another excellent publicity stunt engineered by Latta was a party given to the newsboys of the local paper, the New Haven Register, at which over 1,500 news carriers attended with the theatre securing some valuable publicity by securing special busses and street cars to which was affixed banners bearing the news of the occasion and the picture. The newspaper came through with some excellent stories and pictures. All of the suburban news carriers, after alighting from the busses, met the city boys in front of the newspaper office, where the crowd, merged and preceded by a band from one of the local schools, proceeded in a body to march down the avenue to the theatre. Banners were carried by the foremost newsboys announcing the picture and their destination. In addition to these up-to-the-minute exploitation stunts, Latta arranged some excellent window displays in the leading stores, proving again that it is not necessary to wait for a picture with a "big" name to come along in order to tie-up. Pictures to-day are made with a view toward exploitation possibilities. Don't wait to be told where those possibilities lie. Dig them out yourself. You'll find them all right. And the chances are you'll find a few more angles that the crack publicity men of the major producing companies overlooked.

Thanks, Mr. Latta, we're glad to see that you are keeping up your peppy work at the Roger Sherman and we want you to know how much we appreciate your keeping us up on your activities.

CHAIRMAN, CALL THE ROLL???

An insidious suggestion has been implanted in your Chairman's mind and it's causing us plenty of mental unrest. We can't eat, sleep or drink (well, at least sleep) until we pass the suggestion on to our fellow members and let them worry about it, so if you'll just gather round we'll let you in on the deep, dark secret.

Howard Waugh, manager of the Palace Theatre in Meriden, Conn., and an active CLUB member, is responsible for the demoralizing situation ('sall right, we credit the Tabloids), so if the suggestion causes you too a weakening of the physical fibre (no credit necessary) why blame Howie, who confided to us that his "Mrs." suggests that we organize A CLUB FOR THE MANAGERS' WIVES!

Whooee—we're glad we've got that off our chest. Can you imagine it boys? A club for the managers' wives. Who'd be the chairman? In fact who could be the chairman for more than one or two minutes. We'd want to gab on exploitation and for the first meeting everything would be fine. But no one would show up for the second meeting. THEY'D ALL BE OUT TYING UP THE HAT STORES!

And just suppose we were delivering an address on the booking of pictures. Do you think it would help? Not at all. No matter how strong the opposition should be, the managers' wives would be booking in RUDY VALLEE FOR EXTENDED RUNS. Or suppose that an irate patron came up and wanted to know why the sound was cut off. He'd be informed that the manager's wife was telephoning and THE SOUND INTERFERED WITH HER HEARING.

Nay, nay, the managers' wives for the present should remain unorganized, not because we imagine they wouldn't be a help to their loving husbands—for we know the manager's wife could run the theatre. YES, SHE COULD (See Cock-Eyed World). However, being an easy going guy, and far from within reaching distance of a woman, your Chairman has laid out a set of rules to be followed by the manager's wife and if she faithfully adheres to the standards we have set down, for say a period of ten years (which time to be figured by accepted chronological computation—Webster—and not the way the women figure their ages) why then at the expiration of this time we shall consider the formation of a club for the managers' wives. Here's the rules, ladies, and may luck be with you (you'll need it).

1. The manager's wife must never question him when he comes in tired after sixteen hours of labor at the theatre.

2. The manager's wife must never point out that the cashier seems to smile more at the men than the women.

3. The manager's wife should never send her friends to the theatre as her personal guests without first consulting her spouse.

3a. And when her spouse is gabbing with the general manager and the whole army of Oakley's start to file past the doorman and are refused admission, she shouldn't berate the poor guy when she gets him home.

4. The manager's wife should never ask her husband to lift a finger around the house and she should be very helpful to him by putting on his slippers, filling his pipe, etc. (???)

5. The manager's wife should never chide her husband for arriving late for dinner. Instead, she should smile and say, "It's all right, darling, come in for dinner any time you please."

6. We've run out of rules now, BECAUSE IF THE MANAGER IMAGINES HIS WIFE IS GOING TO FOLLOW ANY OF THESE RULES HE DESERVES TO HAVE THE WOMEN ORGANIZED!

Now you tell us one!

Want An Idea to Boost Kiddie Biz.? Ask Chas. Sappal

We are reproducing below a sample of the "Children's Ticket," issued by Manager Charles A. Sappal, of the Central Theatre in Tampa, Fla., in order to ballyhoo his picture, "College Love."

Sappal arranged for distribution of the tickets at the local schools, tickets being given to the kids at the close of the day, so that it would be necessary for them to take it right home and "show it off." As you will notice from the cut, the ticket carried copy to the effect that the school child producing the ticket and ten cents would be granted admission to the Central.

appeal to everyone.

We have written on this "gag" time and time again, stressing the fact that it should not be used too often. It is a good stunt to build up your matinees with, but go easy on it, the mothers will hand out the dime smilingly once in a while, but if it gets to be a daily occurrence, her feelings are liable to be ruffled.

It is always well to use this ticket only on educational pictures or pictures pertaining to schol life.

There's a good many other swell matinee business builders which can be used and which have been contributed to these pages by Club members.

Thanks, Sappal, for sending us a sample of the ticket. We're always glad to know what you're doing to build up box office down there in Tampa and if you keep up the good work we know the results will more than justify your exploitation.

Revolving Model Was One Gag That Helped J. L. Sieter

J. L. Sieter, manager of the Boyd Theatre in Philadelphia, Pa., arranged a novel window display in connection with his exploiting of "Sally."

Sieter arranged for a revolving wax manniken figure of Marilyn Miller, executing a toe dance. The figure was on display in the window of one of the largest stores in town, and attracted much attention, and as the window in which the figure was placed was twenty feet long it afforded an excellent opportunity to display a background which would harmonize with the wax figure.

In addition to this tie-up Sieter also effected window displays in other leading department stores and music shops, which ran prior to the picture's opening and also currently.

A valance advertising the picture surrounded the marquee of the Boyd and greatly enhanced the exterior beauty of the theatre.

Life size cutouts were prominently displayed in the lobby and aided materially in putting the picture across.

And we're glad to note, Sieter, that in spite of strong competition the picture did excellent business throughout the engagement.

Let's hear from you again, Sieter, and if you've got something good we'll pass it on to the boys.

"A COAST TO COAST NETWORK"—is the way the radio stations describe a national hookup.

"A WORLD WIDE WEB"—is the way THE MANAGERS' ROUND TABLE CLUB describes its universal hook-up of showmen, who are "All For One And One For All." NO MATTER WHAT PART OF THE WORLD YOU'RE LOCATED IN —YOU SHOULD BELONG.

"Whooping-It-Up"

We couldn't let any too much time go by without saying a word of praise to those gentlemen who are responsible for "WHOOP-IT-UP", the official house organ of the Advertising and Publicity Departments of the New Jersey Warner Brothers Theatres and published by Frank La Falce, Editor, Joseph Feldman, Associate, and Vic Hamerslag (who has earned the title of "Printer's Devil").

From cover to cover it contains a wealth of "pep" material as well as many good ideas and suggestions—including news of what is going on throughout the Division.

The vogue of inaugurating "peppy" house organs for various Circuits or Divisions is rapidly becoming more and more popular as the different men at the head of these organizations realize the tremendous amount of good to be gained by this type of house organ and, in speaking of "WHOOP-IT UP" we certainly want to thank Frank La Falce for giving us the opportunity of seeing one of the finest of its kind now being published by any Circuit throughout the Industry.

Mumford Too is Reaching Out For More Kiddie Trade

Leon O. Mumford, managing director of the Roth-Strand Theatre in Summit, N. J., sends us in a couple of examples of how he boosted his Saturday matinee business.

We are reproducing below a sample of one of the special heralds he had printed boosting the Saturday matinee show. As you can note from the cut of the herald, which was of postcard size and made of pliable cardboard, he heads it off with "Big Saturday Matinee Show." The herald also carries the starting time of the various subjects.

3:10 THE GREAT GABBO

Hear him make "Otto" Talk

As an atmospheric prologue for the picture, which dealt with the trials and tribulations of a ventriloquist, Mumford presented a ventriloquist on the stage. And as an added feature gave away a duplicate of the doll used by the reel ventriloquist. These two ideas proved an excellent box office stimulant for the Saturday matinee as the doll was awarded during the show.

Another special treat offered to the patrons of the Strand was the showing every Saturday matinee of a revived Chaplin comedy which is a great business getter almost any place. It is interesting to note that Mumford chose a SHORT SUBJECT for an added attraction, and we want to state again that if you get behind your short subjects in the right manner it is certainly going to help bring in extra dough to your b. o.

Mumford has coined a name for his screen acts which we thought we'd pass on to the other members of the Club in the event that they might care to use it for variety. Instead of billing his screen act as Vitaphone or Movietone, Mumford advertises them as "Vodvil Films" or a "Vodvil Film."

You're doing good work on your Saturday matinees Mumford. Keep on plugging it and your shorts, and we predict that your business will increase a lot.

Oak, George, and when you write let's have a photo of yourself.

——Wear Your Club Pin ! !——

WM. E. PINE manages the Darien Theatre in Darien, Conn. He is also one of the Playhouse bunch and we've got a hunch that Darien will be right up in front with the New York boys. How about it, "W. E."? Let's have a photo of yourself when you write so that we can let the rest of the boys see what that Conecticut air can do for a man.

——Wear Your Club Pin ! !——

A. D. RESNICK is the manager of the Hamilton Theatre in Philadelphia, Pa., and from what we've seen and heard of his work we know he is going to become an active contributor to the pages of the CLUB. We're glad to have you fall in line with the peppiest bunch of showmen today, "A. D.," and we want you to know that we're always glad to hear from you. When you write again send us your photo so that we can give you a regular sendoff.

——Wear Your Club Pin ! !——

BERNARD BURNS manages the State Theatre in Sydney, Australia, and is of course more than welcome in joining our large group of foreign members. We feel sure that Burns is going to take an active interest in the CLUB and we would like to have his photo and a little story about himself so that we can let the rest of the gang see what the foreign division is doing. How about it, Bernard?

——Wear Your Club Pin ! !——

HARRY HERMAN is the manager of the Paramount Theatre in Cedar Rapids, Iowa, and as we've got a little low-down on Harry we can state right now that some good things are in store for the CLUB'S pages. Let's hear from you real soon, Harry, and include your photo, too.

MANAGERS' ROUND TABLE CLUB

—YOU WILL BE JOINING TOO!

H. J. SMITH, in addition to being the manager of the Fort Humphreys Theatre, in Fort Humphreys, Va., is also a technical sergeant in Uncle Sam's good old army. And as Smith lays claim to being the only Army Motion Picture Theatre manager in the CLUB well, we guess we have to concede that point. But that doesn't permit you to sit back and rest on your laurels, "H. J." We want to hear plenty of your activities at one of Uncle Sam's houses. Send us in a photo of yourself so that we can give you a proper introduction on these pages.

—Wear Your Club Pin ! !—

D. J. McGANN is the assistant manager of the Fox Strand and Capitol Theatres in Oswego, N. Y., and if he is like the rest of the peppy Fox up-state crew we can expect him to become a very active member. How about it, "D. J."?

—Wear Your Club Pin ! !—

WILLIAM F. GABRIEL manages the Variety Theatre in Cleveland, Ohio. We want to welcome Gabriel into the CLUB and we feel sure, in view of the fact that Cleveland boasts some mighty fine showmen, we are going to hear more concerning him. Let's have a photo of yourself, Gabriel, so the rest of the boys can see you.

—Wear Your Club Pin ! !—

LAWRENCE LASKY is the publicity director for the Broadway Theatre in Springfield, Mass., and though we have already recorded a number of Larry's stunts on the CLUB pages, it behooves us to introduce him again on these pages, as no man can escape these informal paragraphs by which we announce receipt of his application and acceptance into the CLUB. Keep up the good work, Larry.

—Wear Your Club Pin ! !—

ARTHUR GOLDSTEIN is the assistant manager of the Broadway Theatre in Springfield, Mass., and under Edw. Harrison's and Larry Lasky's tutelage should some day emerge a full fledged executive. Let's hear from you again, Arthur, and you might send us in one of your photos.

—Wear Your Club Pin ! !—

WALTER DECKER is the manager of the City Opera House in Frederick, Md. We have given Walter a formal introduction on the CLUB'S pages prior to these paragraphs, but, like all good men and true, he, too, must see his name recorded on these pages. Keep us posted on your activities, Walter, and keep up the good work.

—Wear Your Club Pin ! !—

H. E. STEVENS manages the Central Theatre in Fairbury, Ill., and we want you to know that Fairbury is right up with the big burgs when it comes to picture exploiting, with Stevens making the town picture conscious hourly. We know we're going to hear some interesting things from Stevens. How about it, "H. E."?

GEORGE W. KILPATRICK is the manager of the Seville Theatre in Easton, Pa. Knowing the rep Easton has for showmanship we look forward with interest to hearing of Kilpatrick's activities. And if George will send us a photo and a few lines about himself we'll be glad to introduce him more properly.

—Wear Your Club Pin ! !—

HUBERT A. HUMMEL is the assistant manager of the Lyric Theatre in Kitchener, Ontario. If Hubert lives up to the send-off Jack Allan and his manager, H. E. Sells, gives him, we predict he'll be running his own house before long. Let's have a photo of yourself, Hubert.

—Wear Your Club Pin ! !—

JOE BROWN is the manager of the Fairland Theatre in Montreal, Canada, in Jack Allan's district, and as we feel sure Joe is going to keep in step with the Canadian leaders, we expect to hear some nice accounts of his activities. Let's hear from you, Joe, and you might send us a photo of yourself.

WHAT ARE YOU WAITING FOR?

C. B. HIDER is the manager of the Majestic Theatre in Stratford, Ont., Can., and with Jack Allan sponsoring him for membership we look forward to hearing some interesting things from him. If "C. B." will include his photo with his letter, we'll introduce him more—ah—formally.

—Wear Your Club Pin ! !—

J. F. WHITE, JR., is the owner and manager of the Capitol Theatre in Asheboro, N. C., and we feel sure that we are going to hear many interesting things concerning him and his activities down in North Carolina. How about it, "J. F." Let's hear from you soon.

—Wear Your Club Pin ! !—

ERNIE SMITHIES manages the Capitol Theatre, Kingston, Ontario, up in Jack Allan's district, and with Jack giving Ernie a send-off we feel sure that we're going to hear some good things from him. Let's hear from you, Ernie, and you might send us a photograph of yourself.

—Wear Your Club Pin ! !—

W. H. SMITH is the manager of the Trent Theatre in Trenton, Ont., and since we are often passing on exploits of the Canadian members, it's pretty safe to predict that we can expect Smith to be an active member. How about it, "W. H."? Let's hear from you and you might send us a photograph of yourself.

—Wear Your Club Pin ! !—

C. T. SPENCER manages the Walkerville Theatre in Walkerville, Ont., up in Jack Allan's district. We're glad to welcome you into the CLUB, Spencer, and we know you're going to keep right in step with your fellow members by showing some peppy work up there at the Walkerville. And you might send us a photo of yourself.

—Wear Your Club Pin ! !—

FRED A. LOONEY is the manager of the Savoy Theatre in Newark, New Jersey. We think that working for an outfit like Warner's, Fred is sure to step out and give us some good stuff. Oak, Fred? Let's hear from you very soon, and don't forget to include your photo.

—Wear Your Club Pin ! !—

EDW. HARRISON manages the Broadway Theatre in Springfield, Mass., and we want you to know that Harrison has fallen in line with the rest of the Publix boys and we expect to hear some interesting accounts of his work at the Broadway. If you'll send us in your photo, Harrison, we'll be glad to give you a regular introduction on these pages.

—Wear Your Club Pin ! !—

THOMAS H. JAMES is the manager of the Empire Theatre in Montgomery, Ala., for the Publix outfit, and if he intends to keep in step with the rest of that snappy crew down there we feel sure that we'll hear some interesting accounts of his doings. Let's hear from you, James.

A MESSAGE TO YOU FROM

S. R. KENT

I don't often address you in print. But since my return from Europe I have seen and heard things which I believe you should know for the good of your box office.

I have personally screened 10 coming Paramount Pictures. I have received information by telephone or wire almost daily from Mr. Lasky, who is at our Hollywood studio. I have checked carefully every Paramount release. This is certain:

THE FINEST PRODUCTIONS IN PARAMOUNT'S CURRENT GROUP ARE COMING BETWEEN NOW AND AUGUST — AND COMING IN QUANTITY. For example:

The Vagabond King

Sarah and Son

Honey

Roadhouse Nights

Young Eagles

The Benson Murder Case

Ladies Love Brutes

The Light of Western Stars

Paramount on Parade

The Big Pond

"THE VAGABOND KING." Showmen agree it's the finest piece of entertainment yet produced. Business in New York, Philadelphia and Palm Beach, where it has opened $2 runs, backs their judgement. The fact that 35 of America's ace theatres have voluntarily raised admission prices 33⅓% or more, for this attraction speaks for itself.

"SARAH AND SON." With Ruth Chatterton rising above even her work in "Madame X" and "The Laughing Lady." One of the real big dramatic punches of 1930.

"HONEY." Starring Nancy Carroll, with Lillian Roth, Skeets Gallagher, Harry Green, Stanley Smith and others. A musical comedy with everything "Sweetie" had, and more.

"ROADHOUSE NIGHTS." Listed by Photoplay Magazine among the 6 best pictures of the month. With a tip to watch the new comedy sensation, Jimmy Durante. Motion Picture News calls him "the Charlie Chaplin of the talking screen."

"YOUNG EAGLES." Charles "Buddy" Rogers and Jean Arthur in a second edition of "Wings."

"THE BENSON MURDER CASE." Latest and best of the "Philo Vance" mystery stories. With William Powell, Eugene Pallette and the others who made this series Grade AA box office.

"LADIES LOVE BRUTES." Starring George Bancroft, whom Variety's annual poll names the biggest drawing card on the screen today.

"THE LIGHT OF WESTERN STARS." With Richard Arlen, Mary Brian and Harry Green. By Zane Grey. Mr. Lasky wires me that this is an even better outdoors all-talker than "The Virginian."

"PARAMOUNT ON PARADE." With every big star on the Paramount payroll in it. A giant musical comedy different from anything this business has yet seen.

"THE BIG POND." Starring Maurice Chevalier in a modern American comedy romance, with songs and Claudette Colbert. This should top "The Love Parade."

"SAFETY IN NUMBERS." "Buddy" Rogers in a musical show with three beautiful girl heroines and six song hits.

"HIGH SOCIETY." Jack Oakie, the comedy craze of the hour.

"DANGEROUS NAN McGREW." Helen Kane and big Broadway cast in a singing comedy-melodrama. (Paramount gives you the new stars while they're hot.)

"THE TEXAN." With Gary Cooper. Companion picture to "The Virginian."

"TRUE TO THE NAVY." Clara Bow and a whale of a Bow title.

"THE RETURN OF DR. FU MANCHU." With Warner Oland and the fine cast that did so well in the first "Fu Manchu" hit.

"THE BORDER LEGION." Richard Arlen, Mary Brian, Jack Holt. By Zane Grey. The demand today is for big action-studded talkers like this one.

"THE DEVIL'S HOLIDAY." Nancy Carroll in a down-to-earth drama written and directed by Edmund Goulding, who made "The Trespasser."

"YOUNG MAN OF MANHATTAN." The best selling novel of 1930 from coast to coast. Claudette Colbert and Charles Ruggles heading the cast.

EXTRA ADDED ATTRACTION. The exclusive motion pictures taken WITH REAR ADMIRAL BYRD AT THE SOUTH POLE, including the actual airplane flight over the Pole.

Sound News

Between March 1st and August 1st you get 27 outstanding pictures, the cream of Paramount's current season's line-up. I say it to you frankly and honestly:

IF YOU HAVE PARAMOUNT BOOKED, YOU MUST PREPARE NOW TO HANDLE MORE BIG PICTURES IN THE NEXT 5 MONTHS THAN YOU'VE EVER HAD BEFORE IN AN ENTIRE SEASON.

If you haven't Paramount booked, you should protect yourself by inspecting each one of these new pictures when a print arrives at your Paramount exchange. Your own judgment will tell you what to do next.

ST. LOUIS—

" 'Lummox' is a great picture. Quite possibly the greatest picture the talkies have produced. A classic."

—Globe-Democrat

"One of the best and most beautifully made movies of this year. It stands in the line of supermovies that are 'super'."

—Times

LOS ANGELES—

"A most unusual picture entertainment. Truly worth seeing."

—Examiner

"A moving quality of pathos runs through 'Lummox' and will make this film a success especially with feminine audiences."

—Eve. Herald

SAN FRANCISCO—

"Place 'Lummox' among the unusual pictures. Compels respect."

"Erpi" Reported Buying Warner Bros. To Avoid Royalties; is Denied by Both

Warner Paramount Again

Now it's the financial editors of New York dailies who are reviving the merger yarn between Warners and Paramount. With Warners selling currently at approximately 68 and Paramount on the same level, an exchange on a share for share basis is seen as a definite possibility. Motion Picture News, stated recently that as soon as soon as Warners had demonstrated their stock to be on a parity with Paramount, the merger theme song might be warbled all over again.

Warners-Erpi Seek Control of German Sound

Supremacy of the sound field in Germany hinges around successful bidder in negotiations now under way with Klangfilm-Tobis, which exercises a virtual monopoly of the market in that country.

The Warners have been extremely active in this direction. It is understood, however, that Western Electric has not abandoned its attempt to sew up Klangfilm on some sort of a deal which will permit its American licenses, now barred, an opportunity to show sound pictures in the German market, where Warners now stand alone.

Negotiations have been launched several times, but never consummated. W. E. is maintaining a strict silence, officially declaring there is nothing to reports that any of its representatives are dickering with the Klangfilm group.

Decision is looked for shortly after the arrival in New York of Heinrich J. Kuchenmeister, of Holland, who dominates the Klangfilm-Tobis group. He sails from the other side in a few days on the Aquitania, which will carry George E. Quigley, president of Vitaphone, back to New York.

Death Threats in Song War Disturb Okla. City

Oklahoma City.—Death threats have been made against instigators of the movement against song racketeers here. Sidewalk peddlars, selling copyright music at five cents per copy here and in a number of other cities, are declared doing a flourishing business. Recently two racketeers in New York received suspended jail sentences following conviction on charges of violation of copyright.

Mabel Normand Leaves Everything to Mother

Zukor and Warner On Coast; Merger Talk Rife Again

Hollywood—Harry M. Warner just in from New York. Adolph Zukor, all set to leave for the East last Monday. Then changes his mind and stays on with no definite date for his departure set.

Local mathematicians who still take delight in adding two and two in an effort to reach a total of four call the circumstance more than accidental. Warner-Paramount merger talk is being revived here.

N.Y. Film Board Moves To End Bicycling Practice

Determined effort to stamp out bicycling in the New York territory is being made under direction of Louis Nizer, New York, who for some time has been active in prosecuting bicyclers in eastern states.

Two cases now are pending in Federal Court, one in the northern and one in the southern district. The former is an action brought by Paramount against Smalley Theatres, Cooperstown, N. Y., while the latter is an action by Fox and Universal against R. A. Wolfe of Standard Theatres, Nizer says.

Society of Engineers Forming N. Y. Section

Acting upon petition of members, the Society of M. P. Engineers is organizing a New York section. An organization meeting was held Wednesday.

"Although we have sections on the Pacific Coast and in London," according to J. I. Crabtree, president of the Society, "we have never had a New York section. This section will be the means of maintaining interest between our semi-annual conventions and will permit of informal discussions which are not always possible at our convention meetings."

Milliken In K. C.

Kansas City—Two talks on films were delivered this week by Carl Milliken, Hays public relations chief, who spoke to better films groups and the Ministerial Alliance of the Y. M. C. A.

Courtland Smith Mentioned As Electric's Observer In Warner Ranks

Are the Warner brothers out of Warner Brothers?

Straight from an inside, authoritative financial source comes the report, unconfirmed and denied on all sides, that Electrical Research Products, Inc., has made a deal to acquire the interests of Harry M., Albert and Jack Warner in the company bearing their name, and that Courtland Smith, former general manager of Fox Movietone News and a close friend of John E. Otterson of "Erpi," will enter the Warner organization as representative of the big electric.

Warners and "Erpi" are at cross purposes on the question of royalties. By the contract between the two companies, disputes are settled by arbitration. The Warners several years ago preferred charges against the electric company and, if the arbitrators now considering the evidence determine in Warners' favor, it is reported the company stands an excellent chance of recovering millions. This factor is reported to be a prime one in the deal said to have been made by "Erpi" for the Warner brothers' holdings.

Whether or not the reported deal is a purely financial one or whether it presages a switch in operating management is one point which refuses to emerge from the maze. But it is expected that Smith will join the Warner organization ostensibly in charge of a new sound newsreel with Jack Connolly, former European representative of Fox Movietone News, as associate. In reality, so the story goes, Smith is to be the direct inside representative of "Erpi."

"Neither my brothers' nor my interest in the company is for sale to anyone at any price," Harry M. Warner telegraphed from Hollywood in commenting on the reported deal. "As stated previously, we are in the business to stay, including our sons."

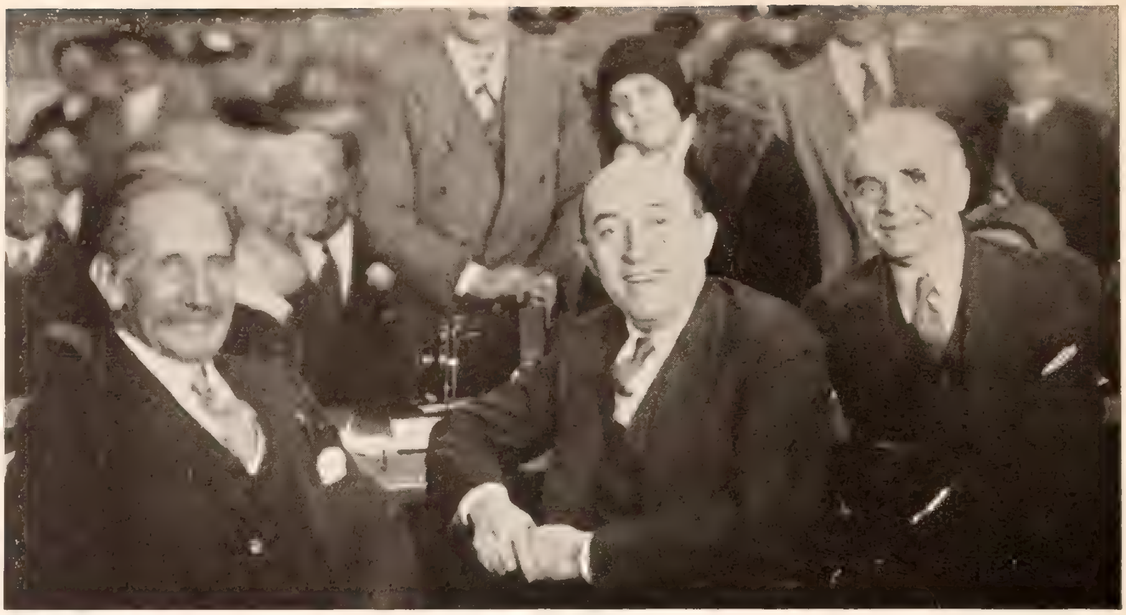
Efforts made to reach Albert Warner proved unsuccessful. Sam E. Morris was reported out of New York until early next week.

At "Erpi," it was again pointed out that the company had no intention of departing from its rigid rule, which purports to keep the organization out of production, distribution and exhibition, and solely in the business of manufacturing and selling sound reproducers. Otterson proved to be unavailable, but one of the executives of Western Electric, which controls "Erpi" said the report gave him a laugh—a hearty laugh.

Suit to Prevent Strike at Fall River Postponed

Fall River, Mass.—By agreement of the parties, continuance of the matter involving a strike of theatre employees of Fall River to enforce demands of musicians and subsequent injunction proceedings to prevent a strike, has been effected until the next term of the Superior Court, when the petitions will be heard. Five theatres are involved.

Battlers Try Lens Cracking Between Attacks



When worries didn't worry, William Fox, flanked by his attorneys, Samuel Untermyer and James Burke, halt the stockholders' meeting long enough to pose for THE NEWS photographer.

Left—Why William Fox smiled. Proxies endorsing the successful Lehman plan. Detective on guard.

Right—Louis Golde, cloak and suit manufacturer lost $1,000,000 in stock but stood four-square behind William Fox. Golde was one of Fox's staunchest supporters at the stockholders' meeting.

Below—Martin Conboy, one of the stars of the hectic sessions. Attorney for a Class A group and a champion of the unsuccessful Halsey, Stuart plan.

Fox's Holdings Sought by Banks to End Threatened Finance Stalemate

Fox Wins Sweeping Victory at Stockholders' Meeting but Opponents Dub It Hollow

Purchase of William Fox's holdings by the bankers in an effort to avoid threatened lengthy and costly litigation, in the fight between the Lehman and Halsey, Stuart-Electrical Research groups, is reported sought, following overwhelming vote of stockholders in favor of the Lehman plan.

John E. Otterson and Halsey, Stuart have no intention of accepting defeat met at the stockholders' meeting, their attorneys have made clear, confident that the Lehman plan cannot go through unless modified and biding their time against the April 15 election when, unless an adverse court decision is handed down, they will go into the annual meeting with voting control under their trusteeship agreement. At that time, if they still have control, they can name their own directors and vote any financing plan they see fit.

Fox, on the other hand, intends to fight to reap the fruits of the victory he has won, even though his opponents choose to regard it as an empty victory. The next step is immediate disposition of the receivership actions, after which he will attempt to upset the decision handed down by Justice Levy holding in effect that the trusteeship is valid. He already has served notice of appeal of that decision.

Meanwhile, with voting control of Fox Theatres, Otterson and Stuart believe they can call a meeting of that company whenever they see fit, since the scheduled annual meeting was postponed.

Otterson and Stuart, under the original trusteeship agreement, do not have to pass upon the Lehman plan, which will go through, declares Robert T. Swain, counsel for the Lehman group.

Get-Together Essential

"Before any real settlement can be effected, two or three principals will have to get together," declares Richard E. Dwight, counsel for the trustees. The trusteeship, he says, runs until June, after which the trustees decide if it is to be continued until December.

Fox, meanwhile, declares the trusteeship is off, and that therefore Stuart and Otterson no longer have voting control, but Justice Levy disputed that in dissolving an injunction Fox sought to prevent them from voting the stock at the special meeting. He refuses to sanction the Halsey, Stuart plan, and claims it cannot go through without his support.

There have been conferences for purchase of Fox's stock, and more are slated to be held, it is understood. Fox says he has refused offers of Otterson and Stuart ranging from $33,333,000 to $12,500,000. The Lehmans, it is understood, have offered Fox the latter figure for his holdings, but this has been refused.

The present confused and unique situation climaxes a week marked by the most colorful fight in film history, and one of the most romantic ever staged in the business world.

The "Show"

Meeting of the Fox stockholders to consider the Lehman-Bancamerica-Blair-Dillon, Reid plan of refinancing the company and the Halsey-Stuart plan, proved a show in every sense of the word. It had more the air of a sporting event, than a meeting to determine probably the destiny of the vast Fox enterprises. There was ill-feeling aplenty, but banter, too, and by the time it was all over, all were accepting the outcome in apparent good sportsmanship.

The week witnessed a spirited race for proxies between the two opposing groups, with Winfield Sheehan, James R. Grainger, Saul Rogers and John Zanft addressing a newspaper appeal for the Halsey, Stuart plan, so bitterly opposed by Fox. The plan had been announced dramatically, the day prior to the meetings.

Fox, meanwhile, had received a temporary injunction restraining John E. Otterson and Harry L. Stuart, the two other trustees, from voting the 50,101 shares of Class B, constituting voting control, he had turned over to them under the trusteeship agreement. Final decision, dissolving the injunction, was not made until a few minutes before the stockholders' meeting opened.

The fight was hot throughout two days of hectic meetings, with both sides battling every inch of the way. Charges and counter charges marked the sessions, during course of which the lie was passed many times. A detailed report of the sessions follows:

Lehman Plan Revised

Excitement was at a high pitch when the meeting got under way at 11:05 A. M. in the old studio room at the Fox home office with about 450 stockholders, attorneys and newspaper men in attendance.

Soon after the meeting got under way, a 20-minute adjournment was taken to allow directors to consider modification of the Lehman refinancing plan, as well as the Halsey, Stuart plan which had been submitted on Tuesday to stockholders. Report that Justice Levy in Supreme Court had dissolved the temporary injunction restraining John E. Otterson and Harry L. Stuart from voting the 50,101 shares of B stock deposited under the trusteeship agreement added to the excitement.

Upon reconvening of the meeting, inspectors were elected to pass upon scheduled balloting on the Lehman plan. Perfunctory suggestions were made and adopted on proxy collectors and tellers.

Samuel Untermyer, Fox counsel, then read proposed modification of the Lehman refinancing plan, made necessary by the Supreme Court decision empowering Otterson and Stuart to vote the B stock under the trusteeship agreement. This revised proposed change of capital structure and called for the issuance of common as authorized by stockholders last year, instead of proposed issuance of the seven per cent convertible preferred. This obviated the necessity of approval of the plan by the Class A stockholders, but the scheduled voting was carried out for its moral effect on the future of the Lehman plan.

Difficulty in Keeping Order When Attorney Asks That a Receivership Be Favored

Question of procedure then was discussed, with Untermyer declaring that the only vote that could be taken was on the Lehman plan. This evoked considerable discussion, with charges of "gag" rule and a shutting off of discussion being hurled. Untermyer denied there was any attempt to apply steamroller tactics, with various provisions of the proposed modification then explained.

Viewpoints of Fox directors upon the reasons why they consider the Halsey, Stuart plan unsatisfactory and unsound (outlined in full elsewhere in this issue) then were outlined. This statement contained a number of charges of bad faith and ulterior motives on the part of Halsey, Stuart and Electrical Research Products.

Near Riot Breaks Out

Questioning from the floor on the reasons for the "veil of secrecy" allegedly shrouding the Fox-Otterson-Stuart break, were followed by a near-riot when Arthur Berenson, attorney for a group of Boston Fox Film A stockholders, took the floor and refused to relinquish it after repeated tilts with Fox and Untermyer. Berenson attacked both the Lehman Brothers and Halsey-Stuart plans, asserted the bankers were trying "to grab" control of the company, and that Fox stockholders should resist such efforts.

Introduced by Fox as an attorney seeking a receivership of the company, Berenson declared his committee had made repeated efforts to have Fox arrange some refinancing plan and petition for a receivership was decided upon only as a last resort. When he called upon "little stockholders" to resist alleged seizure of the company by bankers, hisses and catcalls followed.

Berenson, however, refused to yield the floor, despite the uproar. He charged that Fox had packed the meeting with employes and friends, for the purpose of howling down opposition.

Real sentiment was packed into an impassioned speech by Louis Golde, cloak and suiter, who has lost over a $1,000,000 in Fox stock. He praised Fox for his efforts in behalf of the company, said that when Fox got into the jam, he tried to avoid paying high bankers' commissions by appealing to a group of friends and stockholders for financial aid to tide him over and avert danger of the company going into a receivership.

The meeting, exclusively reported by Motion Picture News, was held at Fox's home, when a group of about 30 friends and stockholders were called in his appeal for aid. At the time, Fox was dickering with the Frohman Co., Chicago, and an unnamed New York financial house, but their demands were unsatisfactory, according to Golde.

Insisting that he held no brief for Fox, but only that he wanted to do justice to the unselfishness he said Fox had shown, Golde declared he has learned since that Fox has turned over "every dollar" of his personal holdings to aid the two companies.

Conboy Scores Fox

Martin Conboy, attorney for a Class A group, then outlined the relative merits of the Lehman and Halsey, Stuart plans. The latter, he said, would be $11,000,000 less expensive to the company.

"Will you take that $11,000,000 or will you refuse it?" he shouted.

Fox, he said, had stated that he will not stand for the Halsey, Stuart plan, and that either the Lehman plan would be adopted or there would be a receivership. This attitude, he declared, was blocking any but the plan Fox favored, regardless of how beneficial any other plan might be. If there is a receivership, Fox would be to blame, Conboy charged, asking what brought about the situation.

Fox, Conboy charged, arranged for the trusteeship, got the required money, and then backed out of his agreement. He cited the Justice Levy decision to back up his arraignment of Fox, making an impassioned plea for the Halsey Stuart plan.

Richard E. Dwight, attorney for the trustees, then announced their approval of the Halsey Stuart plan, stating it would save at least $2,000,000 the first year, and proportionate amounts each additional year.

Stockholders cannot pass upon the merits of the respectve plans, for they are required to take the Lehman plan, because action on any other is blocked under decision of William Fox and the board of directors, Emory S. Buckner, former United States district attorney in New York and counsel for J. S. Bache, declared in calling upon stockholders to support the Lehman plan. He said he did not know whether refusing the $11,000,000 "offered for Fox's head" was wise or not, but that the stockholders had no alternative as they could not put through any plan opposed by Fox and the board of directors. He said he had called on Federal Judge Coleman, before whom the several receivership actions are pending, and had been assured that receivership was a matter of but hours or days, unless a satisfactory refinancing plan was adopted. Buckner announced he was voting around 330,000 shares for the Lehman plan.

William Fox would not be willing to continue as president of Fox Film or be connected with the company under the Halsey-Stuart plan, he informed the stockholders committee headed by Morton Stern of Bache & Co., in a letter to the committee, according to its counsel, Emory Buckner. His views were outlined in a letter sent to the committee in reply to one querying just how he and the directors stood on the refinancng problem.

To Fight Agreements

Fox Film intends to fight against any attempt to enforce the alleged preferential agreement with Halsey, Stuart, it is indicated in modification of the Lehman Bros., Bancamerica-Blair, Dillon Reid refinancing plan, which contains a provision that Fox Film shall indemnify the Lehman, Bancamerica-Blair and Dillon, Reid group against damages arising from any action they may take under the plan as modified and arising from suit or proceedings by "any one" claiming preferential banking contract with either Fox Film or Fox Theatres.

This attitude, Buckner said, made it essential that stockholders adopt the Lehman plan, as they could not have any other as long as Fox and the directors persisted in their stand.

Fox said he would not trusteeship the company to Halsey, Stuart, warning against alleged ulterior motives of the latter company which, he said, was seeking a receivership as its real aim. Fox cited what he said was Halsey, Stuart's responsibility for the company's present predicament.

Buckner said he didn't know which side was right in the current "vendetta," that the stockholders would be "shot on the sidewalk" while Fox and the bankers are "fighting in the street," and that he wasn't interested in the price "being offered for Fox's head," but rather in backing the only plan he felt could be put over.

Dwight then informed Buckner that the trusteeship agreement called for removal of directors, so that that objection to the Halsey Stuart proposal could be eliminated. He also took occasion to deny that his clients are "after Mr. Fox's head."

Attack on Halsey, Stuart

Untermyer then launched into an attack on Halsey, Stuart and the trustees, stating it was time to end the Dr. Jekyl and Mr. Hyde business in the trusteeship. He questioned Halsey, Stuart's ability to underwrite individually a $70,000,000 loan and stated the Lehman plan involved participation of a number of bankers, adding that was why it costs so much.

Fox Film four times has been within 15 minutes of a receivership, Untermyer said. The Gaumont payment, made this week, he said, called for turning over $6,000,000, with one hour to pay it. The company already had paid $19,000,000, he declares, emphasizing dramatically that the Lehman group had paid the $6,000,000.

When a sheriff invaded the home office with an attachment, the Lehman group paid the amount required, according to Untermyer. At Philadelphia 250,000 shares of Loew stock, valued at $10,000,000, posted as collateral last Friday, would have been sold for $4,000,000 had not the Lehman group come forward with the money, he stated. The stockholders would be ingrates if they did not accept the Lehman financing plan, he asserted.

Untermyer Questions Ability of Halsey, Stuart to Carry Out Refinancing

Untermyer's statement that the Halsey, Stuart plan is not underwritten drew fire from Marlen Bogue, counsel for Halsey, Stuart, who said that when the proper time came his client would have the money.

"When that time comes, we'll be in receivership," Untermyer declared.

"That'll be Fox's fault," was Bogue's quick rejoinder.

Untermyer declared that Halsey, Stuart probably wanted to carry out the financing planned in connection with the Loew and Gaumont British purchases, but was unable to do so, due to hard times. He declared that a practically unanimous vote for the Lehman plan should be returned.

Conboy then gained permission for a brief statement, and pointed out that Lehman's friendly aid to the company in loaning $6,000,000 called for payment of $600,000 on the 30-day loan, which he said was at the rate of 125 per cent. Recess then was taken until 6:30 P. M.

A meeting of Fox Theatres was held during the interim, with a repetition of procedure minus the fireworks. Modification of the plan was outlined, shares and proxies registered and adjournment taken.

Go to Night Session

Desultory proceedings of the evening session, which reconvened at about 6:30, were enlivened by dramatic move of Dwight, counsel for the trustees, in voting the 50,101 shares of Class B deposited under the trusteeship agreement against the Lehman plan. Right to vote the shares had been obtained in the court decision handed down in the morning by Justice Levy, who dissolved the temporary injunction restraining voting of the stock. Fox was asked to vote with the other trustees, but declined to do so, whereupon Dwight protested any attempt by Fox to vote his stock independently of the trustees, and in turn the trustee vote was protested.

Conboy then challenged votes of the stockholders' committee represented by Buckner, as well as votes of Fox and Jack Leo, demanding that they be sworn under corporation laws of New York. This provides that the proxy holder swear that he has not given or been given any compensation for the giving or voting of the proxy. Otterson and Stuart's votes then were challenged, but when Conboy's was similarly challenged he withdrew his proxies rather than make the affidavit. This was done under contention that as an attorney, he had been paid a retainer to represent the stockholders of his group.

The stand taken by Conboy elicited a sharp rebuke from Fox, who roundly criticized the attorney for invoking the tech-

How Do Fox Cabinet Members Stand As Result of Backing Halsey Plan?

Will Censure and Reprisal be Penalty if Fox is Victor and What if Others Win?

Companies' Welfare Prompted Them to Urge Support for Plan Fox Opposed

What will be the outcome of the sensational move made by Fox executives in backing the Halsey, Stuart plan of financing, which was opposed so bitterly by William Fox? That is the question being asked on all sides in the industry, following completion of the stockholders' meeting, at which the Halsey, Stuart plan was rejected and the Lehman agreement adopted.

Winfield Sheehan, vice president and general manager of Fox Film; Saul Rogers, vice president and general counsel of both companies; James R. Grainger, general sales manager of Film, and John Zanft, general manager of Theatres, were the Fox associates who threw a bombshell when they openly espoused the Halsey, Stuart proposals.

Will that attitude draw fire from William Fox in event he successfully weathers the present storm, and what will be their position in the event Otterson and Stuart are successful in winning control? Is their backing of the plan the tip-off that an Otterson-Stuart victory is in prospect? Answers to these questions promise to provide the industry with more sensational developments in the unprecedented Fox fight.

Bid for Proxies

The attitude of the "cabinet," who preferred to go along with Halsey, Stuart, feeling that their course was the better one for the company, was made known in newspaper advertisements, in which the Fox executives called upon stockholders to back the Halsey, Stuart plan. Later, it developed that Sheehan and Rogers voted against rejection of the Halsey, Stuart plan at the board meeting which immediately preceded the stockholders' sessions. One other unnamed director declined to vote at the board meeting.

The Second Time

Winfield Sheehan, Saul Rogers, James R. Grainger, John Zanft, Clayton P. Sheehan early this year advised William Fox to carry out the trusteeship agreement with John E. Otterson and Harry L. Stuart, stating that such course was best for the companies' interests. Courtland Smith, then general manager of Fox Case Corp., also joined in sending a letter to Fox urging such action. Smith since has severed his connection with the company. The letter was published exclusively in MOTION PICTURE NEWS and proved a sensation at the time.

Reports that there was an open break between Fox and the management of his companies were current at the stockholders' meeting, with another report crediting the espousal of the Halsey, Stuart plan to a bit of generalship on the part of William Fox. However, both reports proved unfounded, the "cabinet" backing of the Halsey, Stuart proposals being due solely to a desire to protect what it holds to be the companies' interest, even at the price of censure.

Sheehan Says Conscience Guide

"My reasons for recommending the Halsey, Stuart plan is that I believe it is in the best interests of the corporations," Sheehan told Motion Picture News. It is the most economical and places the corporations in the most liquid position.

"I think the plan is not alone by far the most advantageous for stockholders and employees, but it is also for the best interests of the general public who patronize motion pictures.

"The cash profit to bankers in the other plan is too big a load, in my opinion, for motion picture theatres to pay, and that item particularly concerns theatre owners.

"Jimmy" Grainger Loyal

Grainger said: "At the request of William Fox, I personally asked many prominent exhibitors and customers to buy Fox Film and Fox Theatres stock. Out of loyalty to them and, jealous as I am of my reputation in this industry, I felt the Lehman plan was too expensive.

"I want to stress the point that I have no quarrel with Mr. Fox, I have the highest regard for him. I have no dispute with other executives in the company.

"I feel that my record with this company in the last five years is an open book and speaks for itself. In that period of time, sales of Fox Film have jumped from $9,000,000 a year to the $32,000,000 which will represent our total billings for the 1929-1930 season."

Grainger leaves on the S. S. California for the coast Saturday to recuperate from an ear ailment. He will meet Sheehan there the end of March and discus with him details of the program for next season.

Fight Sunday Show Ban

Bennington, Vt.—Attempt to show a motion picture at the General Stark resulted in the arrest of John B. Harte, proprietor, and James C. Harte, operator. The two entered a plea of not guilty and are out on bail for a hearing. Action on the part of a ministerial association led to the arrests after the fire department had withdrawn from the project as a benefit performance. The ministerial association appealed to the state's attorney to stop the show.

Daylight Saving Threatened

Baltimore.—Daylight saving legislation may be passed by the council due to sentiment shown following 100 questionnaires circulated throughout the city. Fifty-three favored the ordinance and but three opposed.

Bull Move In Film Stocks Predicted As Result of Secret Check By Bankers

Diligence Stressed

Diligence of exhibitors in helping to raise sound reproduction standards emphasized the recent series of sound articles, prepared exclusively for Motion Picture News by M-G-M's staff of sound technicians. In all sections of the country, M-G-M engineers found exhibitors bending their efforts to better quality of reproduction, realizing that any other course jeopardized the enormous investment in sound equipment made by theatre owners.

Cochrane, Metzger Confer on New Universal Policy

Conferences are being continued in New York between R. H. Cochrane and Lou B. Metzger, general manager, and heads of the sales force, on the new Universal policy, calling for production of specials only. Metzger has returned from the Coast where he conferred on the new plan, first announced to the trade by MOTION PICTURE NEWS. The definite number of pictures to be made under the new policy has not been determined upon finally, it is understood, but will approximate 18.

Verne Porter, eastern scenario editor, who accompanied Metzger to the Coast in company with N. L. Manheim, export manager, remained at Universal City to continue the conferences.

Griffith Out of F. N., But Her Husband to Continue

Hollywood — Although Corinne Griffith has left First National by a mutual agreement wherein her contract for one more starring production is cancelled, Walter Morosco, her husband, continues with the organization until expiration of his contract about October 1.

Morosco became producer of the Griffith pictures shortly after his marriage to the star, and will be carried by First National as a supervisor on other pictures.

Although differences over story material was given as reason for Corinne Griffith leaving First National, the reason for the cancellation is understood to be the star's inability to get over in dialogue productions.

The player will vacation until her husband's contract expires with First National, and then the pair will probably take a six months' trip abroad.

Fairbanks to Do Story of California Gold Rush

Hollywood—Douglas Fairbanks has discarded the idea of doing a sound version of "The Mark of Zorro" in favor of an original now being prepared for him on the California gold rush days of '49.

Upswing Reported Scheduled Within Sixty Days by Wall Street Insiders

Film stocks are set for a ride.

That is the report trickling out of Wall Street this week as the result of a recent national survey of the business by investigators for five of the largest downtown financial groups. A story on the checkup was published recently in MOTION PICTURE NEWS.

Data turned in by the investigators is said to have caused several prominent financial eyebrows to elevate, and an equal number of index digits to gesture for silence. The summary is rumored to be extremely favorable to plans for a decided bull move in film securities listed on both the big board and the Curb.

Theatre grosses are reported to be very much improved in total over the figures for a year ago. This is claimed to have had an immediate reaction in banker interest in the stocks of concerns controlling large circuits of houses. The musical shows are clicking heavily outside New York, and many houses are running grosses never dreamed in pre-sound days.

Sales Grosses Jump

Distribution figures are maintaining a proportionate increase, and recently published net earnings for several of the major concerns, have proved beyond doubt that the public is keen for the new type of entertainment and patronizing it as never before.

Little, if any, professional activity is anticipated in film stocks until the customary period has passed for liquidation just prior to March 15, when first installments are due on federal income taxes. Downtown whisperings are very much to the effect that within the next sixty days Paramount, Loew's, Warner's and Fox, as leaders, will begin to feel the effects of the confidence that has been developed in professional trading minds by the confidential investigation.

This is construed as an initial move, or stage setting, for a real rally in the early fall, when the hard-working traders get into action after their summer vacations.

Meantime, the contents of the report on the industry are being guarded with a thoroughness and secrecy worthy of a billion dollar gold shipment to the sub-treasury building.

Insiders Refuse to Talk

Just how much the insiders or top executives among the film concerns know of what the banking groups have learned is anyone's guess. If they know, or suspect, they are keeping silent. If they don't know, those holding substantial blocks of various film stocks will be less difficult to jar loose as and when the time arrives for the professionals to get out their jarrers.

This much is admitted by downtown natives who know a vague bit about the report—film securities will be among the leaders in the next bull move, and may, in fact, be the bell-whethers for a general upswing of the entire list.

Next Best Thing

Baltimore—Scarcity of wide films did not stop J. Lawrence Shanberger from installing a full-stage-width screen at Keith's. Upon completion of the installation by Walker Screen, Shanberger projected "Show of Shows" in the center of the new screen and let it go at that. Others in town are expected to follow suit, including the Belnord, residential house in the Durkee string, and Warner's Uptown.

Overtures Made to Grauman to Run Hollywood House

Los Angeles—Sid Grauman's new venture, which is to mark his return to the local exhibition field, will be under way within 12 months, he states. He has been offered and is considering propositions by the Pellisier interests, which own the Wilshire and Western site, on which a theatre to cost between $1,000,000 and $3,000,000 is planned.

Certain property owners near the Chinese have approached him with regard to a new Grauman house.

Gary Cooper Not Satisfied As Star, Now on Ranch

Hollywood — Gary Cooper, Paramount western star, has gone into the "dude ranch" business. Cooper, born and raised in the wide open spaces of Montana, has started the Gary Cooper Guest Ranches at Gary, Montana, with the old Cooper ranch home being the center of attraction and interest.

The ranch is open for guests from June to October, with rates ranging from $100 to $150 per person. Individual cabins accommodate up to forty persons.

Judge Cooper is associated in the venture, and is now looking for suitable sites in Arizona with a view to establishing a similar "dude ranch" in that state. Later on, the pair may duplicate their Montana guest ranch in northern California.

St. Louis Witnesses Hot Competitive Show Battle

St. Louis—Paramount and Fox are in the throes of a competitive battle. "The Vagabond King" went into the Missouri with all seats reserved at a $1.50 top. Society buds, civic and political leaders were invited to lend atmosphere. Microphones were installed in the lobby to permit notables to say a few words to the outside world. Regular run of picture opens Friday.

The Fox, across the street, met the competition with "Happy Days," the Grandeur wide film feature.

Showman Gags—Old 'n New Tried To Jog Chi Trade

Chicago—Chain owners deny that business in the neighborhoods is slipping, but—

Admissions are being slashed in all sections of the town; lucky ticket awards of radios, cash, free admittances and other prizes are rife; padded programs with double talking features, extra newsreel time and special attractions are in vogue, the old amateur nights under newer and fancier names are being revived, and sundry other inducements conceived to stimulate trade are being tried out. In spite of all this—and before the dull season engendered in some neighborhoods by Lent is well under way—observers declare it is already so quiet in certain box-offices that one can hear the dandruff falling on the cashier's shoulders.

The latest to make 5-cent and 10-cent reductions in admission scales are the Crescent, Temple and Lorraine. The Pantheon, prominent north side house, cut its Sunday matinee price to 25 cents. All seats go at that figure up to two o'clock. Added feature attractions are being advertised at the Music Box, Rosewood, DeLuxe, Bugg, Adelphi and Howard.

Two out of every five of the smaller neighborhood houses all over town are staging Saturday night stunts that run from awards of cash and radio sets to nut contests and lobby dancing. Revivals of "amateur" nights, giving the neighborhood clowns a chance at the spot, are numerous, but are being billed as "Opportunity," "Discovery" and "Introduction" nights. The Chicago Better Business Bureau is awaiting the annual outcropping of meaningless bathing contests, suspecting a promoter's racket.

"Only the smaller houses with poor equipment are feeling it," said one chain man, confronted with the above observation. Maybe!

New Benefit Racket Makes Baltimore Debut

Baltimore—A new benefit racket was uncovered here when Keith's theatre was loaned Sunday night for the Mothers' Pension Fund. The racket is worked by two men who stand inside the auditorium entrance and as patrons enter, thrust programs into their hands and say, "this is a benefit performance, fifty cents, please." This is done despite the fact that Baltimore permits no sale of tickets for picture shows on Sunday.

Marx Brothers Signed

The Four Marx Brothers will star in a talker version of "Animal Crackers," for Paramount. Production at the Long Island studio.

Haines In A Western

Hollywood—The return of action stories to the screen marks the first appearance of William Haines in a Western. Fred Niblo will direct Haines in a Western, an original by Byron Morgan and Alfred Block.

The first of Pathe's operatic star group. Mary Lewis signs on the dotted line. Laura Hope Crews is the official witness. Miss Lewis is seated and the man in the case is E. B. Derr.

United Hits the Color Trail With Seven in 1930-31

United Artists has been sold on color. Seven of the company's 14 releases next season will use Technicolor.

"Whoopee" was selected as the first, Goldwyn using all color in the Eddie Cantor opus which gets under way March 15. Irving Berlin's first, "Love In A Cottage," will follow with 100 per cent Technicolor.

Dolores Del Rio's vehicle, Joan Bennett's "Smilin' Thru" and an unnamed Schenck production will likewise have all color. In the Del Rio vehicle, the star will not sing as originally announced. She will hum—just hum.

Howard Hughes' air picture and "Bride 66," the Arthur Hammerstein musical are others in the group. The latter two will have color sequences.

Dick Talmadge Plans A Comeback in Talker Series

Hollywood—Richard Talmadge will stage a comeback via a series of six sound and dialogue features which will be similar to his former athletic and stunt pictures made in silent form.

Talmadge will be producer of the series in addition to carrying starring honors, and launches production this month on the first picture. Exteriors on the latter will be made in Mexico with regulation sound apparatus.

O'Keefe, Dolan With Pathe

Hollywood—Walter O'Keefe and Bobby Dolan, song writing team, have been signed by Warner Brothers to prepare original musical numbers for "Sweet Kitty Bellairs." O'Keefe and Dolan were formerly with Pathe.

Oakie Now a Star

Hollywood—Jack Oakie, former stock broker's clerk who wise-cracked his way into pictures, has been elevated to stardom by Paramount. His first starring vehicle will be "High Society," by Octavus Roy Cohen. Edward Sutherland will direct.

Temporary Cut Is Rejected in Twin City Labor Fight

Minneapolis.—Open shop war in the Twin Cities, between the neighborhood theatre owners and the operators union is at a deadlock. Concessions made by the operators' union to the theatre owners have not been accepted.

The independent exhibitors seem determined to stick to their demand—"One Man in the Booth of Sound Equipped Theatres."

Franklin Amusement Corp., operators of a chain of neighborhood theatres in Minneapolis and two houses at Wilmar, Minn., is the latest recruit to join theatre owners against the union operators. Recently they served notice on the operators at the Park, one of the smallest houses the company operates in Minneapolis.

It is thought likely that similar step will be taken at the rest of the houses unless the demands of the corporation—a one-man operated booth—are met.

As yet no action has been taken by the local union on the ultimatum served by the management of the Bijou which has demanded that the union cut the operating expenses in the booth from $240 per week to $120 per week. The Bijou threatens to go open shop unless its demands are met.

Although the union has been seeking to make adjustments with the theatres the negotiations so far have been unsuccessful. The union maintains that any wage adjustment that they may make to the theatre is in no way to be considered permanent. They are willing to take a smaller rate "until business warrants payment of the present rate" but also stipulate that they shall have access and the right to check the books of the theatre any time desired.

In St. Paul the Aster and Mohawk are operating under the open shop policy. The unions are bannering these two theatres.

Velez, Del Rio on One Lot Too Much, So Lupe Goes

Hollywood—Over at United Artists they say it was tough business getting stories for Lupe Velez. The studio crowd, however, refuses to or is wise enough to ignore the fact that Dolores Del Rio is working on the same lot when talking about Lupe.

Anyway—and maybe it's entirely irrelevant—Lupe's option was not renewed when time came for a renewal. That takes Velez off the U. A. payroll and keeps Del Rio there. Lupe has signed a five year contract to star for Universal.

Columbia Closes 2 Deals; to Handle "Curiosities"

Wafilms, Inc., will produce a group of 13 "Curiosities" for Columbia, which will release the first on June 1 and one a month thereafter.

Milton Schwartz, Columbia foreign sales chief, has sold the "Prosperity Group" to Renacimiento Films, Madrid, for distribution in Spain and Portugal.

Big Circuits to Turn Back 1,000 or More Houses to Independents This Year

Shakeup at 'U' Studios Slated

Universal City-Reorganization of Universal's production force, which will be slashed to a minimum is reported planned, with few of present executives and stars to remain beyond their present option periods. No new pictures are to be made while Carl Laemmle, Jr., goes to New York to attend premiere of "All Quiet" and "The King of Jazz." While East he will set the new schedule, to be launched in May By Tod Browning with "East is West" starring Lupe Velez.

$1,144,529 Net in R-K-O's First Operating Year

Net of $1,144,529 after dividend on the preferred (excluding profit of $525,035 from sale of capital assets) was earned by Radio-Keith-Orpheum in 1929. This compares with net loss of $1,180,570 after preferred dividends (excluding $1,134,827 from sale of capital assets) in 1928. The profit in the company's first year of operation was made despite changes of equipment of theatres, and expansion of its film production and vaudeville facilities. For Jan., 1930, net after depreciation and provision for taxes is reported as $723,309 compared with $232,196 in January, 1929.

Says U. S. Companies Face Shortage in Quota Films

Unless immediate steps are taken, American companies operating in England face a serious shortage in quota films, 42 of which are required for 1930-1931 under the terms of the Films Act, according to Charles Wilcox.

The principal difficulty as Wilcox, who is managing director of British and Dominions Films Corp., Ltd., sees it, is lack of proper studio space in which to produce talkers. While quota pictures may be either sound or silent, Wilcox says the day of the silent picture is over in England, pointing out at the same time, that the facilities to produce talkers are inadequate.

American distributors, he continues, are apparently unworried despite the fact that three violations under the British law result in revocation of license to operate.

Wilcox is here to arrange for distribution of four pictures, "Rookery Nook," "Splinters," "Wolves" and "The Loves of Robert Burns," all of them recorded via Western Electric at his company's new studio near Elstree.

Opposes Aimee's Film

Des Moines—The Rev. John R. Richey, pastor of Aimee Semple McPherson lighthouse, in a sermon addressed to the members of the pastorate here, expressed himself as opposed to the film to be made by Aimee. The creed of the young people's organizations does not demand attendance at the theatres, says Rev. Richey.

A. T. & T. Denies Stock Ownership In Film Firms

American Telephone and Telegraph Company, in its annual report, states that, despite increases in Western Electric business due to sound, the parent company neither directly nor indirectly owns any stock in any motion picture enterprise.

The company which operates the Bell System says in its report that the Research Products earnings "obviously cannot be a material factor in an enterprise of the size of the Bell System."

The corporation did a $4,000,000,000 business last year, making this concern the largest privately owned corporation in the world.

Colorcraft Building Color "Lab" In Long Island City

With a broadcasting hook-up over WABC, the cornerstone of Colorcraft's new laboratory building this week was laid with Evelyn Laye, British star of Ziegfeld's "Bitter Sweet" musical play, acting as mistress of ceremonies.

The building, of concrete and cement, covers almost an entire block on the outskirts of the business district in Long Island City. It has been designed to house the processes that go to make for Colorcraft's special treatment of film for color. The building is expected to be ready for occupancy on or about April 1, at which time Colorcraft will begin turning out color film.

Keller-Dorian Interests Repurchase Color Process

London—Louis Blattner has resold rights in Keller-Dorian to the syndicate which originally controlled the color process, and the latter, it is understood, will immediately launch a $10,000,000 stock issue in America to finance marketing.

Blattner will retain still rights.

Norma and Irving To Travel

Hollywood—Norma Shearer and Irving Thalberg, M-G-M star and producer, respectively, will leave on a vacation trip to Europe as soon as Miss Shearer completes "The High Road." The couple intend to spend at least three months abroad, with Thalberg looking over the field for possible picture material.

Swing Toward Extended Runs Makes Producers Feel Small Houses Are Unnecessary

Between 1,000 and 1,500 small and medium-sized theatres annexed by producers in their wholesale raids on circuits during the last two years, are about to be turned back to individual operation.

The movement, rumblings of which have been heard for the last few months, will shortly crystallize into action and the unloading procedure gotten under way. It is anticipated by those familiar with the move that the big chains will reach their objective gradually, taking a year in toto before the move is over.

In making most of their deals for circuits, producer chains have found themselves in a spot where it became necessary to take all or none. This situation, purely one of trading, has loaded the big chains with a number of houses difficult to operate because of size and too troublesome to operate because of limited profit.

Today with the tendency toward long runs in all key cities gradually extending into semi-keys, distributors have discovered profits are obtainable in proportion which they never imagined possible and from houses which their theatre subsidiaries know how to successfully operate.

The extended run pictures-more profit swing has convinced several organizations that it is not necessarily numbers of theatres that count as it is calibre. In such a scheme of things, the small theatre has no place.

More Silents for Talkers; "Merton of Movies" Latest

Hollywood—Producers still can discover valuable talker production material among stories used several years ago for silent pictures. Paramount is continually digging into the files of the past with excellent results. Latest to be brought out and dusted off is "Merton of the Movies," which the company produced seven years ago with Glenn Hunter starred. Talker version of the Harry Leon Wilson novel will be produced under title of "Merton of the Talkers" with Jack Oakie featured.

M-G-M to Continue Series of Talking Dog Comedies

Hollywood—M-G-M has decided to continue its series of talking dog comedies. Zion Myers and Jules White have been assigned to prepare the third.

Myers and White were originators of the comedies and sold the idea to M-G-M executives, who allowed the pair to produce two. These were finished, but continuance of the series was held up pending decision of executives in the distributing branch of the company. Official approval has now been received from New York, and Myers and White will continue production of twelve pictures to complete the series.

Secret Sales Drives on '30-'31 Films Launched; Bars Down for Stiff Fight

Three Distributors Angling for Jump on Competitors—All Agreements Off

The tussle for playing time on 1930-1931 product is already under way. Secretly, at least three big distributors have had crews on a rampage selling numbers of pictures in blocks for next season.

In most instances, merely the highlights have been passed on to the exhibitor. Paramount, M-G-M and Pathe, the three companies now active, attempting to cash in on their good will with theatre operators sufficiently to induce sales by numbers of pictures rather than titles.

The understanding which prevailed among members of the Hays association at the outset of the 1929-1930 season that no sales pushes were to be launched until conventions wound up in June has been scrapped. The bars are, therefore, down. The scramble to ensue is expected to be the most hectic this industry has seen in many years.

The big companies are gearing themselves for contracts and if it becomes necessary to step on each other's toes to meet budgets, those toes are going to be trampled on

Goldwyn Drops Banky April 1; Blame the Accent

Hollywood—Vilma Banky, Hungarian beauty imported by Samuel Goldwyn and raised to stardom by him, leaves the Goldwyn payroll on April 1. Although the Banky departure will not be admitted, the period of exercising options has passed.

It is understood that Banky is being dropped by Goldwyn because of the heavy program outlined by the producer for the coming year. He expects to make three Coleman productions; one musical starring Evelyn Laye and a filmusical version of "Whoopee." In addition, there is a chance that Goldwyn and Ziegfeld will also produce a film version of "Simple Simon," current Broadway show. Aside from all that, Miss Banky speaks with an accent and these are the days of talkers.

Sloane Signs with RKO for 2 Years; His First a Sp'cl

Hollywood—Paul Sloane has been signed to a two-year contract as director by Radio Pictures. Sloane's long-term agreement came just before he completed direction of "Radio Revels" for the company, and after William Le Baron decided the picture was in the special class.

Technicolor Has Banner Year Over 1929 Period

Technicolor, Inc., enjoyed the most profitable year in its history last year, according to a financial report filed this week. Net income after all charges but before taxes for 1929 showed $1,173,930, equal to $2.28 a share on 513,127 no par common shares.

Starring Plan at Paramount Is Flexible

Hollywood.—Paramount's studio now is operating under a flexible policy as regards players, most contracts of headliners calling for either starring or featured roles, depending upon the production. Moran and Mack, George Bancroft, Clara Bow and Maurice Chevalier are the only players rating stardom in every picture. In the group usually starred in program pictures or featured in specials are: Ruth Chatterton, Richard Arlen, Buddy Rogers, Nancy Carroll, William Powell, Jack Oakie, Gary Cooper, and Dennis King. Mary Brian is classed as a featured player, but the company is building her for stardom.

Sennett Develops Color Process of His Own on Coast

Hollywood—A practical color photography process, simple and economical, is claimed by Mack Sennett after two years of experimental work in his own laboratories.

The comedy producer declines to describe his method of obtaining color in detail, but allows preliminary tests to demonstrate the quality of natural color obtainable by his process.

Several tests shown at Sennett studios last week are said to indicate that Sennett has secured color results which are highly satisfactory and that his process is practicable for general use.

Interiors and exteriors projected showed sharp and natural color values, without fringing or blur backgrounds or changing tints of the individual colors. Players were shown without makeup to advantage, and it was stated that the Sennett method eliminates necessity of any more lighting than for regulation black and white photography.

Claim is made that the Sennett process utilizes the ordinary camera without expensive attachments and that prints of negative shot can be obtained within twenty-four hours, as is the case with the regulation black and white film.

Although Sennett is still conducting experiments, it is likely that he will shortly provide for laboratory facilities to handle bulk negative and release print work, and make his color process available to all producers.

Columbia Celebrates 10th Anniversary in April

Columbia will celebrate its tenth anniversary during April by launching a national advertising campaign designed to reach trade and fan papers and nationally circulated magazines. Radio hook-ups and contests are also planned.

Edwards Finishes At M-G-M

Hollywood—Gus Edwards has finished his contract with M-G-M and returns to vaudeville, opening at the Palace, Chicago, on March 22.

Coast Stars Watch Step Preparing Income Taxes

Hollywood—The spirit of caution has settled over Hollywood. The high and mighty in the film colony are watching how and where they tread in preparing their income tax reports for 1929.

With the recollection of the conviction of Marjorie Berger fresh in mind, the boys and girls of cinema row are exercising care in adding up columns of figures.

The Treasury Department exacted some money from Corinne Griffith the other day. Tom Mix's treasury is $177,420 poorer today as a result of a slight orgy in check writing made necessary in order to meet discrepancies in his tax returns for 1925-26-27. Clarence Badger is another found guilty in the Federal Court on a charge of failing to pay the full amount of his tax for 1927. The government charged his income for that year was $102,672, calling for a tax of $13,410, whereas Badger paid $7,036. He was fined $1,000 and paid it.

Second Academy Sound School to Start Monday

Hollywood—Ten general lectures, given at the rate of one a week, starting Monday, comprise the second school in fundamentals of sound recording and reproduction to be held under auspices of the Academy of M. P. Arts and Sciences. Two hundred fifty "students" comprise the class. The undertaking is in charge of C. E. Sullivan, H. Keith Weeks, Walter Stern, Roy Pomeroy and H. G. Knox. Speakers and their subjects will include:

Fred Niblo, M. C. Levee, "The New Art of the Talking Screen"; Professor A. W. Nye, "The Nature of Sound" and "The Nature of Music"; Dr. Vern O. Knudsen, "Speech and Hearing" and "Architectural and Theatre Acoustics"; Ralph H. Tounsend, Dr. Donald MacKenzie, A. W. DeSart, Emory Huse and E. H. Hansen, "Recording Sound for Motion Pictures"; Nugent H. Slaughter, "Recording on Disc"; K. F. Morgan, "Re-recording (Dubbing)"; R. H. McCullough, F. L. Hopper and John O. Aalberg, "Reproduction in the Theatre"; J. P. Maxfield, "Accoustical Control in Recording and Reproduction"; Wesley C. Miller, "Illusion of Reality in Sound Pictures," and Douglas Shearer and L. E. Clark, "Practical Problems in Recording."

Garrett and Cohen in N. Y.

Sydney Garrett of London and Milton Cohen of New York, partners in Inter-Globe Export, arrived from London during the week.

Plan to Put "Teeth" of Arbitration In Credit Committees Hits The Rocks

Legal Battery Votes It Down Fearing Difficulties With Govt. on Adoption

Efforts to put the "teeth" of the arbitration system, outlawed by the Thacher decree, in the rules governing credit committees, approval of which was sanctioned by the Federal Court, have hit the rocks.

Sales managers and lawyers of distributor members of the Hays association held two meetings this week to consider such a proposal made by Gabriel L. Hess, general attorney of the association. Fear that adoption of such a plan might run the major companies into complications has resulted in death of the plan.

However, distributors have not abandoned their plan to work out arbitration in some form recognized as legally sound by the government. Acting in the belief that arbitration is a necessary adjunct in the conduct of distribution, the desire has been evidenced to continue it. The difficulty, however, rests in the method to be pursued.

In the meantime—and this applies to all sections of the country—the industry is lumbering along without adjustments of its disputes. First runs are pushing the prerogatives vested in them by virtue of their purchasing power to spot book when and as they please with the result that subsequent runs are facing what is perhaps the most complex booking situation in their history.

Henry Taft to Handle Credit Case

While no decision has as yet been made, it is probable that Henry W. Taft of Cadwallader, Wickersham & Taft will handle distributor's case in the Dept. of Justice appeal in the credit case, following death of Edwin P. Grosvenor, chief counsel in the case who died after an illness of six days with pneumonia. A former United States attorney, Grosvenor had a brilliant career as a lawyer and was known as a "trust buster."

Wall St.'s Eagle Eye Is Leveled on Brunswick Merger

Wall Street's inner circles are awaiting the tipoff on a hookup between Warners and Brunswick-Balke-Collender.

Negotiations were under way last fall and had reached the "hot" stage when someone balked and a deal was called off. Merger confabs were resumed a few weeks ago, when executives of both outfits got together to iron out difficulties which would pave the way for a strong entree in the radio-record-phonograph field for Warners.

Brunswick's terms are understood to be the cause of the holdup, as well as disposition of stock records at hand which are said to be valued at over $500,000.

Sound Equipment Needed in Orient, U. S. Dept. Told

Washington—The M. P. Bureau Division of the Dep't of Commerce, has received requests from Calcutta and Shanghai for cameras, projectors, pictures and sound equipment on an outright purchase, or a franchise deal. Further information may be obtained from the department, which has filed the orders as No. 43833 and No. 43832.

McCormack Film to Open

"Song o' My Heart," starring John McCormack, will open at the 44th Street in New York next Tuesday night. McCormack will be present at the opening, shortly after which he will sail for Ireland.

Del Ruth Gets New Deal

Hollywood—Roy del Ruth, director of several important Vitaphone features for Warners during the past two years, has been signed to a new contract by the company. First under the new agreement will be "Three Faces East," with Eric von Stroheim starred.

Chesterfield Signs Alice Day

Hollywood.—Alice Day will make "Hearts in Bondage" for Chesterfield. Edgar Lewis will direct.

W. E. Wins Round In Patent Suit vs. Warner at Philly

Wilmington, Del.—Supreme Court Judge Morris on Thursday denied Vitaphone Corp. and Warners an injunction to restrain Western Electric, Electrical Research and A. T. & T. from suing the Stanley Company under alleged infringement of patents on the sound reproducing device used by the latter in some of its theatres.

The electrics brought suit against Stanley several months ago and the action was postponed on several occasions.

Chicago Seen Leading 4 Week Pathe Sales Drive

Chicago—The Pathe exchanges have completed a four-weeks' sales drive on two-reel comedies, with indications, before final tabulation, that Dan Lorch's local division would be on top, with Indianapolis pressing for the lead. Lorch returned from Detroit just before the close of the contest with some contracts that may decide the winner. Chicago office threw a party at the Stevens, in recognition of the showing made by the local sales staff during the drive. A screening and entertainment followed the banquet.

Art Directors to Exhibit

Los Angeles—Art directors and scenic artists of the industry will have their work displayed in an exhibit now being arranged at the school of architecture, University of Southern California. Original sketches in water color, charcoal and pencil will be shown. Some of the designs are from the "Thief of Bagdad," "King of Kings" and "The Volga Boatman." Cedric Gibbons, Anton Grot, Van Nest Polglase and William Ihnen are among those to be represented.

"Bud" Welker at Aztec

San Antonio.—V. D. (Bud) Welker has joined the Aztec, recently leased by Publix, as director of publicity and exploitation. He is well known in theatrical circles, having been connected with the Interstate Amusement Co. for a number of years, during which time he acted in various capacities at the Majestic.

"Manslaughter," De Mille Hit, to be Sound Remake

Hollywood—Frederic March and Claudette Colbert will be featured by Paramount in the talker re-make of "Manslaughter." The picture is listed as a special. Former silent version was produced by Cecil De Mille several years ago with Thomas Meighan and Leatrice Joy in the featured spots.

Says Arbitration Depends on a New Form of Contract

A new contract "fair" and one that is "brief so that all persons in the industry might know what it contained" is held to a prime consideration in straightening out arbitration, in the opinion of Charles R. Metzger, attorney and general manager of the Associated Theatre Owners of Indiana. More equity must be exercised and the rights of small exhibitors protected. Indiana's plan, as outlined by Metzger, follows:

By CHARLES R. METZGER
Attorney and Gen'l M'g'r, Associated Theatre Owners of Indiana

Indianapolis—A fair contract upon which to base arbitration. This should be brief so that all persons in the industry might know what it contained, a condition which has never prevailed in the past due to the unusual length of all former contracts.

Definite provision in the contract that where a theatre was closed for sixty days or longer that all existing contracts with that theatre should be automatically cancelled. This provision should lead to fairer dealings and should enable theatres to keep in business which was not the case in the past when unfair contracts were enforced. In most cases of theatre closings, this has been due to the fact that pictures were bought at too high prices or that pictures were of such poor quality and lacked interest so that the public did not care to see them. This provision should lead to fairer rentals and to better product being made by the producers.

Product either to be made before sale to exhibitors or described with sufficient definiteness in the contracts so that it may be easily recognized and substitutions detected. Where there are substitutions—all work sheets, descriptive announcements of the product and all other advertising mediums used in selling such product to the exhibitor should be admissible as evidence in determining substitutions. Where substitutions are made, the exchanges to notify the exhibitor of such substitutions and then it to be optional with the exhibitor whether he will accept such substitutions.

Some definite provision whereby any exhibitor may determine whether a picture he desires is actually "open" for the dates he submits so that holding pictures back by the exchanges from the exhibitor who is entitled to them may be avoided.

The same kind of treatment for all exhibitors, rather than one sort of treatment for the chains and another for the independent exhibitors as to playing order, and similar matters.

Definite elimination of unreasonable protection in any situations.

The elimination of all score charges so that there will be one lump sum rental which will include the complete rental for

Thacher Decree No Bar, Myers States

By ABRAM F. MYERS
President, Allied States Ass'n

Washington—It is a matter of regret that anyone should take the position that the Thacher decree is a bar to the settlement of industry disputes by arbitration. The opinion of the court stresses the good effects of arbitration and the decree expressly states that it does not constitute a bar to negotiations looking to the establishment of a lawful arbitration system.

So far as the decree is concerned only two conditions are imposed on

Moral Justice, Not Rigid Regulations, Proper, Lehr Says

By OSCAR LEHR
Treasurer, M. P. T. O. of Eastern Missouri and Southern Illinois

St. Louis—My conception of arbitration is: the equitable adjustment of disputes on a basis of moral justice rather than rigid rules of law and evidence. Further, an arbitration should be permitted to exercise a wide latitude of discretion in the hearing of any controversy to which he is selected as such.

It is my opinion, based upon observation over a number of years, that parties to an arbitration hearing always felt satisfied and relieved to know that the established system of arbitration in our industry afforded quick relief to the party with a meritorious claim or defense.

The members of our organization to whom I have put the question, personally, have indicated an overwhelming desire for a return to arbitration. It is their opinion that arbitration was the great leveller in our industry and the only means by which they could secure a prompt and efficient disposition of their grievances with distributors whenever a breach occurred in their contracts.

There exists a great variety of ideas as to how it should be conducted, but the sum and substance of the whole thing seemed to be that the responsible business man exhibitor wants some system which assures a fair hearing, taking all the facts, both written and oral, into consideration.

Two-Two System Seen as Cure-All For Arbitration

A two-two system to supplant the three-three arrangement in practice until arbitration was banned by the Thacher decree is seen by the M. P. T. O. of Southern California as one way out of the present muddle.

R. D. Whitson, president of that unit which is associated with Allied, explains how the members of his organization view the situation and its solution:

By R. D. WHITSON
President, M. P. T. O. of Southern California

Los Angeles—One of the main objections of past experience with arbitration in this industry was that the arbitration did not take in all phases of particular cases. The fact that a salesman oversold an exhibitor was not allowed as testimony at a hearing. Formerly, an exhibitor was forced to accept arbitration whether he wanted it or not, which was not particularly pleasant.

There were objections in some other sections of the country, according to report, that the secretary of the particular Film Board of Trade sat in at arbitration hearings and made suggestions on the case currently before the board.

Under the enfforcement of awards system, many exhibitors felt that it was particularly unfair that companies other than the one involved should take any attitude or action on account of the particular award to the exchange involved. Some exhibitors objected to the set up of 3-3 on the arbitration boards as being too cumbersome. Then exhibitors figured the exchanges would always hang together regardless for their own member, while exhibitors on the board were likely to be swayed in rendering an award for the exchange rather than the exhibitor.

Can Clarify Contracts

As Judge Thacher pointed out, the compulsory arbitration under contracts was not equitable. A buyer should not be compelled to agree to arbitration before there is any controversy over the contract ready for signature.

While a member of the local arbitration board for nine months, I saw a considerable change. The degree of fairness on both sides increased tremendously, and the board was really a fair and impartial instrument of arbitration.

In considering future arbitration, all arbitration, all phases of a particular situation should be taken into account, whether or not they are part of the particular contract, they should be allowed in evidence. There should be a decided effort on the side of producers to have all details of the proposition clearly stated in the contract. The exhibitor in turn should insist on contracts being specifically written.

As far as the future is concerned, arbitration should only be in effect as necessary due to the peculiar nature of this business. An award under arbitration should be limited to the one exchange involved.

Arbitration Sound And Must Prevail, Fleming Declares

Although arbitration is not perfect, its advantages in settling disputes between exhibitor and exchange has demonstrated its advantages over the years, in the opinion of the Northwest Independent Exhibitors' Ass'n. J. J. Fleming, secretary and treasurer of the organization, believes that exhibitors at large will eventually come to the realization that the continuance of arbitration is necessary in the conduct of their businesses. His views follows:

By J. J. FLEMING
Secretary, N. W. Ind'p't Exhibitors Ass'n

Portland, Ore.—Through my contract with arbitration boards over a period of several years in deciding disputes arising between the distributors and the exhibitors, I have found its advantages many, and although it is not perfect. I consider that as an industry both exhibitors and distributors have benefitted materially by it.

Not only is litigation expensive, but the delays common to it would have been disastrous to the industry, as settlement would not have been arrived at until the productions over which the dispute arose had lost 75 per cent of their value, resulting in great financial loss to the exhibitor, if the case were decided against him and he were forced to play the pictures many months after release date; or great loss to the distributor as the pictures would have been so old that he would have no opportunity to dispose of them to a competitor and salvage a part of the rental he could have otherwise secured.

I have often heard exhibitors complain about distributors winning so many more cases than exhibitors. Such a condition is only natural because the largest percentage of cases arise from an attempt of the exhibitor to evade playing productions contracted for. Arbitration has been a means of settling these disputes with dispatch and with a minimum cost to both parties concerned.

To my mind, arbitration is also preferable to settling disputes through the courts, because the body of men hearing these cases are conversant with the practices, problems and technicalities of our industry, and they have eliminated, to a great degree, a settlement on technicalities and substituted a settlement on equity in justice to both parties.

The statement has been made from time to time that exchange managers sitting on these boards do not give the exhibitors the same consideration as they do the exchanges. However, I have found both exhibitors and distributors endeavoring to show the utmost fairness to both parties in the dispute, and if leniency was shown, it was favorable to the exhibitor rather than the distrbutor.

In the past week a case arose in this territory. There have been two or three court hearings, but the matter is still postponed. No settlement has been arrived at, and the attorneys' fees are mounting, and the settlement is delayed. With arbitration, a request by both parties for an immediate hearing, a decision would have been made

Thinks Board Should Be Uneven in Number

By M. A. LIGHTMAN
President, M. P. T. O. of America

Memphis—What is right and wrong with arbitration and how can it be remedied?

I consider the question of such broad significance that it is difficult to answer without resorting to generalities. In the first place arbitration might be beneficial for one business and at the same time harmful to another. My opinion of arbitration as applicable to the motion picture business is that if properly functioning it is almost indispensable.

Blum of Maryland For Plan Favored By Allied Chiefs

By HERMAN BLUM
President, M. P. T. O. of Maryland

Baltimore—Arbitration, to my mind, is the most equitable and just method of settling differences between men and men. It is the oldest method, older than man-made laws, for it came into existence with the first tribe of men where differences between the members were arbitrated by the elder of the tribe. Arbitration as such was and must remain voluntary between the parties concerned, in opposition to man-made law which is compulsory. Every sensible and fair-minded business man should be in favor of arbitration.

Your second question is, "Which kind and how conducted?" I think the policy of arbitration outlined by the leaders of Allied exhibitors at the preliminary conference held in New York answers your question. Under that plan, if adopted, both methods under discussion would be permissible. Either the old way of three and three, or one, one and one, which a good many of the exhibitors favor, could be used.

Either method would bring the same results. I hope that there will be an understanding reached between the different interests of the industry whereby all difficulties can be easily settled by the only practical method—arbitration.

By looking back over the past year we can very well appreciate arbitration as opposed to law, which has tied the industry into an almost untangible knot.

Iowa Behind Plan To Change System On National Basis

The M. P. T. O. of Iowa is making plans for an exhibitor meeting at which a new uniform contract including arbitration will be discussed. This move is contingent upon similar action by exhibitors in other states so that the proposed agreement will be binding upon all participating exhibitors as provided for in the Thacher decree.

How Iowa views the present situation and its solution is explained by E. P. Smith, president of the state unit, in the following analysis:

By E. P. SMITH
President, M. P. T. O. of Iowa

Des Moines—Since the decision was handed down in the United States District Court by Judge Thacher, affecting arbitration as previously conducted under the standard uniform contract, every one interested in buying and selling motion pictures is wondering if it will be possible to negotiate a contract, acceptable to both the distributor and exhibitor, without violating the decree. The decision enjoins the distributor from entering into any agreement which would require the exhibitor to submit to arbitration or to compel the exhibitor to comply with any award rendered against him. It is an accepted fact, therefore, that if negotiations are to begin, they must originate with the exhibitor. The decision emphasized one fact above everything else, not previously recognized, that if the exhibitor is to be bound he must be legally represented in the making of the contract. Just what plan could be devised to satisfy the court and be practical enough to permit its accomplishment, is the subject that is causing the greatest amount of discussion.

Exhibitors Must Organize

If the 15,000 independent exhibitors in the United States were organized into one compact body, it would be a simple process. We have two national organizations, entirely independent of each other and neither of them has any large number of bona fide members. All state organizations are definitely represented in one or the other of these national organizations, but the individual exhibitor is not bound to the state organization, except as it pleases him to be.

Very few are actual bona fide members because they have not agreed to pay regular membership dues and have not agreed to abide by the rules and by-laws of their association. Some state organizations have none to abide by. It is necessary, therefore, if the exhibitor is to be legally represented by his association or by special representatives of his own choosing from the membership, that he become an actual bona fide member.

At a recent conference of exhibitors in

Des Moines we discussed this particular point at some length as well as the benefits to be derived from arbitration. All agreed that the present condition was deplorable and, if possible, some plan should be worked out whereby the exhibitors of the country might delegate the proper authority to their representatives so that a contract providing for arbitration might be negotiated. Our attorney, John D. Denison, of Des Moines, was called in conference and he informed us that we would be entirely within our rights and that our members could be legally represented providing they were actual bona fide members.

He informed us that various organizations were making contracts for the benefit of their members and were legally authorized to represent them. All railroad employees are so represented and each organization negotiates its own contract for its members, under the Barclay-Howell bill which authorized such action; that if a standard uniform contract was desired it could be negotiated by the representatives from the several exchange territories, if the exhibitor members legally authorized them to represent them.

Seeking New Contract

Our present plan calls for a general meeting of all exhibitors in this exchange territory who believe in arbitration and who wish to participate in negotiating a uniform contract that provides for it. The meeting will be open for general discussion of everything that has to do with such a contract. If the majority of those present desire to proceed along the lines previously outlined, representatives will be chosen and authorized in writing to represent such qualified members in the contract negotiations. Those who do not wish to participate or who are not members of the local organization represented by this committee, will not participate in the privileges secured by such a contract nor will they be bound by it.

We would not hope to accomplish anything by this effort unless exhibitors in other states took similar action and selected exhibitor representatives to meet at some central point to decide upon ways and means of procedure. If I remember correctly the idea of arbitrating disputes in the motion picture business originated with the exhibitors. All are practically agreed that arbitration is desirable if fairly administered. Exhibitors and distributors disagree only in the rules and methods by which it is conducted.

Arbitration, as a principle, fits no other business as it does the motion picture business and no other business needs it so much. If the rules are fair, the arbitrators honest and voluntarily selected by the interested parties with no limitations as to powers as far as right or wrong is concerned, arbitration should be a positive benefit to the industry. If so constituted arbitration should be included in the contract, available to those who desire it; but not compulsory.

Under such conditions it would no doubt be legalized in every state and save the industry many thousands of dollars each year. No exhibitor or distributor can afford to spend his money in the courts, with so perishable an article at stake, when a legitimate system of arbitration will settle the argument immediately, without cost, when properly supported by public opinion and the good-will of the industry.

contractual considerations as ours does had best try to devise means of keeping out of court as much as possible. There is a bad psychology in lawsuits—it gives one the feeling that he is not a law abiding citizen if he is being constantly sued—also much time and money is a necessary evil accompanying all lawsuits. If you win you lose. I cannot help but be in entire sympathy with a fair system of arbitration properly set up and properly functioning.

First, what is a fair system of arbitration in a business as involved as ours? Frankly, a board of three and three is not so good. I think that to be more effective a board of arbitration should be uneven in number. This is not practical in a business that abuses arbitration in the manner that ours does. I have seen the time when there were as many as 100 cases up for consideration in our small zone in Memphis. Naturally, if an odd member is to serve on the board, he should be outside of this industry. How are you going to arrange for 100 such appointments in a single month? So it seems to me that the first important consideration is to devise means of dividing the cases that come up into two classes—namely, the minor offenses that could be tried by the old method of three exhibitors and three exchange managers and the important cases which should be tried by a board of either three or five members in which instance the fifth member is chosen by the remaining board or by the ones involved. And most important of all there should be a standing committee to decide whether a case has enough merit to be tried at all and if it is unimportant it should not be admitted, thus saving many hours of unnecessary work that should be settled directly between the principals. Many cases do not involve as much value as the time they take up.

As to the old method. I think that the unfairness of the old set-up has been grossly exaggerated. I believe that the majority of the cases that bitration is illegal an exhibitor does not have to abide by the decision. have been tried received due consideration and that the boards generally awarded what they considered fair verdicts. Of course, there are exceptions to all rules. That is true in any and all matters of any importance. I do think that there is room for improvement and the sooner we work it out the better for all concerned.

These ideas represent my opinion of arbitration where it is legal and enforceable. Now comes the Thacher decree and decision which takes away the "teeth" and also a more general realization that in states where ara subject to the avoidance of much confusion and annoyance which results where picture rights and sound are sold separately.

Where the exchanges fail to deliver subjects to a subsequent run theatre according to the contract playing arrangement, subjects to be cancellable by the exhibitor if he has to secure other product with which to fill such dates missed by the exchanges. This provision would eliminate much of the over-buying which has occurred in this industry.

Suggestions for Improving Arbitration

One exhibitor and one distributor to hear most cases except where the parties request three and three. The use of boards with the larger numbers has always been a waste of valuable time for all persons involved. Also it is well to note that distributor representatives served as arbitrators as part of their regular duties to their employers and which was covered by their regular compensation, but exhibitor arbitrators have usually never been compensated for their traveling expenses or services. It is desirable that some compensation for such exhibitor arbitrators be worked out.

Arbitrators to be allowed to consider all facts surrounding the making of the contract and also to consider any conditions arising after its making which might affect the situation. Arbitrators to make a finding in their award as to prices if this issue is brought up in arbitration, with power to make an award at reduced prices where this appears proper, but with the right to refuse to accept the award but to consider the contract cancelled by the distributor. Arbitrators to have the power to investigate any situation carefully where price is involved with the expenses of such investigation to be borne by the party against whom the final award is made.

A real attempt in arbitration to arrive at a just and fair award based upon the merits of the controversy and the intention of the parties.

Awards to be enforced by courts by competent jurisdiction if either party declines to abide by or promptly comply with such awards. An additional provision that neither exhibitor nor distributor who has failed to comply with an award, may appear as a complainant in any other arbitration case until there has been compliance with such prior award.

The above is a brief summary of some of the grievances which have led to the present situation in the industry, a statement of the conditions to which the independent exhibitor objects, and some of the thoughts which have been expressed by independent exhibitors towards working out an improved condition in this industry. These matters are not presented with the idea of attacking the policies of any particular producer or distributor but with the thought of bringing these issues into the open so that an attempt may be made to settle them in a sane manner for the best are probably unequaled in any other indus- interests of the industry. It is unfortunate

Reproduction on Upgrade, States W. E. Executive

Steady and "gratifying" improvement in the quality of sound reproduction in theatres is noted by Electrical Research Products, according to H. M. Wilcox, operating manager.

An average of about 75 percent of the houses visited by Wilcox during the last six months of 1929 qualified under the "good" classification, while 84 percent visited during the first six weeks of 1930 were rated good.

This situation, according to Wilcox, has been brought about by the realization that the quality of reproduction is reflected in the attendance.

"Theatre managers realize this," Wilcox said, "and as a result one hears increasingly good reproduction in a larger number of houses. Better supervision and a greater interest on the part of managers and operators are the main causes responsible for this change.

"Our nation-wide service staff which regularly inspects our equipment installed in more than 3,500 theatres, was founded on the theory that the best way to eliminate trouble is to forestall it. As a result more than 93 percent of the calls made by our service organization are purely preventative.

"In January this staff made almost 11,000 calls and less than 7 percent of these were because of trouble of any kind. During the month upward of 105,000 performances were heard over the Western Electric equipment in the United States.

"Showmen, realizing the importance of good reproduction, are going to greater pains to see that they and their staffs realize the points that make for good reproduction. Pictures are being rehearsed in advance of showing to assure proper volume control, while equipment is being studied zealously and cared for jealously.

"It is this combination of watchful inspection and growing alertness that makes good reproduction an automatic part of every well run theatre. It promises so bright an outlook that we are willing to predict that the figure of 84 percent of theatres with good reproduction can be raised considerably in the future."

W. E. Installations in U.S. 5,500 by Beginning of '31

More than 5,500 theatres of the United States will be wired for Western Electric sound reproduction by the beginning of 1931, the company anticipates. Installations now are being made at the rate of 50 weekly.

There now are 3,629 theatres of the United States wired for Western Electric equipment and 1,565 in the foreign field.

British Columbia Admissions Up 5% Unless Tax Cut

Vancouver—"Theatre prices will be increased five per cent the amount of the amusement tax, generally all over British Columbia, and the old amusement tax tickets reinstated, unless the government can see its way clear to carry out the policy of the late government and grant some relief this year to the theatres which are absorbing the tax." This was the statement of J. R. Muir, manager in British Columbia for Famous Players Canadian operating the major portion of the theatres in the province.

"The amusement tax," says Muir, "can only be collected constitutionally by the way of tax tickets purchased by the patron. These tickets proved such a nuisance that the late government obtained an agreement from the theatres that the theatres would absorb the tax. Prices have remained stable and as far as the public are concerned there is no amusement tax."

British Columbia theatres, in order to keep pace with developments, have had to spend more than $500,000 in additional capital for sound equipment, and will have to spend considerably more.

"The amusement tax paid by the theatres amounts to five per cent of their gross income; in many cases, much more than their net profits, and has to be paid when they are frequently operating at a loss.

"This tax was never intended to impinge upon the theatres," continued Mr. Muir, "and our agreement with the Liberal government when we assumed this great responsibility was that the tax was to be gradually reduced until as a super-tax and nuisance tax it be gradually eliminated.

"The late government carried out this promise to the letter, and the present government in reducing the amusement tax from five to three per cent would be keeping faith with the people, preventing an otherwise inevitable increase in the prices of amusement, and relieving the patrons of the embarrassment of an amusement tax with its attendant nuisance and annoying qualities."

Arbitration Sound And Must Prevail, Fleming Declares

on the day of the hearing and the costs eliminated.

In this case one of the exhibitors was forced to make several trips from Seattle, a division manager was forced to make a trip from Los Angeles, it was necessary for the three parties concerned to engage attorneys, the complainant was forced to put up a bond, court costs were incurred, the matter is still unsettled, and further costs will be incurred. I am confident that a few repetitions of similar cases will result in a demand on the part of the exhibitors for the return of arbitration as being the most expedient method of settling disputes and differences arising between the distributor and the exhibitor.

Exhibitor Doesn't Know Rights

One serious objection to past arbitration procedure was the fact an exhibitor who was brought before an arbitraton board for the first time would be very unfamiliar with his rights, proper procedure, proper method of presenting witnesses to testify in his behalf, etc. This left the first time exhibitor at a distinct disadvantage, and many times cases were decided unfavorably mainly because the exhibitor was placed at a disadvantage.

Block booking definitely enters into arbitration because of the fact that other pictures are included on the same contract with the one which brings a case before the board. On a group contract signed by the average small exhibitor, all pictures should be treated alike. Many disputes arise between exhibitor and exchange because of the fact that film companies sell big pictures on percentage with a substantial guarantee, and this does not allow the exhibitor to recoup the losses sustained on poor quality pictures that are also on the same contract at a flat rental figure.

As I see it, an exhibitor organization should be maintained for the benefit of all independent exhibitors in a specific territory,, and a small percentage of the film rentals of the independent exhibitors should go to maintain the exhibitor organization. This association should, and could, make an analysis of each case brought against any exhibitor by an exchange, or by an exhibitor against an exchange. This organization could maintain counsel in the exhibitor's behalf if necessary, and be able to advise the theatre owner of his rights and procedure under the pending case in arbitration. In many instances, the association would naturally be able to straighten out all difficulties without the necessity of particular cases reaching the arbitration board for hearing.

Favors 2-2 System

In the set-up of a board of arbitration, I would recommend it be composed of two members—one each representing the theatre owners' association and the distributors. If these two cannot agree on a particular case, a person from outside the industry can be mutually decided on and brought into the case for final decision. But neither the secretary of the Film Board of Trade nor the secretary of the exhibitors' association should be permitted to sit in on the testimony or discussions prior to the reaching of an award.

No arbitration board award should preclude either side from taking the case to court, but either side should have the right to present the testimony and findings of the arbitration board in the court action.

One of the main reasons for so many arbitration cases in the past can be traced to the financial situation the smaller exhibitor found himself in as a result of apparent collusion between the sales forces of the larger distributing corporations. In order to obtain the product of any merit from the distributors, the small exhibitor was forced to sign for product on a rental basis he could not well afford to pay. Opening up of competition between the large exchanges would have meant film rentals for the exhibitor within possibilities of grosses obtainable. Such a condition for the independent exhibitor would have prevented him becoming involved in an arbitration case because he was decidedly oversold through signing up on percentage for the big pictures and being definitely over his head on prices quoted for the poor pictures on the same contract.

Our contention is that there are two sides in the relations of the exchange and exhibitor. Each should have their own set ups in regard to organizations. The distributors currently have their film boards of trade, which are maintained and paid for out of film rentals secured from exhibitors. The latter should have their own organization, which should also be maintained through a certain small percentage of the film rentals paid by independent exhibitors. With this method of organizations on both sides, lots of cases that ordinarily go to arbitration could be settled without that procedure, and a much more business-like procedure would be followed all down the line.

the right to establish an arbitration system. One is that arbitration shall be voluntary, the other is that the awards shall not be enforced by the coercive action of exchanges not parties to the controversy. This leaves the broad field of arbitration as practiced by many other industries open to this industry, and a fair and lawful method of settling disputes should be adopted at once.

Producers who seek to avoid the spirit of the decree by acting "individually" in exacting advance deposits in lieu of arbitration will only contribute to the prolongation of existing unfortunate conditions. There are many ways in which arbitration can be made effective short of such extreme measures and these should be carefully canvassed in a general conference, such as the 5-5-5, before a policy is adopted that is out of step with law and progress.

Metzger Says Arbitration Depends on New Contract

that this industry presents a history of short-sighted policies, broken promises and unsatisfactory dealings which are probably unequaled in any other industry existing in this country today.

It would seem that fairness to the countless "little fellows," the smaller exhibitors who have been largely instrumental in making this industry the generally great success that it is today, would demand that these problems should be solved fairly and equitably so that the several branches of the industry may go forward in harmony. This industry faces too much external opposition in the forms of censorship, unfair taxation and other measures designed to stifle or seriously injure it, to be torn asunder by the intolerable and unfair conditions which should never have arisen had there been more thought given to fairness to all engaged in it rather than to excessive profits for a very few, the latter attitude being at the bottom of most of the troubles of this industry, throughout its existence.

Any vague or insincere promises to "quiet the exhibitors down" for the present moment are not the proper answer to the present dilemma in which the industry finds itself. The present discord and division among the several branches of this industry is resulting in poor morale and will surely have a bad permanent effect upon the industry. Good product must be made available under fair contracts and dealings which must prevail or the motion picture industry, as many another industry has experienced in the past, will find itself losing public favor and patronage and harassed out of existence by adverse legslative enactments. The Associated Theatre Owners of Indiana stand ready at all times to join with other constructive groups within the industry to work out a proper long-time policy for the guidance and welfare of the industry.

Can Save $31,850,000 and Clear Fox Financial Muddle, Trustee Plan Claims

Their's Means Far More Cash, At Less Cost, Than Lehman Plan, They Assert

Intimating strongly that the Lehman plan for refinancing Fox Film and Fox Theatres would prove too costly, Halsey, Stuart and Co., "at the suggestion of the trustees," swung into the battle this week with a plan of its own which claims to hold total advantage in cash or its equivalent of $31,850,000 over the former.

This is how it is figured, according to Halsey, Stuart.

Assuming that all the warrants and conversion privileges under the two plans were exercised, the trustee plan will retire $20,000,000 more debt than the Lehman plan and will require 100,000 less Class A shares to swing it. The block of Class A stock is computed at $28 a share, making a total of $2,800,000. It is also claimed the trustee plans provides $9,050,000 additional in initial cash over the Lehman plan, thereby making a total of $31,850,000.

What Halsey, Stuart proposed, on behalf of John E. Otterson of Electrical Research Products, Inc., and Harry F. Stuart, is this:

Introduction

The funds to be provided under this plan are to be obtained from the issue and sale of $40,000,000 principal amount of 10 year 6½% sinking fund convertible gold debentures of Fox Film Corp. (hereinafter called "Film"), hereinafter more particularly described, and from the issue and sale of 1,150,000 shares of Class A common stock of Film, and the issue and sale of Film (subject to an offering to stockholders) of $40,000,000 principal amount of 10 year 7% sinking fund convertible gold debentures of Fox Theatres Corp. (hereinfater called "Theatres").

The debentures and Class A common stock of Film are to be offered to the stockholders of Film as hereinafter set forth, and these offerings are to be underwritten by an underwriting made or obtained by the underwriters under an agreement between Film and the underwriters, under which the undertakings of the underwriters shall be subject to the terms and conditions of this plan.

I.

Securities to be Created

Fox Film Corp.

1. Film will create an issue of $40,000,000, principal amount, of ten year 6½% sinking fund convertible gold debentures (hereinafter called the Film debentures), redeemable, at the option of Film in whole at any time, or in part, on any interest payment date, on thirty days' notice, at their principal amount and accrued interest plus a premium of 5% for 5 years from their date, and thereafter at a premium of 1 per cent. (1%) less for each succeeding year until maturity. The Film debentures will be convertible at any time after six (6) months from the date thereof and within five (5) years after such date into Class A common stock of Film at the rate of thirty (30) shares of such Class A common stock for each one thousand ($1,000) dollars principal amount of Film debentures. The trust agreement under which the Film debentures are issued shall provide that Film shall in each year, set aside 15 per cent of its net earnings as a sinking fund to be applied to the redemption by lot of Film debentures at the then redemption price not exceeding, however, $2,000,000 in any one year. The trust agreement shall contain appropriate provisions to protect the conversion rights in the event of a merger, consolidation or sale of assets, and to prevent dilution in the event of stock split-up, stock dividends, rights to subscribe, or the like.

2. The capital stock of Film as now authorized by certificate and amended certificates of incorporation heretofore filed, shall be increased so that the authorized capital stock shall consist of 5,000,000 shares, divided into 4,900,000 shares of Class A common stock and 100,000 shares of Class B common stock.

The number of directors shall be increased from eight (8) to twelve (12).

An amendment to the certificate of incorporation of Film will be perfected so as to provide that commencing with the annual meeting scheduled to be held April 15, 1930, the Class A common stockholders will have the exclusive right to elect five (5) of the directors and the Class B common stockholders will have the exclusive right to elect seven (7) of the directors, and, so as to further provide that if Film, at any time on or after Oct. 15, 1929, fails to pay four (4) consecutive quarterly dividends of at least $1 per share, then the Class A common stockholders will have the right to elect nine (9) of the twelve directors and the Class B common stockholders will have the right to elect three (3) of the directors until such time as Film again pays four consecutive quarterly dividends of at least $1 per share, at which time the Class B common stockholders will again have the right to elect seven (7) of the board of directors.

The foregoing amendments shall be accomplished by the filing of amendments previously authorized by the stockholders at meetings held on Sept. 16 and 19, 1929.

The respective rights of the present 820,660 shares of Class A common and 99,900 shares of Class B common stock new issued and outstanding shall otherwise remain undisturbed except as changed in accordance with the foregoing.

The authorized and unissued Class A common stock shall be issued or reserved for issuance as follows:

1,200,000 shares of the Class A common stock are to be reserved for issuance upon the conversion of Film debentures;

Would Save $20,000,000 in Debt and 100,000 Shares of Class A, Is Claim

1,150,000 shares of the Class A common stock shall be offered to the stockholders at $30 per share;

1,729,340 shares, the balance of the authorized Class A common stock as increased, are to be available for issue for future corporate purposes.

Fox Theatres, Corp.

Fox Theatres Corp. (hereinafter called Theatres) will create an issue of $40,000,000 principal amount of ten year 7% sinking fund convertible gold debentures, (hereinafter called the Theatres debentures) redeemable, in whole or in part, at the option of the corporation at any time or from time to time on 30 days' published notice at the principal amount thereof and accrued interest, plus a premium of five per cent (5%) for five years from their date, and thereafter at a premium of one per cent. (1%) less for each succeeding year until maturity, convertible at their principal amount into Class A common stock of Theatres at a price to be determined by the underwriters at the time the issue is authorized, but not less than $10 per share during the first year, and thereafter $15 per share. The trust agreement under which they are issued shall provide that Theatres shall not, so long as any of the Theatres debentures are outstanding, mortgage or pledge any of the assets of Theatres except for current loans in the ordinary course of business and shall provide that the Theatres shall in each year, before paying any dividends on its Class A or Class B common stock, set aside all of its net earnings up to the sum of $2,000,000, cumulatively, as a sinking fund to be applied to the purchase of Theatres debentures at not exceeding the redemption price and to the extent Theatres debntures cannot be so purchased to the redemption of such debentures.

II.

Offerings to Stockholders

The Film debentures shall be offered for subscription at 98% of their principal amount and accrued interest, and 1,150,000 shares of the Class A common stock of Film shall be offered for subscription at $30 per share to holders of the Class A common stock and Class B common stock of Film in proportion to their holdings thereof. Such Class A common stock and Film debentures shall be offered for subscription to the stockholders at the earliest practicable date in accordance with the requirements of the New York Stock Exchange, it being understood that the rights to subscribe for the Class A common stock shall expire twenty (20) days after the date of such offer.

The Theatres debentures shall be offered for subscription at their principal amount to the holders of the Class A common stock and Class B common stock of Theatres in proportion to their holdings thereof. The rights to subscribe for the Theatres debentures shall be evidenced by warrants or certificates which shall be issued to stockholders of Theatres of record at the earliest practicable date, said rights to expire twenty (20) days after the date of issue of such warrants or certificates.

Fox Directors Rejected Trustee Plan Because They Charge It Meant "Ruin"

Sensational Statement Says Stuart and Otterson Were Bent on Destruction

Bad faith, selfish ends, control and a desire to destroy Fox Film and Fox Theatres on the part of Halsey, Stuart and the telephone company, acting through Harry L. Stuart and John E. Otterson, are among the principal reasons set forth by the board of directors of the Fox companies for their refusal to accept the so-called trustee plan of refinancing.

Otterson and Stuart, trustees with Fox under terms of the agreement signed on December 3, 1929, and now repudiated by William Fox, deliberately set out to block the Lehman plan and sought to throw the Fox companies into receivership, the board declares in a "hot shot" statement issued prior to the stockholders' meeting held in New York on Wednesday.

That statement, in which no words are minced, was incorporated into the voluminous records of the stockholders' powwow and purports to explain at length why the directors, with the exception of Winfield Sheehan and Saul Rogers, determined their way out was via the Lehman plan. The explosive text follows:

1. The so-called trustees mentioned in the eleventh hour Halsey, Stuart plan are H. L. Stuart and John E. Otterson. H. L. Stuart is president of Halsey, Stuart & Co., Inc. John E. Otterson is president of Electrical Research Products, Inc., which is a 100% owned subsidiary of American Telephone & Telegraph Co. (through the Western Electric Co.) That plan will therefore be referred to as the Halsey, Stuart-Telephone plan.

Sought Receivership, Is Claim

2. The board of directors on Feb. 13, and Feb. 14, 1930, accepted a plan of financing submitted by Banc-america-Blair Corp., Lehman Brothers and Dillon, Read & Co., which was prepared by the Banc-america-Blair group at the earnest solicitation of the corporation and Fox Theatres Corp., at a time when the Halsey-Stuart-Telephone group were trying to drive the companies into receivership and ruin, in which they well nigh succeeded.

3. The companies have since been formally notified by the Banc-america-Blair group that all the cash requirements of the Banc-america-Blair plan have been fully underwritten: and that plan has become legally binding on these companies and on the bankers. The failure of the companies to carry that plan into effect would involve an immediate obligation on the part of the companies of nearly $1,500,000.

4. The presentation and acceptance of the Banc-america-Blair plan alone averted the catastrophe that the Halsey, Stuart-Telephone group and the so-called trustees were endeavoring, to bring about for their own ends. The companies became not only morally but legally bound to that plan, subject only to its approval by the stockholders, besides which they are satisfied that it is the only plan possible of consummation in view of the situation that confronts the companies.

5. The Halsey, Stuart-Telephone plan is impossible of consummation without the active consent and cooperation of William Fox and the latter has refused and continues to refuse to cooperate in any plan, the effect of which would be (as in the Halsey, Stuart-Telephone plan) to turn over control of the companies to the Halsey, Stuart-Telephone group. Mr. Fox's refusal is based upon grounds fully explained by him and that the board believes to be in the best interests of the companies. Among many other evidences that have satisfied the board of directors of this unselfish attitude on the part of Mr. Fox, the board of directors understands that he has recently refused to sell his Class "B" stock in the companies to the Halsey, Stuart-Telephone interests for upwards of $15,000,000, on the ground that he would not betray his fellow stockholders into their hands and for, their ulterior purposes. He feels that cooperation by him in the consummation of any plan, the effect of which would be to place the control of these companies with those interests, would be an equal betrayal on his part.

Whilst Mr. Fox has agreed to transfer his "B" stock to Mr. Delafield, president of the Bank of America, Mr. Howell, president of the Commercial National Bank and Trust Co., and Mr. Bernard M. Baruch, as voting trustees, in whose ability and fairness he has confidence, the board of directors feels that he is fully justified in refusing to transfer his stock to unnamed voting trustees to be selected by the Halsey, Stuart-Telephone interests.

Deny Financing Arrangement

6. Halsey, Stuart is claiming preferential contracts for fifteen years on all financing of the companies and is also claiming from Fox Theatres Corp., the sum of $1,000,000, which claims the board of directors is advised are, and believes to be baseless, but which if the Halsey, Stuart-Telephone group secures control of the companies, it is likely to enforce. Electrical Research Products Inc., (the 100% owned subsidiary of the telephone company, of which Mr. Otterson is the president) is claiming that it has a fifteen year contract requiring the exclusive use of its patented talking-picture apparatus by the film corporation and the theatres corporation. The companies claim on the other hand that the electrical company has no such contract and that they are free to purchase or lease apparatus from competitors of the electrical company. The board of directors is satisfied that one of the purposes of this effort of the Halsey, Stuart-Telephone interests to seize the control of the film and theatres companies is to secure the execution of such a contract and to shut out competition, and for other ulterior purposes that have been explained to us.

7. In order to prevent any financing of the needs of the film and theatres companies and to bring about a receivership, Halsey, Stuart have threatened the enforcement of their alleged preferential banking contracts (not only against the companies but also against the Bancamerica-Blair group, after that group had agreed to undertake the financing) and have in every possible way aided and abetted for the appointment of receivers and have endeavored thus to bring about the destruction of the Companies.

Sponsored Receivership and Tried To Foist "Illegal" Plan, Is Claim

8. Until the receipt of this eleventh hour Halsey, Stuart-Telephone plan more than six weeks had elapsed since receivership proceedings were instituted and more than three weeks since the Bancamerica-Blair plan was first submitted and in the meantime neither Halsey, Stuart, nor the so-called trustees had made any suggestion whatever with respect to a plan except the impossible and illegal plan submitted on Feb. 17, which was promptly rejected by the board of directors and which the alleged trustees have since sought to repudiate.

9. Mr. Fox claims, and this board of directors believes, that he is justified in his claim, that the alleged trustees (Messrs. Stuart and Otterson) not only long since abandoned their alleged trust but have actually and repeatedly disregarded, abused, repudiated and violated it —by applications for receivership, the assertion of unjustified claims against the companies, the presentation of an impossible and illegal plan, attempts to further their own interests at the expense of the companies and efforts to prevent any financing of the companies, except such as would vest control of the companies in the Halsey, Stuart-Telephone group.

10. Since the acceptance by the companies of the Bancamerica-Blair plan, the Bancamerica-Blair group in reliance upon that acceptance and in order to prevent the disintegration of the properties of the companies, and a disastrous receivership, have taken up more than $10,000,000 of the companies obligations.

Charge Bad Faith

11. As evidence of the bad faith of the Halsey, Stuart-Telephone interests in putting forth this plan at the eleventh hour, the Bancamerica-Blair plan was mailed to every stockholder of the companies more than two weeks ago, so that every stockholder might have the opportunity of studying it and reaching a decision before voting on it, personally or by proxy. The Halsey, Stuart-Telephone plan, on the other hand, (the contents of which was first made known to the companies last evening and is now for the first time made known to their boards of directors) follows a plan presented by these same interests on Feb. 17. In that plan they provided for the granting to them of options on 500,000 shares of the Class A stock of the film company for five years at $20 per share, in addition to a 10 per cent commission on the securities to be issued. In that plan they also sought to deprive the Class "A" stockholders of all voting power and to require the Class "B" stockholders to surrender their stock in return for 1½ shares of Class "A" stock for each one share of Class "B" stock. That plan was promptly rejected by the boards of both companies. Since then nothing has been heard from those interests until now, when they come forward disavowing their previous effort and seeking to confuse the situation by suggesting the impossible.

12. Whilst the so-called Halsey, Stuart-Telephone plan may appear to be less expensive than the Bancamerica-Blair plan, it must be borne in mind that substantially all the securities to be issued under either plan are to be offered to the stockholders and that the difference in cost, if any, will therefore be reflected in enhanced

Offered Fox $15,000,000 For "B"

John E. Otterson, of "Erpi," and Harry L. Stuart, of Halsey, Stuart and Co., offered Fox $15,000,000 for his Class B voting stock, but the offer was rejected because, according to Fox, he "refused to betray his fellow stockholders." This statement is part of the memorandum prepared by the Fox directors in explaining reasons for rejecting the trustee financing plan.

Lehmans some weeks ago offered Fox $12,500,000 for his holdings, but were turned down.

Bitter Fight Over Trusteeship Pact Looms Between Fox, Stuart-Otterson

"B" Stock Held in Escrow by Agreement Proving Pivotal Point in Battle

"Little Acorns..."

"It is said that of little acorns great oaks do grow. Here we have a little $1,600 acorn which grew into a sturdy $300,000,000 oak. Why was not well enough left alone? The very Fox chopped down this healthy, thriving tree with his own hatchet. The world knows much about avarice and cupidity, and I wonder if this is not another illustration. May he now be heard to complain? He has placed himself in that position which justifies his assault upon the character of men? I think not."—From Justice Levy's decision dissolving injunction sought by William Fox to restrain issuance of proxies to vote the Class B stock of Fox Film.

Presaging a long court fight on the issue, William Fox intends to continue his efforts to prevent carrying out of the trusteeship composed of himself John E. Otterson, Harry L. Stuart. This was made clear Wednesday when immediate appeal was taken from Justice Levy's decision in Supreme Court, dissolving the temporary injunction to prevent Otterson and Stuart from voting the "B" stock, and in effect upholding the trusteeship agreement made last December.

In his opinion denying the motion for the injunction and vacating the temporary stay, Justice Levy wrote:

"This is a motion by the plaintiff, William Fox, for an injunction pendente lite (1) restraining the defendants, Harry L. Stuart and John E. Otterson, from voting his Class B stock in Fox Film Corp. and Fox Theatres Corp. and from exercising any other rights pertaining to said stock; (2) enjoining the defendant, Bankers Trust Co., from granting proxies on the stock of the plaintiff at present in its possession; (3) prohibiting Stuart and Otterson from performing an agreement between them and the plaintiff; dated Dec. 3, 1929, and (4) restraining all three defendants from preventing the plaintiff from regaining said stock from Bankers Trust Co.

"Extreme limitation of time, voluminous affidavits and briefs having been submitted within practically a few hours of the time when a decision becomes imperative, renders it inadvisable, if not, indeed, impossible, to do more than sketch the outlines of the controversy between the parties.

"About two years ago Fox Film Corp. and Fox Theatres Corp. entered upon a period of extensive expansion under the personal direction of Fox. Both companies undertook the construction and operation of a number of costly theatres in some of the principal cities of the United States. In addition, many established motion picture theatres were acquired through purchases of capital stock by the Fox companies.

"Extensive public financing became necessary, and this was accomplished through Halsey, Stuart & Co., Inc., which in the last three years has placed with the public securities aggregating over $48,000,000 and has, besides made special unsecured loans totaling almost $16,000,000.

"During the first half of 1929, through the efforts of the plaintiff, Fox Theatres Corp. acquired 660,900 shares of Loew's, Inc., at a cost of approximately $72,000,000, and a Fox Film Corp. contracted for a substantial interest in a chain of English theatres at a cost of about $2,500,000. No permanent finncing of the $92,500,000 involved in these commitments was arranged. Instead, the companies resorted to short term loans, the latest maturing on April 1, 1930.

"Due to a combination of circumstances, including (A) the refusal of the Department of Justice of the United States to sanction the acquisition of the shares of Loew's, Inc., and a threat of a suit under the Clayton act, (B) A serious automobile accident to Fox which incapacitated him for several months, and (C) the stock market depression in the fall of 1929, the Fox companies found themselves in November of that year, owing about $92,000,000, all of which had to be paid or funded in the course of but a few months. Brokerage accounts of Fox and his associates, for which 223,400 shares of Loew's, Inc., was pledged as collateral, required additional margin.

Court Unimpressed

Charges by William Fox that he has been made the victim of a conspiracy to seize control of his companies from him have left the court "not at all impressed," Justice Levy states in his decision dissolving the injunction sought by Fox to restrain the Otterson-Stuart group from voting the 50,101 shares of Class B stock held in escrow by the Bankers Trust Co. under terms of the trusteeship agreement entered upon by Fox, Otterson and Stuart on Dec. 3, 1929.

Recites Various Fox Loans

"It appears from the answering affidavit that this hypothecation of corporate property was effectuated for the benefit of individual obligations of Fox, his family and close friends. Unsecured as well as secured bank loans of both companies were overdue, and others were maturing. Payments had to be made on account of the purchase of various chains of theatres. A loan of $10,000,000 obtained from Bankers Securities Co. of Philadelphia was about to become due. Obviously, a critical exigency existed and the situation demanded prompt action in order to preserve the valuable equities of the Fox companies.

"It was with this emergency confronting him that Fox turned for assistance to Stuart and Otterson. The former's company, Halsey, Stuart & Co., Inc., had underwritten and distributed $12,000,000 of notes maturing April, 1930, while the latter's concern, Electrical Research Products, Inc., had loaned Fox Theatres Corp. $15,000,000 which would fall due on Feb. 26, 1930. After extended conferences and discussions, during which Fox was represented by most eminent counsel, a written agreement was entered into on Dec. 3, 1929, between Fox on the one hand and Stuart, Otterson and Fox 'as trustees' on the other.

Justice Levy, in Decision, Riddles Fox Charges He's Victim of Conspiracy

"Under this agreement Fox agreed to deposit with Bankers' Trust Co., as escrow agent, all his voting stock in both corporations, namely, 50,101 shares of Class B stock of Fox Film Corp. (representing a majority of the outstanding B shares), and 100,000 shares of Class B stock of Fox Theatres Corp., constituting all the outstanding B shares of that company. He further agreed that if the trustees worked out a plan of refinancing which required the deposit of his B stock he would release the same from the escrow arrangement and deposit it under the plan of reorganization, even if that plan involved his loss of voting control of the companies.

"B" Stock Goes to Bank

"In addition, he covenanted that he would forthwith deliver to the trustees the resignations of the directors and officers of the companies except his own, as President. The trustees on their part agreed that they would endeavor to prepare a plan of reorganization and that they would in the meantime undertake to negotiate with the creditors and others interested, with a view to obtaining their forbearance and co-operation during the period of the preparation and adoption of such a plan.

"Under the agreement no plan of reorganization was to be submitted to the creditors and stockholders for approval until and unless approved as to legal questions by counsel for the trustees, Hughes, Schurman & Dwight.

"In accordance with this agreement, Fox on Dec. 3, 1929, deposited his shares of class B stock of both companies with Bankers' Trust Co. to be held by it in escrow until at least June 1, 1930, unless the escrow agreement was terminated sooner by notice to that effect furnished by at least two of the three trustees.

"In the interim Fox appointed Bankers' Trust Co. his agent 'during the life of this escrow' to execute and deliver proxies running in favor of the trustees, authorizing them or a majority of them to vote at any regular or special meeting of the stockholders of the companies.

"In reliance upon the execution of the agreement and the resulting escrow of the stock, the trustees at once set to work in an effort to retrieve the situation and obtain the indulgence of the creditors. By the evening of Dec. 6, 1929, the consent of bank creditors whose claims aggregated $6,875,000 had been obtained to forbear until the plan of reorganization had been completed and adopted; Electrical Research Products Holding, as has already been observed, a claim of $15,000,000 had agreed to forbear; Bankers' Securities Co. had agreed to extend its loan of $10,000,000 for three months, and various other creditors, too numerous to mention, had similarly agreed to forbear and co-operate.

"In addition to this the trustees had procured loans of about $3,975,000 on the representation that the agreement had been executed and was fully in effect. As a result of their labors the trustees had only to borrow about $1,500,000

A Bombshell

Justice Levy's decision permitting John E. Otterson and Harry L. Stuart, as trustees, to vote the "B" stock held in escrow in the vaults of the Bankers Trust Co., exploded a bombshell in the Fox camp. The decision is held to throw open the validity of the trusteeship agreement of Dec. 3, 1929 but is advanced by proponents of the Halsey, Stuart plan as sufficient to forestall carrying out the Lehman, Bancamerica-Blair, Dillon Read plan approved by Fox stockholders.

Need for Vote on Lehman Plan Cut by Modification

Modification of the Lehman Bancamerica-Blair Dillon Read plan for refinancing Fox Film to avoid any change in capital structure, was decided upon just prior to opening of the meeting of stockholders, as a result of the court decision enabling John E. Otterson and Harry L. Stuart, as trustees, to vote the controlling B stock under the trusteeship agreement of Dec. 3, 1929. The decision rendered impossible the creation of convertible debentures proposed in the plan.

Under terms of the modification, the approval of Class A stockholders was unnecessary for adoption of the plan, but voting on it was carried out according to schedule.

Proponents of the Fox-favored Lehman plan held proxies from a majority of holders of Class A shares, but lacked the necessary two-thirds of the Class B. This forestalled creation of the cumulative convertible preferred.

In the case of Fox Theatres, proxies upon a majority of the Class A were obtained, it was claimed, but with Otterson and Stuart voting 100,000 shares of Class B, the convertible debentures could not be approved. Following is the modification suggested by directors and adopted by the bankng group:

Bancamerica-Blair Corp., March 5, 1930.
Lehman Brothers,
Dillon, Read & Co.,
New York, N. Y.
Dear Sirs:

At the meeting of the stockholders of Fox Film Corp., now being held, there are held by proxies in favor of the approval of the plan of financing embodied in your letter dated Feb. 11, 1930, the votes of the holders of a majority of shares of Class A common stock but less than two-thirds of the shares of Class B common stock. Accordingly, while your plan will be approved, it is apparent that the vote necessary to create the 7% cumulative convertible preferred stock contemplated by the plan cannot be obtained.

There have been received by the proxy committee of Fox Theatres Corp. favoring your plan proxies upon a majority of the shares of the Class A common stock of said corporation, but as the voting power in respect of the 100,000 shares of Class B stock will be exercised by Messrs. Otterson and Stuart, Fox Theatres Corp. will be unable to create the convertible debentures as contemplated by the plan.

The boards of directors of Fox Film Corp. and Fox Theatres Corp. have considered the matter and propose to you that the plan of financing embodied in said letter shall be modified as follows:

1. Instead of creating an issue of 7% cumulative convertible preferred stock and amending its certificate of incorporation as provided in Clause 2 of Paragraph I of said plan, and instead of an offering of such preferred stock as provided in Paragraph II of said plan, Fox Film Corp. shall forthwith file the certificate of increase of number of shares and classification of shares and the certificate of increase of directors from eight to twelve authorized by the meetings of the stockholders for subscription, in lieu of said preferred stock, 1,250,000 shares of Class A common stock at the price of $20 per share.

2. The compensation of the syndicate which you have organized to underwrite said offering of preferred stock shall be, in addition to the other compensations provided by the plan, nine per cent. of the aggregate subscription price of said common stock, or $1.80 per share upon the number of shares so offered.

3. In lieu of the ten-year 7% convertible debentures to be created by Fox Theatres Corp. pursuant to Paragraph I of the plan, Fox Theatres Corp. will create an issue of $40,000,000, principal amount, of ten-year 7% debentures, redeemable in whole or in part at the option of the corporation at any time, at 105 per cent. of their principal amount and accrued interest, and bearing non-detachable warrants entitling the holders thereof to purchase during the first year 10 shares of Class A common stock for each $100 debentures at the price of $10 per share, and thereafter 7 shares of Class A common stock of the corporation at the price of $15 per share. The trust agreement under which said debentures and warrants shall be issued shall provide that the corporation shall in each year before paying any dividends on its Class A or Class B common stock set aside all of its net earnings up to the sum of $2,000,000. cumulatively, and in addition thereto, all proceeds of the exercise of warrants, as a sinking fund to be applied to the purchase of debentures at not exceeding the redemption price, and to the extent debentures cannot be so purchased, to the redemption of debentures. There shall be pledged as security for said debentures the corporation's equity in the stock of Loew's, Inc., and the stock held by the corporation in Fox Metropolitan Playhouses, Inc., and Fox-New England Theatres, Inc.

4. In lieu of the conditions specified in Clause 7 of Paragraph VIII of said plan, Fox Film Corp. and Fox Theatres Corp. will indemnify and exonerate you and hold you harmless from and against all loss, damage, claims and expense, including counsel fees, because of any action taken by you under the plan as modified and arising from any claim, suit or other proceeding by any one claiming any preferential banking contract with either Fox Film Corp. or Fox Theatres Corp.

Except as so modified, all the terms and conditions of the plan, including without limitation all the conditions of your obligations and the obligations of said syndicate, or any other syndicates which you may cause to be organized pursuant to the plan, as set forth in Paragraph VIII of the plan, shall continue unchanged and unaffected.

If these modifications are accepted by you. the plan as so modified shall be resubmitted to the stockholders of Fox Film Corp. upon the reconvening of the stockholders' meeting, and as so modified will be submitted to the stockholders' meeting of Fox Theatres Corp., and if the plan as so modified is approved by a majority vote of the stockholders present or represented at said meetings, Fox Film Corp. will forthwith make the offerings pursuant to the plan as so modified to stockholders of record March 7, 1930, the subscription period in the case of the debentures to expire March 17 and the subscription period in the case of the common stock to expire March 27, 1930; and Fox Film Corp, will tender to you under the plan the debentures and common stock not subscribed for by the stockholders at the office of Bancamerica-Blair Corp., 24 Broad St., New York City, on April 1, 1930, having complied with all conditions and obligations on their part to be performed under the plan.

Very truly yours,
FOX FILM CORP.,

When Films Need Fixing on U.A. Lot, "Fitz" Fixes

Hollywood—It looks as if George Fitzmaurice is developing into the 'relief" director on the United Artists lot. Latest "firemen's call" assignment is to step in for the final week's shooting and retakes of Samuel Goldwyn's "Raffles" with Ronald Colman starred. Harry D'Arrast started the production, and will get full credit for direction.

Fitzmaurice directed the remake of "New York Nights" with Norma Talmadge starred, after the picture had been originally completed by Lewis Milestone. The latter struggled through the production with a number of miscast parts, and had signed with Universal after studio executives discovered what was wrong with the Talmadge offering.

In between the two relief assignments, Fitzmaurice directed "The Bad One" with Dolores del Rio for United Artists.

Shakeup at U. A. In Boston

Boston—Hardy Lotz, manager, and John J. Darvin, salesman at United Artists, have quit to join the State Rights Exchange at Detroit. Charles Stern was shifted from New Haven to fill Lotz's post, while Frank Scully resigned from First National to succeed Darvin.

Fox Charged with Plot in Buying of Stock of Loew's

That oft-criticized move by Fox in acquiring a large holding in Loew's, which generally is credited with being the principal cause of the company's present difficulties, is slated to be aired in Supreme Court, Brooklyn, on a show cause order issued by Justice James A. Dunne. The other defendants are Nicholas M. Schenck and David Bernstein of Loew's.

There are a number of hot shots directed at the defendants in the action, including allegation that they nicked the theatre film for $9,000,000 in secret profits. It also contains allegation of the 15-year-preferential deal with Halsey, Stuart for financing and with Electrical Research for recording and reproducing equipment, which has been an issue in the receivership and refinancing hearings concerning Fox. Halsey, Stuart and Electrical Research insist such agreement exists, but this has been denied by Fox.

The court order directs the defendants to show cause why all the stock they purchased in Loew's should not be resold, why Electrical Research should not be enjoined from attempting to collect the $15,000,000 advanced for purchase of the stock, and Halsey, Stuart from collecting $12,000,000 similarly advanced, as well as $1,000,000 as fee for handling the deal; why accounting should not be paid of the $9,000,000 in "secret profits" allegedly made in the deal, and required to reimburse stockholders for any loss sustained from enforced sale of the stock.

The complaint charges that Fox and the other defendants "conspired" to make Fox the most powerful figure in the film business; to use funds of the non-voting stockholders of the Theatres Company for their benefit.

"Monstrous profits were saddled onto the stockholders of the Theatres Company," the complaint says. "Fox sought to be the leading man in the film business. The defendants exhibited a ruthless disregard for the interest of the stockholders of the Theatres Company."

Called Breach of Faith

"The entire conspiracy," the complaint also charges, "was extravagant and ruinous and constituted a gross breach of confidence of the non-voting stockholders. All of the conspirators knew that the Theatres Company would not be able to repay this gigantic indebtedness within the short period of a year or to pay the interest on the indebtedness. They knew there was a doubt of the legality of the contract."

The government already has started suit to determine whether the Fox-Loew deal is a violation of the anti-trust laws, says the affidavit. It also contends that the Theatres Company was merely a holding corporation for the other Fox enterprises and that it has no assets save such as accrue to it from box office receipts.

Class A shares in this corporation, it is pointed out, are non-voting; and Fox owns 100 per cent of the Class B shares which were voting shares, and thereby held absolute control over the company. Fox is alleged to have used the Theatres Company as a special vehicle for handling the stock of the merger of the Fox interests and Loew's by the purchase of the Loew's stock; that he unloaded the non-voting Class A stock on the public and then was in a position to vote the resources of the corporation any way he desired by casting his 100 per cent of voting Class B stock for his own purposes.

Defendant's, it is charged, acquired virtually all of the Loew's, Inc., stock at prices ranging from $32 to $70 and unloaded this stock at $125 a share on the Theatres Company, for a profit of about $9,000,000.

When the market crash came the Loew stock went into a slump, it is asserted, and the whole transaction has caused heavy loss to the stockholders of the Theatres Company. While a number of plans for refinancing have been considered and proposed, "all are alike disagreeable to the stockholders, who, in any event, stand to lose an additional four million dollars."

Sullivan Sews Up Two Systems for Cartoon

Hollywood—Animated cartoons in color will soon make their appearance on the market as a result of deal just closed between Pat Sullivan and Technicolor and Harriscolor whereby he has exclusive use of each process for animated color cartoons over a term of years.

Sullivan was on the coast closing this deal for the past two months with Clark Thomas, his business associate. Sullivan expects to move his plant to the coast, and will launch production of the Felix, the Kat series in color, sound and synchronization.

Broughton with Sono-Art

Hollywood—Cliff Broughton, previously associated with Mrs. Wallace Reid in production for the independent market, has joined Sono-Art as an associate producer.

Betty Compson Gets Lead

Hollywood—Betty Compson has been assigned the featured spot in "Hawk Island," which RKO will produce. Following this Miss Compson moves over to Paramount for one of the leads in "The Spoilers."

Install Oliver

Cambridge, O.—H. W. Starrett has sold an Oliver reproducer to the Strand, operated by the C. & M. Amusement Co.

Bandits Killed at Detroit

Detroit—Two bandits were shot and killed by policemen in the attic of the Harper. The policemen had only a beam of light as their target in the close range battle. The policeman on the beat became suspicious when he saw a light in the theatre, and inquiry brought the response "Everything's all right." Five shots were fired at the policeman, who ran to the street and instructed a passerby to summon assistance.

A Sellout

Hollywood—One short paragraph of inside Hollywood gossip appearing in a recent issue of a fan magazine distributed through a national store chain resulted in a complete and instantaneous sellout of the issue in Los Angeles. The "chatter" item linked the name of a prominent California political figure with a film actress in a romantic way.

A few days after the particular issue appeared in local stores, some unknown person made the rounds and bought all copies in bulk. When investigation of the rapid sales was made by a reporter of Motion Picture News, he traced the demand to the short item, figuring either someone bought all copies to protect the official or a smart politician had gathered them up for future use.

The official named in the story has already announced his candidacy for a high state office—and is married.

TheatreTechnique Helps Sell Church In Wisconsin Town

Milwaukee—Where some pastors have gained publicity through adverse criticism of theatres and the pictures they show, the Rev. T. Harry Kelly, pastor of the Reedsburg Methodist Episcopal church at Reedsburg, has been using the technique of the theatre in his Sunday night sermons with success.

Variety is the keynote of Dr. Kelly's work and with his bent for dramatics he achieves unusual effect and decidedly effective sermons. The church has been wired so that six color mixtures are possible in the platform lighting.

A large Bible, constructed of wood and canvas, when opened discloses a small stage, apparently behind a page of the book, in which a hole has been torn. Bible stories are illustrated on this stage with tableaux.

"Evening in the Garden" was one of the pastor's most effective presentations. Palm fronds and oranges were received from St. Petersburg, Fla., and a fountain spurted water in a bed of flowers. An artificial scent gave the whole church fragrance. When the choir sang, "There is a Fountain Filled with Blood," red lights played on the fountain. The electrician used a slide to throw a rainbow on the platform.

Dr. Kelly prepares his program in detail, including six cue sheets for the electrician, the organist, the director of music, the director of speaking parts, the head usher and himself.

Forst Gets "U" Post

Hollywood—Emil Forst has been appointed head of the foreign literature department at Universal by Carl Laemmle, Jr. Forst will comb the field of foreign material for picture possibilities.

Hollywood—Following completion of "The Arizona Kid," which is now in production on Utah locations, Alfred Santell will direct "The Sea Wolf" for Fox.

Fox Meeting Ends In a Victory for Fox Favored Plan

nicality and then refusing to sign the affidavit and threatened to throw out Conboy's proxies. However, upon advice of Untermyer he refrained from doing so.

The meeting was adjourned soon after, as was meeting of Fox Theatres, with proponents of the Lehman plan claiming a landslide victory variously estimated at ten to one on the Fox Film vote and twenty to one on the Fox Theatres vote. It was said that Fox Film had voted for the plan by about 602,900 votes to 35,000 and Fox Theatres by 1,000,000 for the plan had comparatively few against it.

Warners to Remake Curwood's "River's End"

Hollywood.—Warners have purchased screen and dialogue rights to James Oliver Curwood's "The River's End" and have spotted it for production on next season's program as a special.

"The River's End" was produced by Marshall Neilan for First National about ten years ago and introduced the First National franchise t oexhibitors at that time.

A musical version of Elmer Rice's play, "See Naples and Die," will be produced by Warners in color under direction of Michael Curtiz. Joe Jackson is preparing the adaptation, while original music will be written by Arthur Hammerstein.

Russian Films at Seattle

Seattle—The first of three pictures filmed in Russia is being shown at the Olympic by the Seattle branch of the Friends of the Soviet Union. The film is entitled "Seeds of Freedom" and deals with the overthrow of imperialistic Russian government. It was produced by the Moscow Art Theatre and stars A. Leonidoff. "Krassin," showing the work of Russian flyers, in saving the Italian flyer, Nobile and his party; and "The Land of the Soviet," showing the flight of Russian flyers from Moscow to New York, via Seattle, are the other two films to be shown in subsequent weeks.

• Sidelights on Big "Show"

J. E. OTTERSON and Harry L. Stuart, storm centers with William Fox in the present controversy, arrived just before the meeting opened, wearing broad smiles. "I'm always happy," Otterson said in reply to a MOTION PICTURE NEWS query as to why the broad smile.

Fox, too, was wreathed in smiles as he pounded the gavel for attention. A moment later, there was a buzzing when word got around that Justice Levy had handed down a decision refusing Fox an injunction to restrain Otterson and Stuart from voting the B stock deposited under the trusteeship.

Immediately followed a 20 minute adjournment ostensibly to give the directors opportunity to pass upon the Halsey, Stuart plan. They cited 13 reasons why they felt the plan should be rejected. They chose to term it the "Halsey, Stuart-Telephone" plan.

Winfield Sheehan and James R. Grainger soon were up on a table viewing the proceedings, as the event began to resemble a football game with standees on all sides of the hall. Soon after, Otterson and Stuart were perched atop tables viewing the proceedings.

There was considerable difficulty in hearing the various speakers, by various stockholders. Maybe, Western Electric would have donated an amplifier was Samuel Untermyer's suggestion.

That Supreme Court decision, upholding the trusteeship agreement was the subject of many conversations in the various huddles taking place throughout the hall.

When asked to vote with the other trustees against the Lehman plan, William Fox wanted to know who were the trustees. Told they were Otterson and Stuart, Fox said he was sorry but that he couldn't vote twice, and queried Richard E. Dwight as to whether he didn't think it rather late to ask him to vote.

"Better late than never," was the rejoinder.

Dwight's suavity and unfailing good humor won him a number of friends, as well as points in the heated discussions. He refused to get excited or even raise his voice.

The Fox-Halsey-Stuart vendetta is the way that Emory Buckner, former U. S. district attorney in New York, described the jam of Fox and his former bankers.

Just Ruled Out

When Arthur Berenson, Boston attorney for a group of Class A stockholders, served notice of protest that any action taken by the stockholders' meeting would be attacked as illegal by his clients on the ground that proper notice had not been given, Chairman William Fox quickly retorted,

"Overruled."

Together?

William Fox, Fox Film Theatres and his principal enemies, Halsey, Stuart and Electrical Research Products, probably will get together—in one action, at least, for they are five of seven defendants in a suit charging "a gigantic conspiracy" action in alleged unloading of Loew stock on non-voting stockholders of Fox Theatres, filed in Brooklyn.

THERE was a real classic in repartee between Buckner and Robert T. Swaine, following adjournment of the sessions. Speaking to newspapermen, the pair kept up a running fire of quick sallies and rejoinders.

When eats were brought in during the melee, differences were forgotten with a lot of the big shots hurrying to get chow even when the fate of their plans involving millions were in the balance.

'Tis said that when the sheriff appeared on the scene some weeks ago at the home office, he found real difficulty in deciding just where to post his notice of service.

There were so many coppers on hand when the sessions opened that it looked like a communist meeting. And later developments added to that illusion.

However, they probably were there to prevent smoking, as well as to keep order. For a while, it looked as though a riot call might be forthcoming.

Charges that Fox had packed the meeting drew some hisses, although quite a few home office employees were in the room, either as stockholders or interested spectators.

Wonder what paper company will get the "buy" on the bales of proxies which were turned in at the meeting?

The meeting, one of the most colorful in the history of the business, was held in that part of the home office building which was once used by the eastern production unit, and many a budding player received training on the same spot.

Arthur Berenson, Boston lawyer representing a small group of "A" stockholders who had filed a petition for receivership, made a strong plea to the voters for support of a receivership plan. He disturbed Fox considerably, and at one time in the heated controversy between the two, it looked like a fist battle.

Fox told Berenson to sit down, and the lawyer dared the chairman to put him down. Fox took the challenge by telling Berenson that if he didn't get off the floor he would "go for an ambulance ride, instead of chasing one." Even that didn't throw Berenson, who told Fox that "he wasn't big enough to put him into an ambulance."

"CONFIDENT" Swain of the Lehman group told a group of newspapermen that the "Halsey-Stuart-Telephone" plan never did have a chance of adoption. One reporter asked later if "Swain was a member of the Fox publicity department."

Fox hired a seven-foot copper to guard his pile of proxies, which were lying on a table near his chair.

At least a million dollars' worth of legal talent was on hand. Richard E. Dwight, represented the trustees; Martin Conboy, noted criminal lawyer took up the cudgels in behalf of a Class "A" committee; Robert T. Swain was there on behalf of the Lehman group. Swain gave Samuel Untermyer a hand in whipping things into shape for Fox. Martin Bogue headed Halsey, Stuart's legal forces and Harry Stone represented Electrical Research Products.

Conboy threw a bombshell into the Lehman camp when he charged that Lehman-Blair-Bancamerica collected interest at the annual rate of 125 per cent for loaning Fox $6,000,000 to cover the Gaumont note at a crucial moment on Tuesday when Fox had one hour to cover, or lose the chain.

Discussions were red hot when the lunch hour came, and, as a result the crowd disregarded the noon-day whistle. At three in the afternoon, the stockholders apparently were weak from hunger and Fox sent a batch of his lieutenants out for grub. When they returned, there was a riot. Winnie Sheehan pushed Fox aside in the wild scramble. Otterson, Stuart and Dwight secured a corner on the coffee and it was only with much persuasion on the part of the opposition camp that the trio gave up the java.

When Conboy finished his fiery address on behalf of the Class "A" committee which he represented, one of the gallery gave him the razz. Conboy jumped to his feet and shouted: "There isn't a man in this place big enough to do that to my face." He was unable to find the culprit.

Berenson, the "A" legal representative was heavily razzed when he asked the stockholders to vote for a receivership. When the noise quieted, Berenson turned to Fox and charged the latter with planting a "lot of friends and employees in the gathlery" to sway the proxy holders.

A Promise from Fox

Fox was cornered by a group of news sleuths and was asked what he intended to do with the 15-year contract for exclusive use of "Erpi" equipment in all Fox enterprises.

"When we get through with that Halsey, Stuart-Telephone group, they will be tickled to death if a 15-year contract doesn't exist," he said.

Staged by Fox Stockholders •

On the Brink

Fox Film avoided receivership by fifteen minutes on four separate occasions since the company ran into financial difficulties, according to Samuel Untermyer. A $6,000,000 payment on the Gaumont British deal was paid this week with one hour to spare, he said. The money came from Lehman Bros.

WHEN the Film company meeting was adjourned for a few hours, more than 400 were in the gathering. The Theatres unit met immediately afterward and less than 50 were in the hall.

Reported reason: Fox at that moment had proxies for more than 1,000,000 shares, with only 20,000 against him. The second confab lasted less than an hour. It was cut and dried and without interest.

Fox, as chairman, addressed the stockholders on several occasions, and always spoke without standing. Untermyer, sitting on his left, nudged the Fox chief at one time, and was about to say:

"For God's sake stand up when you're talking."

Fox looked more like one of his lowly proxy holders than chief of one of the biggest film outfits in the business. He needed a shave—and how! His suit was wrinkled and he sported a slip-over sweater under his vest.

Shortly before Fox appeared at the evening session—two hours late and much to the apparent annoyance of many there—a member of R. E. Dwight's trusteeship counsel squawked because Samuel Untermyer had taken the floor without presence of the chairman. He told the Fox chief-of-staff that his group insisted upon "a square deal" from the Fox camp. Untermyer shooed him away with the remark:

"What do you mean by a square deal? How can there be anything but a square deal for your interests, which went into the meeting with about ten per cent of the voting power, Fox having 90 per cent."

The big show was well worth advanced admissions. Winnie Sheehan and Jimmy Grainger missed a big bet by not having cameramen on hand. Possible rentals from shots of the colorful gathering might have helped greatly in paying some of the "enormous" interest money asked by "sacrificing" Wall Street boys for refinancing.

In the early stages of the meeting, Fox was right snappy to reporters and cameramen from the dailies. But that was before things shaped up for him. After all votes had been cast and early reports placed him on top, insofar as voting was concerned, Fox turned to the camera hounds and willingly posed for flashes.

TERRIFIC strain under which William Fox has been laboring these many weeks was apparent when he tapped the gavel for order at 11:05 Wednesday morning. He looked worn out.

Shortly after the anxious stockholders had assembled, Fox called an adjournment for a meeting of the directorate during which Fox Film directors turned down the Halsey, Stuart plan and voiced their approval of the Lehman-Blair-Bancamerica proposal.

Three loads of briefs were sent up from Wall Street under heavy guard.

Fox was all set for a session of good old-fashioned rough house, judging from the coppers on hand.

Samuel Untermyer contradicted his "boss" when Fox stated that all holders owning stock up to and including March 1, "1929" were eligible for voting. The corporation lawyer told Fox to "be accurate" and tell the group he meant to say "1930." Fox corrected the bull.

Emory R. Buckner, counsel for a Class "A" group, told the gathering that receivership suits were being filed so rapidly, the situation was comparable to the Huyler Candy slogan: "Fresh Every Hour."

James Francis Burke, attorney and a big gun in the Republican national committee ranks, was there as Fox's right bower. Untermyer bowed on the left.

A careful checkup revealed 46 attorneys at the meeting. They each brought a pile of briefs and legal documents a foot high.

Challenges on votes flew so thick and fast during one spot of the contest that a battery of clerks was called in to type more oaths for signatures of those challenged.

Although Lawyer Swain was there as a big gun for the Lehman group, he was heard to say:

"No doubt the other plan would be cheaper, but for certain reasons it cannot be adopted."

Glendon Allvine, advertising-publicity director for Fox, worked hand in hand with all factions in turning out plans and press material.

Joe Leo got a big kick when he turned over his vote as proxy for a big block of Fox Theatres.

The Missing Touch

Said Winnie Sheehan to John Otterson:

"All they need for this show is a theme song."

At 125 Per Cent

Attacking what Samuel Untermyer described as Lehman Bros.' "friendly aid," Marton Conboy, representing a group of Class A stockholders at the Fox meeting, charged the Lehmans with exacting 125 percent, or $600,000, on a $6,000,000 thirty-day loan. The money was used to meet Gaumont British notes.

ALVIN UNTERMYER, newly appointed Judge in New York, was the head man in his father's legal battery. On Bill Fox's side.

Two junior members of the Halsey, Stuart staff asked a porter to run out for sandwiches, when they were stopped by a member of the Lehman group with this kidding remark:

"You may have had a chance of owning the company a few days ago, but now that the Lehman plan is in the bag, you have no authority to issue orders to employees in this company."

William Fox made a determined effort to have the Lehman plan read in toto, but the stockholders shouted this plan down. Fox was insistent, so his authority to have the plan read against the wishes of the meeting was challenged. When one man shouted he had not seen a copy of the plan, Fox stated dryly,

"He probably intends to read it tonight."

12 of New Schedule to Be Ready for Fox Sales Meet

Twelve pictures of the 1930-31 lineup will be ready for showing to the branch managers at the annual sales convention slated for March 25. The event will be held either in Hollywood, New York or Atlantic City.

Fox Has 11 Feature Units on Its Stages on the Coast

Hollywood—Seven features are in work on the Fox lot. One is due to start in two days, while four others are being whipped into shape for immediate production.

STAMFORD, Tex.—Sept. 1 has been set for opening of Stamford's new $50,000 house by the Stamford Amusement Co., which operates the Alcove and Crystal.

HAZELTON, Pa.—Joseph J. Bruno will remodel the clothing store at Blaine and Tamaqua Sts. for a picture house.

SACRAMENTO, Cal.—Warners will erect a house on K St., between Ninth and 14th Sts.

YREKA, Cal.—Walter H. Leverette, manager of a chain of theatres in this territory, last week received plans and specifications for the new Broadway. Construction work will start soon.

YBOR CITY, Fla.—Work on the new Haya, to cost $150,000, will start soon, according to M. Leo Elliott, architect. It will be of Spanish design.

NASHVILLE, Tenn.—Permit for the erection of a $230,000 Publix theatre at Eighth and Church streets, was issued last week to the Kaiser and Ducett Co., of Joliet, Ill. It will cost $400,000. John Eberson, New York City, is architect.

HAMILTON, O.—Work on a picture theatre will be started about Mar. 15, at Second and Court Sts.

PLAINFIELD, N. J.—Plans for remodeling the Plainfield, which will include a new addition, calls for the expenditure of $150,000.

TRINIDAD, Colo.—Trinidad will have two new theatres if plans materialize.

SALEM, Mass.—Work is going forward rapidly on the Paramount, which will be completed and ready for opening early in the summer. The theatre will be the largest in that section of the state.

ROSLINDALE. Mass.—The Basil Realty Co. is to erect a theatre, from plans prepared by Blackall, Clapp and Whittemore, Boston. It is understood it already has been leased when completed.

MONTREAL—United Amusement Corp. is bringing to 19 its total of theatres through erection of the Granada and Monkland to be opened this month.

GLENS FALLS, N. Y.—Fred W. Maussert, who owns and runs the State, is having plans prepared for a 2,000-seat house. This new theatre will be erected this spring and will be located in the center of the city. Mausert will continue to operate the present house.

VILLISCA, Ia.—After six months, this town again has a theatre, a new house costing $25,000 and seating 600 having been constructed.

VAN HORN, Tex.—Operating two nights weekly, the new Sebastian has opened.

ROCHESTER, N. Y.—Workmen are razing the old Smith Opera House, Geneva, and a $350,000 structure, seating 2,000, will be built on the site.

BROOKINGS, S. D.—Frank and J. J. McCarthy, owners of the Grand and Fad, plan a third house for this town, starting work early in the spring. The McCarthys own a chain throughout the Dakotas.

GREENVILLE, Tex.—The new Gem, East Lee St., has opened.

ROANOKE, VA.—The Salem sound house has opened. Commonwealth Theatres, owner of the Grand, will operate.

PT. PLEASANT, N. J.—Work on the proposed 1,000-seat house for Harry May starts in a week. The site is on Richmond Ave.

ELIZABETH, N. J.—Dr. Chas. Schlichet applied for a permit to erect a $1,000,000 theatre, apartment and office building.

MAYSVILLE, Ky.—Washington Theatrical Co. will rebuild the Opera House, destroyed by a recent fire.

OAKLAND, Cal.—Claussen & Armandes, 'Frisco architects, are preparing plans for a two-story store and theatre building for Oakland, to seat 800.

SANTA BARBARA, Cal.—A theatre will be erected on the site of the old Goux property in W. Carillo St.

SALEM, Mass.—April 15 is date set for opening of the new house being erected here. It will seat 2,400.

Multi-Lingual Versions of Talking Epics Is Planned

All Talking Picture Epics will have Spanish, German and French versions, states Frank R. Wilson. "Simba" and "Across the World with Mr. and Mrs. Martin Johnson" will be the first multi-linguals.

Because of the nature of the films released by Epics, a somewhat different procedure is followed in putting them into foreign languages. In each film the voice of the explorer or scientist is heard in narrative accompanying the pictures. In the foreign versions this narrative will be given by an explorer or scientist of Germany, Spain or France. He will first introduce the Johnsons, Commander Dyott, or Dr. Ernest Cadle to the audience, then explain that he is interpreting the explorer's own account of his adventures.

Seven New Charters Filed in N. Y., N. J., and Del.

Nacio Herb Brown, musical composer, has filed incorporation papers at Albany, listing 100 shares of common. Gilbert & Gilbert, 10 E. 40th St., New York, was the attorney.

Messersmith, Larchmont.

In New Jersey, Charles Jacknowitz, Inc., Union City, has incorporated to manufacture lenses. Manetti & Ethentille, Union City, is the attorney. Enterprises Amusement Corp., Pittsburgh, was charted in Delaware by Capital Trust Co.

Other corporate activities include dissolution of Frisco Amusement Co., Brooklyn, designation of RCA-Victor Co., a Maryland corporation, to do business in New York state, listing 10,000 shares, no par common stock. Filmtone Corp., Delaware charter, was likewise designated to operate in New York.

Starting New Nolan Film

Hollywood—With completion of "Carnival Girl," Mary Nolan is starting immediately on another Universal talker, "What Men Want," under direction of Ernst Laemmle. This is a picturization of Warner Fabian's novel, which will appear in the next two months.

Spanish Feature Under Way

Hollywood—Sono-Art starts immediate production on its second Spanish dialogue feature, "Things of Life," with Jose Bohr starred. Adaptation and script is by Tom Gibson, with Spanish dialogue by Jorge Juan Crespo. George Crone will direct.

Develops Camera "Coat"

Hollywood—M-G-M has developed a zipper "overcoat" which fits snugly over cameras and stifles operating noises during sound filming. The new "coat" will also be used at other studios in favor of the present sound-proof blanket which is fastened with rope.

Jannings Stays In Berlin

Berlin—Emil Jannings told newspaper men here that he will return to Germany for good when he finishes a contracted picture in Hollywood. Paramount is the company.

Dix In "Inside the Lines"

Hollywood—RKO has purchased screen rights to "Inside the Lines," a play by Earl Derr Biggers. Richard Dix will be starred.

THE ROGUE SONG

LAWRENCE TIBBETT'S sensational success in this magnificent Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer All-Technicolor musical drama has intensified the rising demand for natural color — Technicolor — among the theatre-going millions.

DISTRIBUTORS hang stubbornly to their determination to sell in block—all or none! Most of them still regard the splitting up of a whole year's program is a practice hardly short of criminal. They tell you that their home offices would refuse—and have refused—contracts for reasonably large groups, sometimes a third or more of a given schedule. . . . Comerford Silver Jubilee a Testimonial To Value of Building Theatre Goodwill

Civic and Business Leaders Vie to Do Honor to Chain Head on Anniversary

Scranton, Pa.—For 25 years M. E. ("Mike") Comerford has been building up his independent chain of theatres. For 25 years he has been stressing the value of goodwill, the functions and importance of the motion picture, the part it plays in the life of the community. Twenty-five years of careful, even religious discharge of his civic duties, has resulted in a unique standing for him in the Pennsylvania, New York and New England towns where he operates.

This investment he has been making in goodwill pays returns as the success of the Comerford chain will attest. Its climax came in February, when civic and business leaders of the "Comerford towns" got behind the observance of his silver jubilee, vieing to do honor to the veteran showman.

Starting as a spontaneous observance of the veteran's 25th year in the theatre business, the observance gathered momentum as it went, until by the end of February it had become a state-wide affair in Pennsylvania, with the governor taking the lead in extending his congratulations via Fox Movietone News.

All of His Towns Join

A general and concrete expression of civic co-operation greeted the anniversary in every city in which Comerford operates. Newspaper editorials, speeches by Lieut. Gov. Arthur James and laudatory addresses by the mayors of the various circuit towns marked the observance.

The month's campaign was climaxed by a testimonial dinner to Comerford at Hazleton, sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce, Federation of Women's Clubs, the Y. M. C. A., Rotary Club, Kiwanis Club and Exchange Club. Speakers included the mayor of Hazleton, Gov. Carl E. Milliken, representing Will H. Hays, M. J. O'Toole and Frank C. Walker, vice president of the circuit.

One of the outstanding incidents of the celebration was the tribute paid to Comerford here in the home city of the circuit. The noonday luncheon of the Rotary Club was dedicated to him. In the afternoon, he spoke with Governor Milliken before the Women's Clubs and Protestant ministers. In the evening he was honor guest at a Chamber of Commerce dinner.

Throughout the territory embraced by Comerford theatres there were similar affairs. The Lions, Rotary and Kiwanis clubs in practically every city dedicated a luncheon to the circuit head. The Wilkes-Barre city council passed a resolution of congratulations, and chambers of commerce throughout the territory did likewise. The Lions Club here elected Comerford a life member.

Papers Stress Films' Value

Editorials commended the policies of the Comerford enterprises, emphasizing the important part motion pictures play in the life of the community.

The unusual civic co-operation extended the jubilee situation is the result of the emphasis which Comerford and his organization place upon the value of goodwill. This was supplemented by a thoroughly organized and successfully executed campaign of exploitation and publicity, which brought into play ballyhoos, banners, floodlights and a multiplicity of other tricks of show business.

The exploitation campaign was not entirely devoted to institutional publicity, for each house concentrated upon selling its individual attractions.

The Comerford chain is perhaps the oldest as well as perhaps the largest of the independent circuits. Its theatres are concentrated in northwestern Pennsylvania, but extend into New York State and New England. It was established in January, 1905, when Comerford opened the Bijou at Wilkes-Barre. That same year, he opened the Wonders at Scranton, continuing the extension of his holdings throughout the ensuing 25 years.

While Comerford has personally been the leader of the theatre enterprise bearing his name, he has built in these 25 years an organization which includes M. B. Comerford, general manager; Frank C. Walker, vice president; W. H. Cadoret, film buyer; George P. Morris, superintendent of construction; M. J. O'Toole, in charge of publicity, and J. R. Cadoret.

Chaplin Plans Studio for Silents

Hollywood.—Charlie Chaplin has the courage of his convictions with respect to silents and intends to back it up with formation of a closed corporation to turn out six silents yearly on a budget of from $5,000,000 to $10,000,000. He is selling his Hollywood plant and will build a studio in San Fernando Valley. He will star in one comedy a year and direct one film personally. Four or five "of the most prominent stars in the industry" will appear in vehicles for the company, he says.

Blue-Noses Steal Petitions in N. D. Battle, Is Charge

Bismark, N. D.—Holier-than-thou advocates of "blue" Sunday are charged with resorting to thievery in an effort to forestall efforts to bring about a referendum to vote on the question of permitting Sunday shows.

Three or four petitions bearing a "large number" of signatures were stolen at Fargo from the Sunday Theatre Law Repeal Ass'n. The W. C. T. U., which is opposing the move for Sunday shows, through its president, has classed as "foolish," intimation that members of that organization were connected with the thefts in any way.

"U" Adds Music to Its Talking Reporter News

Graham McNamee's description of news events in Universal's "Talking Reporter" newsreel will be supplemented by musical synchronization. The change will not interfere with McNamee's talks because it doesn't start until after the announcer has completed his running chatter.

Jap Censors Have Real Problem Due to Talkers

Tokio—Japanese police assigned to censorship of films are finding plenty of worry due to talkers. First, the film is run off, then the words are taken down by a stenographer and translated into Japanese. The difficulty is finding Japanese equivalents to American idioms. Because of the difficulties, not many imported films are denied showing.

Fetherstone In Clara's Cast

Hollywood — Eddie Fetherston, former musical comedy lead, has been added to the cast of "True to the Navy," Clara Bow's current starring picture for Paramount. Frank Tuttle is directing.

Fowler Plans 20 Branches

Hollywood—Fowler Studios, producers of Fowler Varieties, have opened an office in Dallas. This is the third office in the Fowler exchange system, which will eventually total 20 offices.

Paramount Starting Its Long-Scheduled Expansion Drive in California Territory

Too Late

Hollywood—On a recent chilly night. Harry Hallenberger, cameraman, parked in front of the Hollywood Chamber of Commerce and proceeded to cover the engine of his old Ford coupe with a blanket.

A newsboy watched Harry for a few moments, then remarked:

"Don't cover it up, mister, I saw what it was."

Color This Year, Third Dimension Next, Prediction

Ottawa—"Tremendous advance" in color photography is in prospect this year, with third dimension films to be the feature of 1930, in the opinion of O. R. Harvey, engineer of the Northern Electric Co., Montreal, which is the Canadian organization of Western Electric. His views were outlined in an address before the Engineering Institute of Canada.

Since presentation of the first practical and successful talking picture, "The Jazz Singer," in 1927, approximately $500,000,000 had been spent in new equipment and millions of dollars worth of theatre fixtures had been scrapped, says Harvey. In the 44 countries of the world where talking pictures employing the English language were more or less acceptable, 10,000 of the 50,000 theatres had been equipped and wired, he declares. In Canada, one-third of all theatres are already completely fitted for synchronized film presentation. Statistics showed that 8,000,000 people patronized the theatres in Canada each week.

On four occasions, starting in 1904, there have been unsuccessful attempts to introduce talking pictures, but success really came in 1927.

French Talker Started

Hollywood—Jacques Feyder has started direction of the French version of "Unholy Night" at M-G-M with Andre Luguet and Jetta Goudal featured. Lionel Belmore and Youcca Troubetskoy, who appeared in the original talker, assume their same roles in the French version. Others in the picture include: Pauline Garon, Donald Reed, Georges Renavent, Jules Raicourt, Jacques Vanaire Pierre de Ramey, Eugene Borden, Albert Petit, George Davis and Marcelle Corday. "Unholy Night" is the first attempt of M-G-M to make a separate French version of a feature with French actors and linguists.

Seeks Receivership

Cincinnati—Elias Finkelstein, president Beecher Theatre Co., here, has asked for appointment of a receiver for the Beecher, claiming alleged usurping of power of junior executives and misappropriation of funds.

Oakland and Sacramento to Get Houses—Three-Cornered Race Under Way

San Francisco.—Long scheduled expansion of Paramount in a number of California cities is getting under way with closing of deals for sites at Oakland and Sacramento. The Oakland theatre is to seat 3,500 and cost $1,500,000. It will be located on Broadway at 20th and Hobart Sts. Plans call for completion in 18 months.

The Sacramento theatre is to cost $1,000,000 and be located on K St. between 9th and 10th Sts. C. J. Crittenden, real estate broker, announced the Sacramento house.

Paramount for some time had had under consideration an expansion program in Pacific Coast state, where Fox West Coast is firmly entrenched. That company, meanwhile, is continuing to add to its holdings. Warners also is expanding throughout California.

Last fall, Paramount scouts were dispatched to this territory to look over proposed acquisitions. However, the scheduled expansion was not undertaken at the time.

Buys Koppin House

Detroit—Publix has purchased the Ramona, 2,100-seat theatre at Gratiot Ave. and Six Mile Rd., from Henry Koppin.

Council Doesn't Act, Even After 'Blue' Suit Finds Hot Opposition

Bloomfield, Ia.—Even though H. E. Rehfield, exhibitor, bore the expense of defending action brought by reformers against the city council to halt a special election on Sunday shows, the council has failed to take any action. Sentiment for Sunday shows is strong here. The temporary injunction was secured on the morning of the proposed election.

Bradenton to Vote

Bradenton, Fla.—The open meeting, called by the city council to discuss the question of Sunday shows, was well attended and at its conclusion the council adopted a resolution to call another election on the subject. March 13 was selected as the date when the voters will settle, for another year, at least, the question of Sunday shows in this city.

Joseph Fliesler, former director at the 55th St. Playhouse, New York, is booking the M. P. Guild new art house in Newark, N. J.

S.O.S. for Westerns

Baltimore.—Local exhibitors literally crying for Western, claiming their Saturday and school-holiday business is being shot to pieces because they are unable to obtain gun-and-thunder material for the kids.

And Why Not?

Columbus—Study of the effect of Westerns upon the sleep of children has been launched at Ohio State University by Dr. Edgar Dale, professor of psychology.

He is also studying reactions produced by war films.

These two researches are part of a general investigation on the effects of films on children.

Fox Changes U. K. Newsreel to Four Releases Weekly

Growth of the sound newsreel necessitates a release switch of Fox Movietone News in Great Britain to four issues weekly. The jump from three is effective immediately, and is the second increase in a year. Fox at present maintains a staff of fifty crews with trucks in twenty foreign countries.

Clayton Sheehan, general foreign manager for Fox, predicts establishment of newsreel theatres, similar to the New York Embassy, in Europe, South America and Australasia in the immediate future.

Manager Dies After He Is Attacked by Patron

Heart disease was the apparent cause of death of Abraham Michaels, 54, manager of Loew's 42nd St. and Lexington Ave. house, who died shortly after a woman patron had struck him over the head with a brief case loaded with books. The manager had sought to disperse a crowd of patrons quarreling in one of the aisles.

Free Show Latest Move in Bennington Sunday Bout

Bennington, Vt.—Second chapter of a fight between theatres and churches was staged Sunday night when John Harte invited the general public to attend a free show at the General Stark. Every seat was taken. Harte, together with others who were arrested a week ago for operating the theatre on Sunday, are now out on bail and awaiting a trial by jury.

More Cleveland Bombings

Cleveland—Five more local houses were subjected to stench bombing after a month of quiet. They were the Knickerbocker, Cedar, Gaiety, Cinema and Strand. The outrage was committed between 1 A. M. and 3 A. M. Offenders were not apprehended. Stench bombing of Cleveland theatres has been going on intermittently since last September.

Approve New Finance Plan

Boston—Proposed plan of the New England Theatres Operating Corp. for an increase in stock has been approved by the shareholders. This will increase the common stock from 200,000 shares to 300,000 shares. The new common will be issued to holders of first and second preferred in the ratio of ten shares of new in exchange for each share of preferred now held. The option to make the exchange will expire July 1.

Of All Things

Lon Chaney was, years ago, part owner of the Columbia Opera Co., which tried to do big things in a cheap way through the Middle West, Pierre Key's music weekly "Top Notes" has discovered. He sang and danced. It was just at the turn of the century. Later the call of the camera weaned him from music. From the same source it is also reported that Chaney, when he is not thinking up new and more horrible disguises likes nothing better than to do a little sewing. It seems that he is a needlework expert, and is particularly skillful at fine embroidery.

Warner Expansion Speeded on East and West Coast

With more than 300 theatres in operation, Warners is expanding its circuit on both the East and West Coasts. Simultaneously with the extensive building campaign launched or scheduled for a number of California cities, the company will build six new houses in New Jersey and Pennsylvania.

Proposed new houses, announced by Spyros Skouras, head of the circuit include: A 2,000 seater at Perth Amboy; a 5,000 seater at Newark; a 2,100 seater at Ridgewood and a 3,000 seater at Trenton. At Westchester, Pa., a 3,000 seat house will be built. In Philadelphia, the William Penn has been acquired and will be remodeled at a cost of $300,000. In New York, Warners is completing the Hollywood, its seventh Manhattan first run.

Seattle Architect to Build 3 Warner Houses

Seattle—Ben Priteca, theatre architect of this city, has just been awarded contracts for the designing of three new theatres for Warners to be built in Southern California. The houses will be erected in San Pedro, Beverly Hills and Huntington Park, at a total estimated cost of $2,500,000. The contract was awarded by J. L. Warner. Priteca formerly was staff architect for Alexander Pantages, having designed many of the latter's Pacific Coast houses. He also built the Fox West Coast Coliseum in Seattle, and the RKO New Orpheum in this city.

Edwards, Former Seattle Exhibitor, Out for Mayor

Seattle.—Mayor Frank Edwards, former exhibitor, who entered politics for the first time in his life two years ago and won his office in a startling whirlwind campaign, this week was renominated for the position by the voters of the city. Romantic Charninsky

Kansas City—The "sky" made no difference to Louis Charninsky when "Romance of the Rio Grande" played the Pantages. Louis dressed his ushers and house staff in Spanish costumes, then donned one himself for the run. He insists he didn't make a bad Spaniard.

Censor Running House

Seattle—Dave Himelhoch, appointed chairman of Seattle's board of theatre censorship two years ago by Mayor Frank Edwards, ex-exhibitor, has been appointed manager of the Fox Coliseum by Earl L. Crabb, Northwest division manager for Fox West Coast Theatres. He succeeds H. C. Robertson, who has been promoted to an executive position in the Fox West Coast offices in Seattle, with jurisdiction over the entire territory. Himelhoch says he will retain his position on the censorship board. His appointment indicates a new attempt on the part of Fox officials to establish the house as a "family theatre" playing second runs and a few program first runs at a 25c-35c admission.

Seattle Operators Will Walk Out If Slashes Be Made

Seattle.—Possibility of a walkout of union operators in small theatres of this city and surrounding towns looms, as a result of a meeting of the executive boards of union operators from Seattle, Tacoma and Portland. J. B. Brown, secretary of the Seattle union, said that the meeting was called when it was learned that small house proprietors were planning to reduce their operators from two to one.

J. M. Hone, executive secretary of the Independent Theatre Owners Ass'n, said the association was contemplating such a move, but that a final decision has not yet been made. Seattle theatres involved are the Beacon, Society, Hollywood, Grand, Green Parrot, and Market, according to Brown. He declared the move would increase the fire hazard, if effected, and that the unions were fighting the move for the safety of the theatregoers.

Say Portland Is Unaffected By Seattle Labor Situation

Portland.—Proposed action of Seattle inpendents to cut operators to one man in the booth, will not affect the Portland situation, say union officials. Houses of Col. Woodlaw still are being picketed.

Emelka $225,000 in Red

Berlin—Half-yearly balance sheet of Emelka shows a net loss of $225,000, due, it is explained, by the switch to sound. The theatre circuit reports a loss of $100,000.

Rising Cost of Production May Slash Earnings

Rising cost of production, caused by color and other media, will cut a deep gash into the margin of profit for producer-distributors in 1930, despite current earning activities which are "abreast of the record-breaking rate of 1929," according to Standard Statistics Co., New York, which predicts "the largest aggregate business that the business has ever experienced is to be looked for in 1930," following survey of the field.

"New developments, such as the composition of operatic pictures, probably will further stimulate the high public interest engendered by the talkie, while trade improvements, including a decision to make fewer and better pictures in 1930, will undoubtedly act as a further stimulus.

"The swing in foreign countries toward wiring of houses for sound is a salient feature of the export situation. Dominant standing of domestic producers in the talkie division gives reason for anticipating unusually good foreign business in 1930, although it is doubtful that the record 1929 gross can again be attained.

"American producers, furthermore, are planning production of foreign versions of talking pictures, and possibilities along this channel are considerable."

Billie Dove Getting Gate But Studio Won't Talk

Hollywood—With rumors all over Hollywood that Billie Dove is negotiating with First National for her contract release, company officials decline to discuss the matter. It was admitted, however, by one First National executive, that the deal had not reached a stage that would allow discussion.

Robison After Coast Berth

Hollywood—Arthur Robison, German director, is in Hollywood seeking to connect with one of the studios. He directed "The Last Waltz" and other European productions distributed in the United States, and recently completed a talker production for British International Pictures, Ltd.

Tuttle Remains with P-F-L

Hollywood — Paramount has renewed Frank Tuttle's directorial contract, following completion of "Benson Murder Case."

Aristocrat's First Ready

Nat Levine is arranging for pre-release runs on Aristocrat's initial release, "Clancy in Wall Street," produced by Edward Small as the first all-talker in a group of four.

Welcome Gag

Philadelphia—The R-K-O Erlanger soon will inaugurate the policy of distributing free "umbys" to all patrons on rainy days. The "umby" is a new folding umbrella made of composition without either ribs or handle which when not in use can be folded to the size of a brief case.

Hudson Bill for a Federal Censorship "Dangerous Menace", Pettijohn Says

"Socialistic and Radical" in Concept, Hays Counsel Says In An Analysis

Provisions of the Hudson bill, in the form in which it has been introduced in Congress, "are so socialistic and radical as to constitute a dangerous menace to all branches of the industry," declares C. C. Pettijohn, Hays organization counsel, in an analysis of the measure prepared upon request of Motion Picture News. The bill seeks to brand the industry a public utility, and would make it a political football, providing unfair regulations and restrictions, he declares.

The bill is "based on the idea of a Federal Commission with almost unlimited powers of control and supervision of every part and parcel of the industry, and therefore deserves to be carefully analyzed in order that all parties interested may fully realize its import."

Pettijohn's analysis of the measure follows:

Optimistic

Representative Hudson still insists that his radical bill aimed at Federal censorship can be made to control every action on the screen, despite the popular belief prevalent in Washington circles that the rabid measure has no chance for passage in either House or Senate.

Charles C. Pettijohn, in the interesting analysis of the measure appearing on this page, points out why Hudson's bill is harmful.

Sec. 1, p. 1, L. 1—Definitions

"This section is devoted to definitions which are too lengthy to be taken up here. It contains all the definitions of the old bill except the following three: 'Anti Trust Law,' 'Article' and 'Commerce.'

Sec. 2, p. 3, L. 14—Commissions

"Here it is provided for the creation of commission to be known as the Federal M. P. Commission, composed of nine members. Four of them shall be women. They are to be appinted by the President, who shall designate one as a chairman, and are to be citizens of the United States qualified by character, experience and training for the duties of the office. It is to be noted that these appointments are to be made solely by the President without the advice or consent of the Senate. This is a most unusual provision, because all of the statutes providing for the creation of other similar commissions or quasi judicial bodies contain the provision with reference to the advice and consent of the Senate. This applies even to the President's Cabinet. The next provision is that not more than five of the nine commissioners shall be members of the same political party, after which it is provided that they shall be appointed without party designation or without party responsibility.

"This is a most contradictory provision, because it is impossible to conceive how not more than five shall be of the same party and at the same time be appointed without designation. It is next provided that an appointment shall not be given to any person who at any time during the five years preceding his appointment has had any direct or indirect financial interest or other connection with production, distribution, exhibition or any cognate or related business. Here again we find another vague, indefinite and contradictory condition, because as we have heretofore seen, it is first provided that the commissioners shall be qualified by character, experience and training for the duties of the office, and it is the height of folly to assert that any person who has not been connected directly or indirectly with the industry for five years could be said to be qualified by character, experience and training for the duties of the office. However, this objection seems to be attempted to be removed by the next sentence, which provides that the 'Civil Service Commission, after examining the persons under oath and through corroborating investigations shall certify to the President of the United States that the persons chosen by him for the office comply with the provisions of this act.' With all due respect to the ability, standing and integrity of the Civil Service Commission, we are still of the opinion that it would be impossible for even that body to find nine citizens, qualified by training, who for five years have had no connection whatsoever with the industry, to act as the industry's supreme court. This is a very vital question and one which deserves earnest consideration by all members of the industry, because if they are to be ruled and controlled by a commission, it certainly would wish that at least a part of its personnel is made up of people with some practical and actual knowledge of the workings and mechanics of the business, and not have this business turned over to impractical, incompetent or illusionary theorists.

"It is further provided that these commissioners shall be appointed for a term of six years and that no member of the commission or any deputy commissioner or any employee shall have any connection with or financial interest in any branch whatsoever of the motion picture industry.

"This section differs from the same section in the old bill wherein members were to be appointed by the Secretary of the Interior and the commission was to be a bureau under this department with the commissioner of education, as a member ex-officio. This change in the bill, however, does not remove the objection, to wit, that the commission would be thrown into party politics immediately and, as will be noted later, the possibilities for patronage under its provisions are very wide. Every layman knows that wherever there is patronage there also will be found politics and manouvring, and we still submit that the effect of the passage of this bill would create another political machine at Washington, and result in throwing the whole motion picture business into politics, a pernicious and ruinous proceeding.

Sec. 3, p. 5, L. 15—Salaries, Expenses

"It is provided that each commissioner shall receive an annual salary of $9.000, except that the annual salary of the chairman shall be $10,000. Furthermore, that the commission shall have authority to employ and fix the compensation of deputy commissioners and such other employees as it may find necessary; also to hire suitable offices, procure all necessary supplies and equipment, and pay all necessary expenses for transportation incurred by the commissioner or their employees in making investigations or official business. This is practically the same provision as Section 3 of the old bill, and again we point out that this will permit the staff of the commission to be packed with 'patronage without limit.'

Sec. 4, p. 6, L. 9—Offices

"This section is the same as Section 4 in the old bill and provides that the principal office of the commission shall be in Washington, but it may establish offices or bureaus wherever efficiency, economy and the public interest require. Each bureau or office shall be in charge of a commissioner or a deputy commissioner. Here again we have more expense and patronage and the result of this and the preceding section would be to constitute a haven for those seeking lucrative jobs for their constituents, as will be developed later herein. There is absoluetely no check under the provisions of this bill on the number of offices or bureaus or upon the number of employees it can place upon its payroll, and the whole cost is to be charged up to the motion picture industry.

Sec. 5, p. 6, L. 19—Duties of Commission

"This section is identical with the one in the old bill and provides that the duties of the commission shall be to protect the motion picture industry from unfair trade practices and monopoly, to provide for the just settlement of trade complaints, to supervise the production of silent and talking motion pictures at the source, and to provide for the proper distribution and exhibition thereof. This is a useless provision, because the Federal Trade Commission Act was passed and the commission created thereby in 1914 to protect all industries from these same, identical practices, and since 1918 this commission has made numerous and extensive investigations of the industry, and, after trials, has entered a large number of orders to cease and desist from unfair practices. Furthermore, during the week of Oct. 10, 1927, in New York City, the Federal Trade Commission conducted a Trade Practice Conference in which representatives of all branches of the industry participated, with the result that a business code of ethics was, with the exception of a few disputed questions, agreed upon and is today accepted throughout the industry. There is an can be no need or necessity for another commission. The Federal Trade Commission has ample power and authority to dispose of all unfair trade practices and the creation of a new commission would nullify all its work of the last ten years. The same situation exists as to monopoly, as this is fully and completely covered by the Sherman Law. The Dept. of Justice, after extensive investigations, has filed three suits under this law against various members of the industry, one of which has been decided by the U. S. District Court for the Southern District of New York, and the other two will come on for trial in the near future. It will thus be seen there is no necessity whatsoever for the creation of another branch of the government to duplicate these actions.

Would Make Political Football Of Industry If Passed, In His Opinion

"Production and distribution are two of the greatest problems of the industry. Ever since the birth of the industry persons with ability, brains and talent to solve these problems have been sought to better conditions, and at salaries larger than those provided for members of this commission. It will be impossible under the terms of this bill to procure the services of those qualified for these duties, and surely no group of political appointees can possibly do a better job than is being done. The motion picture industry has always consistently kept out of politics. This bill would put it in.

Sec. 6, p. 7, L. 1—Unfair and Deceptive Practices Forbidden

"This section is identical with a similar section in the old bill. The first provision is one of its most amazing and radical declarations. It comprises only a short sentence, but its import and significance are of the greatest consequence, not only to the motion picture industry, but to all other industries as well. It is as follows: 'The motion picture industry is hereby declared to be a public utility.' This means that all the concerns engaged in business in connection with the motion picture industry are by one stroke of the pen to be transformed into public service companies. This will include producers, distributors, exhibitors, laboratories, manufacturers of raw film, manufacturers of all devices, appliances, machinery and patented processes used in the industry, and also the makers of all advertising matter such as posters, slides, etc. Such a proposition is preposterous, because none of these industries have the necessary essentials or attributes of public utilities and Congress cannot change their character and functions by merely passing a law declaring them to be that which they are not. The legislative regulation through commission of public utilities finds its justification in the fact that they are quasi public corporations enjoying the benefits and the rights of eminent domain, and are, therefore, held properly subject to public regulation in the theory that they enjoy the benefits of quasi public status and should, therefore, bear the burdens of such status. Producers, distributors and exhibitors of films, and the other members of the industry, cannot be classed as public service corporations. There can be no distinction made between them and other manufacturers, wholesalers and retailers, for there is no difference in their essentials and functions to those of other industries. If this industry can, in this manner, be transformed overnight into a public utility, then in like manner could the automobile industry, the clothing industry and all other industries be brought under governmental control, regulation and operation.

"The remaining portion of this section makes unlawful 14 unfair practices listed, any and all of which can be easily corrected under existing laws, for example (h) refers to compulsory arbitration, which is now being litigated in a proceeding brought by the Dept. of Justice heretofore referred to; (c) refers to the reissuing of old pictures under new names. This practice ceased long since under the decision of the Federal Court in Fox v. Federal Trade Commission 296 Fed. 553. Paragraphs 'e' and 'f' are taken almost verbatim from the Brookhart bill, which is now pending before the Interstate Committee of the U. S. They refer to block booking and selling films to affiliated theatres. The remaining paragraphs refer chiefly to price fixing and price manipulation, all of which can readily be dealt with by the courts. We cannot see why it is necessary to create a new tribunal to cover these practices.

Sec. 7, p. 11, L. 14—Construction of Powers

"This section also is identical with Section 7 of the old bill and provides that nothing contained in this bill shall be construed to prevent or interfere with the enforcement of or the procedure under the various anti-trust laws, including the Sherman Law, the Clayton Act, the Interstate Commerce Act and the Webb Act. The effect of this provision would create an absurd situation, because we would then have conflicting departments at Washington exercising concurrent jurisdiction over the enforcement of certain of the anti-trust laws. There is nothing anywhere in this most unusual bill which informs us as to why it is necessary to create another bureau or department to enforce anti-trust laws.

Sec. 8, p. 12, L. 15—Application of Powers

"This section follows that of the old bill and makes sections 5, 6, 8, 9 and 10 of the Federal Trade Commission Act applicable to the jurisdiction, powers and duties of this proposed commission.

Sec. 9, p. 13, L. 4—Power of Commission Modified

"This section, like the one in the old bill, takes away from the Federal Trade Commission all jurisdiction over the motion picture industry, and again there is nothing to tell us why it is necessary to abolish one commission and create another.

Sec. 10, p. 13, L. 21—Neutral and Impartial Distribution of Motion Pictures

"This is a new section not contained in the old bill and provides that the commission shall have power to regulate the distribution of all motion pictures in commerce, and may at its discretion create facilities to provide an equitable basis of distribution in a manner that will insure free competition among producers, exhibitors and other persons in securing for rental and in the renting of all motion pictures. This simply means that the whole machinery of distribution which has been built up to a high degree of efficiency, by the best minds of the industry after years of study and work, is to be turned over to the regulation and control of a group of people with no knowledge or experience in these problems. It means that the government will go into the motion picture business, and we do not believe that the members of Congress are willing to take such a radical step.

Sec. 11, p. 14, L. 4—Registration

"This section provides that every producer, exhibitor or distributor must register with the commission under such rules and regulations as the commission may prescribe. Under Section 19 of the old bill it was provided that anyone in the industry should so register. The reason for this change is not explained or is there anything to show why it is necessary to have the producers, exhibitors and distributors register. It seems to be an inane provision, because if any of these concerns or individuals should violate a law they can be very easily located at any time. Members of this industry are upright, progressive, outstanding business men and are not criminals seeking to hide themselves away for the purpose of evading any law. The enactment of this provision would only mean an increased staff for this commission as there would probably be something in the neighborhood of 300,000 registrations constantly changing from time to time.

Sec. 12, p. 14, L. 21—Trade Associations

"This is somewhat similar to Section 20 of the old bill and provides that every trade association shall file with the commission a statement of its general character and proposed activities, a complete list of the names and addresses of its members, officers, directors, or other managing agents, together with a true copy of its constitution or articles of association, and other information as required by the commission. Trade associations shall operate under such rules and regulations as the commission may prescribe. This means nothing more or less than further registration and regulation. To our knowledge there is no trade association in any industry of the United States compelled to submit to such drastic governmental interference. The trade associations in this industry are composed chiefly of exhibitors throughout the country who have state organizations to promulgate and promote their interests, solve their problems, and to better serve their public. It is unfair and discriminatory to single them out and require that they operate their associations under governmental rules and regulations.

Sec. 13, p. 15, L. 5—Power Over Records

"This section is practically the same as Section 21, in the old bill and is so startling that we will quote it in full. 'Every dealer shall keep such accounts, records, and memoranda as fully and correctly disclose all transactions involved in his business, including the true ownership of such business by stockholding or otherwise. Whenever the commission finds that the accounts, records and memoranda of any such person do not fully and correctly disclose all transactions involved in his business the commission may prescribe the manner and form in which such accounts, records and memoranda shall be kept.' When it is recalled that the definition of a 'dealer' is so broad as to cover anyone directly or indirectly connected with the industry, the enormity of this section is fully realized. It would mean that everyone from producer, distributor and exhibitor, down to actors, cameramen and extras, would have to keep their books in accordance with the rules and regulations of this bureau. To carry out and enforce such a provision would require the services of a large army of accountants, auditors and examiners constantly traveling over the continent. We pause to wonder what 'accounts, records and memoranda' would be required of the thousands of 'extras' often used and of the ushers and ticket sellers in the more than 22,000 theatres.

Sec. 14, p. 15, L. 15—Censorship

"This section provides for a very long and involved system of censorship of all pictures. It is too lengthy and intricate to be analyzed in detail. It sets out at length the character and types of picture which shall be unlawful to enter commerce. An examination of this list shows that they are all now condemned by the code of rules and ethics universally adopted and carried out with rare exceptions by the motion picture industry. This Section provides that no motion picture shall enter commerce until it has received a license from this Commission and the payment of a fee determined by it. It also provides for the examination of scenarios by the commission and the appointment of supervisors to assist producers and directors in the process of production, which means the entrance of government employees into the studios at Hollywood. The whole question of censorship is repulsive to the people generally throughout the country. A striking example of this was shown in Massachusetts in 1922 when a censorship bill was defeated by the people by a vote of almost three and one-half to one after the law had been passed by both houses of the legislature and signed by the Governor. No one has ever had the audacity or temerity to propose a censorship of the newspapers or any other form of human expression, and why this industry should be singled out for drastic federal censorship is not clear.

Maybe, Who Knows?

It is said that one of the factors in the Fox Film company's financial difficulties was the high cost of installing sound equipment. Who knows? Maybe silence is golden after all.—Judge.

Sec. 22, p. 27, L. 23—Classifying and Cataloguing Motion Pictures

"Here it is provided that the commission shall make a factual analysis of each motion picture and shall catalogue it according to its title, contents and producer. The reason for this provision is not apparent except that it will entail the employment of more people.

Sec. 23, p. 28, L. 7—Control of Government Films

"This section provides that the commission shall have supervision and control of all films owned by the various departments of the Government of the United States. This is a most absurd provision because no such commission could possibly be acquainted with the requirements of the various departments of the government. These departments are now putting out their own films in accordance with their special needs as they know them.

Sec. 24, p. 28, L. 11—Rules and Regulations

"This section provides that the commission shall make such rules, regulations and orders as may be necessary to carry out the provisions of the bill.

Sec. 25, p. 29, L. 1—Reports

"This provides that the commission shall, like all other departments of the government, file an annual report on or before the first day of December in each year with the Congress.

"The only remaining feature of the bill which is of importance is Section 28, page 29, line 20, which provides that anyone who violates any provision of the act shall be fined not less than $500 nor more than $10,000 or imprisoned for not less than six months nor more than five years or both.

"To our knowledge no piece of legislation comparable to this has yet been introduced in any legislative body of this country. It means that the government of the United States will enter the motion picture business. To this doctrine we do not believe the members of the Congress will subscribe. It savors more of Sovietism than of Americanism."

Sec. 15, p. 22, L. 8—Revocation of Licenses and Permits

"The commission may at any time recall a licensed film and after review revoke it upon the ground that it violates any of the provisions of Section 14.

Sec. 16, p. 23, L. 11—Applications

"Herein it is provided that anyone desiring a license or permit for any film shall first make a sworn application in writing in the form and substance prescribed by the commission and pay the required fee. Its provisions require much red tape and useless detail in the making of the applications.

Sec. 17, p. 24, L. 4—Fees

"By the provisions of this section the commission shall collect from each applicant for a license or a permit a fee of $10.00 for each one thousand feet or fraction thereof of film and $5.00 for each additional copy thereof licensed by the commission: Provided, however, that upon the expiration of six months from the date of approval of this Act, and from time to time thereafter as circumstances warrant, the commission shall revise and fix the fees at such sums as will produce no larger income than is necessary to support the work of the commission, its army of employees and all other expenses. In this analysis of the bill we have seen how it provides for the creation of this new commission with salaries of $9,000 yearly with power to maintain an office in Washington and branch offices anywhere it sees fit, and to employ a staff sufficient to carry out the aims and purposes of the bill. It takes unto itself all the powers and duties under the various anti-trust laws which require a large force of clerks, investigators, examiners and lawyers to investigate all the violations of such laws and try out these questions, not only before the commission, but also on appeal to the court, necessitating continuous travel over the country, the taking of testimony, stenographic expenses, etc. It proposes to manage and regulate the sale and distribution of all motion pictures domestic and foreign which would require an army of assistants. Also it is to compel and supervise the registration of any and all persons connected with the industry which will require another large staff of employees. It further proposes to similarly supervise all trade activities. Not content with this it proposes to supervise and oversee the bookkeeping and accounts of every person in the industry which means an enormous force of accountants, auditors, examiners, clerks, etc., and a huge sum for travel expense. Still more it is its purpose to censor all pictures and appoint supervisors to go into the studios all of which will necessitate another large staff. The expense for all of this is to be paid by the industry. This means the members of the commission will be accountable to one but themselves as to the amount of money they use and the industry will pay the bill. The commission will not have to prepare and submit a budget each year or appear before any committee of the Congress and account for the money expended and submit their request for an appropriation as all other Departments, Bureaus and Commissions are now compelled to do in the interest of economy. There will be no check on this commission by either the Budget Committee or the Congress, thus making it an astounding political machine.

Sees Hudson Bill Erecting New Political Machinery Against Industry

Sec. 18, p. 24, L. 24—Appeals

"This section provides that appeals may be made from the decisions of the commission to the United Circuit Court of Appeals.

Sec. 19, p. 25, L. 21—Unlawful Transportation

"This section provides that it shall be unlawful to transport any motion picture film in commerce unless there is for such film at the time in full force and effect a valid license or permit issued by this commission.

Sec. 20, p. 26, L. 16—Unlawful Exhibition

"This section makes it unlawful to sell, lease, loan or exhibit any motion picture film without a license or permit issued by this commission.

Sec. 21, p. 27, L. 1—Posters and Advertisements

"In this section it is made the duty of the commission to prescribe or supervise all posters, banners, and all advertising matter wherever used in connection with and to advertise all motion pictures in commerce. This means another large force of clerks the size of which cannot be calculated as it is a matter of common knowledge that the advertising matter in connection with motion pictures is stupendous.

It's "Danube Love Song"

Hollywood—Oscar Straus' initial original screen operetta is being prepared under the title of "Danube Love Song." Joseph Jackson is credited with the story, while the book is being written by Harvey Thew in collaboration with Straus. The latter will write all the songs and incidental music.

Holt With Paramount Again

Hollywood—Jack Holt returns to Paramount to be co-featured with Richard Arlen in "The Border Legion" from Zane Grey's novel of the same name. Otto Brower and Edwin Knopf will direct, with Fay Wray assigned the romantic lead.

McLaglen in "Dust and Sun"

Hollywood—"Dust and Sun," a novel by Clement Ripley, will serve as Victor McLaglen's next for Fox.

Midnight Show on Coast is Big Hit; Crowds Go for It

Hollywood—Saturday midnight matinees at Los Angeles and Hollywood picture theatres are increasing in popularity, culminating last week when no less than six of the ten local first runs staged midnight shows.

Grauman's Chinese has been running the late Saturday shows for over a year, while Loew's State started the policy a few months ago. The Paramount put on a premiere midnight performance of "The Vagabond King," which opened a regular run at that house Thursday. The advance showing was staged primarily to obtain word-of-mouth advertising for the attraction so fullest advantage could be obtained from the opening day rather than let it build steadily after the start.

Fox West Coast put on a week-end night show of "Happy Days" at the Carthay Circle to accommodate the overflow crowds which could not obtain seats for the opening Thursday night. The Orpheum had Governor C. C. Young as guest of honor for the first midnight performance staged in that house, when "Seven Keys to Baldpate" was the attraction.

Warner's Downtown, which has had success with Saturday midnight performances for various filmusicals in the past, had Winnie Lightner in "She Couldn't Say No" as the midnight show attraction.

United Artists, Warners Hollywood, RKO and Criterion were the four local first runs that were dark last Saturday night.

Big Campaign Planned for John McCormack Discs

Victor Recording Co. plans what Fox believes will be the most elaborate campaign ever made on song records when it will release simultaneously with the picture the songs sung by John McCormack in his "Song o' My Heart." The campaign calls for billboard, street car and newspaper advertising.

Green and Stept Join W. B.

Hollywood—Bud Green and Sammy Stept, song writing team, have been added to the Warner staff of composers. Their first assignment will be the songs for "Come Easy," Vina Delmar story which will star Lotti Loder, recent importation from Vienna.

More Song Writers Signed

Hollywood—Paramount has added four song writers to the coast studio musical department to compose original numbers for future filmusicals. Ballard Macdonald, Dave Dreyer, Grant Clarke and Harry Akst compose the song writing quartet.

Laskys, Twin Composers

Hollywood—Paramount is plugging "My Rose," a song which had lyrics written by Mrs. Jesse Lasky and Jesse, Jr. The number will be spotted in a forthcoming Paramount picture.

High and Low— Along Music Row

MURRAY RITTER, professional manager for Irving Berlin,will tell you that "Puttin' on the Ritz," "With You" and "There's Danger In Your Eyes, Cherie," three of the song numbers in Harry Richman's United Artist vehicle "Puttin' on the Ritz," are surefire hits. The first two numbers were written by Irving Berlin, while the honors for the latter song were shared by Harry Richman, Pete Wendling and Jack Meskill. "And don't forget that 'I'm Following You' from the M-G-M picture 'It's A Great Life' is riding high with the best sellers," adds Frances Kahn, Murray's "right bower."

It's quite unusual these days for publishers to put out numbers written solo. Gene Austin, Inc., has two of these "one writer" tunes. "Tailspin," a novelty fox trot by Maceo Pinkard and "Be Careful With Those Eyes," written by Harry Woods, are the songs and Marty Bloom is het up over both. Harry Woods left last week for the M-G-M lot.

Ed Hurley and Harry Cantor have written the musical numbers for "Moonbeams," a musical comedy, which Harry Revier will produce shortly at RCA.

Things are humming along up at Shapiro-Bernstein's these past few days with the fine sales reports on "What Do I Care?" and the novelty comedy song entitled "The Man From The South With The Cigar In His Mouth." "Wrapped In A Red, Red Rose" from Eddie Dowling's "Blaze O' Glory" is also showing favorable results. Louis Bernstein, president of the firm, returned from a month's vacation at Palm Beach "wrapped in a healthy coat of tan."

Bernie Pollack, formerly sales manager for M. Witmark & Sons, is now occupying a similar position with Mills Music Co. This firm has a freak hit in "St. James Infirmary," a tune which is getting a great play over the air. "I Was Made To Love You" and "Missouri Moon" are also providing work for the shipping clerks.

The urge to merge is in the air and the bug has bitten two Tin Pan Alleyites in the past few days. Richard Rodgers, composer of the score for "Simple Simon," "gave his promise true," while Ken Macomber, arranger of the music in "Hot Chocolates," also said "I Do" (rhyme).

Folks in Connellsville, Pa., are mystified by "phantom music" which emanated from a steam pipe of a radiator. That may be a "hot tune" but you ought to hear some of the hot tunes published by Denton & Haskins.

Believe it or not, there is a club in Hollywood called "The Society Of Starving Songwriters," of which Richard M. Rickard, announcer for station KHJ, is secretary.

Davis, Coots & Engle, Inc., have augmented their catalogue with two new songs, which are "Dream Avenue," written by Harry Richman, Pete Wendling and Jack Meskill, and "Flappers On Parade," by Freddy Coots and Benny Davis. "Yon Can't Stop Me From Falling In Love With You," also by Coots and Davis, is rapidly headed for a hit.

Eddie Walters, Columbia recording artist, has been rewarded for making consistent "good sellers." When he recently made "'Leven-Thirty Saturday Night" and "Me And The Girl Next Door" he was given an accompaniment of a ten-piece orchestra.

COOKING Breakfast for the "One I Love," from "Be Yourself," the United Artist production starring Fannie Brice, is sure to be a hot, sez we. This number was written by Henry Tobias and Billy Rose and is published by William Rose, Inc., a subsidiary of Robbins Music Corp.

Joe McCarthy and Jimmy Hanley have written five new songs for the forthcoming Fox production "High Society Blues," featuring Janet Gaynor and Charles Farrell. The numbers, "I Don't Know You Well Enough For That," "I'm In The Market For You," "Just Like A Story Book," "Eleanor" and "High Society Blues," are published by the Red Star Music Co. Bill Jacobs, sales manager for the firm, is very enthusiastic over the showing of "Fascinating Devil," "Snowball Man" and "Doing The Boop-Boop-A-Doop," from the Fox picture "Let's Go Places."

About seven years ago a fellow named Buddy DeSylva placed a song called "Minnie The Mermaid" with a firm known as Leo Feist, Inc. Recently Rudy Vallee and Bernie Cummins featured this number on the air and the response made by the radio fans warranted the republishing of the number by Feist. Yep, Buddy has written a few songs since.

Mack Gordon and Abner Silver, two of the songwriters for the Pathe musical, "Swing High," will be seen and heard in a Pathe Audio Review subject entitled "Red Hot Hollywood." "From Songwriter to Actor" a la Horatio Alger.

Radio Music Co. has added to its catalogue "So Sympathetic," a sweet fox trot by Gus Kahn and Harry Archer. In the comparative short time that it has been out, this number has become a favorite with some of the most successful maestros in the East.

Jack Livingston, manager of Adolfo Giron and his 15 Californians, put on "a rave" about his charges, so hieing ourselves Les Ambassadeursward, we had to admit that the orchestra was "there." Incidentally, Bunny Weldon knows how to stage a show.

Donaldson, Douglas & Gumble have just released a new tune written by Walter Donaldson, which is without a doubt the firm's best bet to date. The song is entitled "Lazy Lou'siana Moon," and has been featured at the Roxy during the past week.

Here's a song that ought to revive memories of the past. "Bartender Bill," written by Bill McKenna, is published by Denton & Haskins Publishing Co., Inc. On the "Sweet Adeline" type, this song ought to click.

M. Witmark & Sons are publishing "Come Back To Me," written by Grant Clarke and Harry Akst and sung by Vivienne Segal in the Warners' "Song Of The West," original score of which was composed and published by Vincent Youmans.

Charles Bayha Music Co. has a worthy running mate to "That's When I Learned To Love You" in "So Lonesome," composed by Billy Baskette, Bartley Costello and Will Osborne. For a small publisher, this firm has been getting some remarkable results on its songs.

A fellow, walking north on Broadway, suggested that an appropriate theme song for Wall Street would be "Have A Little Faith In Me." He didn't give his name.

offer to stockholders of Film of the Film debentures at 98% of the principal amount thereof and accrued interest. The compensation of the underwriters shall aggregate an amount in cash equal to eight per cent (8%) of the aggregate principal amount of said Film debentures. The underwriters will likewise procure others to purchase at $28 per share all such shares of said Class A common stock of Film as are not subscribed for by stockholders pursuant to the aforesaid offering. No compensation or commissions shall be payable to the underwriters in respect of shares of Class A common stock subscribed for by the stockholders or otherwise except as above expressly stated.

The offering of the Theatres debentures to the stockholders of Theatres shall be underwritten by Film at the offering price, and as compensation therefor Film shall receive an amount in cash equal to 9 per cent. of the principal amount of the Theatres debentures offered. Film shall on the date of delivery of the Film debentures and Class A common stock, take up the Theatres debentures, subject to the subscription rights of the Theatres stockholders if not then expired.

The underwriters may, if they so determine, cause to be issued and sold at any time interim receipts or certificates calling for the delivery of any of the new securities if, as and when issued and delivered to them, and Film shall pay all expenses in connection with the printing and delivery thereof and shall make the usual adjustment for loss of interest in connection therewith.

Film shall, at request of the underwriters, make application to list the Film debentures and additional shares of Class A common stock on such exchanges as they may designate. Film shall also furnish the underwriters with such information, and shall take such action, as they may reasonably request in order to qualify the Film debentures and additional shares of Class A common stock for public issue under the so-called blue sky laws in the states where they may desire to offer said Film debentures and Class A common.

IV.

Voting Trusts

To assure the holders of the new securities of continuity of satisfactory management, at least a majority of the outstanding shares of Class B common stock of Film and all the shares of the Class B common stock of Theatres shall be deposited under voting trusts, under which there shall be five (5) voting trustees, of whom one (1) shall be William Fox or his nominee during such period as he shall be the owner of a substantial amount of the Class B common stock of Film and Theatres, as the case may be, and the remaining four (4) voting trustees shall be selected by the trustees under a certain Trust Agreement dated Dec. 3, 1929 or a majority of the said trustees under said trust agreement. Both voting trusts shall continue for a period of 5 years and thereafter so long as any of the Film debentures shall be outstanding, but not exceeding an additional 5 years. During the continuance of the voting trusts the entire voting power of the deposited stock shall be vested in the voting trustees, provided, however, that the voting trustees shall not, without the consent of at least a majority in interest of the voting trust certificates exercise their voting power

(a) to make any alteration or amendment of any provision of the certificate of incorporation of either of the corporations which would tend to change or diminish the voting power of the deposited Class B common stock, except as contemplated by the foregoing plan;

(b) to sell or convey substantially all the property, rights, privileges and franchises of either of the corporations, except to the other of them, or, in the case of Film, unless the net earnings available for dividends on stock and sinking fund on the Film debentures shall in each of two consecutive years be less than $5,000,000;

(c) to merge or consolidate either corporation into or with, another corporation, except into, or with, the other of the corporations, or, in the case of Film, unless the net earnings available for dividends on stock and sinking fund on the Film debentures shall in each of two consecutive years be less than $5,000,000; or

(d) to dissolve either of the corporations.

Fox-Dwight Tilt

An interesting tilt occurred early in the session between William Fox and R. E. Dwight, counsel for the trustees, when it was stated that only the Lehman plan could be voted upon. Dwight rose to a point of order, citing corporation law to back his contention that a stockholders' meeting could consider and vote upon any plan of reorganization. When overruled by Fox, Dwight rose to a second point of order, citing parliamentary law stating a chairman could overrule him without submitting the point to the entire body.

Prior to the delivery of the Film debentures and Class A common stock there shall be elected twelve directors of Film, all of whom shall be satisfactory to the underwriters, and a full board of directors of Theatres, which may include directors of Film, all of whom shall also be satisfactory to the underwriters, and the resignations of all officers of Film and Theatres shall be placed in the hands of the voting trustees.

Prior to the delivery of the Film debentures Class A common stock there shall be elected a chairman of the board, president, treasurer and comptroller of Film and Theatres satisfactory to the underwriters.

V.

Disposition of Proceeds

Theatres shall apply the net proceeds of the Theatres debentures approximately as follows:

$18,000,000 to the payment of Theatres' existing indebtedness to Film,

$15,000,000 to the payment of indebtedness to Electrical Research Products, Inc., and

$3,400,000 to miscellaneous corporate purposes.

Film shall apply the net proceeds of the offerings of the Film debentures and Class A common stock approximately as follows:

$18,000,000, or such part thereof as may be necessary, to the payment of its underwriting obligations to Theatres,

$12,000,000, to the payment of the $12,000,000 principal amount, of 6% gold notes of Film dated April 1, 1929 due April 1, 1930,

$14,300,000 to the payment of obligations incurred in connection with the acquisition of an interest in Gaumont-British Picture Corporation Limited,

$5,800,000 to the payment of unsecured bank loans, and $18,100,000, and any part of the abovementioned $18,000,000 not required to meet said underwriting obligations, for payment of interest on maturing obligations, indebtedness, construction requirements and miscellaneous corporate purposes.

VI.

Adjustment with Mr. Fox

Mr. Fox shall, prior to the date of the delivery of the debentures and Class A common stock of Film, assign to Film all of his interest in Fox-Hearst Corp.

Mr. Fox shall make the same representations and agreements as are set forth in plan dated Feb. 11, 1930 heretofore submitted to the stockholders of Film and Theatres as follows, to wit, that:

1. On or before the date of delivery of the Film debentudes and Class A common stock of Film he will cause American Tri-Ergon Corp., on behalf of itself and any successor corporation by merger, consolidation or sale of substantially all its assets, and its subdiaries to execute and deposit with Hon. Frank J. Coleman, for delivery to Film and Theatres on the date of delivery of the Film debentures and Class A common stock, an agreement granting and agreeing to grant to Film and Theatres, and their similar successors and subsidiaries, non-exclusive, non-assignable, royalty-free licenses under all patents or patent rights now owned or controlled by American Tri-Ergon Corp., its successors and subsidiaries, and under all patents and patent rights useful in connection with recording or reproducing sound or pictures which at any time within twenty-five years shall be owned or controlled by said American Tri-Ergon Corp., its sucessors and subsidiaries; provided, however, that if it shall be necessary for the purpose of providing for the holders of the remaining ten per cent. of the stock of American Tri-Ergon Corp., Film and Theatres, their successors and subsidiaries, may be required to pay royalties at a rate not exceeding ten per cent. of the lowest rate from time to time charged by American Tri-Ergon Corp. to any other licensee; and

2. On or before the date of delivery of the Film debentures and Class A common stock of Film he will cause to be vested in a new company to be organized under the laws of the State of New York, fifty per cent. of the stock of Grandeur, Inc.; that the new company shall have no power to enter into any business other than to hold said stock or any other securities or other property which it may receive as such stockholder; that on or before such delivery date he will cause the new company to execute and deposit with Central Hanover Bank and Trust Co., for delivery to Film and Theatres on the date of delivery of the Film debentures and Class A common stock, an agreement with Film and Theatres for the benefit of themselves and any successor corporations by merger, consolidation or sale of substantially all their assets, and their subsidiaries, (1) that it will indemnify Film and Theatres, their successors and subsidiaries, from and against (a) fifty per cent. of all amounts which Grandeur, Inc., its successors or subsidiaries, may require to be paid by Film or Theatres, their successors or subsidiaries, whether by way of royalties, damages or accounting for profits or otherwise (excluding reasonable service charges) for the use or infringement of the patents or patent rights of Grandeur, its successors or subsidiaries, useful in connection with recording or reproducing sound or pictures, and (b) fifty per cent. of the profits of Grandeur, Inc., its successors or subsidiaries, on any apparatus or service furnished by it or them to Film or Theatres, their successors or subsidiaries, and (2) that it will not dispose of any of said stock in Granduer, Inc., or permit Grandeur, Inc., its successors or subsidiaries, to dispose of any of their patents or patent rights unless such new company shall first have caused Grandeur, Inc., its successors or subsidiaries, as the case may be, to grant and agree to grant to Film and Theatres, their successors and subsidiaries, licenses under all patents or patent rights useful in connection with recording or reproducing sound or pictures then owned or controlled by Grandeur, Inc., or which at any time within twenty-five years shall be owned or controlled by Grandeur, Inc., its successors or subsidiaries, and to use apparatus supplied by Grandeur, Inc., at rates not exceeding fifty per cent. of the lowest rates from time to time charged by Grandeur, Inc., to any other licensees, and otherwise on as favorable terms as are granted to any other licensee; and on or before the date of delivery of the Film debentures and Class A stock he will cause the certificates for said stock of Grandeur, Inc. held by the new company to be transferred into its name, an appropriate notation of said agreement to be stamped upon the certificates for said stock and Grandeur, Inc. to be given an appropriate notice of the existence of said agreement.

On or before such delivery date Mr. Fox and Film, and Mr. Fox and Theatres, will enter into written agreements respectively, to submit to arbitration under the arbitration law of New York whatever claims, if any, Film or Theatres, or any subsidiary of either of them, may have against him (other than as above provided for) or he may have against any of them. In each case one arbiter shall be appointed by Mr. Fox, one by Film or Theatres, as the case may be, after the election of the new boards of directors contemplated by the Plan, and one by the two arbiters thus chosen, or in the event of their failure to agree, by

Compensation

Except as above stated, no compensation shall be payable to the underwriters hereunder.

Film and Theatres shall reimburse the underwriters for the fees and disbursements of their auditors and counsel if the plan is consummated.

VIII.

Conditions

The obligations of the underwriters to underwrite the offerings to the stockholders of Film, as above provided, shall be subject to the following further conditions:

1. That on or before the date fixed for the delivery of the Film debentures and Class A common stock, the underwriters shall have received from Messrs. Touche, Niven & Company confirmation that the balance sheets, income and other financial statements of Film and Theatres and their subsidiaries, which are annexed to the plan dated Feb. 11, 1930, heretofore submitted to the stockholders of Film and Theatres are substantially correct and in the opinion of the underwriters correctly represent the financial condition of each of said corporations as of the date thereof and that on the date thereof there were no liabilities, contingent or otherwise, not appearing on said balance sheets other than (a) obligations under contracts incurred in the normal course of business with stars, dramatists, producers (for not more than one year's production) and salaries to officers and executives, (b) rental obligations under leases incurred in the normal course of operations, and (c) obligations not exceeding $50,000 under any other one contract.

2. That there shall have been no substantial adverse change in the financial condition of said corporations from the dates of said balance sheets to the date of delivery of the Film debentures and Class A common stock.

3. That the form, provisions and terms (subject to the terms hereof) of the Film debentures, the trust agreement under which they are issued, the Class A common stock of Film, the Theatres debentures, the indenture under which they are to be issued, the voting trust agreements, the warrants or certificates evidencing the subscription rights granted to Film and Theatres stockholders, and all other instruments used in carrying out the plan, shall be satisfactory to the underwriters.

4. That on or before the date of delivery of the Film debentures and the Class A common stock, there shall have been taken all corporate action deemed necessary by counsel for the underwriters to authorize the carrying out of this plan and that all the provisions of the plan, other than such delivery and payment therefor, shall have been consummated.

5. That all legal matters in connection with the consummation of the plan shall be subject to the approval of counsel for the underwriters.

6. That at the date of delivery of the Film debentures and the Class A common stock (a) there shall have been cancelled, or re-negotiated in a manner satisfactory to the underwriters, the contracts for the purpose by Film of certain theatres in the State of Ohio and in Grand Rapids, Michigan, known as the Libson and Heidingsfeld circuit and certain theatres in the southwest known as the Hoblitzelle circuit and for the purchase by West Coast Theatres Corp. of the Midland circuit, the T. & D. Jr. circuit and the Arkush circuit; (b) all amounts owing by Film to Wesco Corp. or any of its subsidiaries, shall have been liquidated or adjusted in a manner satisfactory to the underwriters; and (c) there shall not be outstanding any contracts of Film or Theatres, or any of the subsidiaries of either of them, which in the opinion of the underwriters materially adversely affect the interests of Film or Theatres.

7. That all proceedings by Film and Theatres necessary in the opinion of our counsel to authorize the consummation of the plan shall have been completed on or before March 20, or such later date as may be agreed to by the underwriters, and any Film debentures or Class A common stock which the underwriters shall be obligated to take up and pay for upon said underwritings shall be tendered at the office of the underwriters, on or before April 15, 1930, or such later date as may be approved by the underwriters, such Film debentures and Class A common stock to be tendered simultaneously.

8. That hearings upon the motions now pending in the United States District Court for the Southern District of New York for the appointment of receivers of the properties and assets of Film shall, from time to time, be adjourned until the date fixed for delivery of the Film debentures and Class A common stock, and at the time of such delivery the bills upon which such motions have been made shall have been dismissed and no similar proceedings against Film or Theatres shall be pending in any court.

9. That there shall not have occurred, prior to the date of the delivery of and payment for the Film debentures and Class A common stock, any event of a political or financial character affecting market conditions, which in the judgment of the underwriters shall have rendered impracticable the public offering or sale of the Film debentures or the Class A common stock.

Time Limit Junked

Forty-five minutes' discussion for each side in the battle between proponents of the Lehman, Bancamerica-Blair, Dillon Read and the Halsey, Stuart plans was the allotted time, but the limit was forgotten in the general hubbub which ensued, as various speakers were interrupted or harangued.

Fox Charges Trustee Plan Would Mean Comp'y Ruin

values for the subscription rights of the stockholders; also that, if the suspicions of the board of directors are justified, the placing of the companies under the control of the Halsey, Stuart-Telephone interests will in the long run be much more costly to the companies and their stockholders than the amount of any possible saving involved as between the two plans.

13. The board of directors does not believe that it is justified in discarding the Bancamerica-Blair plan which has been underwritten at the earnest solicitation of the companies by three of the greatest banking houses in the country and in approving instead a plan (a) that cannot be consummated, (b) that even if it could be consummated would place the control of the companies in the hands of those who have sought to plunge them into receivership and who will, as the board of directors believes, utilize such control for their own selfish ends, (c) that the board of directors believes has been put forward for the deliberate purpose of defeating any financing of the corporation and (d) that is to be underwritten, if at all, by a single corporation with an undisclosed capital as against the nearly $70,000,000 cash requirements of the plan.

Predict New High for Loew's Current Period

Earnings of Loew's, Inc., to date show a gain of approximately 50 per cent over net of the preceding period, and "Wall Street Journal" predicts a new high record for the year ending August 31, next. The "Journal" claims the company "has been held back at times in the past by the uncertainties in the Fox situation."

Aarons at Fox Studio as New Associate Producer

Hollywood.—Alex A. Aarons will produce a series of musical comedies for Fox, signing as associate producer this week. Benjamin Stoloff will direct the first, for which Billy K. Wells will write the story, Con Conrad the music, and Danny Dare will stage dances.

McClintic to Direct for Fox

Hollywood.—Newest recruit on the Fox lot from the "legit" is Guthrie McClintic, stage director, who will make "On Your Back," written by Rita Weiman. Howard Green is writing the adaptation.

Acrid Fight Over Trusteeship Seen In Fox Situation

in order to hold the $92,000,000 of current indebtedness until a plan of re-financing could be ultimatedly adopted. It seems to me that all this had been accomplished on the strength of the execution of the agreement which undoubtedly produced a certain amount of confidence in the creditors and induced them to join in the effort to conserve.

"Almost immediately after he signed the agreement, Fox appears to have experienced a change of mind, if not of heart. He declined to honor the trustees' request for the resignations of officers and directors of his companies, as he had solemnly undertaken to do. He promiscously charged the trustees with having violated various collateral understandings which are not to be found in the written agreement and which the trustees emphatically deny ever existed.

"He apparently had become apprehensive and seemingly without provocation, that he might be deposed as president by the trustees, and also that Electrical Research Products might be seeking to acquire the companies and thus 'ruin him.'

"He took the position that he would refuse to perform his part of the agreement unless it was modified so as to provide that no plan of reorganization should be adopted which would in any wise disturb his control of the companies through the medium of his voting stock.

Cites Cabinet Letter

"In other words, having derived a substantial part of the benefit which would flow from the arrangements, he was prepared to repudiate his side of the bargain. His disavowal of the agreement, the execution of which he had himself proclaimed to the public, was so flagrant and unwarranted that the principal executives of his companies joined in a letter to him urging upon him the dishonor of persisting in such a course and the detrimental effect it would have on the corporations themselves.

"The trustees felt that they could not, in justice to the creditors who had relied upon the execution of the agreement in its original form, acquiesce in Fox's breach of his unquestioned obligations thereunder or yield to his demand that the agreement be altered so as to insure his continuance in control. When it became evident that it was futile to treat further with Fox, the trustees called a meeting of the bank creditors and apprised them of the situation which then existed.

"They indicated that they had been hindered, by the withholding of the resignations and by Fox's refusal to furnish them access to the books and records, in their efforts to prepare and submit a refinancing plan of their own, as contemplated by the very agreement.

"In the meantime, with a motion pending undetermined in the Federal Court for a receivership of the companies, Fox has succeeded in procuring from certain banking interests an agreement on their part to a proposed plan of reorganization. A special meeting of the stockholders of each corporation has been called for this very day, March 5, 1930, one to occur at 11 in the forenoon, and another at a late hour, at which this plan will be submitted for the approval of the stockholders.

Plan Never Sanctioned

"The plan has never received the approval of the counsel for the trustees in accordance with the fixed requirement of the agreement of Dec. 3, and it is in no way sponsored by them. In fact they have caused to be prepared a plan for submission to the stockholders which they urge is much more economical for, and beneficial to, the stockholders than that promoted by Fox. The latter, in his effort to bring about the adoption of the plan which he supports has now included Halsey, Stuart & Co., Inc., within the list of those who he claims are aiming, for their ulterior motives, to wrest control of the Fox companies.

Eddie Offers Prayer

Things Eddie Quillan, Pathe comedian, would like to see, according to his press agent, are:

Talker without back-stage scene.
Director wearing long pants.
Theme song minus word 'love'.
Female extra who doesn't smoke.
Studio watchman who isn't hard-boiled.
Press agent who never exaggerates.
Star volunteering to make personal appearance.
Orchestra leader with hair cut.
Scotch paymaster.

"It is important to note that Fox owns only approximately 5½ per cent. of the total outstanding capital stock of Fox Film Corp. and something close to 11 per cent. of the stock of Fox Theatres Corp. The remainder of the stock of both companies is owned by the general public. The indebtedness of both companies, aggregating in excess of $90,000,000, is also held by the investing public.

"The significance of those observations rests in the light they throw upon Fox's attempt to create the impression that the companies are his very own, and that any plan which might impair his control of them should be viewed with disfavor and suspicion.

"It is unnecessary to delve into further detail in respect to Fox's repudiation of his written obligations and his utter disregard of the rights of those who have made substantial changes in their position in reliance upon his covenants. Suffice it to state that the court is not at all impressed by his disingenuous charges that the agreement was induced by fraud. that it was violated by the trustees, that it was thereafter abandoned by them, and that he is the unfortunate victim of a malevolent conspiracy to seize control of the companies from him for the iniquitous purpose of bestowing it upon Halsey, Stuart & Co., or Electrical Research Products, or both.

"It is said that of little acorns great oaks do grow. Here we have a little $1,600 acorn which grew into a sturdy $300,000,000 oak. Why was not well enough left alone? The very Fox chopped down his healthy, thriving tree with his own hatchet. The world knows much about avarice and cupidity, and I wonder if this is not another illustration. May he now be heard to complain? He has placed himself in that position which justifies his assault upon the character of men? I think not.

"It follows that no cause has been shown to exist for enjoining Bankers' Trust Co. from issuing proxies to the trustees entitling them to vote the stock deposited in escrow with it, and that there is no basis on the papers before me for otherwise refusing to recognize the binding force of the agreement between the parties.

"As to the various legal questions of a complex nature which have been raised, it need only be pointed out that no proper opportunity was here afforded to appropriately inquire into them and so they must of necessity be left for the trial of the action. It is only necessary for the purposes of this motion to hold that the plaintiff has completely failed to establish that clear right to an injunction which the law requires on a preliminary application of this character.

"The motion is denied and the temporary stay vacated."

Collins, Erpi Auditor

D. C. Collins has been appointed general auditor of Electrical Research Products following appointment of R. E. Anderson as treasurer.

Specialization Policy Adopted at "U" Studio

Universal City—Universal intends to handle each picture as a unit, making it separate from and independent of all others. Associate producers are to be assigned to individual pictures, according to Carl Laemmle, Jr., production chief. In line with this policy, Laemmle confirmed the exclusive Motion Picture News story that E. M. Asher has become an associate producer, and announced appointment of Albert DeMond to a similar post. Naming of more associate producers is planned under the new specialization policy.

Engineers in Chi Persuade Houses to Pay More Money

Chicago—Agreement between Chicago Exhibitors' Association and engineers' union, reached on Feb. 28, is now effective.

The wage scale establishes a chief engineer's salary at $70 per week; Grade A operating engineer, $56, and Grade B, $50.40. An eight-hour day is specified. Agreement affects only those theatres having ice plants—about 20 in number here—and is the first one to exist between the two organizations. It is effective for two years.

Disagreements are to be referred to R. J. Wren, representing the union, and Jack Miller, representing the exhibitors. When settlement cannot be effected by these two, arbitration will be resorted to, with a board composed of two neutrals selected by each organization and a fifth to be chosen by those four. A majority decision must be returned within six days and is binding. Work proceeds during arbitration.

Derr Seeking More Opera Stars for Pathe Program

Culver City—E. B. Derr, Pathe executive vice president in charge of production, is dickering for services of two or three more opera stars, following signing of Mary Lewis. Miss Lewis is to start work on her first picture under the contract, following a trip to New York. Derr, who recently signed a new three-year contract, has launched a building program calling for expenditure of $250,000, preparatory to starting the new season's product of 30 features and 52 two-reel comedies.

Manitoba Exhibitors Now Classifying All Pictures

Winnipeg—Manitoba's trick law on classifying pictures is in effect, and exhibitors now must label a picture "general" or "special." In the case of the latter, exhibitors are not permitted to sell children's tickets, but there is nothing to prevent purchase of an adult ticket by a juvenile, if accompanied in the usual manner. "Frozen Justice," the first restricted picture, found the classification a business stimulus.

Opinions On Pictures

Case of Serg't Grischa

(RKO—All Dialogue)

Not Impressive

ONE paragraph of German army regulations prevented this from being an outstanding picture.

That paragraph, ordering the execution as a spy of any enemy, deserter or refugee within the German lines more than three days before reporting to German militarv police, occupied so much footage and dialogue to explain that there was no time left for building a sympathetic audience interest in Sergeant Grischa, nor for injecting romantic values.

There are no war scenes. Locale is largely in prison camps. The picture is without comedy relief. The character of Grischa is so sketchily drawn, apparently for want of footage, that it fails to arouse particular sympathy. Producer and director evidently got enmeshed in the task of dramatizing the military order about enemy refugees and deserters and the characters suffer for want of humanizing to the audience.

Brenon's job of direction may have suffered in the cutting room, where values seemed to have been sacrificed to length. Chester Morris had a difficult character to play in Grischa. He is cocky and heroic in the absence of danger, but when death threatens he quails.

Betty Compson wears a blonde wig which her dialogue calls "gray." She is competent despite a surplus of makeup, especially about the eyes.

Needs a strong surrounding program of sure-fire comedy values.

Produced and distributed by RKO. Story adapted by Elizabeth Meehan from the novel by Arnold Zweig. Directed by Herbert Brenon. Photographed by Roy Hunt. Length, about 8,261 feet. Running time, 92 minutes. Release date, Feb. 23, 1930.

Babka	Betty Compson
General Von Lychow	Alec B. Francis
General Schieffenzahn	Gustav von Seffertitz

High Society Blues

(Fox—All Dialogue)

Full of Entertainment

(Reviewed by Walter R. Greene)

BRIMFUL of entertainment, "High Society Blues" is the calibre of picture that enjoys wide popularity. The combination of Gaynor and Farrell with a strong supporting cast and a fast tempoed story, assure this one rating in the key houses and others for excellent business.

Miss Gaynor has a radiating charm in a spot that is a natural, and the same applies to Charles Farrell. Then there is a cast with William Collier, Sr., Hedda Hopper, Lucien Littlefield and Louise Fazenda most prominent —and each is excellent. The dialogue is particularly good, not in wise-cracks especially—but in human interest stuff that scores. Direction by David Butler is fine.

The story unfolds the feud developed between two small town families that move to the big city. One family gets into society and snubs the other, while the latter takes reprisal measures with satisfactory results. But the boy of one clan and the girl of the other fall in love and finally elope.

Both Farrell and Miss Gaynor vocalize a few original song numbers with satisfactory results. Fox bills this one as a musical romance—it is all that with plenty of entertainment qualities.

Cartoons and newsreels only required here.

Produced and released by Fox. Story by Dana Burnet. Directed by David Butler. Adaptation and dialogue by Howard J. Green. Photographed by Charles Van Enger. Length about 6,750 feet. Running time, 75 minutes. Release date, March 30, 1930.

THE CAST

Hell Harbor

(U. A.—All Talker)

Colorful, Strong Programmer

(Reviewed by Red Kann)

PHOTOGRAPHICALLY, this is often breath-taking. Dramatically, it has its high and low moments, with the latter more often predominating. In backgrounds, "Hell Harbor" is different, effective and appealing. Commercially, it looks like an extremely satisfactory programmer. Won't knock anybody stiff, but will send 'em out thinking they've seen a good piece of entertainment.

"Hell Harbor" is the name of a town on a Caribbean island. Natives, sailors and traders comprise the straggling population. Lupe Velez is the daughter of a descendent of Morgan, the pirate. Her father attempts to marry her to Jean Hersholt, unsavory trader, but along comes John Holland, visiting trader, who falls for Lupe despite himself. The opening is slow. So is the middle, but Henry King succeeded in whipping up the tempo in the last reels to a fast-moving, melodramatic close. Hersholt gives the best performance in the cast. Velez is as usual. Gibson Gowland fine as Morgan and Holland, what you would expect from the average leading man.

Cartoon shorts will go well with this clear cut melodrama.

Produced by Inspiration and distributed by United Artists. From "Out of the Night," by Rida Johnson Young. Directed by Henry King. Scenario by Fred de Gresac. Dialogue by Clark Silvernail. Continuity by N. Brewster Morse. Photographed by John Fulton, Mack Stengler. Length 8,354 ft. Running time, 84 mins. Release date, March 15, 1930.

Song of the West

(Warners—All Talker)

A Very Sad Affair

(Reviewed by Red Kann)

WHEN operettas turn sour, how sour they can be! "Song of the West" made about a year ago by the Warners and held back for some reason or other, proves itself to be a stilted, generally uninteresting attraction relieved occasionally by flashes of lovely Technicolor and the fine comedy sense of Joe Brown.

The musical comedy atmosphere more often than not induces laughs. The hero, the heavy and the near-heavy strut through the affair ponderously and theatrically. Not once through the entire footage is there a solitary spark approaching the natural. The story is slight and concerns a demerited army captain in the days of the pioneering in the West, how he meets his lady love, marries her, becomes a gambler, parts and finally get together again for the inevitable clinch at the Presidio in San Francisco with the flag waving—in color—and soft summer breezes blowing. Brown is the one redeeming member of the cast; John Boles is unnatural; Vivenne Segal uninteresting and Marion Bryon, cute.

Needs support—and how? Make tour surrounding numbers wows.

Produced and distributed by Warners. From the operetta, "Rainbow," by Laurence Stallings and Oscar Hammerstein 2nd. Directed by Ray Enright. Scenario by Harvey Thew. Length, 7,185 feet. Running time, 78 mins. Release date, March 15, 1930.

THE CAST

Stanton	John Boles
Virginia	Vivienne Segal
Lotta	Marie Wells
Hasty	Joe E. Brown

Dark Red Roses

(New Era—All Talker)

Slow Moving Triangle Yarn

(Reviewed by Joseph Kelley)

WITH the usual bad photography invariably associated with exteriors taken in England, and jumpy, slow moving action, this domestic triangle drama falls into "just another picture" class. However, it has its redeeming features, among which are good recording of voices adapted to the "mike" and a cast of finished actors and actresses, both young and old.

The much picturized and dramatized story of the misunderstood wife and the jealous husband who finds out the true love his wife holds for him only after he has given vent to his jealous passion, is used. But someone had foresight enough to make the climax hinge on an unusual incident that helps wonderfully.

Two children play far more important parts than they rate, which leaves the impression they were given an opportunity to "show off." It is too bad good photographic work can not be made to penetrate the London fogs as some beautiful exteriors were available here. Stewart Rome, as the sculptor and husband and Frances Doble, as the wife are worthy of better roles than afforded here.

This may get over with good jazzy shorts.

Produced by New Era Films. Original story by Stacy Aumonier, R.C.A. recording. Russian ballet under direction of Georges Balanchin.

THE CAST

David	Stewart Rome
His Wife	Frances Doble
Anton	Hugh Eden
The Mother	Kate Cutler
Jack	Jack Clayton
Jill	Jill Clayton
Mrs. Weakes	Eina O'Connor
Tim	Sydney Morgan

Loose Ankles

(First National—All Talker)

Indifferent Farce

(Reviewed by Red Kann)

PRETTY rough in spots and with no good reason. Liberties are, of course, permitted in handling farces, but when, as you do here, find Loretta Young asking Doug Fairbanks, Jr., what sort of compromise he specializes in, "plain or fancy," only to have Doug reply, "I specialize in both," somebody should tell somebody what constitutes good taste.

The story, skiddy as it is, revolves around a will which makes it necessary for the girl to marry a husband who needs the approval of two spinster aunts and a crabby uncle. The girl kicks over the traces and decides to have herself compromised.

The finale takes place in a night club when the spinster aunts get drunk, go native and pave the way to the sanction of the love affair which has sprung up between Loretta and Doug. Miss Young deserves much better material. Fairbanks in this is terrible. Louise Fazenda, as one of the maiden aunts, is made to exaggerate beyond excuse.

Hunt up good surrounding numbers.

Produced and distributed by First National. Directed by Ted Wilde. Adapted from play by Sam Janney. Scenario by Gene Towne. Length, 6,190 feet. Running time, 68 minutes. Release date, Feb. 2, 1930.

THE CAST

Ann Harper Berry	Loretta Young
Gil Hayden	Douglas Fairbanks, Jr.
Aunt Sarah Harper	Louise Fazenda

Current Lineup of Short Subject Product Hits An Average Pace

"Broadway's Like That"

(Vitaphone Varieties, No. 960)

Ruth Etting Isn't So Hot

RUTH ETTING may have a good "blue" voice for stage reproduction but it isn't so hot when placed for "mike" reception. Ruth is placed here in a short dramatic setting showing the city slicker up to his old tricks. She breaks out into song when she should be weeping. However, Broadway's like that. Running time, 9 minutes.

Needs support. Number is average.

"Seeing Stars"

(Universal Sporting Youth Talker—2 Reels)

Peppy two-reeler of Jazz Youth

COMEDY is served here by a collection of jazz-mad youths who invade a picture studio to see one of their number carry out her promise to "get into the picture." Judy, the boaster, becomes understudy to tempermental star, and when fake smoke is used in the scene she becomes frightened and is rescued by her boy friend. Clean throughout its two reels this one offers welcome diversion for the younger generation.

Will fill spot on program whose feature is more or less serious.

Farm Relief

(Krazy Kat—Columbia Cartoon—1 Reel)

Funny Cartoon

THE animals make whoopee in this cartoon, and certainly succeed in getting good and plastered. There are a lot of comical exaggerations and some quartette stuff to help put it over. It has laughs. Running time about 8 minutes.

Good for any feature.

"Lobo, Dog of Dogs"

(Vitaphone Varieties, No. 968)

Good Trick Dog Stuff

LOBO now can take his place alongside of Rin Tin Tin for clever dog stuff and almost human intelligence. Lobo minds much better than most children and goes through his repertoire without a hitch. An interesting novelty with Lobo's master lending dialogue—or monologue, or what have you. Running time, 6 minutes.

Fine for any program. It's different.

"The Pay Off"

(Vitahone Varieties, No. 3798)

Fine Playlet

AN underworld sequence with a world of action and dramatic suspense. Henry B. Walthall gives one of best performances as a gangster who dies to save his daughter from being accused as the sweetheart of a crook. Running time, 10 minutes.

Strong number. Adaptable for any program.

Such Tiny Feet!

Dorothy Calhoun, writing in "Motion Picture Classic," gives Gloria Swanson credit for wearing the smallest shoe in Hollywood, stepping out in a 2½ size. Charlie Chaplin's flat barges represent the largest shoes in same place running to 12DD.

"Lifting" Panned

Hollywood—A writer with a good memory recalled the opening act of a play which had a successful run on Broadway more than ten years ago. He took the idea of the play's opening as the start of his scenario, which was enthusiastically approved by the producer, who knew nothing of the play.

At the same time, another studio acquired screen rights to the old play, and started production under a different title. This picture hit the market first. When the picture with the "lifted" sequence went into distribution, reviewers generally took a crack at it for its similarity to the other.

Titles and offender known—but not supplied.

"French Leave"

(Universal Silent 2 reels)

Slapstick Version of Army Life

DESPITE his many tasks as a soldier Perkins finds time to do plenty of courting among the little French girls in the neighborhood of the camp. A blonde friend of the regiment favors Perkins but is broad-minded and distributes her affections among others. She makes two dates and plenty of complication follow in which Perkins gets the worst of the deal. Good, average comedy of the pie throwing variety. Sid Saylor is the soldier comedian. Running time, 26 minutes.

Should fill comedy spot along with all-talker feature.

Bobbe Arnst

(Vitaphone Varieties No. 913)

Personality Plus

A songster sitting atop a piano and crooning songs is certainly not new, either on the screen or on the stage or anywhere else—even cocktail parties. Bobbe Arnst can sing, however, has plenty of "it" and has a pianist accompanying her who is versatile, to say the least. All of which raises this singing number a bit above the ordinary. Running time, 6 minutes.

Place this with straight dramatic feature.

"Good Old School Days"

(Pathe-Fable—1 Reel)

Okay

VAN BEUREN is rapidly improving the entertainment value of its Aesop Fable revues. This release has sufficient merriment to tickle the sides of the crabbiest. The animal players attend school in this one, and, although they employ the band gag to work in musical material, it is not entirely depended upon to put it over. Running time, 9 minutes.

Okay for a heavy feature.

Beatrice Lillie

(Vitaphone Varieties No. 3884)

Not Up To Lillie Standard

IT WOULD seem that Beatrice Lillie has been provided with songs here that do everything but catch on. Miss Lillie is no small-time comedienne, but she certainly falls pretty close to that level here. The dancing and singing skit falls flat or it did on this reviewer's ears. Running time, 6 minutes.

Needs support—plenty of it.

"Audio Review No. 10"

(Pathe—Talker—1 Reel)

Good Stuff

THREE units, combining entertainment, interest and beauty. "Scoring the Picture" shows how it's done in the recording studio; "'Way Up There" is the caption for that part of the reel which has been turned over to a fine selection of picturesque shots, and "Imported Noise" tops things off with a description of an old French noise-making machine used by Pathe Freres 'way back in 1905. This one nears the one hundred per cent mark. Running time, 10 minutes.

Run this with a good musical short and a comedy feature.

"The Master Sweeper"

(Vitaphone Varieties No. 969)

Some May Laugh At This

CHESTER CONKLIN has quite some reputation as a comic in silent films. As far as we are concerned he can remain silent the rest of his life and that will be too short. Chester in golden silence and Chester in loud talkers are two different Chesters entirely. The gag is built around his job as street cleaner. Some of it clicks; much of it does not. Running time, 10 minutes.

If filler is needed badly Chester will do.

"Fellow Students"

(Universal Talker 2 reels)

Fast Moving Slapstick Comedy

SID SAYLOR whose brand of comedy reminds of Harry Langdon, wins a doctor's diploma after many trials and tribulations at commencement exercises. As Dr. Quinine he opens offices only to find no patients come his way until, by mistake, his office becomes the scene of a wild dash by would-be stenographers in answer to an ad. Sid thinks they are patients and treats them accordingly. Plenty of action with oldtime gags mixed with original gags to make for many laughs. Running time, 24 minutes.

Will fill spot where patrons like their comedy fast, obvious, and low.

"Foolish Follies"

(Pathe-Fable—1 Reel)

Filled with Fun

VAN BEUREN'S stock of pen-and-ink animal characters provoke a load of laughter with their version of "Foolish Follies" on the stage of the Casino, where they burlesque the more popular types of vaude acts. It's funny stuff. Running time, 6 minutes.

Good stuff for heavy feature.

Hollywood's Other Name

Walter Ramsey, writing in Motion Picture Magazine, calls Hollywood a paradise of nouveauriche, explaining the more nouveau the better because Hollywood doesn't countenance last year's contracts or yesterday's affluence. Hollywood. he says, only asks "Who are your friends and how long does your contract run?"

New 'Change Bldg. To Rise At Wabash Ave. and 13th St.

Further centralization of Chicago's film industry is made possible by the construction of a second film exchange building at the 13th Street and Wabash Avenue.

Building is to cost $960,000 and will be five stories high and have a setback floor on the roof which will contain two 150-seat projection rooms. It will contain 60 to 70 fireproof vaults for storage, and will be of heavy concrete construction throughout, Hooper & Janusch, architects and owners of the building, state. Work is to start at once, and completion is scheduled for next fall. Practically all of the space has been leased for ten years, the rental agents announce.

Site chosen is the northwest corner lot, fronting 100 feet on Wabash and 146 feet on 13th Street. On the southeast corner the new Warner building is rapidly nearing completion. Reports state that RKO will sub-lease its present one story building near 9th and Wabash and build new quarters in that structure and Paramount may forsake its present building south of 13th Street in favor of a Michigan Avenue address.

Racketeers Blamed for Attack on Exhibitor

Officials of DuPage County believe that racketeers were responsible for the bombing of a theatre operated at Hinsdale, Ill., by Geo. W. Kreuger.

Kreuger was beaten and shot in Chicago recently and blamed the attack on the trade unionists, and stated that his revenues did not permit him to meet the wage scales demanded by the union men employed.

Tuckman and Jung Robbed

Arthur Tuckman and Arthur Jung, operators at the Norshore, were compelled to lie on the floor of the projection room by an armed man who paid his admission to the theatre and made his way to the projection room immediately upon entering. Robbery committed while show was going on.

Salkin Kidnappd by Thugs

Richard Salkin, manager of the Shore Theatre, was kidnapped while on his way home and forced to return to his theatre and open the safe. After taking $500 the robbers bound Salkin and locked him in the theatre.

B. & K. Shifts Managers

"May I see you tonight, dear?" the old gag runs. "No, it's Lent." Well, may I when you get it back?"

Which is only by way of calling to the exhibitors' attention the presence of those six pre-Easter weeks which annually make their impress on box office receipts—and of the advent of which he is already aware. It is the season when, conscience smitten by the recollection of scarlet hours spent in ballrooms and ice cream emporiums, a certain percentage of your most ardent patronage decides to atone for them by "giving up movies for Lent." Question is, What are you going to do about it?

With the thing swathed as it is in personal sanctity, there isn't much that can be done about it. Loop theatres and some neighborhoods will feel its effects less than others, but it is a vital problem to those houses situated in determinedly religious centers. There is at least an out on Sundays, since most sects observing Lent exempt this one day out of every seven during the Lenten period. Attractive presentations on that day, together with tactful reminders that the status of individual resolves is not impaired by Sunday indulgence, might be effective. Again, there are those who make no deliberate renunciation of pictures at this time, but refrain from attending them because of the sanctimonious mood in which the Lenten season finds them. Such people would be averse to attending floridly advertised girlie-girlie shows, sex dramas, the more blatant of the revues, and the primarily vulgar comedies. Their sensibilities —even though seasonal only—might not be injured by the worthwhile features of genuine dramatic merit, so Wabash Avenue thinks, at any rate.

The Essaness Embassy introduced Magnafilm to its patrons on Friday. . . . Fire broke out in the projection room of the Empire but was prevented from spreading by the prompt action of the operator, who closed all openings in the fireproof booth, smothering the flames. . . . The RKO Palace in Milwaukee is combating the Lenten slump by offering 1,000 balcony seats at two bits on week days, and at the same price up to 4 o'clock on Saturdays. De Forest equipment, it is believed, will be used, although no decision has been made. New seats, 78 in number, will replace the 89 old ones. New Fulco projection machines and a new Kimball organ are in; acoustical insulation completed and $2,000 expended for stage drapes. . . . John Clark's Pathe offices have been refitted and rearranged. Explanation is that Mae Tinee complains she has already too far to go for her private screenings.

Janitors, Scrub Women Ask and May Get Raise

Negotiations for a new contract between theatre janitors and Chicago Exhibitors' Ass'n, as predicted exclusively by MOTION PICTURE NEWS, are now under way.

New wage scale asked by unions is 80 cents an hour for men and 70 cents for women. An eight-hour day and six-day week is also asked. Old contract, which expires March 10, permitted a seven-day week and a ten to eleven-hour day at wages which averaged $20 per week for the scrub women and $35 for the janitors. New scale would give the women $33.60 per week and men, $38.40. MOTION PICTURE NEWS stated that the scrub women, recently admitted to the local janitors' union, would ask a boost of $15 per week, several weeks ago.

Janitors at film exchanges, it is understood, are also included in the negotiations, so that, in addition to 1,010 theatre janitors and scrub women, and 320 theatres affected, a score of exchanges and their janitors are also involved. Agreement must be reached by March 10.

'Date Nite' Boosts B. O.

The Arcada at St. Charles, Ill, managed by W. L. Pracht, is getting a play on a Friday night feature inauguarated recently. Dubbed "Date Nite,"'a popular local orchestra furnishes dance music in the lobby after 10:30 P. M. Attractive decorations and lighting effects have been added. Dancing is restricted to couples only, and the stunt to be repeated every Friday night.

Compo Board Fronts Out

The Department of Electrical Inspection has ordered all composition board (cardboard) signs, banners, posters, etc., removed from the fronts of theatres where they are connected with light circuits.

Now It's Vending Machines

Nine vending machines have been installed in the lobby of the Oriental by Pubix-B. & K. while three are in at the Regal. No other installations are contemplated for the present.

CONDUCTED BY AN EXHIBITOR FOR EXHIBITORS

"Chasing Rainbows"

(With Apologies to M-G-M)

SHOWMEN are just as human as other people, in that they hope to see the various troubles of the business ironed out and things in general take on a more pleasant and optimistic hue.

Anything that can materialize to better the situation of the house manager, or any others active in the operation or advertising of a theatre, is a task which we cheerfully and willingly took upon ourselves.

If there is any phase of this business where help for the showman is needed, it is on the advertising angle. Chiefly because, through advertising the average theatre must sell his house and attractions to the public.

Therefore, were we to analyze present needs of the showman, we would probably give him more help in this direction than ever before. How such help could be conveyed is then the next problem, and in this respect we would venture our own opinion that it ought to come to the theatre-men through the medium of the trade press.

Let's not take away the importance of the "announcement" type of advertising that we are so accustomed to seeing from the producers and distributors. It serves the purpose it is intended for. Namely to herald the coming of the various productions; who will be featured, and other matter all intended to "sell" the man who is buying the pictures for the theatres.

But the above type of advertising should certainly be augmented with a follow-up series of advertising, just prior to the national release date, featuring the "sales" angles of the picture and giving the different b.o. slants, so vital and necessary to the manager who must sell the picture to the public.

The latter is the type of advertising we are anxious to see adopted by the advertising managers of the film companies. It will help the exhibitor to put the picture over, it will provide opportunities for bigger receipts, and it will stimulate the "men behind the guns" to plug harder for the individual attractions. All of which means greater revenue straight down the line.

Maybe they will say that we are "Chasing Rainbows" in hoping for this type of producer advertising to become a fact, but we're rather inclined to feel that the advertisers themselves, will recognize the value of the suggestion and go in for this even bigger than we dare hope for.

As it has already been expressed: We don't need advertising that sells us. We need advertising that will help us sell.

Bill Evans Fooled Them Daily With Novel Radio Gag

When it comes to giving your chairman snappy service, Bill Evans, manager of the New Capitol Theatre in Danbury, Conn., is right there with the goods, for no more do we request Bill's picture than, presto, it is before us, with profuse apologies offered for the poor photography, though as Bill says to me, "To my surprise the lens did not break," which makes us believe that Bill is the Rudy Vallee of Danbury, because when Rudy has his physiognomy (map) photographed, the lens doesn't break, either.

Bill will probably wonder why we are dragging Rudy Vallee into this discussion so we'll let him in on the truth that it is only an artifice to lead up to the stunt he used in connection with the exploiting of "Vagabond Lover."

Bill had a miniature stage in his outer lobby and this was pressed into service as a setting for a loud speaker, in the form of a mike, to pull a radio receiving gag. Ruddy's name was worked around the face of the mike with the bottom of the mike carrying the title plug. As the real horn was concealed behind the dummy mike Bill cut a hole in the center of the fake mike and pasted a photo of Vallee and Sally Blane over it. A light was placed behind it which illuminated the two stars and made them stand out away from the rest of the copy.

The wires from the concealed loud speaker were then run to the storeroom where Bill keeps two electric turntables, with a mike attached and during the busiest hours two men were assigned to the turntables, one man to play the records and the other to act as announcer. The man on the mike announcing that the program was coming over WNCT (a clever arrangement of New Capitol Theatre) through the NBC network. After the announcement the records would be played. This gag was continued for four days and had the town buzzing all the time it was worked, some people even going to the extent of calling Evans on the phone and asking what numbers should be set on their dials in order to get WNCT's program. The papers picked up the gag shortly after its appearance and made a big play on it, with the house coming in for some excellent free publicity, and heavy business on the picture.

Oke, Bill, it's a pleasure to pass on a gag like this to the boys, and it sure comes up to what we have been in the habit of expecting from the boys up around Danbury. Give our regards to Jack Sanson and the rest of the gang up there, and let's hear from you again very soon.

Elmer A. Brill Is Latest Upstate Showman To Join

If we don't miss our guess we believe we can safely say that another manager who is going to be an active member of the CLUB is seen in the person of Elmer A. Brill, house manager of the Broadway Theatre in Newburgh, N. Y., and even though it is a secret we are going to tell you that we have a lot of friends up around his district (we won't say what part but they're mighty "close" friends) and it's for that very reason that we needn't have used the word "guess," because what little we have heard concerning our new member has acted as a foundation for our saying he will be very active.

With a bunch of hustling showmen located in the Upstate district it is not surprising to find out that a manager has to hustle to keep up with the leaders, and as we feel that Brill is a showman we expect to find out from his activities that he is keeping abreast of the rest.

We want Brill to know that we extend him a hearty welcome into the CLUB and we look forward with interest to hearing of his activities in the very near future.

J. Luther Thomas Puts Auto Parade Across For Profit

Another showman we want to introduce to the "gang" is J. Luther Thomas, Jr., manager of the Victoria Theatre in Harrisburg, Pa., for the Wilmer and Vincent Outfit.

Thomas has been following the CLUB'S activities for some time and now that he is a full-fledged member he tells us that he is going to see that his name is before the boys as fast as he can think up new stunts to use, and is going to make up for the time lost while he was at Chambersburg and could not do much exploitation on the four change a week policy the house observed.

We are reproducing a photo of one of the stunts he used in conjunction with "The Love Parade," which picture he sold completely to the patrons of the Victoria, due to his fine exploitation. As you will note from the photo he secured the use of a number of cars and trucks and formed a "love parade," with the cars carrying banners plugging the picture and cruising about town. And with all the interest this parade attracted the theatre certainly got an excellent plug.

In addition to this stunt, Thomas planted twenty-five tire rack banners on taxicabs, through a tie-up with the cab company, who carried them on their cars a week in advance and during the run of the picture. This stunt was very effective, as no matter where you went you'd generally see one of these banners on a cab. A full pag ad, through the co-operation of the local merchants, was secured by Thomas and run in the local papers.

We want to state now that it is this type of live wire showmanship which brings in that extra dollar to the box office weekly, and we're of the opinion that if Thomas keeps up the good work he will more than fulfill his promise to be an active member of the CLUB.

We're glad to welcome him into the "gang" and we want him to know that our pages are always open to credit any showman with a stunt that merits recognition, so let's hear from you real soon, Thomas, and keep up the good work you're doing now.

Inauguration Of Coffee Service Is Addison's Latest

To Managing Director H. M. Addison, of Loew's Rochester Theatre in Rochester, N. Y., must go the honor of being the first showman in that town to follow the example of the Roxy in New York and inaugurate a coffee serving service to patrons of the theatre who come in after the picture has started and prefer waiting for the next performance.

Addison secured a tie-up with the Beech Nut Coffee Company and the local bakery whereby both concerns agreed to furnish their products free of charge for distribution at the Rochester. The coffee company furnishing a quantity of coffee weekly and the local bakery furnishing cake, which was served to the patrons.

Addison lent a touch of originality to the "coffee service idea" by installing a duplicate of a real cafe on the mezzanine floor, with ushers acting as waiters at the tables where the patrons were served.

The idea caught on and was an immediate success, though it looks like the theatre will have to find more room to accommodate the crowds who hourly fill the cafe. Great work, Addison, let's hear some more from you.

H. D. Pearl Put Better-Business Week Over Fine

Manager H. D. Pearl of Eddie Anson's Revere Theatre in Revere Beach, Mass., engineered a most marvelous campaign for a "Revere Better Business Week" which tied the theatre in with practically all the merchants of Revere.

The double truck used in the tabloid newspaper of that town was certainly a corker, but unfortunately was not fit for reproduction due to the reprint on the reverse side showing through. However, we want Mr. Pearl to know that we appreciate his thoughtfulness in forwarding us this information, and showing us how well he engineered this tie-up.

In addition to the double truck the item received front page publicity as well as editorial comment which was worthy of its weight in gold.

Let's hear some more from you Pearl, and remember us to Eddie Anson and the rest of the boys on your circuit.

Albert Margulies Jacked Up Mailing List With Program

At this time we'd like to tell you a little bit about the way Albert A. Margulies, manager of the Regent Theatre in Brooklyn, New York, keeps patrons informed of the coming attractions at his house by means of a monthly program, which he distributes at the theatre and through a mailing list.

Margulies' program is made up in black and white on good coated stock and carries the entire month's program on the four pages, the first and last pages of the herald being devoted to the first and last parts of the month, respectively. The two middle pages bear the main portion of the month's program.

This is a good gag to use once in a while when any novelty in program make-up is desired, and, according to Margulies, the idea worked great for him. In fact, it worked so well his mailing list increased a couple of hundred names.

The beauty of a program of this sort lies in the fact that it is "alive" for thirty or thirty-one days, whereas the weekly program shortly outlives its usefulness and is thrown into the discard.

Thanks, Margulies, we're glad to know you're taking an active interest in the CLUB. We'd like to hear more of your doings at the Regent in the very near future.

Harry Stearn Was Wideawake; Cashed In On Amos 'n Andy

We've got to hand a compliment to Harry D. Stearn, manager of the Capitol Theatre in Reading, Pennsylvania, for the way he reached out and brought back his early evening business which started slipping when Amos and Andy, radio entertainers, captured the hearts of the radio audiences.

As you all know Amos and Andy are to-day the world's foremost blackface comedians, broadcasting over a nation wide radio hookup every evening at seven o'clock. Thus when seven o'clock rolled around, the patrons of the Capitol, instead of being seated in the theatre at seven o'clock as usual, preferred to remain home and listen to the radio stars.

Which started Harry to thinking. With the result that a short while later notice appeared in the newspapers that Amos and Andy would be heard at the Capitol every evening. Of course this excited a lot of comment with the result that everybody started talking. After keeping the town mystified for a couple of days, Harry shot ads in the paper which explained the mystery.

Harry installed a ten tube radio set in his office, and having an announcing set with his sound equipment, placed the radio loud speaker in front of the "mike," then after making the regular announcements, tuned in on Amos and Andy whose reception was greeted with applause, the "mike" picking up the radio broadcast and transmitting it to the horns backstage.

The whole town was wildly enthusiastic over this plan and in addition to the regular seven o'clock show patrons being in their seats many new ones were on hand to see Harry's innovation.

We are reproducing one of Harry's ads on this page which he used in conjunction with his campaign in the event that any of the boys are faced with a similar situation.

We notice in the ad a little line announcing lucky coin pieces to be given away free to kiddies which seems to imply that Harry is still on his toes regarding the kiddie biz. situation, and perhaps he'll favor us with an account of what the "lucky coin" gag is, so that we can pass it on to the boys.

We're glad to see that Harry is still stepping right along and displaying the kind of showmanship that brings in business and holds it. Good work Harry. Let's hear more of your live-wire activities.

"'Ray for Bill"

His many friends will be glad to know that William A. (Bill) Levey, popular manager on A. H. Schwartz's Century Circuit Chain, has returned to his first love, the Beacon Theatre in Port Washington, Long Island, N. Y., at which house he made an enviable record for himself prior to his transfer to the Empress Theatre in Brooklyn.

It is seldom that a theatre manager receives a reception such as was accorded Bill upon his return to this beautiful Long Island playhouse, and to quote the words of one prominent merchant in the town, "If we only had a brass band, we could have a parade." Bill, it seems had made many friends during his two year stay in Port Washington and when nearly the whole town turned out to offer him congratulations on his return, it more than ever proved the truth of our statement that he is a real wide awake showman.

We hasten to offer our congratulations to Bill and we know he is going to keep right on observing the high standard of showmanship which has characterized his every activity since he first came to the notice of your Chairman.

YOUR PROBLEMS AND MINE!

By starting a series of this kind we are merely carrying out our own slogan of "All For One And One For All."

Who can honestly say that they never encountered any difficulties in the operation of their theatres?

Who can deny that they had to overcome many a "tough" situation in order that they gain good-will where hard feeling existed before?

It's just part of our everyday life in the show-game and if the successful solution of one man's problems can be of material aid to the other man, then we are all the gainers in the long run.

Some of the members told us their problems and how they solved them. Others cited their troubles, asking for the advice of their brother-members to help them out.

Follow the series carefully and see if you can make a suggestion or two that will help, not only the man telling about the problem, but the whole crowd of us.

Two Thousand Heads Are Better Than One!

M.'S PROBLEM:

M. was installed in a house that had absolutely no good will.

Why?

Because the house, at one time had run the filthiest type of burlesque; so bad that the police put the padlock on the door for an indefinite period.

Previous to the padlock, the ceiling of the theatre fell and injured several people. The house had always been operated in a "what's the use" manner, and had changed policies, prices and attractions whenever the owners felt in the mood, without any regard for the public.

All M. had to do, so the owners said, was to put the house across, and incidentally, M. had two chain houses for competitors.

M.'S SOLUTION:

M. personally went around and met the various local factions. He told them that things would be different, and the locals promised him co-operation. M. attended meetings of the local Kiwanis, Rotary Clubs and Chamber of Commerce luncheons. M. made friends of everybody, from the lowliest to the highest. He had a good word for everybody. And as a consequence everybody had a good word for him. When the local papers and the Chamber of Commerce saw that he was really in earnest they came through wonderfully, and gave him all the co-operation in the world. After a short time the town belonged to M. and the theatre's business had improved wonderfully. M. had made the house an institution.

When recognition of M's ability came in the form of a better and bigger position in a distant city, M. sent letters to the various heads around town asking them to show the wholehearted support they had given him, to his successor. The locals responded wonderfully and to-day M. has in his possession letters from a Lieutenant Governor of the State, an assistant manager of an important newspaper, and the head of a large city's Chamber of Commerce. Letters that he will always treasure, for they show a city's appreciation of a real showman.

How would YOU handle a similar situation?

A. D. Resnick Still Very Active In Philadelphia, Pa.

Judging from a few of his activities there's a busy member of the ROUND TABLE CLUB in Philadelphia, Pa., who believes in keeping up with the de luxe houses of Philly by some excellent exploiting.

Meet A. D. Resnick, fellers, manager of the Hamilton Theatre in Philadelphia, who has earned himself a place on these pages at this time by the peppy brand of showmanship he is displaying at the Hamilton.

Resnick is a recent member of the CLUB and we set out to make this just an introductory story about him, but after we looked at a few of his stunts we decided that they merited passing on. Not because they are new gags, but because they serve to show what a live wire showman can do in the face of heavy opposition.

The cut we are reproducing below shows in part a sample of the "Eighteen Day Diet" herald which originally appeared on our pages and which Resnick used when that reducing fad became popular. As you will notice the front of the herald is well worded, carrying a teaser which states, "Your health and amusement are of vital importance to the Hamilton Theatre Management." The inside pages of the herald bore the complete schedule of the diet. And in between the daily schedule to be followed Resnick inserted plugs for the theatre. We want to describe the last line of the herald, which was very cleverly worded, and read, "And by now you should be in fine condition to enjoy our perfectly projected programs."

The "Eighteen Day Diet Herald" attracted a lot of attention and secured much valuable publicity for the theatre.

We also want to mention at this time Resnick's tie-up with a local ice cream manufacturer, which boosted his Saturday Matinee business tremendously. The dealer agreed to furnish bricks of ice cream in return for free advertising on the heralds which Resnick had made up announcing the "Ice Cream Party" and the Saturday matinee feature. We're glad to note that Resnick is taking advantage of our recent articles dealing with the necessity of doing something to boost the Saturday matinee business.

In addition to these live wire stunts Resnick tied-up with the local dealers and promoted a masquerade party in the theatre with 35 prizes donated by the local merchants serving as awards for the winners. This stunt went over like a million dollars and the theatre's box office no doubt swelled considerably that night.

This masquerade party is an excellent stunt for the neighborhood theatre to use, and judging from the success of Resnick's experiment, much good will can be had, in addition to making the theatre "homelike."

For a plug on his admission books, Resnick distributed large quantities of "dummy" money, with an imprint on the back requesting any one wishing to save real money to buy the thrift books. So you see, it looks as though we have added another real live wire to the roster of the CLUB, and we want Resnick to know that we extend him a heart welcome to the crowd and expect him to keep us up on his activities at the Hamilton.

How about it, Resnick? Let's hear from you and have a picture of yourself so that we can let the rest of the gang see you.

Hinds' Tie-Up With Local Bakery Was Profitable Stunt

Manager Fred Hinds of the Colonial Theatre in Watertown, S. Dak., sold the town's largest bakery an idea which netted the theatre and the bakery extra profits.

The bakery agreed to wrap a coupon with every loaf of bread sold, with a pass to the Colonial given for ten coupons brought back to the bakery.

A few days in advance the stunt was given publicity in the local newspapers in the form of a story announcing that the bakery had an important message to deliver, regarding its 24th anniversary, which they were about to celebrate, and stating that a pleasant surprise was in store.

On the opening day of the issuance of coupons the bakery carried a three column ad in the local paper, announcing in detail how the coupons could be secured and made to provide the holders with entertainment.

In addition to plugging the stunt in the newspapers the bakery also used their windows to give the gag publicity. Banners announcing the plan were also carried on the bakery delivery trucks.

This tie-up benefitted both the theatre and the bakery and as the bakery paid the full price for the theatre tickets, it can be seen that Hinds got a shade the better of the deal, though both obtained a large measure of good-will.

We're glad to note that Hinds is continuing his peppy activities out in his town and we want to thank him for passing this gag on, in case any of the boys are able to use it. Let's hear from you again in the near future Hinds and you might send us a photo of yourself so that we can give you a send off on the CLUB pages.

MANAGERS' ROUND TABLE CLUB

Bromberg Crashes Local Restaurant For Free Publicity

David L. Bromberg, manager of the Fox Japanese Garden in New York City, secured a tie-up with a restaurant in connection with his exploitation on "Hot for Paris," which we think merits a mention in the CLUB's pages.

Dave's restaurant tie-up enabled him to have a special blue plate dinner of boneless chicken pot pie and vegetables, listed on the menu as "Hot for Paris," which was featured on the bill of fare as a "special."

In addition to the menu tie-up, Dave arranged for the distribution of a number of cards of the type we are reproducing below, which read: "ENJOY A 'HOT' MEAL AT FLEISCHER'S—Then—'HOT FOR PARIS' at the WILLIAM FOX JAPANESE GARDEN."

E —A "HOT" Meal at FLEISCHER'S
N Then . . .
J —"HOT FOR PARIS"
O At WILLIAM FOX
Y JAPANESE GARDEN

These cards were attached to all the menus and in that manner the picture was brought direct to the public's attention.

This tie-up while not new, is nevertheless an excellent medium of exploitation and we are glad to note that Dave is right on the job grabbing every opportunity that presents itself to plug his house.

We'd like to hear more of Dave's activities in the near future, and as we live right around his neighborhood we are going to drop in one of these days and say hello to him, and also we're going to note whether his membership certificate is occupying a prominent place on the wall of his office.

It might be of interest to reveal at this time that the Japanese Garden was the first roof garden in New York to instal the sound and talking picture policy and also state that Dave has been making that house click successfully.

Oak, David, and don't think we aren't going to drop in there one of these not too cold days.

Bolivar Hyde, Jr. Makes Them Look And Listen in Fla.

Manager B. Hyde, Jr., of the Polk Theatre, Lakeland, Fla., pulled a "wow" of a stunt, perhaps not altogether new but with an original variation, in advertising a group of pictures.

Working on his public's curiosity and playing up the old psychology of restricting something to one sex only, he rented a vacant store in the heart of the down-town section of the city for a week at a nominal cost. Then he covered the windows on both sides of the entrances with paint, leaving only a small round hole for "peeping" purposes in each of the two windows. One was labeled "Men Only" and the other "Women Only" and inside the hole was copy on the picture playing the Polk at the time. It was kept up-to-date for a week, calling for much comment and exciting lots of attention all the while it was used.

Of course other means of advertising were used, including the distribution of 2,000 stock heralds over the city, through a tie-up with a baking company who also bannered their eight trucks and placed 150 window cards in strategically located stores.

He then placed a new Ford on display in his lobby to sell "Painted Angel."

The car was there for an entire week. And in addition to displaying it in the lobby, the agency also ran quarter-page ads daily telling of this fact as well as mentioning the current picture playing at the Polk.

Hyde explains it : "This tie-up gave us some excellent publicity and no doubt advertised our show more than any other means we could have had right at this time."

The auto agency also had cards in their windows telling about the car on display in the theatre lobby as well as giving the name of the picture.

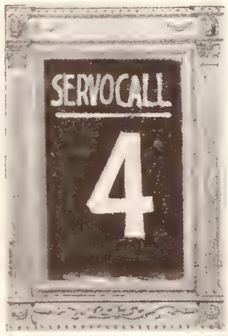
—and up pops Bolivar again.

Seems like we no more than get one story into the pages about him when along comes another, but far be it from us to discourage any CLUB member from sending us the "low down" on how they are getting the cash customers to keep the old ticket machine hot.

Hope you don't mind all the slang, Hyde, but it is really a compliment and not a knock. So keep right on shooting the stuff along and we'll pass it on to the boys.

"Real Service"

This one is Dick Howarth's idea, the progressive young chap who manages the Oakwood in Toronto. This simple contrivance should fill a long-felt want, especially in those houses that are patronized largely by physicians and railroad men and others who are subject to emergency calls.



The accompanying illustration shows a 22 x 14-in. frame, covered with glass and containing rollers (top and bottom) holding drawing linen on which is cut in numbers ranging from 1 to 10. This roll of linen is lighted from behind by two 25-watt lamps.

When a patron, who is anticipating a phone call leaves his name at the box office he is given a number on a card (about the size of a pass-out check). When they are phoned at the box office, an usher goes to the annunciator and turns the roll to the number that the patron holds on the check and switches on the light behind the number, which is of such size and legibility as to be easily discerned by everyone in the theatre.

This box is placed in a conspicuous position on the stage and a trailer on the screen tells the patrons about this service, besides drawing their attention by carrying a notice on the house program.

The cost is so small and the whole outfit so simple to make that no manager can afford to overlook this excellent medium to improve the service to his patrons.

(Note: The above is a marvelous service angle. What are YOU doing equally as good?)

Tschauder's Gag So Hot Whole Town Rushed To Theatre

Time and again word drifts into your Chairman concerning the live-wire activities of Max Tschauder, manager of the Rivoli Theatre in Beatrice, Nebraska, and as we are in touch with Max's work we like to pass his activities on to the rest of the Club.

We're glad to note that he is still stepping high, wide and handsome out there in the West, displaying the same peppy showmanship he has used in connection with various stunts. In fact the gag Max pulled when he shot off a lot of red flares from the top of his marquee, in order to attract attention to his house, the night the opposition was featuring a band concert in front of their house's sidewalk, is still going the rounds of the Western exchanges.

And when you stop to consider that Max is pulling some high pressure gags with every new show it begins to look as though the town of Beatrice will certainly be Rivoli conscious.

Keep us posted on your activities Max, because we still remember the stunts you used to work not so long ago and we know what box office builders they were too, in addition to being fine showmanship.

MANAGERS' ROUND TABLE CLUB

Army Bus Tie-Up Helped Increase Raleigh's Biz.

Here's the way one manager reached out and grabbed in some extra box office biz.

A. C. Raleigh, manager of the Liberty Theatre in Olympia, Washington, effected a neat tie-up with the army post located at Fort Lewis, a short bus run from Olympia, by offering the space in front of the theatre as a bus stop.

Raleigh was aided in this tie-up by a decision rendered by the courts which would not permit army operated transportation buses to run into Tacoma, due to the competition it would give the franchised company operating there.

The commanding office of the army post, upon receipt of the injunction restraining the post's buses from traveling to Tacoma, issued an order stating that the soldiers were to find their future recreation in Olympia. Which is where Raleigh's break came in.

Learning that the buses had no place to load and unload, he called up the commandant at the military post and offered him the free use of the space in front of the theatre. Upon the officer's acceptance Raleigh notified the Police Dept., which agreed to see that the space was reserved.

The time table of the bus' trips was posted in the box office and the bus dispatcher's orders were taken by the theatre and given to the driver of the bus.

On week days there is only one bus in the afternoon, due to the soldiers' time being taken up by drilling, etc., but in the evening, from six o'clock on, buses are run every half hour, and as all the soldiers get out in front of the theatre, a good deal of extra box office revenue is picked up.

The Chamber of Commerce and the local newspapers are co-operating with Raleigh, endeavoring to make the soldiers' nightly visit as pleasant and as beneficial as possible.

This is the type of live wire showmanship that goes far towards bringing up the weekly receipts and it is a pleasure to let the rest of the CLUB know what Raleigh is doing out there in the Northwest. Let's hear more of this kind of showmanship. How about it, Raleigh?

BINSTOCK CLIMBS

And He Deserves It

When it comes to predicting future happenings, we ought to hang out the "crystal-gazing" sign and make a business of it!

When Paul Binstock was just a house manager, we felt that the type of work he was doing would win him recognition from the "higher ups" and, sure enough, Paul was made City Manager for the Fox Metropolitan houses in Astoria, L. I.

Our prediction did not cease with this first promotion and we were certain that Paul would work his way still higher if he would just continue the same brand of showmanship and loyalty to his organization. And it is our pleasure to announce that he has been appointed Assistant District Supervisor for the Fox houses in Queens.

Here's our heartiest congratulations and best wishes, Paul, and the added prediction that we will be hearing still more later.

We wonder what's become of

DON HOOBLER?

This esteemed gentleman was one of the first members of the ROUND TABLE CLUB and as in the case of many others, we have no intention of letting him drop out of sight. At the time he enrolled, he was manager of the Irvin and Castle Theatres, in Bloomington, Ill., and for a while he was an active contributor to these pages.

Since we feel that he was instrumental in helping us put over the ROUND TABLE CLUB, we would like to know whether he is still an interested follower of our pages. So if you see this, Don, drop us a line and tell us the news.

M. R. T. C.

Fred Johnson Shed Plenty of Light On This Subject

Fred E. Johnson, hustling manager of the R.K.O. Drake Theatre in Oil City, Pennsylvania, put over an extensive exploitation campaign on "Rio Rita" that helped swell box office receipts, and knowing Fred's methods the way we do we can be sure that when we say swelled it was some swelling.

Fred secured the co-operation of the Oil City Mayor, and the Keystone Public Service Co. to the extent of gaining permission for the erection of a monster electric sign, to be strung across the street. Letters four feet high were wired and strung from the marquee flasher of the theatre to the light company's poles across the way. And when the sign was lighted up at night it could be seen for blocks away. As this was the first time a high-powered stunt like it was pulled in the town, considerable comment was aroused, with people stopping to look at the sign, and the theatre as a consequence secured much valuable word of mouth publicity, since this stunt clicked like a million.

In addition to this Fred also had a couple of attractive pennants "plugging" the picture extending down from the top of the building for about twenty-five feet and which attracted more than passing interest.

We want to say a word or two about the general layout of Fred's newspaper ads which as we have remarked before are always effective and well made up. An interesting feature of his ads are the little novelties he inserts into the layout from time to time in the form of catch lines or little sayings of famous personalities. In one of his recent ads he carried a little box which carried copy reading—President Hoover Says: "Let us have business expansion, justified optimism and renewed prosperity." You'll probably wonder what bearing this has on the copy—so we'll tell you that while it has no bearing on the copy, it sells, and makes a mighty interesting ad more interesting for just the reason that it has no bearing on the copy in general. Another real little stunt Johnson used was running the ad he made up on Rudy Vallee's picture, on the same page with the radio program, and which stunt again proves Fred a live wire showman who doesn't let a thing get past him.

We're glad to hear from him again and we want him to know we're always interested in hearing news of his doings at Oil City. So don't keep us in the dark concerning yourself, Fred, and give our regards to Mrs. Johnson.

MANAGERS' ROUND TABLE CLUB

An Achievement Of Showmanship Is the Civic, New Zealand

As we have stressed before, when the foreign showmen set out to put a campaign across they sure do it in great style. Which is why we want to call your attention at this time to the way a bunch of peppy New Zealanad showmen put over the opening of the Civic Theatre in Auckland, New Zealand, which house is under the able managership of Stewart Pitt, with A. L. O'Brien, general manager, as supervisor.

A tie-up with the "Sun," Auckland's leading newspaper, was effected by the theatre, whereby the newspaper agreed to edit and circulate a special supplement devoted to the theatre, and since the Sun has the largest circulation in the city the importance of this tie-up can easily be seen.

THE CIVIC THEATRE
A THEATRE WORTHY OF AUCKLAND
The Genie of The Civic Theatre Directs You To ENTERTAINMENT OF UNPARALLELED MAGNIFICENCE

The front page of the special section carried a beautiful drawing of the theatre, which we show with this story, together with a dedicatory address by the builder and owner, Thomas A. O'Brien. The inner pages carried ads of the various companies whose products had gone into the building of the theatre, with the various motion picture exchanges carrying full page ads announcing their pictures which would show at the Civic.

Many pages were devoted to stories concerning the men who had been instrumental in the building of the theatre, and whose showmanship would be more in evidence when the theatre's policy of de luxe stage shows, with a stage band, ballet troupe and organ solos would become effective.

A fine example of showmanship is seen in the unique uniforms which are featured by the usherettes, consisting of a costume similar to that featured by the harem nautch dancers, while still another innovation in showmanship is the Winter Garden restaurant which has been installed within the theatre. This restaurant, or perhaps we should say cabaret, since it features a revue, is able to accommodate about six hundred persons, who, if they wish, may view the Civic show while dining or, if not, may simply draw the curtains which permit a view of the theatre screen and stage. This innovation is one of the most novel feats of showmanship ever attempted and, boy, we'd sure like to see it.

The management of the theatre has arranged a few services for the convenience of the patrons which show the result of a careful study in showmanship by tying up with the local telephone and taxi companies. Phones were installed in the theatre lobby with direct wires running to the taxi company so that any patron desiring a cab would not have to go out into the street and hail one, and when we think of how many times we've stood out in the rain waiting for a cab we don't doubt but that this kind of thoughtful service will certainly be appreciated.

Some more thoughtfulness and show salesmanship on the part of the management is seen in the arrangement they have made whereby patrons coming to the theatre would be enabled to park their cars free of charge at a nearby garage and also at the side and rear of the theatre where a large parking space to accommodate hundreds of cars, had been provided, and as a measure of protection and assurance against the cars being damaged or stolen, the alert management issued a free insurance policy covering any damage which might be done the cars, and which was handed the patrons by the theatre attendants stationed at the parking space.

The theatre has a seating capacity of three thousand people and its publicity and exploitation is handled by W. A. Malone, and since we believe Malone to be one of those instrumental in securing the special supplement, we feel sure that working for a couple of showmen like Messrs. O'Brien and Pitt, he'll more than put that house on the map.

Since it takes so long for news to come into this office from New Zealand, we'll have to promise you more accounts of the activities of these showmen at a later date and you may expect to be let in on some mighty interesting stuff. Incidentally, while we're on the subject of news we hope that the management of the Civic will favor us by adding our name to their mailing list, for from what we have heard we're sure the boys in the Club will be interested in hearing about the house organ, "The Civic Review."

We want to congratulate the showmen responsible for the excellent special supplement they have put out, and we want to congratulate the builders, too, for the marvelous theatre their craftsmanship has conceived—a theatre which will stand as a tribute to the finest showmanship in New Zealand; and for that matter, a good many other places.

We'd like to hear more of the activities of this live-wire bunch in the future and also publish photographs and news about their activities as it will certainly be a pleasure to let the rest of the world know what the other half is doing.

How about it? Let's hear from you, Oak?

Tell Him Now!

(Thanks to E. E. Bair)

If with pleasure you are viewing any work a man is doing, if you like him or you love him, tell him now.
Don't withhold your approbation 'til the person makes oration as he lies with snowy lilies o'er his brow;
For no matter how you shout it, he won't really care about it;
He won't know how many teardrops you have shed;
If you think some praise is due him, now's the time to slip it to him
For he cannot read his tombstone when he's dead.
More than fame and more than money is the comment kind and sunny, and the hearty warm approval of a friend.
For it gives to life a savor and it makes you stronger, braver, and it gives you heart and spirit to the end.
If he earns your praise—bestow it; if you like him let him know it, let the words of true encouragement be said.
Do not wait 'til life is over and he's underneath the clover, for he cannot read his tombstone when he's dead.

(Respectfully dedicated to the "bosses" of the show-business who still believe its bad dope to pat a man on the back.)

Safety First and Last

(NOTE: This article appeared in one of the programs of the Broadway Theatre in Norwich as a personal chat between the manager and the patrons. There are many fine angles to stories of this type and we suggest you read it through.)

Broadway patrons enjoy their programs, serenely confident of their absolute safety at all times, due to the unremitting vigilance of the management, who maintains a constant inspection with that one purpose in view. Exit-ways more than sufficient to provide safe and easy egress, numbering four from the second balcony, four from the first balcony, and seven from the main floor, all leading directly to the street, provide open passages capable of emptying the house of 1400 patrons in two minutes—which has been done under a stop-watch test by Fire Chief Taft. In addition, the Broadway maintains the only system of emergency lights in any Norwich theatre, instantly available in case of the failure of the city service, and entirely independent of any outside source, flooding the entire house with light at the flip of a switch, and ensuring the utmost in safety. Wide aisles, accommodious stairways, all doors opening outward at the slightest push on the inside bars, all are important factors in public safety. The latest type of fireproof projection booth, asbestos built on a steel frame, and with portholes instantly and automatically closed if necessary, the latest type projection machines, equipped with the new safety devices, which prevent the burning of more than one inch of film, and the rigid supervision of the projectionists by first, the house manager; second, the Fire Department; and third, the State Police, constitute a safety formula that is one hundred percent efficient. Courteous ushers, trained in the use of all the house safety devices, and thoroughly familiar with every part of the theatre, are at the service of the patrons at all times. The beautifully appointed ladies' room with a smiling matron always on duty, a comfortable men's lounge, the iced bubble fountain, provide the smaller comforts which make a visit to the Broadway just a little more enjoyable than the average theatre. In case you need it, the Manager will gladly call a taxi for you at any time. Physicians, nurses, clergymen find our announcing system a great convenience.

Congratulations To E. W. Gould On His Fine Record

It is rather unfortunate that a record of many years' service in theatres around New York City cannot be cited as the rule, rather than the exception. But to every one of us who knows our New York and its rather unusual conditions, insofar as theatre managers are concerned, such an achievement is worthy of a fanfare of trumpets and a banquet of honor.

To E. W. Gould, therefore, goes the honor of this occasion as well as the announcement that he is just completing his TENTH anniversary as manager of the Morningside Theatre in uptown New York City.

You may talk about those managers in the smaller towns and cities who have built up tremendous prestige and good will by reason of their long records in the houses they have operated, but to accomplish such a feat in this city of ever-changing managers, must mean that Gould possesses something far above the ordinary and it affords us more pleasure to state these facts than mere type could possibly convey.

We sincerely trust that "E. W." will become a steady contributor to the CLUB pages hereafter and let us in on some of the good will tactics he has put across so successfully over those ten years of faithful service to the Consolidated Circuit. How about it, Gould?

We wonder whether being a subscriber to MOTION PICTURE NEWS over that long period of years had anything to do with his handling of that job of his? But, at any rate, it shows, beyond a shadow of doubt, that Gould knew how to keep in touch with the industry all the time and he sure selected the right trade paper for that purpose.

Irving Feinman Is Always Displaying Fine Showmanship

Not so long ago we predicted that Irving Feinman, assistant manager of the Leader Theatre in Brooklyn, would become a very active member of the CLUB. And from the way Irving is going out in Brooklyn, it looks as though we're going to be right.

With his boss Manager Champlin, Irving promoted a free toy matinee to boost kiddie business on Saturday afternoon, that clicked to the tune of more box office. Cards were distributed in the theatre and vicinity, in the form of a reserved seat ticket, and bearing a detachable coupon. The copy on the ticket announced that the ticket and fifteen cents would admit a school child to the Saturday Afternoon "Kiddie Toy Matinee." When the ticket and fifteen cents was presented at the box office the coupon on the ticket was detached and presented to the child, who held onto it in the event that his number should correspond with the numbers called from the stage entitling the bearer to a toy. The toys generally included a pair of roller skates, a scooter, dolls, etc. This stunt made a great hit with the parents and children in the neighborhood and the Saturday receipts swelled considerably.

The free radio gag which Irving and his boss used a short while ago was such a financial success that they have already promoted another radio from a local dealer and plan giving it away in a short while and no doubt will again bust another house record, as this gag, which consists of procuring a radio, free, from the local dealer, who receives advertising in exchange, with the radio being given away from the stage, has never yet failed to boost the box office.

We want to compliment Irving on the excellent house service he maintains, and we know that the patrons enjoy a "Broadway Service" because Irving himself is a veteran in the service end of the business, having worked in some of New York's biggest houses and been an important member of their service staff, and he has transferred some of that selfsame pep of former days to the young men who make up the service outfit at the Leader and maintain a standard of courtesy always.

It is a source of pleasure to us to keep our eye on Irving's work, since the live-wire manner in which he handles his job gives us the impression that he will soon be qualified to take the next step up the ladder.

(NOTE: While this article and a future one dealing with Irving has been awaiting publication, your Chairman received word that Irving has been promoted to House Manager of the Ozone Park Theatre in Ozone Park, L. I., N. Y., under Monty MacLevy, supervising manager of the Cross Bay and Ozone Park Theatres.)

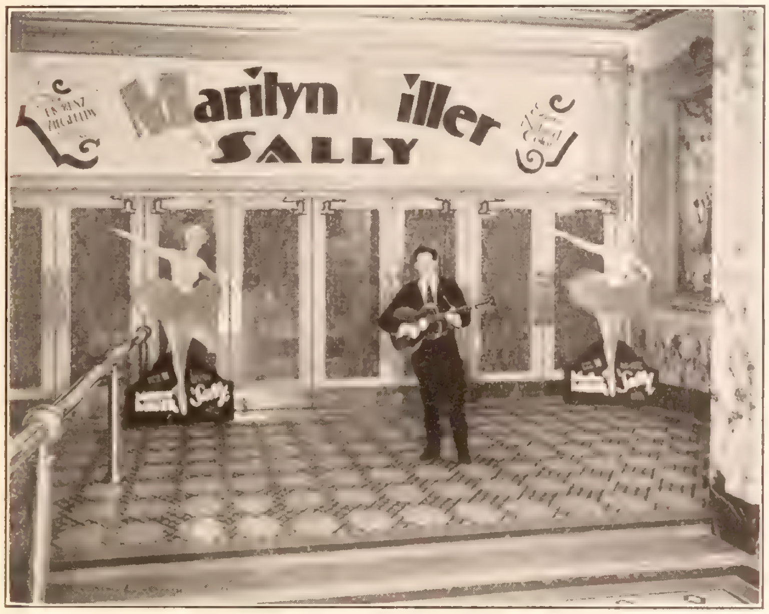
Troubadour In Foyer Helped Laby To Boost Business

We're reproducing a picture of the lobby of the Washington St. Olympia in Boston, Mass., which theatre is under the able management of G. Laby. And Laby starts off his letter by asking us a question and then, to avoid any complications? answers it himself.

"Where's the best place to sell your coming attractions?" he asks. And then he answers, "The inside lobby." And just to demonstrate Laby's point we had a cut made showing his lobby so that you boys can pass your own comment on it.

As you will notice Laby has conceived the idea of having a singer croon the song hits from the picture. The singer, "Don" Humby, is active five hours a day. Which is some strain on the tonsils. But, according to Laby, this stunt did a lot towards attracting attention to the picture and selling it. This is not a bad stunt as it gets away from the "non-sync" plugging idea and affords the patrons a little relief from the "horns."



We want you to notice also the cutouts of Marilyn Miller, which stand out like a million bucks and which are made from six sheets with the head piece and bodice done in silver tinsel and the ballet gown made of regular tarlaton ballet cloth studded with silver tinsel, which not only gave the cutouts a lifelike appearance but enhanced the effectiveness of the lobby.

Thanks, Laby, we're glad to know that you're all pepped up down there in Boston and we feel sure that if you continue using the "Old Dome," your box office will show the results. And don't forget, we're always glad to hear of you and your activities. Oak?

Meet John A. Hart Manager Of Doan In Cleveland, Ohio

C'mon fellers, gather about the ROUND TABLE and meet one of the new members.

John A. Hart is the manager of Loew's Doan Theatre in Cleveland, Ohio, and according to Richard D. Deutsch who nominated him for membership we are going to hear a lot more about him.

Hart, we'd have you know, has been in almost every phase of the game and has been a showman for a long time. Prior to breaking into the game as a manager Hart had played "bits" in vaudeville and legitimate production. He is called the "singing manager" and on special occasion has entertained his patrons by vocal renditions of Irish ballads.

We're extending Hart a cordial welcome into the CLUB and we want him to know that these pages are always open for the representation of the showman ideas. We hope Hart will favor us with a photo of himself shortly in order that we can let the rest of the boys see what he looks like. How about it Hart? Let's hear from you again.

"SYNCHRONIZATION"

When the expression synchronization was first used in connection with sound pictures, it typified the "perfect synchronizing" of sound to the picture being projected upon the screen.

Today the meaning of perfect synchronization has taken on a more important significance in that one of the most essential necessities in proper projection or theatre operation is "perfect synchronization" between the house manager and the projectionist in the booth.

Of what use are good projectionists when they only have a monitor horn in the booth to guide them upon the sound which is being broadcast from the horn back of the screen, when the manager and the booth are not in perfect accord and working together 100 per cent?

This should serve as a warning to every house manager to try his utmost to work out a plan whereby this phase of his show is carefully watched so that the booth is constantly in touch with the floor, and that the sound is being handled in the best possible way. In this manner you will avoid many kicks, not only from the patrons, but from the bosses on their various visits to your theatre.

As far as the projectionists are concerned, they have never been a problem to this department because we have been created solely for the use of the house manager, but from the house-manager's standpoint, he has much to gain by winning the confidence of his projectionist and working in absolute accord with him at all times.

Get wise to the added significance of "perfect synchronization," and see if you can't work out the problems of the sound projection in the booth to the satisfaction of all concerned.

H. Kopplin Annexes A Clever Organist In "Buddy" Webber

The CLUB will soon have another interesting feature to offer in the way of a series of high-powered organ specialties being put across under the direction of Harold Kopplin, Manager of the Capitol Theatre in Miami, Florida, whose organist is a chap well known to your chairman by reason of the fine stuff he put across at the Plymouth Theatre in Worcester.

"Buddy" Webber is the chap we have reference to and we certainly were glad to hear from "Buddy" once again. He came to us out of a clear sky while we were trying to find an organist who would do justice to the beautiful instrument that we had up there in Worcester and he not only filled the bill but really created quite a name for himself up in the New England section.

We have no doubt that "Buddy" will click down at the Capitol in Miami for Mr. Kopplin and his promise to furnish us with the dope about what he is doing is something that we are keenly looking forward to, especially the stunt on "Singing in the Bathtub," wherein he sat at the organ in a bathing suit.

Listen "Buddy," we hope you have put a little "beef" on since we last saw you or I have my doubts as to what you would look like as a "bathing beauty"??? However, kidding aside, we were delighted to hear from you and hope you convey our best regards to Mr. Kopplin. Remember we are looking forward and anxiously awaiting for the organ specialties that we wrote to you about.

Novelty Characterizes The Work Of Norman E. Fitz

It looks as though we started something when we made a declaration that Norwich, Conn., was a once peppy show town, and now Norman E. Fitz, manager of the Broadway Theatre in that city, hastens to enter the discussion, demanding that we recount some of his activities. Which we are always glad to do.

To begin with, we want to tell you about Fitz's campaign on "Flight," which helped boost receipts considerably, by reason of Fitz's tie-up with a commercial aviation company which made half hourly flights around the city, and which, for the use of Fitz's screen to run a trailer announcing these flights, permitted him to go up in a plane and throw out 5,000 heralds at different points covering a radius of twenty miles. The heralds were very nicely made up as the reproduction shows, and Fitz made sure that they would be read by writing a head reading: Valuable! Read Every Word on this Sheet! You May Be Lucky! On the bottom of the herald the catchline head was explained by a little box left blank for Fitz's signature, with a note reading: "Is the Manager's signature in the space below? If so, this circular is a pass to the Broadway Theatre." This stunt went over big when pulled, with both adults and kids grabbing the heralds as they fluttered from the plane.

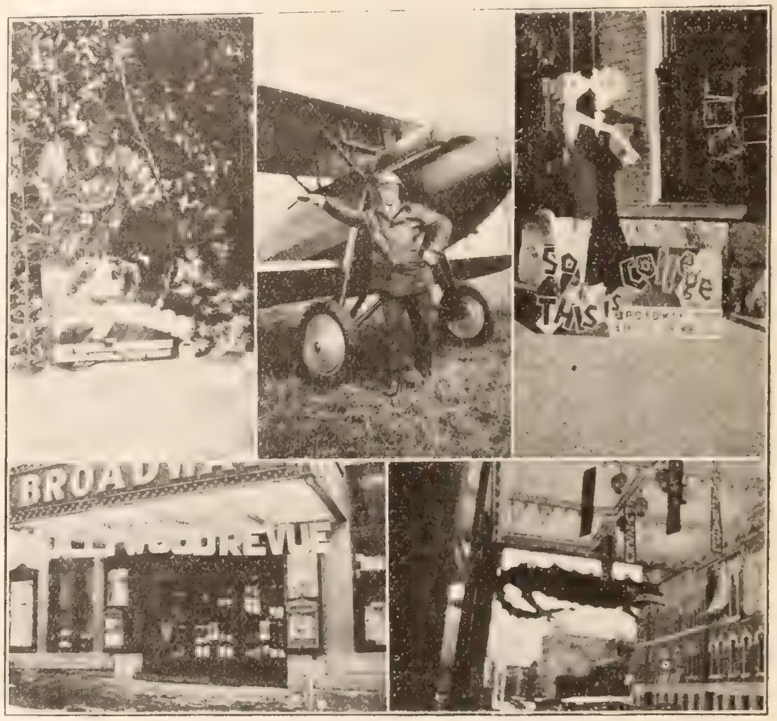
Another prize stunt which Fitz pulled in connection with the picture was the release from the plane of a compo board dummy aviator, with a parachute attached to his back. The dummy aviator made his drop directly over the theatre, with 10,000 people watching his descent. He landed in a woods about three miles out of town, with a large number of the crowd hot on his trail, since a reward was being offered for his return. The newspapers gave this stunt plenty of publicity, which helped a lot in stimulating interest in the picture. Through a tie-up with the Navy sub-base Fitz was enabled to procure a beautiful display of signal flags which he swung from the flagpole to the marquee. This stunt was excellent as a flash and helped a lot in selling the picture.

We're sure we don't know where Fitz finds the time to turn out the nice lobby display he arranges on every picture, but he manages to get around to it, as the accompanying illustrations will show. We want to call attention to the "Virginian" cutout he used which attracted considerable comment, due to its being partially hidden behind some small trees and brush, and was outfitted realistically with a sombrero, cartridge belt and buckle and a gun and holster. In fact, it was so real that people would stop and look at it considerably longer than the regular lobby display would command.

The gentleman in the center, holding up the aeroplane, is Fitz himself, and we can tell by the smile that he was sure business would be above par on the picture. The other cutout on the top row is a hand-painted job done on "So This Is College." Since the exchange posters were not suitable enough for the use Fitz wanted them for he made up his own, and it was largely through the novelty of design that he succeeded in landing it in the window of the leading clothing store in town. The two bottom portraits show the attractive fronts he arranged for "Hollywood Revue" and "Fu Manchu." As you will notice, he has added a novel touch to the "Manchu" display by featuring a large cutout of a dragon under his marquee.



While we're about it we want to mention that Fitz promoted a radio from one of the local dealers and gave it away free, turning in one of the biggest days in the history of the theatre. The free radio gag was given a two-week plug and on the night of the award the house was jammed.

The other card we are reproducing shows a tie-up with a local candy manufacturer who cooperated with Fitz on the picture "Sweetie," and made up an immense chocolate drop which he placed on display in his window with a prize offered to any one guessing the weight.

A very advantageous stunt was worked by Fitz on "Welcome Danger," whereby he secured a quantity of gravure heralds and sold space on the back page to the local merchants whose ads paid for the cost of printing the heralds and netted the theatre a little profit by increased business. The heralds were distributed at the theatre and the stores of the advertisers, as well as around the town.

We want to commend Fitz on the layout of his house program and the snappy chat box he has arranged on the back page so that he may talk informally to his patrons on the coming attractions, and since it is written in a nice, easy manner it is surely read by every patron weekly.

Oak, Fitz. If you and the rest of the live wires in Norwich keep up that sort of work we're afraid we'll have to retract the statement, but we'll reserve decision until we can take a jaunt up to Norwich and see for ourselves.

MANAGERS' ROUND TABLE CLUB

LOCALIZED ADVT.

"Masterpieces of Make-up" is the way we might describe the many examples of advertising we have come across in the last few years. Today's advertising is certainly a far cry from the "blood and thunder," "holler and yell" layout of yesterday. The small town exhibitor, by the use of the excellent mats furnished by the advertising brains of the biggest motion picture producing companies, is turning out advertising that will stand up with the best that the deluxe houses in the key cities can devise.

The small town exhibitor has taken the mats furnished by the exchanges, broken them up, pasted them together, used them intact, has put in this and put in that, and achieved some wonderful pieces of advertising art. The "Smalltown Gazette," by reason of the "ace" advertising the local theatre manager is turing out, has suddenly decided that all the advertising it is carrying can also be made attractive, so it signs up with a big ad mat service, who can supply anything from a gnat to an elephant for make-up purposes. As a result, the Gazette takes a new lease on life that is directly attributable to the theatre, and knowing this the make-up men in the Gazette's composing room take great pains to see that the theatre's ads will look like a cross between a Rembrandt and a sample of today's modern art. That's fine. Smalltown, with its population of so many thousand, probably appreciates the beauty of the advertising. But suppose Smalltown is not in the mood to go to the movies. Can the flashy advertising make it want to go? Can it sell them? Emphatically, No!

Many exhibitors, located in small towns and fair sized ones, are paying too darn much attention to beauty in their layouts and not enough attention to selling power. A beautiful layout may sell them in the big cities, but it isn't going to sell them often in the sticks. What the little exhibitor must learn to do is "localize" his advertising. He can use the beautiful layouts—all well and good. He can put in a little novelty here and there. Also fine. But when he starts using the copy word for word supplied by the press books—he's crazy. How the deuce is any one going to tell you in advance what will sell your shows? One town may go strong for big words and glowing adjectives of description. Another town might be entirely sold on a couple of simple statements. Still another town may think of a manager's personal endorsement of a picture. Mind you, we're not declaring that all press book advertising copy is phooey. But it just can't be slapped into a paper intact and be expected to grab all the business that an ad with "localized" copy would do.

The manager should know his field. If he doesn't know it let him try out various forms of advertising copy until he strikes the medium that will click with the town, and when once he has hit that medium, hang onto it. If you find that your patrons are partial to the flash ad with its glowing descriptive adjectives, it's pictures, it's modernistic type forms, give it to them. If they want simplicity, give 'em that, too. And another thing—Big Mogul Productions makes a picture with Lillian Wish as the star, while in the cast, playing a featured role, is Jack Mokie, whom your patrons raved about last time he appeared in a picture. Don't her pictures always go big in New York, Chicago, Detroit, Pittsburgh and all the other "Big Towns"? Sure. But in Smalltown Miss Wish is secondary to Jack Moakie.

Smalltown never went wild over Lillian Wish, but it did go wild over Jack Mokie. "Well, now, ain't that too bad," the New York advertising men will say, "but our mats all carry Lilly as the star. But don't worry, she'll bring them into your house." So the little exhibitor makes up his usual beautiful ad billing Lillian Wish, the girl with the weepy voice and willowy form, in "Deserted," with Jack Mokie rating a small 6 pt. line. When the Smalltown resident turns to the theatre page all he sees is Lillian Wish. He shrugs his shoulders disgustedly and does not bother to read the rest. "We'll go some other night," he says.

If Mr. Manager had been alert he'd have tossed the mats giving fair Lily all the breaks out the window and made up an ad which would declare that Jack Mokie, the fellow you liked so well in "Rainbows" is here again and has an important role in the new Lillian Wish special. "And he'd have jammed his house."

There's no use going into lengthy discussion on the subject. Many a small town exhibitor has long ago seen the value of "localizing" his advertising and consequently has been enjoying wonderful business and continued good-will. When the residents of the town read his ads they are unconsciously being sold because the manager knows what they like and he gives it to them in his advertising. He doesn't rely upon the producers' proclamation of the drawing power of the star. He knows who will click and who won't click in his town and he plays them up accordingly in his advertising. And when a guy knows how to do that you can bet his house never has to buy a bottle of red ink.

Midnight Premiers

Despite the success of the Midnight Performance idea in so many spots all over the country, we were surprised to find, upon investigation, that hundreds of cities and towns, all ripe for such performances, are passing up or not trying the idea at all.

Get wise, you "sleepers," because you're losing out on an angle that pays dividends in several different ways.

Midnight Premiers stimulate interest in a coming "big" attraction.

Starts a lot of word-of-mouth advertising that is bound to react favorably at the b. o. if the picture has any real merit.

Shows a big profit because of the small extra cost of such performances.

Why should we have to "sell you an idea" when your own common-sense showmanship should prevail?

What can you lose? Try it out—but be sure that you ballyhoo it enough to create plenty of interest for the start-off.

Lucky "13" Gag A Corker For Mgr. Barnett Lazarus

A smart stunt, used in conjunction with the trailer of "The Thirteenth Chair," was pulled by Barnett Lazarus, manager of the Manhattan Theatre in New York City, which was instrumental in swelling box office biz on the picture's play date.

The gag, used by Lazarus, though not new, was very effective and consisted of flashing a trailer on the screen which read: "Is 13 your lucky number? When the lights go on, please arise and look at the bottom of your chair. If the mystic 13 is there you will be rewarded immediately."

The lights were then put on for about a minute and everybody hastened to turn up their chairs to look for the 13, which had been marked in chalk on various seats throughout the house. There were thirteen winners at each show and as they identified themselves they were presented with a pass for the "Thirteenth Chair."

When the passes had been distributed and the lights lowered a flash trailer was shot on the screen which read: "Every seat in this theatre will be a lucky one on (play date). Don't fail to be thrilled by the "Thirteenth Chair." This flash trailer was followed by the regular stock trailer on the picture.

This gag so sold the picture that the receipts for the picture were almost the largest in the house's history.

As you will no doubt surmise, the picture we are reproducing is Barnett Lazarus himself, who, with Herman Starr, the circuit's district supervisor, planned the lucky "13" gag.

We're pleased to be able to pass this gag on to the boys, Lazarus. Keep up the good work and let's hear more from you concerning your activities at the Manhattan.

MANAGERS' ROUND TABLE CLUB

AND "CHUCK" TOO—

We venture to say without fear of contradiction that were we to publish the photograph of every member of the ROUND TABLE CLUB whose certificate occupies a prominent spot in his office, we would have to eliminate everything else in MOTION PICTURE NEWS in order to make room for a display of this calibre.

However, it is the fine CLUB spirit that is being shown by the various members that continually encourages us to try and accomplish more and to make the ROUND TABLE CLUB section of the NEWS more outstanding week in and week out.

Among the latest to show us how proud he is of his membership certificate is Charles B. "Chuck" Copperman, Manager of the Robbins Theatre in Warren, Ohio.

As you will note from the photograph that "Chuck" has placed his membership certificate right above his desk where it will strike the eye of everyone who enters the theatre, and we are certainly tickled to note that he is as proud of his certificate as we are to boast of him as an active member of the CLUB.

Never mind "Chuck" about your difficulty with your CLUB emblem pin, just keep on wearing it because it will identify you among everyone in the business as a "live wire" showman and a member of the greatest organization and the only one of its kind in the whole wide world.

I am looking forward to the "dope" about the "Alibi" contest in connection with that free publicity that you grab for your theatre, as well as the additional dope on "Phantom of the Opera" and we hope that you won't forget to send it along at the first opportunity that presents itself.

Let's hear from you regularly, "Chuck," and remember that anything you care to pass along for your brother members and managers will be assured of more than an ordinary welcome on these pages.

Circus Flyers Are Fine Advertising Says Harold Lee

We are always grateful to any of our members who show the real CLUB spirit by keeping us posted on their efforts and activities, not just once in a few months, but practically on an average of every week or two, and in this respect we owe a voted of thanks to Harold C. Lee, manager of the Fox Babcock Theatre in Bath, N. Y., for his fine CLUB activities.

Only recently we showed you a marvelous lobby flash on "Sunnyside Up" which was engineered exclusively through Mr. Lee's showmanship methods, and now we want you to take a look at a mighty fine looking circus flyer which speaks for itself.

Harold never loses an opportunity of cashing in on any angle that presents itself in connection with either the exploitation of the picture, the theatre he operates or a holiday or event that may possibly tie in with it. In this respect we would call your attention to the last line or two on this circus flyer which tips off his patrons to buy a Fox Thrift Book of tickets as a valentine present.

Great stuff, Harold, and we certainly want you to know that we appreciate your marvelous correspondence, and that we are always glad to hear from you regardless of how often you get around to it. The small town managers' problems are our chief concern, and we say this at the risk of incurring the displeasure of the big city boys, but if the truth were known, the small town theatres are far more in the majority than the big ones, and for that reason we consider it not only the backbone of the ROUND TABLE CLUB, but the backbone of the industry as well.

Smoot's Program Quotes Copy From Round Table Pages

Harry V. Smoot, proprietor of the Vine Theatre in Mt. Vernon, Ohio, sends us his latest program calendar for the month of February on the reverse side of which he carries what he calls "Screenland Gossip." This is quite an angle which was played up some months ago in connection with Mr. Smoot's activities out in Mt. Vernon, and of course it is unnecessary for us to reproduce it again, because you fellows should be watching this line of stuff closely enough to take advantage or file the suggestions as they appear.

At any rate, what we are trying to get at is just this: he has found many interesting items on our CLUB pages to use in connection with his "Screenland Gossip Calendar" and he sends us one to show with this article in which he was kind enough to credit us and the MANAGERS' ROUND TABLE CLUB for the use of same.

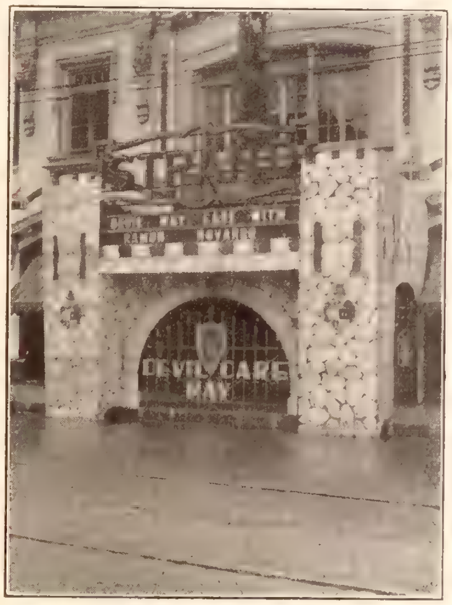
We want to take this means of thanking Harry for this consideration as well as his showmanship in using an article that is really of value to any theatre that makes it a point of warming up to their patrons where they can have a chat with them via their house program or regular mailing matter.

MANAGERS' ROUND TABLE CLUB

A Novel Front For Every Picture Is Miss Ward's Idea

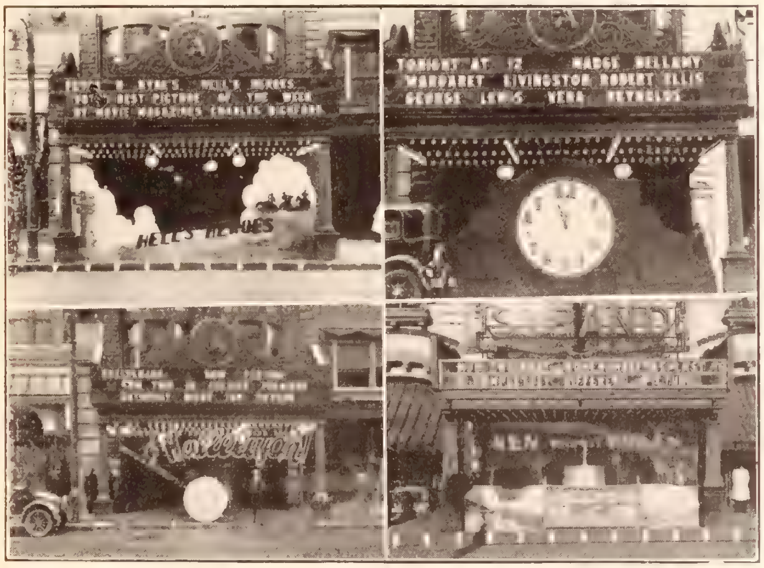
Now, gentlemen, as well as lady members of the ROUND TABLE CLUB, step up and make the acquaintance of Miss Annabelle Ward, Assistant Managing Director of the Phoenix Amusement Company Theatres, located in Lexington, Kentucky, and operating a group of fine houses in that section of the country.

The chief purpose of introducing Miss Ward is to convey to you the delightful information that the marvelous atmospheric fronts, which we are reproducing in connection with this story are part of her work at the different theatres for the Phoenix Company and contain many good pointers that we would all do well to follow.



The Phoenix Circuit makes it a point to build fronts for most of their Sunday opening attractions and you will surely agree with us that these eye-arresting displays must certainly have attracted a tremendous amount of attention among the theatre goers in Lexington, Kentucky.

The displays themselves are so attractive that there is very little need for our going into any of the details in connection with the building of them. If you will look them over closely you will be able to tell without much difficulty or use of your imagination, how they were engineered and worked out. If, however, you are a little in doubt on this subject, just get in touch with us and we will be more than delighted to secure any further information that you may desire.



HELL'S HEROES
TONIGHT AT 12 MADGE BELLAMY
MARGARET LIVINGSTON ROBERT ELLIS
GEORGE LEWIS VERA REYNOLDS

In commenting on these displays, we do not want you to lose sight of the mighty fine wording used in the changeable attraction signs on the marquee of these various theatres, and here is an angle that it would do us all good to watch a little more closely than we may have been watching them in the past.

We could not possibly close this story without thanking Miss Ward for her thoughtfulness in sending us the photographs as well as the other information which she was so kind enough to convey and we are going to hold her to her word to furnish us, from time to time and as fast as it is conveniently possible to do so, with other photographs of their beautiful fronts and lobby displays. Incidently, give a second or third look at that "Devil-may-care" front because it is one of the finest that we have seen and is a credit to any theatre regardless of where it may be located or how large the seating capacity happens to be.

Thank you again, Miss Ward, and perhaps we may be able to coax a photograph out of you, so we can give you a more intimate introduction on the pages of the ROUND TABLE CLUB.

Don't Forget the Junior Set —Lobby Propaganda

By JOSEPH LUNTZ, Manager,
Fox-Valley Stream Theatre, Valley Stream, L. I.

During my eight years experience as manager of motion picture theatres, I convinced myself that the children and junior set are doubtless the best propaganda and press agents for any theatre anywhere.

And my advice to anybody who happens to boost a house, or has a hard time to get his house make progress, to start with children.

"Fire Department," "Junior Bands," "Boy Scouts," "Girl Scouts," "Parent Associations," etc., etc., are surely willing to use your theatre for all kinds of different purposes.

It is up to you to start the ideas. After the first time, any of the boys or girls who appear in your theatre will go after you all the time. "Boy Scout Week"—Last Monday, February 10th—bad stormy weather, weak picture—and still a good attendance and what accounts more, tremendous publicity for the Valley Stream Theatre in six local papers and a good-will developed greater than ever.

It cost the theatre two cardboards (1 sheet), in lobby and in the front, with a head of a Boy Scout pasted on and a brief announcement: "Mon. February 10th—150 Valley Stream Boy Scouts will perform on the stage their 'Counsel Ceremony Act.'"

I am a hard believer in so called verbal or lobby propaganda.

It is a simple thing—hang around in the lobby for a while when people come out, start to talk to them about some picture or pictures soon coming to your theatre, mentioning stars, story, wonderful qualities, etc. You can be sure that every ten people you talk with will talk to 100 more and there you have better publicity than thousands of circulars.

Ed. Lewis Returns To Bayonne After A Short Absence

It may interest his many friends to know that Edward B. Lewis, who took "Billy" Stillman's place as manager of the Central Theatre in Newark has just been appointed Managing Director of the DeWitt Theatre in Bayonne.

We have heard many fine things about Ed, and our sincere hope is that he will become a steady contributor to the CLUB pages, because we honestly feel that his activities would be a source of much interest and profit to his brother managers all over the world.

How about it, Ed, why not hop aboard and shoot us a copy of that photo that the Bayonne News published when you returned to the DeWitt? (P. S.—It just arrived. Thanks.)

MANAGERS' ROUND TABLE CLUB

Good For "Wussell"

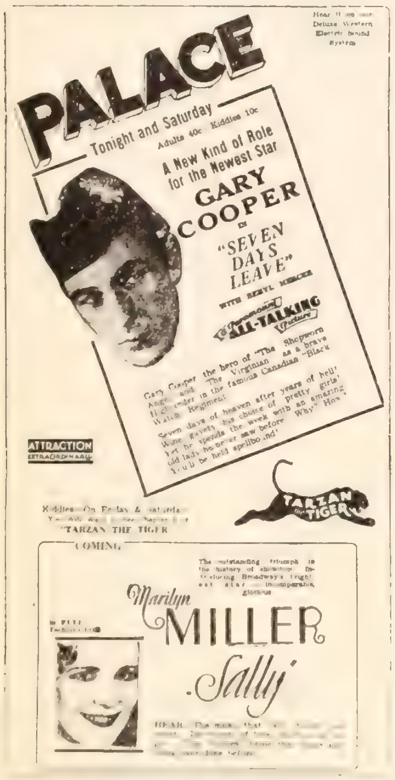
Russell Pierre Cohen (don't mind the Pierre), one of the best known and certainly one of the best liked men in New York theatre and film circles, has just been appointed General Manager of an independent circuit operating houses on Long Island.

"Wussell," as he is affectionately called, can number more "real" friends in the show business than any other individual we can think of at this moment and that host of friends will surely join us in wishing him lots of luck and success in his new position.

Creamer Pays Particular Attention To Newspaper Ads

We have recently been commenting considerably on the layout of newspaper ads in general and have ventured to offer suggestions and criticisms of the ads whenever necessary, so when an opportunity presents itself to us to talk a little about an ad—why, we're glad to do it, and since this time it's more in the nature of a compliment to Jno. W. Creamer, manager of the Palace Theatre in Muscatine, Ia., and his advertising ability, it pleases us mightily.

Creamer laid out an attractive ad, which we are reproducing below, which entirely dominated the page it was on and assured attention being given it. As you can see, the ad is made out neatly and carries all the selling features necessary in addition to getting in a couple of extra plugs for the kiddie "serial" and the coming attraction. Taken all in all, it sells, which is just what we've been stressing for a long, long time.



Now while we agree with Creamer that the ad dominated the page we wonder whether it is of the type for a Muscatine paper. By that we mean that when you stop to consider the work that went into its make-up, getting those little plugs in there and still not crowding the ad, we think that such an ad would be more effective in a larger city, where this type work would really be more useful, for when a man has twenty or so newspapers to deal with daily he often finds it necessary to conceive an ad which will dominate the page and take interest away from the many other attractions listed with his merchandise.

We're afraid that we are of the opinion the ad is too well made up for the local paper and would like to suggest that Creamer use a simpler form for his layouts, as we're sure that a man of his ability will be able to devise an original and simple, but effective, form for plugging his regular pictures. We don't have to say anything on the way Creamer puts over his "specials" as you will all no doubt remember the article we ran not so long ago on his excellent double truck layout for the picture, "Glorifying the American Girl," and when a man can make up two full pages of ads the way Creamer did and get in the ads made by many of the gang, who, too, have often something about advertising.

We want to thank Creamer for passing this on and giving us an opportunity to illustrate a point which has often come up in the ads made up by many of the gang, who, too, have often spent a lot of valuable time on ads which deserve a wider scope.

Window Tie-Ups Prove Effective For A. J. Sharick

Managing Director A. J. Sharick of the Rialto Theatre in Washington, D. C., cashed in on the sound revival of "The Phantom of the Opera" by getting many profitable and effective window displays on a co-operative basis by which both the theatre and the stores benefitted to a great extent.

Some of the store windows displayed "Phantom Red Dresses" and had in one particular display a "Phantom Head" placed on a marble pedestal which turned continually with no apparent means of locomotion. Naturally, this type of stuff attracted a lot of attention, and the usual curiosity seekers gathered around the window which was a marvelous break for the theatre as well as the store.

This constituted but a small portion of Mr. Sharick's activities in exploiting "The Phantom of the Opera" and we would want you to know that his music tie-up on the Faust Music brought in about fifty music stores in Washington with a great big record display besides giving these displays special settings.

A letter in art printing on heavy stock with envelopes to match were sent to a list of music and opera lovers as well as music teachers. This list was secured from the largest downtown music stores, and in addition several hundred cards were sent out in red ink which was mailed to the regular clientele list of the large number of music stores.

We are certainly interested in the activities of Mr. Sharick at the Rialto and we hope that he will continue to pass along some of his exploitation ideas for the benefit of his brother managers so that they may benefit by what he is doing the same as he is no doubt benefitting by the things they do.

"Lots of Luck, Belcher"

W. E. Belcher, whom you will all recall for his past connection with the Schine-Riviera Theatre in Rochester, N. Y., has resigned from that house to take over the management of the Lake Theatre in the same city.

We know that many of Mr. Belcher's friends, brother members and managers who have been corresponding with him will be glad to hear of this latest move of his and join us in wishing him a lot of luck and the best of success.

Let's hear some more from you Belcher and see if we can't pep you to renew your active CLUB membership as you did in the past. In the meantime convey our best regards to our many friends up Rochester way and here's hoping we get to see you soon so that we can tell it to you in person.

MANAGERS' ROUND TABLE CLUB

S. B. Tucker Has Had Many Years Of Good Experience

Another new member anxious to "get going" on the CLUB pages is S. B. Tucker, manager of the Byrd Theatre in Richmond, Virginia, who has been working in the show game for some time, and informs us that we are going to hear many good things from him. Which is oke with us.

Tucker has formerly been associated with vaudeville, burlesque and presentation work, and prior to his taking up the manager's reins at the Byrd, was associated with the Wilmer and Vincent circuit, thus with so varied an experience we can look forward to some mighty fine stuff.

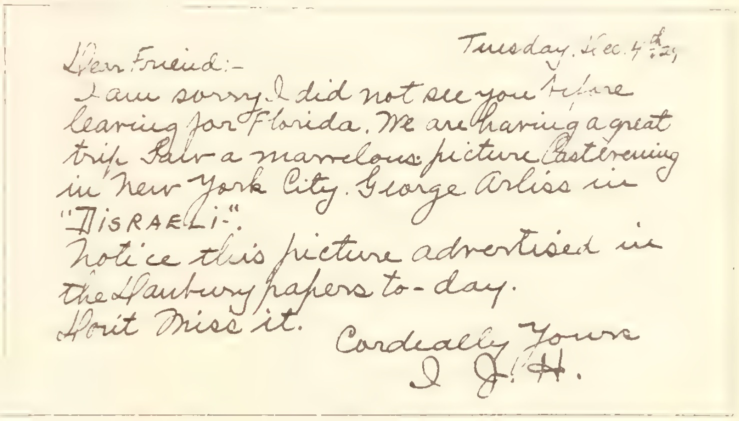
We want to comment upon the excellent use Tucker makes of mats in his newspaper ads, to such an extent that they are bound to attract attention. Space will not permit our reproducing them now but we hope in the future to give you an idea of how they are laid out and to point out why it isn't necessary to crowd every mat you receive into your ad. An example of how your mats can help you secure free advertising, is shown by Tucker crashing the inner pages of the Sunday paper with a neat layout of caricatures by Armando, celebrated artist, on a number of movie stars with a note stating that they would shortly appear at the Byrd.

We want to welcome you into the CLUB Tucker and we hope that you will become a very active member, and if you've a photo of yourself send it in so the rest of the "gang" can meet you.

Chas. H. Oakley Helps Make Danbury 100% M.R.T.C.

A showman whom we believe will become a very active member of the CLUB is Chas. H. Oakley, manager of the Empress Theatre in Danbury, Conn. Oakley has been in the show racket for quite some time and in addition to being a theatre manager is also an accomplished musician, having played the organ for four years in Poughkeepsie, N. Y., which training stood him in good stead last year when he decided to put on a program featuring Christmas Carols, in conjunction with a prologue he conceived as part of his holiday program and in which he sang and played the musical numbers.

The post card we are reproducing below is in the nature of an initial offering to the CLUB pages, and was part of the campaign made up on "Disraeli" by Oakley.



Tuesday, Dec. 4th '29

Dear Friend:-

I am sorry I did not see you before leaving for Florida. We are having a great trip. Saw a marvelous picture last evening in New York City. George Arliss in "DISRAELI".

Notice this picture advertised in the Danbury papers to-day.

Don't Miss it.

Cordially Yours

I. J. H.

What made this stunt very effective was the fact that they were actually posted in New York, Oakley having arranged for two thousand of them to be mailed from the "Big City," and the gag sure made a hit in Danbury. In addition to the postal card stunt, Oakley arranged for a preview showing of the picture before the faculties of the leading schools and college together with prominent business and clergy men.

With the enrollment of Oakley in the CLUB it seems to us that Danbury, like Reading, Pa., is all sewed up 100% ROUND TABLE, and we want Oakley to know that we extend him a cordial welcome to the "gang," and we want him to come up to the prediction we made in the first paragraph.

Give our regards to the rest of the CLUB boys up your way, Oakley, and tell Jack Sanson that we expect to hear from him very soon.

—and still more Adjectives!!

When we gave you those other groups of adjectives we had no idea how popular they would become among our members and readers.

In response to many requests, we renew the publishing of more and hope they will find as much favor as the first batches.

MANAGERS' ROUND TABLE CLUB

THE SLOGAN OF THE M. R. T. C.—

WILLIAM A. "BILLY" STILLMAN as most of the Club members will recall is the manager of the Central Theatre in Jersey City, and it was only a short while ago that we ran a little story on Billy's career and we must confess that it was interesting enough to stretch onto a page, but with the way we were, and in fact are, cramped for space we will have to hold off until we can pass on some of Billy's "on the jump" work, which we feel sure he is going to supply us with plenty of in the very near future.

———Wear Your Club Pin! ! !———

STEPHEN CHAMPLIN manages the Leader Theatre in Brooklyn, N. Y., and as we know quite a bit about his showmanship ability, we feel that the Club pages will feature his name frequently. We have seen what his former assistant Irving Feinman accomplished under his guidance and now that Champlin has enrolled in the Round Table, more than ever are we certain that some live wire ideas will be forthcoming. Keep us posted on your work, Stephen, and why not send us a photo of yourself, together with a little note giving us some "dope" on your career, as a showman?

———Wear Your Club Pin! ! !———

LOUIE LEVINE is the manager of the Regent Theatre in Worcester, Mass., and with the activities going on in that section of the country, we would more than appreciate some notices of his work, because we are of the opinion it will make mighty interesting reading for the rest of the Club.

S. B. TUCKER, manager of the Byrd Theatre in Richmond, Va., is another showman who is no stranger to the Club and our pages, for it was only recently that we ran a "pip" of an ad that Tucker used, and it was this same ad which proved to us that there is certainly a wide awake showman handling the Byrd, and for that reason we want Tucker to know that we are always glad to hear of his work. So don't keep us in the dark "S.B.," your work deserves recognition, and we're here to see that you get it.

THE Club is anxious to publish photographs of every member and would, therefore, appreciate receiving as many as possible for use in future issues of the Club columns. If you have not already done so, PLEASE send us your own photo at once. Thank you.

FRED MERCY, JR., better known as "Junior" Mercy, is the general manager of the Inland Theatres Corporation, operated by Senior and Junior Mercy, in Walla Walla, Wash. And since we have shown some of Junior's work on these pages, we feel sure that we are going to pass on some mighty fine accounts of his activities. Let's have some more examples of the way you Pacific Northwest showmen put things over, Junior. Thanks.

———Wear Your Club Pin! ! !———

FRANK B. HILL is the manager of the Liberty Theatre and assistant to Junior Mercy in Walla Walla, Wash., and knowing the enviable record Frank has for being a real showman, it is perhaps needless to say that whatever he sets out to do he delivers the goods. We've introduced Frank before to the rest of the CLUB but since every Round Table Member must pass through these portals, meet him again. Oak, Frank.

———Wear Your Club Pin! ! !———

DAVID A. MILLER manages the Merryland Theatre in the very busy and showmanlike city of Los Angeles, Calif., and when we declare that Miller can keep in step with the rest of the showmen out in his territory we know what we are talking about, as it was only a short time back that we published an account of the up to date way he puts over his shows, and we deduced then that he would make a mighty peppy member. It's too bad we haven't a picture of David on hand, but if he'll shoot one in to us we'll give him a regular sendoff to the rest of the Club.

CHARLES E. DOCTOR manages the Grandview Theatre in Vancouver, B. C., and though his name has appeared on the Club pages before it is absolutely necessary that all members be introduced on these pages, preparatory to entering the sacred inner portals. We want to hear from you again Charlie and in the very near future.

———Wear Your Club Pin! ! !———

JOHN V. WARD is the manager of the Capitol Theatre in Ontario, Canada. Ward's name has appeared on the Club pages prior to this introduction but as it is a fixed rule of this department that all new members "break in" on these pages we must introduce him again to you. We know Ward's activities at the Queen Theatre were interesting and we look forward to hearing some accounts of his work at his new house.

———Wear Your Club Pin! ! !———

H. E. WILTON, manager of the Strand Theatre in Hamilton, Ont., in Jack Allan's region, is another member of the Club whose name has graced our pages, prior to this "informal" introduction, so just want to state that we know Wilton will continue the good work he is doing up there at the Strand. Oak, "H.W."?

———Wear Your Club Pin! ! !———

F. V. GARCIA is the manager of the Claremont Theatre in New York City. And as we know the high standard by which the Claremont is run we feel sure that we are going to hear some interesting things concerning "F.V." and his activities. Send us in a photo of yourself, Garcia, so that we can let the rest of the boys meet you in a "picture" introduction.

———Wear Your Club Pin! ! !———

D. C. HARRISON is the assistant manager of the Rialto Theatre in Macon, Ga., and comes proposed for membership by none other than Monty Salmon. With Monty giving you a send-off "D.C." there's no question in our minds but that you can deliver the goods, so don't keep us in the dark. Let's have a few accounts of your work, for under Monty's able guidance, they're bound to be good.

MANAGERS' ROUND TABLE CLUB

"ALL FOR ONE AND ONE FOR ALL"

VINCENT M. TATE manages the Roosevelt Theatre in Swoyerville, Pa. We want to welcome Tate into the CLUB and let him know that we expect to be kept well supplied with news of his doings in Swoyerville. Drop us a line about yourself, Vincent, and let's know of your career as a showman to date.

Wear Your Club Pin! ! !

HERMAN H. BOSS is the manager of the Palmer Theatre in San Francisco, Calif., and is one of the latest of the peppy Coast showmen to join the gang. We know that if Boss expects to keep up the rep that these Far West showmen have acquired, he will keep us well supplied with accounts of his activities.

Wear Your Club Pin! ! !

JACK ALBERTSON is the manager of the Indiana Theatre in Indiana Harbor, Ind. We want to welcome you into the CLUB, Jack, and though this is not the first time your name has appeared in the NEWS, you know everyone must be represented on this page sooner or later. Keep up the good work that you have been doing for some time now.

Wear Your Club Pin! ! !

JOHN NAHALKA, JR., manages the Royal Theatre in Elizabeth, N. J., and we should hear plenty of good things about him, since the CLUB is well represented in the Jersey State, with Charlie Carroll, Billy Stillman and the rest of our live wire representatives.

Wear Your Club Pin! ! !

JOSEPH S. BORENSTEIN is the manager of the Imperial Theatre in Pawtucket, R. I., and is certainly no stranger to us for we have been giving quite a bit of space to his activities on the pages, for Joseph has proven that he too can uphold the standard for crack showmanship that Pawtucket has long boasted of. Greetings, Joseph, and we know you are going to keep up the interest you have shown in the past.

Wear Your Club Pin! ! !

S. S. SOLOMON manages the Paramount Theatre in Youngstown, Ohio, and we have already seen many indications of his unusual ability as a showman and we expect to be able to pass on many good things from him in the very near future. To start the ball rolling in the right direction we would like to have one of his photographs and a little note containing the "lowdown."

Wear Your Club Pin! ! !

ROY ROGAN is the manager of the Rialto Theatre in Joliet, Ill., and he should be able to put over some excellent examples of showmanship because knowing a bit about the town and the opportunities it presents makes us think he will be a very active member. We hope to tell you a lot more about Roy in subsequent issues and to make the stories a bit easier we'd like a picture of Roy, which suggestion we hope he will act upon immediately.

WHAT ARE YOU WAITING FOR?

BERNARD RHODES is the manager of the Majestic Theatre in Gettysburg Pa., and comes to the Round Table Club proposed by George Shewell, of the York Theatres Corp. We shall certainly look forward to hearing more from this wide awake showman at frequent intervals and we are certain that he can turn out some fine work. Drop us a note Bernard and tell us some of the theatre news down your way.

Wear Your Club Pin! ! !

P. HOFFMEISTER is the manager of the Marvel Theatre in Cleveland, Ohio. We have had some mighty fine examples of the way Cleveland's showmen put across their attractions and we believe Hoffmeister will fit right into the picture, and talking about pictures, we'd like to have a photo of Hoffmeister, and a little note telling us about himself so that we can give him a regular introduction on these pages.

Wear Your Club Pin! ! !

A. D. DODSON manages the Ritz and Palace Theatres in Midland, Texas. We want to welcome Mr. Dodson into the Club and even though he must be very busy handling two houses we are sure he will find time to drop us a line or two about himself and his activities, and we look forward with pleasure to hearing from him.

Wear Your Club Pin! ! !

JAMES McCULLOUGH manages the Madison Theatre in Peoria, Ill. We are certain that there are many interesting things we can relate about him and we would appreciate a brief letter from him setting forth just what he has been doing the past few years and how long he has been identified with the show business.

Wear Your Club Pin! ! !

I. WIENSHIENK manages the Majestic Theatre in La Salle, Ill., and we are glad to state that he has already shown his willingness to be an active member of the Club by crashing our pages not so long ago with a stunt and since this little paragraph serves as an informal introduction which every member must undergo, we'd like you to meet him again.

Wear Your Club Pin! ! !

J. J. CAHILL manages the Brockton Theatre in Brockton, Mass., for the Publix outfit and with our rolls telling us that we have some mighty fine showmen up in that section of the country, we're inclined to believe that Cahill is going to keep up the fast work going on there, since his application brings us up to 100% Round Table in that hustling town, and if he will let us have one of his photographs we can give him a formal introduction in the near future. What say "J. J."?

Wear Your Club Pin! ! !

WALTER B. ROSE, we'd like to have you know, is a pretty active member of the CLUB but since all members of the CLUB have their names appear here, we just want to state that if you keep your eyes glued on our pages you will see more of Walter's activities at the Strand Theatre in Brockton, Mass.

MUSIC is your newest profit-making ally. Great picture songs mean great grosses at the box-office. "Chant of the Jungle" is adding countless dollars to the box-office pull of Joan Crawford's "Untamed". "How Am I to Know", from Cecil B. De Mille's "Dynamite", is paving the way for the picture's greater success in your theatre. Sheet music, with the star's picture on the title page, makes every piano a 24-sheet for your theatre and its pictures.

A PAIR OF ACES

Another pair of ace comedies! Proving again that the man who plays Educational's Talking Comedies has an ace up his sleeve for every program!

One week it's Sennett's great new comedy on the prize dumb play in bridge. The next it's Jack White's drawing room farce featuring Taylor Holmes. Both shining examples of the newest type of smart, sophisticated comedy, with witty story, clever acting and sparkling dialogue. They'll both be aces in the country's finest de luxe houses.

There's always extra entertainment insurance, and extra advertising value, when you book one of Educational's Talking Comedies.

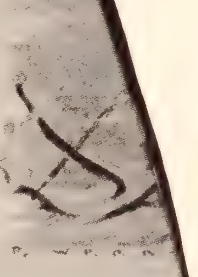
The Answer to Poor Talkies

THIS Department recently received a bitter complaint from a man who said he had gone to see "Bulldog Drummond" on our recommendation and had walked out of the theatre because he could not understand more than half of the dialogue. He added that he had also registered his grievance with the manager of the theatre in the hope that the house would stop showing these "terrible talkies" and return to silent films.

The gentleman in question lives in a small town and, checking back, we find that most of the complaints we have heard against the talkies have come from people in small communities. This point is important, because the future of the talkies depends upon the success with which they can be shown in rural theatres, and if the excellent sound recording that features "Bulldog Drummond" becomes a jumble of unintelligible noises when shown in a small town theatre, the talkies will never be successful.



To investigate this situation, we visited several movie houses on a recent trip to Florida, and in a town of less than fifteen thousand inhabitants we found the answer. There are two theatres in this town. The pictures on display during our visit had recently been shown in New York, and the critics had been unanimous in declaring the recording good in both films. In the first theatre the dialogue and sound effects were reproduced as clearly and effectively as we have heard in any New York house, but in the second theatre the reproducing was not at all satisfactory. The machines used in the two houses were similar types (sound-on-disc, in which phonographic records are used) but they differed greatly in one respect—namely, the manufacturer. The first house was equipped with standard Western Electric sound apparatus . . . the second with one of those cheap, unproven makes of reproducing outfits that have been appearing on the market by the dozens recently. In a desire to save a few hundred dollars, theatre owners in small towns (and some of the larger ones) are installing these cheap makeshift machines, and consequently losing thousands of dollars in patronage, as well as giving the talkies a bad name.

The remedy is simple. The theatre owners should do more intensive thinking and manufacturers of standard talkie equipment should do more intensive selling.

Fox Cabinet Either to Head Company Or New Firm Backed by Halsey Group?

Rogers, Franklin To Head Fox Firms?

Saul Rogers will be president of Fox Film and Harold B. Franklin president of Fox Theatres in event the Halsey, Stuart-Electrical Research group assume executive control of the companies, according to information given to MOTION PICTURE NEWS from a reliable source. Franklin, according to court testimony by William Fox, was offered the presidency of the theatre firm at a salary of $150,000 a year and a five per cent cut of the gross.

Other new developments in the Fox case are:

Suit of William Fox in Federal Court to void the trusteeship agreement with John E. Otterson and Harry L. Stuart. Show cause order returnable Friday.

Refusal of Dr. Julius Klein of the Dept. of Commerce to head Fox enterprises.

Call to stockholders to subscribe to new securities under terms of Lehman Brothers-Bancamerica-Blair-Dillon, Read refinancing plan.

Report of Fox Films of profits of $11,848,276 for year ended Dec. 28, 1929 and Fox Theatres of $2,748,006 for year ended Oct. 27, 1929.

Loew purchase called "actual fraud" in suit opening in Brooklyn to block Loew deal and force sale of stock. Decision in case reserved.

Filing of new suit by Class A stockholders to restrain carrying out of Lehman Brothers-Bancamerica-Blair-Dillon, Read plan and reiterating demand for receivership.

Hollywood — That jamboree involving Fox now being staged in New York is not without its effect upon the studio. However, despite the number of wild rumors making the rounds, Sol Wurtzel continues as boss at the studios, and will do so until the status of the company is finally settled. If Fox goes out, Wurtzel may, and in that event Al Rockett might be brought in by Sheehan. Meanwhile, Sheehan's return to the Coast is being awaited.

Sheehans, Grainger, Rogers and Zanft Reported Sought To Direct Two Companies or Be Nucleus of Another

Those five Fox "cabinet" members, whose opposition to the Fox-favored refinancing plan and adherence to the Fox-Otterson-Stuart trusteeship, furnished the industry with one of its greatest sensations, either will emerge in executive control of the Fox companies, or as heads of a new company sponsored by the Halsey-Stuart-Electrical Research Products interests.

That is the exclusive information given to MOTION PICTURE NEWS by a source regarded as authoritative and may be the answer to the many questions which followed in the wake of last week's meeting of stockholders, as to what would be the future of the five as a result of their public espousal of the Halsey, Stuart financing plan.

When they came out in favor of the plan which their chief opposed, the five did so in the belief that their course was best for the company. Since that time, it is reported, they have been tendered an offer of leadership in a new company of which they would be the executive nucleus.

The five are: Winfield Sheehan, vice-president and general manager of Fox Film; Saul Rogers, vice-president and general counsel of Film and Theatres; James R. Grainger, general sales manager; Clayton P. Sheehan, head of the foreign department, and John Zanft, head of Fox Theatres.

New Managements Slated

The two companies, it is stated, will be under entirely different managements within a month. Regardless of whether the Lehman Brothers-Bancamerica-Blair-Dillon, Read, or the Halsey- Stuart plan of financing the difficulties of the companies, the annual meeting which takes place on April 15 will end, according to report, with either William Fox deposed from his position in both companies, or the main executives of both companies will resign.

Fox evidently does not believe that a compromise plan can be arranged, such as was talked of since Otto Kahn, of Kuhn, Loeb & Co., and one of the most experienced film bankers in the world because of his connection with Paramount, was known to have seen Judge Coleman, before whom the application for a receiver is pending. Fox's move in renewing the same application for an injunction in the Federal court that was denied him in the state court, to restrain John E. Otterson and Harry L. Stuart from voting his stock, would indicate that he still feels that they are inimical to him personally.

The Berenson stockholders suit, is expected to draw forth in the answer from Halsey, Stuart, that they do not consider that the Lehman-Bancamerica-Blair-Dillon, Read plan ever was legally adopted. It is pointed out that the modification of the plan on the eve of the stockholders' meeting, eliminating the preferred stock which was included in the original plan, removed any necessity of the Class "A" stockholders voting on the plan. As far as the Class "B" shares were concerned Otterson and Stuart voted the William Fox holdings against the so-called Lehman plan, and Fox voted the same stock in favor of it. Under Judge Levy's decision, it is held, only the vote of Otterson and Stuart should have been counted, and the plan defeated by the Class "B" holders.

This is the point that is expected to be raised before Judge Coleman on resumption of hearings on application for receivers. If Halsey, Stuart is upheld the company is in a position of not having adopted a plan, which Judge Coleman said would have to be done if a receivership was to be avoided. It may be, however, that Judge Coleman will make a ruling on the application of Fox for an injunction restraining Otterson and Stuart from voting his stock, and then order the "B" stockholders to vote on a plan.

Vol. XLI NEW YORK CITY, MARCH 15, 1930 No. 11

THE SCREWS BEGIN TO PINCH

TURN to Hollywood for the latest demonstration of how quickly bad boys can be brought into line when the screws tighten until they hurt.

The producers' association out California way has adopted a new set of rules to control the merry game of production. A code of ethics it is called. The purpose, so the careful explanation tells you, is to set up from within a form of self and pre-censorship. Supervisors and directors—even producers—are told what they may do and what they may not do in talkers. A splendid idea. This column is hooraying for it.

Hollywood advises further that producers, thoughtful individuals that they are, are voluntarily submitting their scripts to the Public Relations Department of the Hays association where the blue-penciling prerogative will be exercised to its full.

What remains unexplained is the real reason why. Here it is:

This code, hailed in some Hollywood quarters as the dawn of a new day, is the result of censor agitation stirred up by malodorous talking pictures. Sounds peculiar to find that censors can be right about anything, but in this instance they are.

Moreover, it seems, strangely enough, that there are many individuals left in these United States who object to laughter when it is induced by swinging a sledgehammer at their ribs. It seems, further, that there are many who hold an unmistakable dislike—even disgust—for the liberties in propriety and good taste assumed by the studios in Hollywood.

If this business behaves itself and watches scrupulously, as it must, the type and calibre of entertainment it gives the public to masticate, the ensuing situation will be eminently more satisfactory for all concerned. Some of the stuff which producers have attempted to get away can be described in but one way and that way hasn't reflected much credit on their ideals, if any.

The only argument which we present here today—and these remarks have been mulled over again and again—is that this industry, for the sake of the investment at stake both in dollars and reputation, should have enough sense to keep its nose clear of the mud. The purpose of any business is obviously to make money, of course. But temporary profits are one thing and sustained profits for the long haul are something else.

It is a well known fact that smut is a short cut to increased earnings. In a number of instances, this industry has listened that call. Particularly since the talker vogue gained hold. Yet it was inevitable that this course would pile up on the rocks of shortsightedness. To expect that a realization of the danger would come from the industry's own ranks was to anticipate too much. But regardless of how the objective was reached, the fact remains that something is to be done to keep the studios in line.

Under the coating of this whitewash, or code of ethics if you like, appears to be a layer of common sense. If the producers will stop long enough to live up to its terms, order may be restored. Past performances indicate that holding the line is one of the worst things Hollywood does and so it is defection in the ranks that represents the greatest danger the new plan must confront. This will be denied, but anyone who knows his motion pictures will recognize this statement as the deplorable truth.

Sorry — No Advertiser Was Responsible for This NEWS Mystery!

SUSPICIONS, rumors, insinuations and whispered charges that eight pages of news stories were mysteriously omitted from last week's issue of Motion Picture News have swamped the staff with questions.

An exhaustive investigation by strained sleuths reveals that it wasn't eight pages. It was two—Editorial and Insider's Outlook. It's a dirty trick to thus spoil the pleasant publicity break we got from the insinuations in Exhibitors Daily Review.

The Editorial and Insider's Outlook pages were left out deliberately, and for strictly political reasons. We wanted to find out whether they would be missed. They were—plenty.

Now that our distorted sense of humor and method has had its fling, we're worse off than ever. With such a great number of kicks registered we confront a degree of reader interest that means we have got to work harder than ever to hold for these two pages the reputations they seem to have won.

We're through monkeying with the buzz-saw. Our collective left ear is sore from listening to 'phone calls; our credit with Western Union is strained sending "Charge" explanations to "Collect" questions. But we know—and how we know—what we wanted to know.

From now on the Editorial page will be a "scoop" or two farther back in position, but far ahead in reader interest.

Request for Open Sessions Made by MOTION PICTURE NEWS

Motion Picture News Request Favorably Acted Upon as Groups Hold Meeting

Setting a precedent in film industry, conferences, open to the press, will start April 1 on drafting of a new form of contract by joint committees representing the Hays organization, Allied States Ass'n and the M. P. T. O. A.

Decision to make the meetings open was reached Thursday in a brief session between the Hays and Allied groups, after MOTION PICTURE NEWS made formal request to Chairman S. R. Kent that open sessions be determined upon.

"MOTION PICTURE NEWS believes it is in best interests of exhibitors to hold open meetings of arbitration committee and so places itself on record with you," stated the wire despatched to Kent. Previously, effort had been made to gain access to the meeting, which was held behind closed doors.

Seven to Confer

Seven members will comprise the committee which resumes the 5-5-5 discussions April 1. These will be, two from the Hays association, two from Allied, two from the M. P. T. O. A., and one member representing affiliated theatres. The purpose of the meeting will be to "put into concrete language the subject matter heretofore taken up by the so-called 5-5-5 committee."

Confirmation of the April 1 date was made late Thursday in a long-distance telephone conversation between Kent and M. A. Lightman, M. P. T. O. A. president. All sides expressed themselves as optimistic over outcome of the conferences.

The 5-5-5 conferences were brought about upon suggestion of S. R. Kent at the Columbus convention.

Leaders Confer

Both the M. P. T. O. A. and Allied States proposals were submitted in written form, but the handing down of the Thacher decree outlawing arbitration, put a sudden end to the sessions, and distributors' proposals never have been submitted. However, following Kent's return from Europe he conferred with Abram F. Myers, Allied president, with result that the sessions now are being resumed.

Thursday's meeting was attended by Kent, Felix F. Feist and Phil Reisman, for distributors, and Myers, W. A. Steffes, H. M. Richey, Glenn Cross and H. A. Blum of Allied, with C. C. Pettijohn and Gabriel L. Hess representing Film Boards of Trade.

News' Editorial Championed End of Star Chamber

"Death to the Star Chamber" was urged by MOTION PICTURE NEWS Feb. 22, in an editorial calling upon exhibitors and distributor to hold open meetings in the 5-5-5 conferences.

Star chamber proceedings, it was pointed out, deprived exhibitors of their right to know about what was going on at the sessions at which their future relationships were being determined.

"It seems to us," this publication said, "that in this particular conference, and in all others that have a bearing on the future relationship between buyer and seller, the doors should be thrown so wide open that the hinges creak. No one group, regardless of its mental make-up, can set itself up as a court of last resort. Remember that there is no corner in constructive thought. Plans can be and are evolved from many quarters. Impracticable they may be, but at least they are entitled to a hearing."

The NEWS editorial, which elicited widespread exhibitor comment, culminated Thursday in formal request to S. R. Kent that the meetings be open to the press. Favorable action upon this request followed.

Judge Thacher Approved for Solicitor General

Washingon—Nomination of Federal Judge Thomas D. Thacher of New York to be solicitor general has been approved by the Senate Judiciary committee. This removes all opposition to his confirmation.

DEATH TO THE STAR CHAMBER

Here's editorial calling for open decisions openly arrived at in 5-5-5 discussions

Bicycling Charged

Philadelphia—Violation of the copyright law for alleged bicycling will be charged Monday in Federal Court against Harry Perlman, local exhibitor.

An Insider's Outlook

PUBLICITY-SEEKING executives in at least one major distributing company are being closely watched by representatives for the concern's bankers. Two of these executives have had their names in print, in and out of the trade, a number of times in recent months. The story patter was obviously publicity.

The executives in question were quoted at great length on unimportant matters. The bankers are wondering, and asking casual questions of "supposed-to-know's" in the trade. They asked us how many stories concerning the two tops in question we had received lately, and why we hadn't published the yarns. Perhaps, if the two execs. ever see the banker's memo book, they'll see a note reading something like this: "Empeenews didn't recall number of stories received, but said they hadn't been published because they were bunk."

Bankers suspect that the personal publicity is part of a campaign anticipating possible internal changes and that both men are doing a little tactful groundwork for preference or opportunities elsewhere.

A Secret Is Being Born

There may be a resignation announced within the next couple of months that will surprise many people, and, most of all, those now in closest daily business contact with the individual who may write it. He is well known—muchly so, and his name appears with legitimate frequency in the trade papers. It also is well known to many on the industry's fringe whose business is of an extra-legal and extra-political nature. He has intimated—ever so casually—in chats with a couple of men whose duties are so heavy and far-flung that his experience and ability would be of real value to them—that he might, under certain circumstances—and so on. At least three men may be surprised when they read this. Perhaps not. But we know what we know.

Dirty Snoots and Slander Suits

There are two or three ugly yarns trickling through the business about personalities that are wide open to criticism. These stories are extremely unpleasant to hear, with details capable of producing something akin to nausea. We happen to know that these smut-shots haven't an atom of truth in them. But the idlers who are passing the dirt along with that "I'm-in-the-know" manner are apt to bump their own dirty snoots squarely against the sharp edge of suits for criminal slander if the persons involved ever get a whiff of their identities on the up-wind of one of these early spring days. We hope the pedlers will take this hint and get a new and safer line to hawk. If they don't, then we hope the victims will get the facts direct, and take action that will clear the air of some very bad odors.

what organization in the industry is out gunning for another and via what trade publication!!

Then There Is This

A fascinating and very-much-on-the-inside piece of unsavory business:

Two companies handling the same type of product. The names don't matter. A friendly discussion between the two execs who count and the result is a gentlemen's understanding on how sales were to be handled. Neither company had a thing in the world to do with the other unless you figure them kindred spirits in their collective race for contracts and playing time.

It so developed that both outfits then considered it a good piece of business to set down in writing the highlights of the understanding of which we talk. It had something to do with prices and such. Somehow or other—the way it happened is a bit elusive—a certain individual in Company No. 1 learned what was going on. And that was that.

The next chapter takes place some time later. Company No. 3—no piker outfit at that—determines to enter a sector of the business which it had kept out of for many years. Surprise and consternation in the camps of Companies No. 1 and No. 2. Then one fine day it was discovered the telltale book was missing from a locked desk. And that the certain individual with Company No. 1 had landed a swell job with Company No. 3.

The deduction is yours to dope out from here on.

He Wonders Why

This chap is really making a good job of it. Not that the going for him is easy. Hardly that. But his company and the chain theatre situation being what they are, the record ledger reads pretty well for the hero of this episode.

But here and there in the routine conduct of business, this unnamed heads into a blank wall. Puzzling and troublesome and, on the surface, unreasonable.

He thought it over—hard. Couldn't dope it out. He began to analyze the individuals who might be responsible. Then came the dawn:

It was in another country. Years ago. Against each other in flotation of a picture project were two men. One, our unnamed, and the other, a chap whose name today is page one stuff. The headliner gave way to his less formidable foe in that deal and hasn't forgotten it to this day. And so when the opportunity presents itself to make the sailing rougher for the chap who licked him once, he seizes it.

Which demonstrates, if anything at all, that the arm of coincidence is long and tricky.

Can You Explain—

How long the president of a certain company, dissatisfied over management, will hold on to his patience before blowing up? And when he does explode, as he will, what's going happen to whom and how much will it cost?

Exactly how much of Warner Brothers, John Raskob owns and if it is a fact that he accumulated his shares "in the open market" as some individuals would have you believe?

Why the Warners, with a $5,000,000 profit plus for the first quarter of their fiscal year, should issue $19,205,000 in nine year debentures?

Paramount-Warner Merger Talk Being Revived on Reported Shubert Tie-up

And How!

Ben Turpin, queried through a "Station S-T-A-R" release as to whether he is really cock-eyed, declares he is so much so that he spent several years in the Southeast trying to get a job with the Northwest Mounted Police.

Did George Cohan and Joe Schenck Pull a Fast One?

Why did George M. Cohan quietly pull away from United Artists following his verbal deal with Joe Schenck to make at least one talker?

When United announced acquisition of the "Yankee Doodle Boy" several weeks ago, the company called in the press to spread the news. "A great conquest" had been made by U. A. and the story landed. Which was okay if Georgie intended to make pictures for United Artists—but did he?

In Chicago, a few days ago, Cohan and Schenck sat down to talk things over. They wrangled for hours over details of the deal, and, so the story goes, Georgie told Joe that he would not go through with the deal. Reports have it that Joe balked, but Georgie comforted him with an honorable reason for pulling out and everything was jake. He "loved the theatre," Cohan told Schenck, and decided not to double-cross "our Nell" of the stage. Besides, Cohan is reported to have stated, there was plenty of dough in the "legit," and lots more fun than in films, especially when a fellow is a novice at production and a flop picture might hurt his rep.

This may all be true, but the story won't down that Schenck and Cohen—they're pals, you know—made a little deal between themselves to chisel some free space. Whether this is the case or not, they at least succeeded in the chiseling process.

Georgie was all set to start a tour of the keys at that time with his show. And United had already opened negotiations for talker rights to one of Georgie's plays.

Gilbert to Remain with M-G-M at Least 3 Years

Hollywood—John Gilbert will remain with M-G-M for three more years at least, states Louis B. Mayer. Gilbert's name had been linked with reports of Charlie Chaplin's new venture for the making of silent pictures.

Current understanding in the trade is that Gilbert is under contract to M-G-M to appear in four talkers to be made over a period of two years at $250,000 a picture for Gilbert's end. "His Glorious Night" was the first.

Jake Shubert Said to Have Made Claim Company a Party to Reported Amalgamation

Has the Paramount-Warner deal been resumed, with Shubert theatres added to the project? That is a question being asked in New York, following statement of Jake Shubert in Chicago that his company's chain of 107 houses is being sought as part of a reported deal. The proposed merger, called off last fall, after months of negotiations, is again attracting attention of Wall Street, where it is reported that an amalgamation is imminent.

Shubert in Chicago said that the alleged merger would make possible the routing of stage shows to wind up in Hollywood to make a talker version of plays, with stars in employ of the combine to be transferred between stage and screen. Lee Shubert, however, is quoted as denying the company is a party to any Paramount-Warner deal. Meanwhile, reports linking the firm with reported Radio-Keith-Orpheum-Pathe negotiations also have been denied.

Reports trickling through from banking circles during the week added additional credence to the report that "Erpi" is still negotiating for control of Warners. If events demonstrate this to be fact and if the Paramount-Warner amalgamation should also develop, the long-anticipated debut of the American Telephone and Telegraph Co. into the business will have become fact.

Starr Confers in Chicago On Warner-Brunswick Deal

Chicago—Herman Starr, president of First National, has been visiting on the Brunswick-Balke-Collender deal for Warners. Starr refused to be interviewed while here.

B. E. Bensinger, president of Brunswick, likewise refuses to reveal the status of Warner's negotiations for the purchase of the concern after Starr's visit. He assumed the conventional "can neither affirm nor deny" attitude, but inadvertently spilled the information that the purchase negotiations had not been completed while Starr was in Chicago.

"I am unable to give out any information whatever at this time," he said, but later denied that Starr had completed negotiations while here.

David Selznick Renews Contract With Paramount

David O. Selznick has just been signed to a new long-term contract with Paramount as executive assistant to B. P. Schulberg, general manager of West Coast production. Selznick came to the Paramount studios in Hollywood three years ago after holding executive positions with various producing companies. He joined the staff as an assistant to Schulberg and shortly afterward was made associate producer.

A Thought for Danny

Those whose memories function as they should stopped their busy doings on Monday of this week to recall with regret the anniversary of the death of Joe Dannenberg, the "Danny" of The Film Daily, on March 10, 1926.

Chaplin Voice Test Rumored Reason Silent For Policy

Hollywood—The "mike" is said to have dictated the press yarn from the Chaplin studios that Charlie would stick to pantomime.

Report has it that Chaplin is far from satisfied with secret voice tests and has decided to use sound and dialogue for other characters but with his performance limited to silent action only.

Not more than five people are said to have seen or heard the tests, and these were cautioned to maintain absolute silence on the subject under pain of deep blue envelopes, plus.

While insiders admit that Chaplin makes a record for time spent on production every time he starts, the current gap between releases which may take the crown from Howard Hughes and "Hell's Angels," is claimed to have been greatly widened by experiments with sound while Chaplin attempted to register his voice without getting anything like the result he sought.

Again, even this tip may be one of those boomerang press stunts, with an eye to the box-office possibilities of a surprise billing: "Chaplin Talks."

Whoopee or Not, Chicago's Critics Enthuse on "King"

Chicago—The girls paid for their New York trip apparently with clear consciences, too. It's like this:

Several weeks ago Paramount turned kind-hearted, determined a lot of hard-working critics needed recreation and brought them all down to New York to see the big city, meet Rudy Vallee and finally end up at the Criterion to preview "The Vagabond King." Geno Harris and Mae Tinee, however, turned the invitation down cold. Now the picture has opened here at the United Artists. The critics threw a couple of raves over it, even Harris and Tinee, who owed Paramount nothing for partying in New York.

Now the obligated ones are just plain worried. The results, Paramount must know, are the same whether critics are dined. Which leads the cruising critic to wonder if future picnics by producers aren't to be abandoned.

Axe Swings High at Universal City Complete Reorganization Under Way

The Dollar Parade

Janet Gaynor and Charlie Farrell—their mere presence together in any picture is a practical guarantee that the results will be worth watching. "High Society Blues" is really "Sunny Side Up" turned over on its side and produced in reverse.

What you get is the complete charm of these two young players against a pleasing and entirely inconsequential background. It's fluffy and light, but it's pleasant stuff for any audience and powerful box-office fodder for any exhibitor. Take the tip and don't overlook a natural. KANN

"U" Sales Heads Being Realigned By Lou Metzger

Ted Schlanger

Realignment of Universal's sales heads, with Ted Schlanger named eastern and Harry Taylor western sales managers, and about five assistants slated to be named, now is under way by Lou Metzger, general manager. Metzger, upon resignation of M. Van Praag as sales manager, added the duties of sales chief to his duties as general manager.

Harry Taylor

Sig Wittman, former Philadelphia manager, has been named assistant eastern sales chief, and is the first of the new executives to be named, to contact circuits throughout the country. Wittman will headquarter in New York, and have jurisdiction over the Philadelphia and Pittsburgh branches and be in charge of sales to the Stanley, Comerford, Wilmer & Vincent and other eastern circuits. Wittman has been succeeded at Philadelphia by William J. Doyle.

West Coast Expansion Program Being Enlarged

Los Angeles—With weekly business since the first of the year, exceeding $1,000,000, according to Harold B. Franklin, Fox West Coast is enlarging its 1930 expansion program. Franklin is confident of another boom year.

Pensioners and Favorites Out Under New Policy of 18 to 20 Films Yearly

Hollywood—From 18 to 20 pictures, all of them designed as specials, will constitute Universal's new line-up, with a complete shake-up of production forces slated to be made before the new season gets under way.

Contract of Harry Pollard has expired and will not be renewed; in fact, Tod Browning, who has a five-year agreement, is the only director under a term contract under the new policy. Nat Ross, former director, has been signed to produce a tentative schedule of three Charles Murray-George Sidney talkers for the new program.

Tentative line-up for the new year includes three starring or special pictures each for John Boles, Mary Nolan and Lupe Velez, with the balance of first-line names from the free-lancing field. Jeanette Loff, so report has it, is the only featured player being retained. Among players reported being dropped are: Joseph Schildkraut, Merna Kennedy, Katherine Crawford, Barbara Kent and all contract players.

Ken Maynard has one and Hoot Gibson two pictures yet to deliver under their contracts which are not likely to be renewed. Martin Murphy is out as production manager and other department heads are going out daily, under the program mapped by Carl Laemmle, Jr., who has convinced his father of the necessity for entirely rebuilding the production organization, slashing off pensioners and favorites.

Fewer Pictures, Higher Standards, "U's" Plan

New production policy of Universal, now being determined upon by Carl Laemmle, calls for fewer pictures, all of them based upon the idea of quality in production, rather than upon negative costs, according to Lou B. Metzger, general manager, who has returned to New York from the Coast, where he conferred with the company chief. Fewer short subjects, all of a better grade, also are called for in Laemmle plans, he states.

Universal's new production policy means the end of pictures produced with the idea of cheap negative costs, according to Metzger, who says every film will be aimed at first run houses.

While the definite number of productions has not yet been determined, a number of outdoor action pictures are called for in the new group, according to Metzger. He declined comment on exclusive MOTION PICTURE NEWS report that the new program would comprise 18 features.

Universal has no intention of abandoning its complete service contract, which was put into effect several years ago by Metzger. No change in the method of selling the complete service is contemplated, he declares.

Leave for Wedding

H. J. Yates and Harry and Mrs. Goetz of Consolidated Film Industries; Charles S. and Mrs. Goetz of States Cinema Corp., and Mrs. S. Dorson and Mrs. Anna Laskin, sisters of William Goetz, are en route to Hollywood for wedding March 19 of Edith Mayer, daughter of Louis B. Mayer, and William Goetz, production manager for Corinne Griffith. Artie W. Stebbins, insurance broker, is accompanying the party west.

The wedding, uniting two prominent film families, promises to be an outstanding social event in the film world.

Moss Reported as Planning Circuit Of 50 Theatres

Six New York theatres, the first a $2,000,000 project, are included in the chain of 50 houses throughout the country, which B. S. Moss, former New York chain operator, says he will build throughout the country. The initial house is to be located at 8th Ave. and 23rd St., New York, work on which starts soon. Some time ago, Moss sold his holdings to Radio-Keith-Orpheum.

"U" Pulled La Plante from Location and Put Lupe in Hollywood—It took an argumentative battle with Carl Laemmle, Jr., that ran until 2 o'clock in the morning before decision was reached to pull Laura La Plante from "The Storm" company on location and use Lupe Velez in her place. However, the reluctance to do so in view of Miss La Plante's long period of starring service with the company was finally overcome. Shortly thereafter, the La Plante contract with Universal was terminated.

Academy, Once Step-Child of the Coast Hays Office, Now Its Stiff Competitor

Fred Beetson-Col. Joy vs. Frank Woods - Lester Cowan Now Competing On Service

Hollywood—A story that just won't break is simmering here in the situation between the Producers' Association, local division of the Hays office, and the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences.

Principals in both groups are said to be doing a fine job of maintaining attitudes of friendliness toward each other. Observers claim that below the surface the pot is boiling close to the scalding point in a keen competition by officials of both organizations for support from studio executives.

The producers' association is headed by Fred Beetson and Colonel Jason Joy. Until a year ago the Academy, under the leadership of Frank Woods, was regarded as a stroke of political genius by the Producers' Association. It served as a safety valve for temperamental producers, directors and stars who found themselves in a foreign atmosphere in attempted discussions of serious and not-so-serious technical problems at meetings of the Producers' Association.

Academy Not Encouraged

It is generally believed on the Coast that Will Hays has maintained an attitude of passive resistance toward members of the Academy whenever the latter undertook the handling of matters which overlapped the activities of the Producers' Association. This policy is said to have been reflected in the viewpoints of Beetson and Col. Joy toward things advocated or undertaken by the Academy officials and membership.

Producers are now viewing the results of two major propositions, one handled by the Association, the other by the Academy. The Producers' Association had charge of adjusting demands made by the cameramen for a code of ethics. The situation remained unsolved until the cameramen were unionized, almost overnight, and producers were forced to accept their demands. Observers claim that earlier action by the Association would have made it far more difficult for union officials to successfully organize the photographers.

Checking against this, so the story runs, is the quick and mutually satisfactory settlement by the Academy of the new standard contract for actors. The troupers received practically all they demanded, but the interests of the producers were fully protected, and the contract adopted with both sides happy.

Producer interest in the Academy, and the work of Frank Woods and his assistant, Lester Cowan, jumped with bull market speed after the Academy's successful establishment of sound schools and a plan for the cooperative handling of difficult technical problems affecting the entire production industry. This was accompanied by excellent contacts with universities and colleges throughout the country which since have proven far more significant in behalf of the producers than was at first anticipated.

Producers Warm to Academy

With these achievements to its credit Academy officials suddenly found producers taking the first official step to transfer activity from the Producers' Association to its offices. Producer Association members voted to switch the Technical Bureau from under the wing of the Association to the Academy. A significant feature of this action is seen in the fact that the Academy was given full authority to operate the Technical Bureau, plus an initial appropriation of $15,000, without strings or supervision.

According to the record the Technical Bureau operated for more than a year as a department of the Producers' Association without making satisfactory progress.

When the proposition of organizing a Foreign Production Committee was presented to the Producers' Association, it is said that Col. Joy recommended that it be created by the Academy. As the latter began to grow in the opinions of producers something happened and the Foreign Production Committee work was taken over by the Producers' Association on the ground that the Hays office in New York was in intimate contact with foreign problems and could provide a degree of cooperation not possible for the Academy.

Non-Technical Jobs for Ass'n

One explanation, from an authoritative source, of the growing disposition by producers to compliment the work of Woods and Cowan with increased scope and activity for the Academy is that it will free the local Hays office of many technical production problems and free Beetson and Col. Joy for non-technical work.

However, the fact which most interests Hollywood is that the Academy and its officials, at first regarded by the Producers' Association staff as a step-child and playground for production temperaments, has quietly gone about its job and developed real competition for the Association, and with every indication of supplanting it as a functoning unit on all matters of technical and artistic concern to the producers.

Influence of Color

Tampa, Fla.—Following two or three big flops on different policies, the Rialto opens Saturday midnight with an all-negro tab show, but for whites only.

After a brief burlesque season, which caused so much adverse criticism that it had to be pulled, the house started a season of sex pictures, silent, with mixed audiences the first week. This didn't click, so they separated the customers, one week for men and the following for women, and still the Jonah hung around, so the colored shows were picked as a last straw.

Plug for Grainger

Hollywood—In "High Society Blues," Charlie Farrell's film name is Eddie Grainger; Lucien Littlefield's, dad Grainger, and Louise Fazenda's, Mrs. Grainger. The gag is going to hand the Fox sales force a big laugh, particularly when Willie Collier turns to Littlefield and says, "Eddie's got much more sense than his father ever had."

Even dragged Jimmy Grainger's chauffer, Thomas, into the line-up. Doesn't detract from the entertainment value of the picture a bit, because it won't mean a thing to the mob. But to those in the know, the ad libbing is funny.

New Class in Recording and Reproduction Gets Under Way at U. S. C.

Opening session of the Academy of M. P. Arts & Sciences' School in the fundamentals of sound recording and reproduction, which is being repeated for studio employees who were unable to gain entrance under the limited quotas of the original course last fall, was held this week at the University of Southern Cal. Fred Niblo gave an introductory talk, followed by a lecture by Prof. A. W. Nye, of the University faculty, who covered the speed of sound, meaning of vibration and method of propagation, pitch, wave length and complication of vibrations.

Advance Dope Hints Big Things for Derr's First

Culver City—E. B. Derr's debut as vice-president in charge of production at Pathe is to be an auspicious one, if advance indications are borne out, for already they're predicting big things for his initial picture, "Swing High."

The picture, now nearing completion at the studio, which has undergone complete executive reorganization, boasts a cast embracing 16 names, all of them players who have been starred or featured in their own right on stage or screen. They are Helen Twelvetrees, Fred Scott, Bryant Washburn, Dorothy Burgess, Nick Stuart, Sally Starr, John Sheehan, Stepin Fetchit, Ben Turpin, Daphne Pollard, Chester Conklin, George Fawcett, Robert Edeson, Little Billy, Mickey Bennett and Bill Lagnan.

(Write this down)

"Song O' My Heart," which introduces John McCormack to the picture audience of America, is headed in the direction of real money. For the Irish, it will hold a tremendous appeal. For music lovers, its charm is beyond question.

Frank Borzage, clever and sympathetic in his direction, handled the singer with great discretion. He injected into his various sequences whimsicality and charm and garnered for himself the major credit for turning what might have been a sad affair in other hands into an outstanding attraction.

A $2 picture—one of the few.

Old Reliables Wobble, New Names On Wing As Sound Alters Star Values

Ups and Downs in These Days of Dialogue Pictures Cause Much Worriment

By WALTER R. GREENE

Sound Proves Grim Jokester To Hollywood

The old wheeze of the ill wind, etc., is running true to form. The film colony, still trying to learn what this sound business is all about, is discovering something new almost daily. The big guns of the silent days are the lowly duds of the talker era. And vice versa. In this analysis, Walter R. Greene, West Coast representative of Motion Picture News, takes the studios one by one and explains what's going on in each.

Hollywood—The transition from silent to dialogue and musical pictures has definitely re-arranged all box office values of picture names. Certain stars of the silent era have found the dialogue picture entirely too much for them while others discovered in the ,talker an opportunity to either re-establish themselves or shoot themselves to greater heights as box-office potentialities. Former silent featured players who received small notice from producers found themselves catapulted into the front ranks. Studio contract lists have been changed, with practically every company now carrying many former stage favorites and those who have had stage and musical comedy training.

Two interesting examples of star return through talkers after they had admittedly been on the down grade are Betty Compson and Bessie Love. Miss Compson found herself gradually easing out of star and featured spots during the last year of silent production, but overnight became a find in talkers through her revived personality via dialogue. Bessie Love, who attempted to become a name star for ten years in silents without success, found this was an easy accomplishment after her first appearance in a talker, "The Broadway Melody."

Studios have made radical changes in their stars and contract players. Taking them individually, a detailed checkup presents the following results:

Paramount

Eighteen months ago Paramount stars included: George Bancroft, Wallace Beery, Clara Bow, Gary Cooper, Bebe Daniels, Richard Dix, Jack Holt, Emil Jannings, Adolph Menjou, Esther Ralston, Charles ("Buddy") Rogers, Florence Vidor and Fay Wray.

Of this list, Beery, Daniels, Dix, Holt, Jannings, Menjou, Esther Ralston and Florence Vidor are no longer with the company. Jannings is the only one whose contract was terminated because of inability to appear in talkers. Most of the others were released because their contract salaries had reached a point which the company considered too high for the organization to carry.

Featured players in June of 1928 included Richard Arlen, Evelyn Brent, Mary Brian, Clive Brook, Louise Brooks, Nancy Carroll, Chester Conklin, James Hall, Fred Kohler, William Powell, Ford Sterling and Ruth Taylor. Of this group Brent, Brooks, Conklin, Kohler, Sterling and Taylor have been dropped. Of the remaining Carroll, "Buddy" Rogers and William Powell have been raised to star rating while the others, still on the payroll, have been found to be satisfactory to continue as featured players. Among that group, Mary Brian is the best potential star material for development within the next five years that Paramount has.

With the introduction of talkers, Ruth Chatterton, Maurice Chevalier, Dennis King and Moran & Mack have been added to the list of stars in the West Coast studios. Chatterton, an unknown picture "name" at the start, is rapidly developing into a draw personality. Chevalier sky-rocketed into a box office success with his first talking picture "Innocents of Paris" and probably will hold front rank as an "ace" star for some time to come.

Moran & Mack were brought from vaudeville after they had become established as stage and radio stars. Dennis King from the stage, appears to need a long period of plugging to establish his rating as a film star.

Among Paramount's featured players signed since the introduction of talkers are Kay Francis, Little Mitzi Green, Jeanette MacDonald, Lillian Roth, "Skeets" Gallagher, Harry Green, Phillips Holmes, Frederic March, Jack Oakie, Stanley Smith and Regis Toomey. Kay Francis, from the dramatic stage, is likely to go over stronger as a featured player. Little Mitzi Green, an eight-year-old youngster, provides possibilities for becoming the next child star of pictures. Jeanette MacDonald has both beauty and a fine voice for spots in film musicals. Lillian Roth has personality and a good voice to put over song numbers and will probably be seen a lot in Paramount musical pictures.

Skeets Gallagher recently put under term contract by Paramount, presents an interesting case where a stage personality tried to break through into silent pictures. Gallagher didn't get a tumble in silent productions and it took producers a long time to discover him for talkers. Now, however, he seems to have hit to the extent that he should be in the featured player class for a long period of time.

Harry Green with years of stage training and background as a writer, actor, and producer, made an instantaneous hit in talkers and is guaranteed to steal the comedy honors in practically every picture in which he appears. Phillips Holmes, Frederic March and Regis Toomey were imported by Paramount from the dramatic stage. Their spots appear to be featured players in supporting casts as not one of the trio seems likely to rate future stardom.

Pre-Sound Actors Make Grade Frequently, But Others Are Losing Out

Jack Oakie is one of the outstanding successes developed by sound pictures. Oakie's personality radiates and he is likely to become a substantial star comedian in talkies the next few years. Stanley Smith, from the stage, was under contract to Pathe for a year without the latter organization doing anything with him. When free, Paramount signed him, with Smith bidding fair to justify the company's decision as a featured player for filmusicals. Smith has a nice personality backed by a pleasing voice that can put over a romantic song number.

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer

M-G-M has had particular success in retaining its group of star personalities in the transition from silent to sound production. In 1928 its list of stars included: Lon Chaney, Marion Davies, Greta Garbo, John Gilbert, William Haines, Buster Keaton, Col. Tim McCoy, Ramon Navarro and Norma Shearer.

Of this group, Gilbert is the only one whose popularity has been shaken through the introduction of talking pictures. He has made two talkers, and from present indications will have to take an intensive course in stage training and dialogue delivery before he can hope to make a dent on the talking screen. Tim McCoy is the only one missing from the star contract list of that time, because of the company's decision to discontinue the westerns in which he appeared.

M-G-M's stars today include: Lon Chaney, John Gilbert, Ramon Navarro, Marion Davies, William Haines, Norma Shearer, Greta Garbo, Buster Keaton, Joan Crawford, Duncan Sisters and Lawrence Tibbett.

Joan Crawford rose from featured billing to a star over a year ago and seems to be a cinch for continued popularity in the talkers. The Duncan Sisters are spotted for a series of film musical comedies peculiar to their personalities. Tibbett now has a long term contract with M-G-M as a result of his hit in "The Rogue Song."

Although Chaney has not yet appeared in a talker, his tests at the studio would indicate no difficulty will be encountered in maintaining him as one of the best box office personalities regardless of his story material or the quality of pictures in which he appears.

Novarro and Garbo, both tremendous assets in silent pictures, will become even more so in the talkers. Garbo demonstrated her ability to overcome dialogue in her first talker "Anna Christie," while Novarro has the added advantage of a highly trained voice for musical operettas, besides his regular screen value.

Of the list of featured players in 1928, Renee Adoree, Geo. K. Arthur, Eleanor Boardman, Lew Cody, Ralph Forbes, Lars Hansen, James Murray, Aileen Pringle are today missing. Most of these would be satisfactory in talkers but they have been eliminated because of the general shifting of contract players over a period of the last year.

Of M-G-M's group of featured and stock contract players added during the past eighteen months, many were former personalities in silent productions, either free lancing or under contract to other studios. This group includes Wallace Beery, Harry Carey, Julia Faye, Lawrence Gray, Hedda Hopper, Leila Hyams, John Miljan, Duncan Renaldo and Lewis Stone. All of them have demonstrated their ability to handle dialogue.

M-G-M has been one of the leading producers in the importation of stage personalities for talkers. Its group of contract players having recent stage background include: Jack Benny, Charles Bickford, Mary Doran, Cliff (Ukelele Ike) Edwards, Paul Cavanagh, Wynne Gibson, Raymond Hackett, Lottice Howell, Kay Johnson, Dorothy Jordan, Carlotta King, Charles King, Mary Lawlor, Andre Luguet, George F. Marion, Nina Mae, Dorothy McNulty, May Moylan, Robert Montgomery, Elliott Nugent, J. C. Nugent, Catherine Dale Owen, Basis Rathbone and Roland Young.

Of this group, Bickford appears at this time to be the most potential starring timber with Robert Montgomery a close second. It is unlikely that M-G-M will carry several of these players beyond their current contract option period. This especially applies to Carlotta King, who has not appeared in a single picture since joining the organization; and Catherine Dale Owen, who seems to be decidedly negative in pictures, whether silent or dialogue. Miss Owen has been spotted in about four productions and has failed to click.

RKO

RKO has an entire new group of contract stars and featured players as against eighteen months ago. This is primarily due to the change from FBO to RKO plus the fact that the new organization has raised the quality of its productions. On RKO's current contract list of sars in Bebe Daniels, Richard Dix, Betty Compson and Arthur Lake.

Bebe Daniels and Dix have found themselves greater box office personalities as a result of talkers than while stars on the Paramount program in silents. Betty Compson's return to stardom has already been noted. Arthur Lake was signed after he had been with Universal for several years, and the company is endeavoring to build him up into a draw star on his own.

Joel McCrea, Ivan Lebedeff, Hugh Trevor, Sally Blane and Ned Sparks are former silent players now on RKO's contract list. This organization has brought many stage personalities to pictures under their revised production plans. This group includes: Joe Cawthorne, June Clyde, Roberta Gale, Helen Kaiser, Dorothy Lee, Marguerita Padula, Rita Le Roy, Renee Macready, Bert Wheeler, Robert Woolsey, Ralf Harolde, Marguerite Robinson and Raymond Maurel. Nearly all of these players are most suitable for comedy roles or film musicals.

First National

First National's contract list of eighteen months ago was completely revolutionized through introduction of talkers. Only one star, Richard Barthelmess, now remains with the company. All others have departed, including Mary Astor, Billie Dove, Corrinne Griffith, Harry Langdon, Colleen Moore, Charles Murray and Milton Sills. Most of these left on account of revised production policies instituted by the new owners, Warner Brothers.

Corrinne Griffith is the only one on that lot who appears to lose her silent picture popularity or standing through the introduction of talkers. After two dialogue productions, both the star and company officials decided to call it quits, with an agreement calling for one more picture cancelled.

Alice White, a featured player of eighteen months ago, has since been raised to star rating and justifies that promotion through recent hits in talkers. Featured and stock players of 1928 no longer being carried include Yola D'Avril, Doris Dawson, Larry Kent, Doris Kenyon, Jack Mulhall, Molly O'Day, Donald Reed, Thelma Todd and Paul Vincente, with only Dorothy Mackail still remaining as a featured actress. Currently, First National is carrying two stars, Barthelmess and Alice White. Barthelmess, a star and featured player of silent productions for twelve years, found his drawing power increased through appearance in talkers. He is one of the small group of silent stars who saw their stocks rise even higher when the sound transition took place. Barthelmess is reported to be First National's biggest individual drawing card at the present time.

Marilyn Miller has made one successful musical picture for First National and is under contract for a series. She is a definite box office personality, but it is unlikely that she will make more than one or two pictures a year under her agreement. Otis Skinner was recently signed, but has so far had nothing released. His status is, therefore, problematical.

In the First National group of featured players currently under contract are Dorothy Mackail, Loretta Young, Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., Bernice Claire, Fred Kohler, Alexander Gray, Lois Wilson, Sidney Blackmer, Joe E. Brown and Lila Lee. Of this entire list Bernice Claire appears to be definite star material for film musicals. It looks as if First National is developing her rapidly for that spot. Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., has made rapid strides in the past year and there is no doubt that he will join the First National stars within the next eighteen months.

Pretty Figures and Handsome Profile No Longer Enough, Producers Maintain

Columbia

Columbia continues its policy of signing players for series of pictures rather than on weekly contract basis. Dorothy Revier, under term agreement with this company for the past five years, continues on that basis. Ralph Graves is the only other regular contract player with Columbia although the company has Jack Holt, Wm. Collier, Jr., Aileen Pringle, Margaret Livingston, Sally O'Neil, Molly O'Day, Marie Prevost and Virginia Valli under contract for series. All of these were former silent players who have encountered no difficulty in appearing satisfactorily in talkers. Columbia recently signed series contracts with Jack Egan from vaudeville, and Barbara Stanwyck from the stage, but it is unlikely that this company will hand out wholesale groups of contracts to stage players.

Pathe

Pathe is another organization which has been reorganized insofar as production is concerned during the last eighteen months. Of its list of contract stars and featured players of 1928, only William Boyd and Eddie Quillan remain. Stars and players dropped during the interval include Robert Armstrong, Lina Basquette, Junior Coughlan, George Duryea, Allen Hale, Phyllis Haver, Jeanette Loff, Jacqueline Logan and Rod LaRocque.

Armstrong, former stage player, has found his popularity increasing through talkers. Allen Hale and Rod LaRocque found no difficulty in securing contracts since leaving the Pathe banner. Jeanette Loff was immediately signed by Universal when released.

Players Fox Drops Nabbed in Hurry by Other Plants

Hollywood—Contract players at Fox seem to have no difficulty as a general rule in obtaining term agreements with other producers when the Fox organization fails to renew options. At least 75 per cent of Fox featured players jump directly to another term contract at another studio.

June Collyer is the latest to make a quick switch, having signed a term agreement with Paramount after being with Fox for the past four years.

Voice Culture New Creed for Film Colony

Hollywood—Yogi philosophy, the various "isms" and cults which thrive here, are giving ground to the mania for voice culture. A surprising number of "experts" have made their appearance here and an equally surprising number of film notables—real and near—are falling for what is rapidly developing into a racket. The reason? Hollywood is shy on such data and, faced with the necessity of learning in a hurry, is simply falling for whatever is thrown in its lap.

Erlanger Death Regarded as Halting Deals for Chain; Expansion Planned

A Long Wait

"Television," according to one who knows his sight-broadcasting, "is far from ready for the market." This authority told a MOTION PICTURE NEWS reporter yesterday that "at least five years will pass before television broadcasts occupy an important berth in the radio-sound field."

Hollywood Crowd Worried Over Tax Jams with Gov't

Hollywood—Income tax jams with Uncle Sam—bugaboo of Hollywood—caused more headaches in this town last week than color, sound, television and wide film combined.

Warner Oland and John Dillon forked over $5,014 and $2,506, respectively, on back taxes and fines. The director, according to U. S. District Court Judge James, forgot about his 1926 return of $3,843, and it cost him exactly $1,921 for this little lapse of memory. Judge James, being big hearted, added $250 for extra fine. Oland paid $1,504, which he owed since 1927, a penalty of $752 and a fine of $250. Oland told the court that his gross for that year was $55,016.

Henry King and Raymond Griffith were haled before the same judge—and they took the same licking as Dillon and Oland. King it was held, should have paid $11,201 for 1927, but only remitted $4,138. For the privilege of waiting three years, King paid a penalty of $3,531, and of course, the back debt of $7,062.

Ray Griffith's complaint dates back even further than that filed against King, Oland and Dillon. Ray met a Hollywood tax "expert" in 1925, judging from testimony of revenue agents, who claimed the player owed $2,597 for that year, thereby rating a penalty payment of $1,298.

Eleanor Boardman Vidor pleaded guilty to each of two counts and paid $2,000 to redeem both. She admitted to Judge Killits that she was in error for 1926 and 1927.

Raymond McKee was placed on the spot for failure to pay full 1927 taxes. He owed, according to U. S. District Attorney McNabb, $1,647, and rated a $500 fine. The judge gave McKee until April 1 to dig up the jack.

And more than one Hollywood "name" is known to be waiting the visit of Uncle Sam's revenue agent, bearing a cordial invitation to see Judge James.

One "expert" on income tax matters is now behind bars. J. Ira Angus, another alleged authority, is up on $7,500 bail. It took two policemen and a deputy U. S. marshal one hour to convince him—in a fist battle—that he was wanted on a bench warrant to explain alleged falsification of Earl Foxe's returns.

Building of Chicago Theatre Slated First Step; Chain Reorganization

With death of A. L. Erlanger regarded as having forestalled reported deals for acquisition of the chain by one or more picture firms, plans are under way for carrying out of the expansion program formulated by the circuit's founder. Former Supreme Court Justice Mitchell E. Erlanger is new president of the circuit, in a reorganization following death of A. L. Erlanger, one of the pioneers of legitimate show business in America. On the board of managing directors are Charles B. Dillingham, Florenz Ziegfeld, Marcus Heiman and Saul J. Baron. The board will govern and direct affairs of the organization.

First step in the scheduled expansion program is to be erection of a house in Chicago, it is understood. The firm recently purchased the Broad Street at Philadelphia.

Theatres of the Erlanger circuit are:

New York—Erlanger, Gaiety (wired), Frolic, Belmont, New Amsterdam, Liberty (wired), Fulton, Globe (wired), Avon.
Philadelphia—Erlanger, Garrick, Broad Street.
Los Angeles—Biltmore (wired), Mason.
Seattle—Metropolitan (wired).

Paramount and M-G-M Making Films in Spanish

Hollywood—Both Paramount and M-G-M has launched their initial productions in Spanish, after weeks of investigation as to proper procedure. Paramount is making an all-Spanish version of "The Benson Murder Case," while M-G-M will present Buster Keaton in a Spanish version of "On the Set," his first talker comedy.

The Spanish "Benson Murder Case" will present a cast with several known picture "names," including Antonio Moreno, Barry Norton, Maria Alba and Andre de Segurola. Spanish adaptation was prepared by C. Carner-Ribalta, with co-direction by Cyril Gardner and A. W. Pezet.

Buster Keaton and Anita Page, both of whom appeared in the regulation talker of "On the Set," will carry their same principal spots in the Spanish version. Miss Page speaks fluent Spanish, while Keaton can easily get by with a scrambled dialogue of Spanish on account of his comedy role and the small amount of dialogue necessary for him.

Both Paramount and M-G-M officials have decided that foreign versions of pictures can be made better and more economically in Hollywood than abroad, and are proceeding with production plans on that basis.

Seek Peace

St. Louis—Musicians and theatre owners are slated to meet here Friday night in effort to adjust various phases of their working agreement and avoid a strike. Friday night is end of the time limit on points of difference remaining in the truce signed following the 11 weeks' strike last year.

"Kibitzer," "Anna Christie" Play to Par, Others Under

Minneapolis—Tough week for most local stands. Only two pictures, "Anna Christie" and "The Kibitzer," checked off 100% and the rest flopped. "Dangerous Paradise" (Paramount) hit the low mark, 70%, despite its second high gross of $19,600. "Son of the Gods," First National-Barthelmess opus, drew $30,000, rating 80%.

New W. E. Policy Aims To Keep Small Theatres Going As Industry Factor

Will Licensed Companies Make Squawk?

With approximately 4,000 theatres and bulk revenue controlled by producer-distributor interests, a question developing out of Western Electrics stand in encouraging small town theatre operation is this:

Will "Erpi's" licensed members raise objections to what one insider says may be construed as the electric's participation in exhibition via its efforts to keep patronage in small communities on home ground and away from de luxe houses?

5,000th Theatre Wiring Completed for W. E. System

Continuing to wire houses at the rate of 90 weekly, Electrical Research Products has just completed its five thousandth installation. The theatre which wins the distinction is the Lyceum Cinema, 750-seat house at Belfast, Ireland. It is the third house in the Irish city to install Western Electric equipment.

Installation of equipment in the Lyceum Cinema finds the Western Electric sound system represented in 3,629 theatres in the United States and in theatres in 40 foreign countries. These include 587 installations in Great Britain, 216 in Canada, 210 in Australia and the remainder in theatres in Algeria, Austria, Balkan States, Belgium, Czechoslovakia, Denmark, Egypt, Finland, France, Hungary, Italy, Netherlands, Norway, Poland, Spain, Sweden, Switzerland, Syria, Tunis, Turkey, China, Dutch East Indies, India, Japan, New Zealand, Philippines, Argentina, Brazil, Chile, Colombia, Costa Rica, Cuba, Guatemala, Jamaica, Mexico, Panama and Porto Rico.

Contracts for the installations of equipments in theatres of other foreign countries have also been accepted. Another field for this new art has been opened up in ocean travel.

Aschers Stage Return Play In Chicago Theatre Field

Chicago—Ascher Bros., one time power in the Chicago exhibition field, are staging a come-back. They have opened the Viste, a neighborhood house, and comment now is that this will be the first of a chain.

Harry Tague re-enters the field with the Bryn Mawr, formerly owned by Joe Pastor. The house has been completely re-decorated and W. E. sound installed.

Columbia Earns $250,081 In Last 3 Months of 1929

Columbia earned $252,081 for the quarter ended Dec. 31, 1929, equal after preferred dividends to $2.33 a share on the 100,000 shares of common outstanding. This compares with $227,048 or $2.08 a share on the common in the preceding quarter. Net for the six months ended Dec. 31 was $479,129 or $4.41 a share on the common.

"Grischa" Dies in Baltimore; Gross $2,640 in 8 Days

Baltimore—In eight days, RKO'S "Case of Sergeant Grischa" grossed only $2,640 (40%) at the Auditorium, where the picture played to five reserved-seat shows daily. It was the week's big flop, exclusive of the art-theatre performance of "The Chess Player," at the Little, where this foreign film took in $30, rating 35%, and hardly paying the help.

Must Be Done Via Sound, Is Belief, So "Erpi" Aids In Securing Financing

Western Electric is in the open with a plan to keep the small theatre in business. The company believes the small house is essential to the prosperity of the business and that, via sound, this type of theatre can survive.

Without sound, the company argues, the small town house must go and, therefore, the problem as viewed by "Erpi" is to wire these theatres as rapidly as possible. By making available to the little man the same calibre of show which his public may see in the big theatres, it is felt patronage will be dissuaded from traveling to larger centers. "Erpi's" representatives are working in conjunction with local Chambers of Commerce in a widespread plan to secure for the exhibitor local financing necessary to buy sound equipment. That the reproducer will be W. E. is, of course, part of the plan.

An "Erpi" official insists that there is nothing to the report that this indicates the company is entering exhibition. His stand is that the organization is a manufacturer of sound equipment and is entitled to use all legitimate means to further sales.

E. F. Albee, Vaudeville Chief, Buried Saturday

Marking the passing of one of the outstanding figures of the show world, funeral services for E. F. Albee, former head of the Keith-Albee-Orpheum circuit (now Radio-Keith-Orpheum) will be held Saturday morning at 11:00 P. M. in New York. Body of the veteran showman, who long has been known as "the father of vaudeville," arrives in New York Friday to lie in state at the Cathedral of St. John the Divine until the funeral.

Albee, who was 72, died at Palm Beach, Fla. He had been in show business since the age of 17, when he ran away from home to join a circus. From an old store show at Boston, Albee, with B. F. Keith, continued in the theatre field, specializing in vaudeville. He retired from control of the Keith-Albee chain in 1928 when the merger with Radio-Keith-Orpheum became effective.

Orpheum Net $142,830

Net of $142,830 after interest, depreciation and Federal taxes, equal to $2.23 a share on 63,840 shares (par 100) of eight per cent preferred is reported by Orpheum Circuit and subsidiaries. In 1928, the company reported net loss of $8,931.

K-A-O Reports $2,362 Loss

Keith-Albee-Orpheum, Radio-Keith-Orpheum subsidiary, reports net loss of $2,362 after taxes and charges for the year ended Dec. 31 last. This compares with net income of $356,907 the preceding year, including $1,134,827 on sales of investments.

R-K-O, Facing Competition on Purchase of Pathe, Seeks Increase of Its Stock

Million Share Increase Sought At Special Meeting Called for March 26

Facing competition in reported plans to acquire control of Pathe, Radio-Keith-Orpheum has called a special meeting of stockholders March 26 to vote on proposed increase of the Class "A" stock to 4,500,000 from 3,500,000 shares. The step is seen as a forerunner of the proposed deal with Pathe, reported at various times to be completed or near consummation.

A Wall St. group, MOTION PICTURE NEWS learns, has been surveying the Pathe properties, with a view to engineering a deal. So far, no overtures have been made directly by the group, but the analysis is said to have been satisfactory, with negotiations slated at an early date.

Need for carrying on and expanding business of the company is cited by President Hiram Brown as reason for action of the directors in calling the special meeting.

RKO Grossed 9 Millions More in '29 Than in '28

RKO's balance sheet, which revealed a net of $1,669,564 after all charges, lists total income of $51,696,860 for 1929, a jump of $9,072,000 over 1928.

Company's income account for 1929, ending Dec. 31, follows in detail:

Twelve RKO Houses Give Midnite Bill

Twelve neighborhood RKO houses in Manhattan, Brooklyn, inaugurated midnite shows on regular schedule. The theatres are: Coliseum, Jefferson, Chester, Fordham, Franklin, and Proctor's Eighty Sixth Street, in Manhattan; the Bronx, in the Bronx; the Albee, Bushwick; Greenpoint, Madison, Kenmore and Orpheum, in Brooklyn.

Meeting May 17

May 17 has been set as tentative date for RKO's annual sales meeting on the Coast. There is a possibility that this date may be changed, the company states.

Tiffany Attorney Hits Suit

Tiffany has completely performed its agreement with Mae Murray "and in addition to its legal obligations has extended her unusual courtesies and co-operation," H. William Fitelson, Tiffany attorney, declares in commenting on what he says is the star's "annual spring suit."

"This action of Miss Murray's assumes no greater significance or validity than many of her other pretty gestures," he said. Her indulgence in litigation is a matter of common knowledge, as is her inclination at hurling invectives, without moderation.

This claim against Tiffany would have been absurd and unfounded even had she demanded a more modest sum than $1,500,000.

Texas Unit Head Backs Anti-Chain "Battle" in State

Col. H. A. Cole, head of the Texas exhibitor unit, who has pledged co-operation to the Texas Anti-Chain Ass'n, is in New York in connection with a co-operative equipment deal and the 5-5-5 meetings. Cole, who recently formed the anti-chain association, says Texas exhibitors have encountered great difficulties on account of "the practical monopoly enjoyed by a few film companies." The association, its officers and members, Cole stated, "have been up against terrible hardships along this line."

Dallas—Under the heading, "Corruption of Movie Trust to Be Exposed in Texas," the Texas Anti-Chain Ass'n has called upon theatre patrons of the state to aid the cause it is declared expounding and threatens legal action against theatre circuits of the state.

"For some years," states the association, "the independent moving picture theatre owners of Texas, with the exception of a few 'pets' who were free with their liquor when certain Texas branch film exchange managers were with them, have been ground under the heel of the conscienceless moving picture producers' trust, which boasts the has-been politician, Will H. Hays, as its 'patron saint.'

"These tactics have been forced on many branch managers, who are very likeable men personally, in the main, but who have to do what the Wall Street chain producer barons say or they are out.

"This is due largely to the fact that most of the producers are large chain theatre owners, though sometimes, to dodge the Federal anti-trust law and try to fool the United States government, they pretend to have no connection between the exhibiting and producing end.

Publix Tramples Exhibitor

"Publix Theatres, controlled by the gold of Adolph Zukor and other Wall Streeters, are the chief reason for so many Texas theatre men having been forced to go out of business. When the Publix gang wanted a film first, which has been previously sold and booked to some small town show, in the

Call Bureau Will Be Kept Under Eye Of Producer Ass'n

Hollywood—Complete control and supervision of agents, managers and representatives, besides closer contact with operation of the Call Bureau, will result from current meetings of the committee appointed by the producers' association to thoroughly investigate the agency situation on the Coast.

The committee is meeting two and three nights a week, and representatives of every large studio have been present at the conferences. Although listening to various complaints of double-crossing tactics employed by agents in the past, it is understood that the final report of the committee will not censure any agency for overstepping the line in the past. Rather, the committee is endeavoring to work out a practical plan of operation for agencies in the future, with a code of procedure being established for the representatives to follow from now on.

Seek to Cut Evils

Although the producers' committee is making a sweeping investigation of agencies and sharp practices, it is understood the material gathered is only for the purpose of working out a practical plan of operation for the future, so that all evils and difficulties previously encountered will be eliminated. One producer representative is reported to have said that it is not the intention of the committee or the association to refuse recognition of agencies already established—regardless of their past wrong-doings. If this is correct, all agencies now operating will continue with the sanction of the producers—but there will be a code of procedure which the agents will have to follow, and if one oversteps under the new system, he will be classed as "undesirable" by the producers' association, and thereby automatically refused privileges of doing business with the studios.

As the agency situation is so closely linked with operation of the Call Bureau, the committee has been going into the latter rather thoroughly. Although not admitted by any producer, it is generally understood that the Players' Contract May Write Finis To Hollywood's Phantom "Blacklist"

Running Time

MOTION PICTURE NEWS' Release Chart, long recognized as the authority by exhibitors, now includes running time on releases, as well as footage.

This additional service, introduced at the request of theatre owners throughout the country, is gradually being extended to releases of all companies. Addition of this data will take several more weeks to complete.

committee will recommend methods of operation of the Call Bureau in the future to conform with the code for agents, and this is expected to eliminate many practices that have been complained of by players in the past. There is a good chance that the Call Bureau will have a general manager as is the case with the producer association—controlled Central Casting Offices for extras.

Plan Ready Shortly

As now lined up, the Call Bureau comes under the general supervision of Fred Beetson, executive vice president and secretary of the association, with two girls employed to operate the bureau. The general manager would be able to keep the office functioning through proper channels, and, furthermore, would be in a position to check up on any attempts of agents or studio casting offices to take advantage of players by making the Call Bureau an unsuspecting agency for such procedure.

The producer association committee hopes to have a complete report on the agency situation before the producers next week.

Improvements for Tampa Four Publix Houses

Tampa, Fla.—Eugene Zukor, Morris Greenburg, E. Perkins and J. J. Friedl, Publix officials, accompanied by Chas. G. Branham, district manager of the West Florida theatres, while here on a visit authorized improvements on four of Tampa houses amounting to over $100,000.

1,946 Films Shown in Manitoba During 1929

Winnipeg—Films shown in theatres in Manitoba last year were classified according to country of origin by censors as follows: United States, 1,932; Great Britain, 6; Germany, 4; France, 2., and Ukraine, one; unclassified, one Yiddish feature. The Manitoba censors rejected 57 pictures and made 693 deletions.

Actors, Fearful of Reprisals, Told They Can Talk Freely to Own Committee

Hollywood—The "blacklist" accepted as fact all through Hollywood, but never proven, in fact, need hold no future fear for the actor under an arrangement by which an actors' adjustment committee will handle all disputes under the new standard contract arising between players and producers. The committee which promises this is composed of five actors, all members of the Actors' Branch of the Academy of M. P. Arts and Sciences, and is Sam Hardy, Monte Blue, De Witt Jennings, Jean Hersholt and Mitchell Lewis. They will receive all complaints of players and producers where the standard contract is involved, and serve as the board of arbitration on all cases.

Full Rein on Complaints

Establishing such a committee, composed entirely of players, it is promised, will give every actor with a just or supposed grievance plenty of opportunity to present his claims without fear of future "blacklisting" by casting offices or producers.

Many players hesitate to present claims because of the well-grounded, but unconfirmed, understanding that a "blacklist" prevails in Hollywood. Certainly there is nothing new about that impression. Dozens of players will readily admit how cautious they are not to offend studio officials, fearful that if they do the grapevine system of communication from one studio to another will bar them out.

Under the previous standard contract, there were admittedly abuses by both studio subordinates and players themselves. In justice to the producing heads, it must be stated that immediate adjustment was made on player claims presented where the actor was in the right. There are no definitely established known cases where the particular complaining player was refused consideration for future work by any studio as a result of his claim.

Members, Ex-Equity Men

It is expected that the new actors' adjustment committee will engage a secretary or employee to act as adjustor and contact man to conduct thorough investigations of all complaints brought before the committee. Discussions are known to have been held on this point, with the committee and other first rank players agreeing that better results on the new contract can be obtained via a players' representative rather than to burden the committee of five with all details of every complaint filed.

Most interesting in the personnel of the committee is the fact that every member was a staunch supporter of Frank Gilmore, Equity president, during the ill-fated players' strike last summer. Sam Hardy was one of Gilmore's chief lieutenants during the difficulties, while Jennings, Hersholt and Lewis were in the front ranks of the leaders.

Gag?

Hollywood — With the Universal Studio virtually closing for the next ten weeks, and production completed on "All Quiet on the Western Front," an employee at the studio stated that the company had decided to change the title of the German war picture. When questioned on the new title, he said:

"Junior decided to call it 'All Fired on the Universal Lot!'"

No Tax Decrease To Be Made This Year in Ontario

Ottawa—No changes in taxation or license fees will be made in this province in 1930, according to Provincial Treasurer J. D. Monteith. Last year, the revenue from the amusement tax totaled $1,315,656. This is a record figure, due principally to increased revenue due to talkers. A charge of $17,483 was made due to increased number of inspectors. The Ontario censor board collected $46,659 during the year, and its expenses totaled $20,459. The government's studio at Trenton spent $107,416 and its intake totaled only $15,275. The province's 428 theatres paid licenses of $97,512 during the year. The chairman of the censor board received $3,359 as salary and an allowance of $500. Major G. E. Patten of the Trenton studio received $2,850.

Subsidiary Is Named for Coast M. P. Relief Fund

Hollywood—Additional revenue for operation of the M. P. Relief Fund will be provided through a subsidiary of the charity to be known as the Film Stars Thrift Outlet. The latter will collect donations of clothing, dresses, gowns and other wearing apparel from stars, players and others in high salaried positions in the coast colony.

The donations will be resold by the Thrift Outlet to lesser lights in the business, giving the public second choice after extras, etc., have been given first chance at purchases. Mary Pickford is president of the fund.

Return of Stage Shows at Omaha Thatre Is Planned

Omaha — Negotiations are reported in progress between Publix and the musicians' union to open the World theatre with a stage-show, split-week policy with the band which closes the Paramount on March 16. World is now playing an all sound program with two changes weekly.

Under the new plan, flash acts would be booked from Chicago to augment the picture. The Paramount, further uptown, will remain split-week with pictures only.

Headache for Entire Industry When Battle Starts Over Color Patents

Stiff Tilt Foreseen in Two Years, Comparable to Old Patents Scramble

Patent litigation in the color field within two years bids fair to plunge this new industry development into a state of turmoil as disturbing, chaotic and costly, perhaps, as the bitter patents fight of early film days.

Battle axes are being sharpened in many quarters where check-ups have been under way for many months to ascertain how far violations have progressed. Two years may be allowed for a full development of color and then the warring factors may be expected to swoop down with a flood of injunctions.

The U. S. patent office at Washington is understood to have on record in excess of 6,000 patents or applications on chemical and mechanical phases of color. By the time the first gun is fired in the battle which now seems inevitable, hundreds more may be expected to further complicate the struggle.

After Secret Formulas

Like all other developments which turn into big money-makers over night, the color field is having its hands full, what with fake stock companies and efforts to spy on secret formulas. One of the rawest cases involves the head of a second string outfit, who secured a job with an entirely legitimate company holding a basic patent. The inquisitive individual made the hook-up solely in an effort to steal material needed for his ham-and-egg process. He was discovered in due time, but not until he had secured enough dope to pull his own racket out of deep water.

Fake stock promoters are losing no time in peddling stock to the gullible public. The racket is still in its early stage and the squawks have not as yet been registered, but they are anticipated. When they do, the district attorney's offices in Hollywood and in New York will have ample opportunity to make fur fly high, insiders predict.

Color Following Sound

An executive of one color company describes six stock companies within a stone's throw of his office near Times Square as fakes. Promoters are developing sales arguments via the financial report of Technicolor, which showed a jump in net earnings of several hundred per cent over last year. This angle, coupled with announcements from practically all companies which are set for color in a big way next season, is tearing down sales resistance in the minds of the skeptical.

Color is following in the footsteps of sound. When sound began to click, many get-rich-quick artists flocked to market with cheap reproducers. In mid-winter, there were no less than 170 companies operating, most of them with elaborated phonograph devices. Color companies are springing up as rapidly.

Jungle Film Made in Bronx, Charged

Boston—Claim that the jungle film, "Jango," was made in the wilds of the Bronx, New York, rather than dark Africa as claimed, is made in an attachment for $700 filed against box office receipts of the Tremont Temple by Firpo Jacko, one of the "cannibals" in the film. He asserts the "cannibals" were pretty good janitors originally and that Dr. Daniel Davenport, who sponsors the film, has never been in Africa.

Operator Absence from Booth Hit Under Mass. Bill

Springfield, Mass.—Desertion of his booth by an operator, even for one minute would be punishable by heavy fine and revocation of his license, under terms of a bill now before the Massachusetts legislature.

The bill is being opposed by exhibitors who see in it an effort to force theatres to provide an additional operator.

Orpheum, K-A-O and Consol'd Declare Divid'ds

Consolidated Film Industries, at its quarterly meeting, declared the regular quarterly payment of 50 cents a share on both common and preferred, payable April 1 to holders of record March 18.

Orpheum Circuit's quarterly dividend of $2 a share on preferred will be paid on April 1 to holders on the books as of March 19.

Keith-Albee-Orpheum declared quarterly dividend of $1.75 on the preferred, payable April 1 to holders as of March 19.

New Foxcolor Laboratory To be Opened Next Month

Fox's new home office annex, which will be devoted to Foxcolor, is scheduled to open early next month, states Jack Leo, company vice president. The new laboratory practically trebles capacity of the present plant. A feature is a 400-seat sound theatre constructed on the roof.

Columbia Handling Series

Columbia is to distribute the series of eight talking westerns starring Buck Jones. "The Man from Hell's River" is the first, and will be released in a few weeks.

New House for Midland

Kansas City—A $400,000 theatre and store building is under construction at Joplin, backed by Joplin Building Corp., which will lease it for 20 years to the Midland Circuit.

RKO at Waterloo

Waterloo, Ia.—Options on several local theatre sites have been secured by RKO, which has contractors in town for surveys.

Great "American Venus" Is Again Pounding Keys

Hollywood—Fay Lanphier—"The American Venus"—was handed a crool, crool deal from the those moguls of Hollywood, who, only a few short years ago, touted her as the country's most beautiful girl, feted her and starred her in pictures only to let her down heavily at the height of her short-lived career.

Fay was taken from a typewriter. She had pounded the keyboard for many years, until a national beauty contest proclaimed her the record-breaking beaut of all times. Film and vaudeville offers flooded her. And Paramount's looked the best. They built high hopes with a starring contract. She pictured herself running far ahead of Pickford's popularity—or that of Bebe Daniels, Greta Garbo and others.

A few rehearsals and then her first starring opus, "The American Venus," was made by Paramount. She waited for the next—and what a wait that was. Paramount scratched her from the race which was to place her ahead of the other blue-ribbon winners.

And now Fay is again pounding the keyboard of a typewriter, eight hours every day, and, as fate would have it, in the publicity office of the very studio which spent a fortune to plug her as that great "American Venus." Her office is but a few feet away from the stage where she reached the height of her fame.

An unhappy marriage is but a small part of the drama. Many weary months on the merry go-round from casting directors is another, because those hard-boiled c. d.'s now recognize her as one of Hollywood's countless thousands.

A number of prominent film people are stockholders of Setay, which has financed numerous new structures in the Times

"Anna Christie" On Way to a Record In Chicago Loop

Chicago—Publix-B. & K. reports current box-office take is the best in the local history of the organization—a cheery report handed out to the organization's executives who gathered here for their annual convention this week.

The current month is the fourth anniversary of the founding of Publix by Sam Katz, and elaborate stage presentations are making the rounds of the big houses in observance. Some of the big draw is credited to this, but feature specials in the loop are paying big without them.

"Anna Christie," now in its second week, has consistently bettered "The Virginian" record gross at the Roosevelt and also said to be threatening all-time house record (net) set by a Chaplin picture several years ago. The Chaplin feature ran alone on the program, holding costs to a minimum and emptying the house more times per day than a lengthier program would permit.

"The 'Love Parade,' in its third week at McVickers, is holding up well, and although consistently above box-office average, is said to be under the take of "Sunny Side Up," which preceded it.

"The Vagabond King" has been playing to capacity at $1 top prices in its first days. Dennis King, a local favorite, is the draw. The Chicago played to near capacity during the week, with Nils Asther appearing in person at every performance, and Frankie Masters' band, liked here, as decoys. House figures "The Girl Said No" means less than the headliners.

Hollywood—E. B. Derr signed John S. Robertson to direct "Beyond Victory." Pathe has also added Ralph Murray, author, to its staff.

Daylight Saving Bill Slated for Defeat in N. Y.

Albany—Defeat for the bill to outlaw daylight saving throughout New York is in prospect. As a result, local option on the question will be continued. Last year, 37 out of 59 cities of the state turned the clock ahead one hour, and many villages followed suit.

Another Election to be Held at Rutland, Vt.

Rutland, Vt.—Although daylight saving was defeated by 125 votes here, a petition has been circulated getting the required number of votes to call a special election, date of which soon will be announced.

Fanchon & Marco Seeking Season Goal of 58 Houses

Fifty-eight theatres playing Fanchon & Marco shows by the beginning of the 1930-31 season is the goal set by Marco, who is in New York. While in the East he is to arrange for additional houses for F. & M. time.

London—Maurice Elvey has signed with the company headed by Sir Gordon Craig, who is sponsoring the Williams multi-lingual plan of producing six versions of all features.

Norma in "Let Us Be Gay"

Hollywood—Robert Z. Leonard, who recently completed direction of "The Divorcee" with Norma Shearer, has been assigned to direct her next production, "Let Us Be Gay," which starts immediately.

Zieggy Girl in De Mille Film

Hollywood—Elsa Peterson, Ziegfeld "Follies" prima donna, has been imported by M-G-M for a featured spot in Cecil De Mille's filmusical, "Madame Satan."

Consolidated Will Place a Photochemical Process on Market in Two Months

H. J. Yates is all pepped up over color. So much so that he is about to purchase important interests in a photochemical natural-color process, on an outright buy, and market through Consolidated Film Industries, which operates a half dozen laboratories in New York and Hollywood.

Sensational returns and scarcity of competition in the color field were the tip-off. When color started its whirlwind climb, Consolidated which handles most of the big producer-distributor lab work, found itself without a process and its distributor accounts were forced to throw all color work to Technicolor.

Yates, it is understood, dickered with several color outfits, but mechanical or chemical hitches flopped the deals. Eastman Kodak, often reported to be but never confirmed a dominating backer in Consolidated, has Kodacolor, but Yates has been unable to make a deal with this company.

Setay (reversal of Yates' name) financing organization, backed by big guns in the business, and also headed by "H. J.," was another strong influence for acquisition of color. Seeing possibilities of big earnings in the field, at least four important Wall Street financing groups have indicated a willingness to back various color propositions. And Yates clambered on the bandwagon with Setay, which will hold the money bag for the new Consolidated development.

Consolidated is now building a $2,000,000 plant on the site of the recently purchased Universal lab in Fort Lee (N. J.) and, upon completion, the company will darken all of its New York branches, centering activities in the new structure. Wyanoak Publishing Co., theatrical printers owned by Setay-Consolidated, will also headquarter in Fort Lee.

Denny to Alternate on M-G-M, Sono Art Pacts

Reginald Denny will alternate in starring for Sono Art-World Wide and M-G-M, making the first for Sono Art. He is under contract to make five pictures for each company. The first will be "His Dark Chapter," directed by George J. Crone and adapted by Harvey Gates.

Lenore Coffee Expectant

Hollywood — Lenore Coffee, scenarist, leaves M-G-M this month after being under contract to that company a year and a half. An impending family event in the Coffee family was a most logical reason for the contract termination.

Eckman Due in April

London—Samuel Eckman, managing director of Jury-Metro-Goldwyn, leaves for New York shortly for his regular annual conference with Nicholas M. Schenck and Arthur M. Loew.

Monkey Business Seen in Stock Gag Planned by Big Firm About to Merge

Pool to Knock Down Shares, Then Buy Heavily with Suckers as Patsies

Wall Street and the industry are discussing the merger of two well known companies. This deal is in the bag and will be all set within a month, but before it is announced one of the companies plans to gather in a big piece of change via a cleverly concocted stock manipulation which it will pull just before the dear old public learns that the merger has been closed.

The company in question is on the wrong side of the ledger for several millions. This info is held very closely, so much so in fact that the company's stock is trading at a figure much higher than would be expected from the frequency with which it goes in for red ink. The level is in keeping with the scheme of the group pulling the lines. They managed to keep the spotlight away from the big debt to plug the stock up to its present figure.

When the merger papers are signed, announcement will be withheld, and the big moguls will issue a statement, reeking of pessimism and telling of the company's debts. They figure that this will knock the stock off several points, sending it down to a price which they have already decided upon. After that, it's easy. The pool will buy heavily and hold for the big merger announcement. The deal is very favorable for the debtor company and is expected to send the stock to its former higher level. When they unload, somebody will be in several millions. And the suckers will be sore.

Silent Players Floundering in Rough Waters

This company's current group of stars and featured players besides Boyd and Quillan include Ann Harding, Ina Claire, Helen Twelvetrees, Harry Bannister, Fred Scott, Lucille Williams and Constance Bennett. With the exception of the latter all of them are new names in pictures although some have been more or less prominent on the stage.

Pathe's new production policy provides for keeping the contract list of players down to a minimum, which makes it decidedly unlikely that any more will be added this year.

Tiffany

Another organization that has a policy which does not provide for carrying a regular group of stars and featured players. In 1928 Tiffany had under regular contract Shirley Palmer, Barbara Leonard, Caroline Snowden and Eve Southern, all of whom have been dropped in the interval. At the present time Tiffany has Rex Lease under regular contract and will try to build him into a starring spot. Lease, a former silent player, seems to justify the company's prediction through successful appearance in several recent dialogue productions.

Universal

Universal has also materially re-arranged its contract list of stars and featured players through the introduction of talkers. Reginald Denny, Dorothy Gulliver, Arthur Lake, George Lewis, Jean Hersholt, Laura La Plante, Mary Philbin and Conrad Veidt, stars and featured players of the company in 1928, are missing from today's list. In their places we find John Boles, Joseph Schildkraut and Katherine Crawford. Hoot Gibson, Universal's western star for many years, retains his popularity in sound westerns, while Ken Maynard has been added as another western star under the Universal banner, duplicating Gibson's experiences in the switch from silent pictures to sound.

Glenn Tryon, Mary Nolan and Barbara Kent are the best known Universal players who have increased their value through talkers. Miss Nolan was formerly of the stage, although she joined Universal before dialogue pictures came to the front. Schildkraut is another Universal contract player who was signed for silent productions before the advent of sound. Jeanette Loff recently placed under a term agreement, looks to be a definite talker bet of the future.

Fox

Fox had a total of thirty-two contract stars and players on its list of June, 1928, but only eight of these remain. The eight include Rex Bell, Charles Farrell, Janet Gaynor, Edmund Lowe, Victor McLaglen, George O'Brien and David Rollins. Prominent featured players of 1928 who have been dropped, most of whom are now working for other organizations, include Ben Bard, Madge Bellamy, Sue Carol, Sammy Cohen, Nancy Drexel, Mary Duncan, Earl Foxe, Farrell McDonald, George Meeker, Charles Morton, Barry Norton, Sally Phipps, Arthur Stone, Nick Stuart, Don Terry and Virginia Valli.

Fox's current contract list includes a total of fifteen stars and first line featured players, eight of which have been imported from the stage since the introduction of talkers. These eight are John McCormack, William Collier, Sr., Paul Muni, J. Harold Murray, Will Rogers, Don Jose Mojica, Lee Tracy and Beatrice Lillie.

Five Fox stars of eighteen months ago remain, Charles Farrell, Edmund Lowe, Victor McLaglen, Janet Gaynor and Lois Moran; while Warner Baxter and Louise Dresser are silent artists who have been added to the contract list as a result of their ability to get over in talkers. Baxter's work in "In Old Arizona" sent him over with a bang.

Rearrangement of Players Occupies Studio Officials

Fox's regular stock player list, in addition to stars and featured players, totals thirty-six, twenty-seven of whom were placed under contract on account of stage experience and ability in talkers. Outstanding in this group are El Brendel, Walter Catlett, Marguerite Churchill, Mae Clark, Fifi Dorsay, Marjorie White and Jillian Sand.

In surveying each of eleven prominent producers on the coast, it is found that Fox has revised its contract list to include more stage importations in proportion to total carried than any other company in Hollywood.

United Artists

United Artists has found little material change in its stars as a result of sound pictures. Douglas Fairbanks, Mary Pickford, Dolores Del Rio, Gloria Swanson and Ronald Colman have all been seen in the new medium without any of their popularity or standing being lost. In fact, the reverse is the case.

Norma Talmadge, with one talker to her credit, seems to need an outstanding story to bring her back to the spot she held about four years ago. Although Miss Talmadge registers satisfactorily in dialogue pictures, her decline in box office rating started before the advent of sound. Chaplin has made repeated statements he will not appear in talking pictures. Whether or not he will change his mind remains to be seen, although it is pointed out that Chaplin is a peculiar star personality who depends entirely upon pantomime and action rather than titles or dialogue. An insight into the inside of the Chaplin situation appears elsewhere in this edition.

In 1928 United Artists and its affiliated companies carried a number of players under stock contract who have since departed. This group includes Don Alvarado, Nils Asther, Vilma Banky, John Darrow, Roland Drew, Camilla Horn, Leroy Mason, Lucien Prival and Lupe Velez. Walter Byron, Lily Damita, Gilbert Roland and Louis Wolheim still remain as contract players. United Artists' only definite addition to its list of stars through talkers is Harry Richman, New York night club entertainer, who recently finished one picture for the company. Richman has a personality distinctly fitted for film musicals and United

Famous Canadian Reported Seeking Dominance with Merger Report Rife

Killam Ridicules Report

Montreal—Merger of Famous Player Canadian Corp. and Paramount never has been considered, I. W. Killam of the Royal Securities Corp., one of the voting trustees of the Canadian firm, declared Thursday. Other local interests close to the company also ridicule reports that any amalgamation is contemplated.

At Toronto, N. L. Nathanson has denied he has had any discussion looking to a merger of the two firms. The former managing director pointed out that Adolph Zuker and Killam would be the parties to confer in any such deal.

Combine Planned By Independent French Showmen

Paris—Formation of a national circuit of independent exhibitors is reported planned. The proposed combine would buy films independently abroad, support French independent producers and negotiate equipment purchases for members.

Rehfield Prevented from Running Second Election

Bloomfield, Ia.—The city council, after calling a special election on Sunday shows, has refused to call another after the temporary injunction restraining the election was prevented from becoming permanent. The election, set for Jan. 16, was opposed by reason of the fact that publication of the election had not been sufficiently made and because H. E. Rehfield, owner of the Iowa, had offered to pay the costs of the election.

Rehfield appeared in court in answer to the temporary injunction and prevented the move to make the injunction permanent. City council now holds that they gave the theatre manager opportunity to put the question to the vote and that it was not its fault that the election was prevented.

Columbia Making Drive to Select Girl for Trade Mark

Thirteen fan magazines are participating in an effort to name Miss Columbia, who is to typify American womanhood, as part of the national campaign being staged in connection with Columbia's tenth anniversary in April. The girl is to be used as the opening flash trailer on all all-Columbia pictures. If her voice is suitable, she will speak in the introductory sequence. The girl selected will receive a trip to Hollywood and a one week's contract at $250.

Warners Go in for Opera and New Theatre Types

Full length grand operas and Shakesperian plays and theatres of an entirely new type are planned by Warners, it is stated in an interview with J. L. Warner, published in March issue of "The Delineator."

Paramount to Make French and Spanish Talkers

London—Paramount is planning production of French talkers probably at the Gaumont studios in Paris, states J. C. Graham, managing director of the company here. The films to be made in France will be in both French and Spanish.

New U. S. Film Aide for N. Y. Territory Named

Harvey Sheahan of Wickford, R. I., for several years connected with Mexican and Latin American distribution, now is commercial agent of the Department of Commerce at its New York office, where he is to have charge of film work of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Science, and will assist in increasing distribution of American films in foreign markets. Co-operation of the bureau has aided 95 firms in the New York territory to increase business more than $6,000,000 during the last year, it is stated.

Children Up to 16 Will Be Admitted to Ont. Houses

Ottawa—Minimum age of children, accompanied by an adult, who may attend Ontario theatres has been raised to 16 from 15 by the legislature. Cancellation of licenses after May 31, 1931, of theatres not considered fireproof, examination of projectionists at designated intervals, and licensing and regulation of buildings housing film exchanges, also have been provided for by the solons. All of these measures become effective June 1.

"Party Girl" Banned by Haverhill, Mass., Council

Haverhill, Mass.—Ban on Tiffany's "The Party Girl" as immoral was voted after a special showing before the city council. Immediately after, City Marshal Charles D. Jones ordered the showing discontinued.

Franklin Reveals Plans for New Coast House

Los Angeles—West Coast will build another in town, purchasing a site at Pacific Blvd. and Saturn St. for a $500,000 house.

Paramount Declared Moving for Control of Canadian Chain

Montreal—With negotiations for acquisition of control of the chain by Paramount reported under way, Famous Players Canadian Corp. is continuing its expansion program, which has as its reported aim domination of every principal city in the Dominion.

I. W. Killam, local banker, with Adolph Zukor, Paramount chieftain, holds the voting trust for Canadian Famous binding for another nine years. The pair, several months ago, blocked effort of N. L. Nathanson to submit to stockholders proposed sale of the circuit to Gaumont British.

In the maritime provinces, here and in the western territory, the rapid expansion of the chain is being continued, with American interests, meanwhile, reported threatening to enter the Canadian field. Warners has denied report that it intends to acquire a house at Ottawa.

Famous Players Takes Over 3 at Hamilton

Hamilton, Ont.—Famous Players has taken over the Capitol, Palace and Strand, owned by Hamilton United Theatres, Ltd., in which Famous Players Canadian Corp. is said to hold majority of stock. Leonard Bishop, formerly of the Hamilton Tivoli, becomes Capitol manager, and Robert Knevels goes into the Tivoli, with George Stroud, veteran exhibitor, continuing at the Palace. H. E. Wilton still presides at the Strand. Hamilton United capitalization is figured at $1,988,400. This company was organized in 1922 to take over the assets of Loew's Hamilton Theatre, Ltd., and Hamilton Theatres, Ltd.

Start Vancouver Project

Vancouver—Excavations are under way on the projected $225,000 theatre site between Eleventh and Twelfth Avenue on South Granville Street, a development which was forecast in September last when the property was purchased by Frederick Guest of Hamilton, Ont., for the Famous Players Canadian Corp.

Plans for a building which will accommodate about 1,200 are being prepared by the firm of Hodgson & Simmons, architects.

Another for R. & R.

Dallas—An addition will be made to R. & R.'s chain in Big Springs, where the chain operates one house.

Deal Denied

Toronto—There is no foundation for reports that merger of Famous Canadian with Paramount-Publix is in prospect, it is stated here by officials of the Canadian firm. The report, it is alleged, originated in New York.

Publix to Commercialize Lobbies to "A Vast Extent," Managers Are Told

Vending of Merchandise In All Houses of Circuit Planned for "Big Profits"

Chicago—Publix will commercialize its theatre lobbies "to a vast extent," M. Schosberg, head of the merchandising department, told managers at the annual convention here. Announcement of the chain's intention to sell merchandise in lobbies was announced exclusively last fall by MOTION PICTURE NEWS.

The firm, says Schosberg, "has not scratched the surface" of merchandising, as yet, and will earn $500,000 yearly on vending machines in its various houses. Analysis at 50 theatres shows that one person in 18 uses the vending machines, which offer a "big profit on a small investment," according to Schosberg.

Growth and expansion of Publix is due to its high calibre personality, which assures future of the circuit, President Sam Katz wired the assembled managers. Emphasis was placed on the jubilee business drive May 4 to 24, the second business-getting drive to be staged by the circuit. Awards are to be made for box office records during the drive.

Attendance at the session approximated 250, including office departmental heads, divisional directors, booking and advertising managers. Dave Chatkin, general director of theatres, presided at the sessions. Jack F. Barry, director of personnel, handled convention arrangements.

Publix's plans for expansion in all sections were outlined at the meetings.

CONVENTION SIDELIGHTS

By Sherwin Kane

Chicago—Two hundred and fifty Publix officers were taken on a tour of the key houses of the Publix-Balaban and Katz circuit as one of the highlights of the three-day convention here. The sight undoubtedly was a cheerful one, as business in the big houses is the best it has been in some time. Special stage shows, commemorating the fourth anniversary of Publix, were presented.

* * *

Group meetings conducted by the various divisional directors apart from the main business meeting at the Drake were a feature of the get-together.

All meetings at the Drake were held in the strictest seclusion, admittance being limited to Publix execs and officers only. As a further guarantee of privacy a staff of haughty, uniformed ushers was drafted from the organization's local houses to guard meeting room doorways. Their demeanor, not their strength, turned back the occasional gate-crasher.

A worried New York exec had to be reassured at the meeting that Chicago was not making a mistake by charging $1 top for "The Vagabond King" here. He was quoted box office receipts at the United Artists, where the picture is showing, and was relieved to learn that business to date couldn't be improved much at any price. How long that lasts, of course, is another question, but the dollar top in the loop is always good advertising, making for better business in the lower priced neighborhood houses later on. If the picture slumps downtown, the exec was told, it can be made up for later in neighborhood business.

Also it was reported that Detroit business on "The Vagabond King" was near capacity for the first days after opening, but that Texas business was "disappointing." The drop there is credited to general depression.

Turning Back Houses Is Nat'l Plan

Minneapolis—Decision of Publix to weed out a number of houses in this territory is in line with an industry move to return small houses to individual operators. The circuit, in line with the other big chains, is reported to have been inventorying its small theatres, to determine whether disposal of them is not advisable.

All in all, it is expected that around 1,000 theatres in various sections will revert to independents this year.

All Publix Deals in Northwest are Held Up by N. Y.

Minneapolis—All Publix deals for theatres in this territory have been called off, with no reason for this step advanced. The various transactions had been agreed upon as to terms, when an apparent blanket order postponing them came through from New York.

Deals scheduled included M. Walker's interest in houses at Aberdeen, S. D., now owned 50-50; Bennie Berger's houses at Grand Forks, Sioux Falls and Bemidji; John Piller's two houses at Valley City, and Franklin Amusement Co.'s houses here and at Wilmar, Minn.

The firm still is trying to dispose of a number of houses in this territory, under its weeding process started some time ago.

Publix Speeds Building of New England Theatres

Lawrence, Mass.—Publix will erect a new theatre here and another at Lynn. The new theatre at Salem will be ready probably by the end of next month and the Lynn house is to be ready by July or August.

Publix Convention at Chicago Calls Brief Recess to Pose

Plans for operation this year of the 1,200 Publix houses throughout the nation were discussed at annual meeting of company executives at Chicago.

Silent Players Floundering In Rough Waters

Artists expect to star him in two productions of this type yearly.

Of Warner Brothers' stars and contract players in 1928 only two remain. These are Al Jolson and Dolores Costello. Jolson leaves the organization upon completion of one more picture and moves over to United Artists. Dolores Costello, ace star for Warners in silent films, has had her difficulties in the switch to Vitaphone.

The 1928 contract stars and players who have left the organization in the meantime include Monte Blue, Clyde Cooke, Helen Costello, Audrey Ferris, Leila Hyams, Myrna Loy, May McEvoy, John Miljan and Irene Rich. All of these are either free lancing or under contract to other studios at the present time and were dropped from the contract list because of company policies and box office reports rather than because of their inability to change over to dialogue pictures.

Warners' current group of stars and featured players under contract include John Barrymore, George Arliss, H. B. Warner, Noah Beery, Frank Fay, Vivienne Segal, Grant Withers, Edward Everett Horton, Edna Murphy, Marion Nixon, Winnie Lightner, Tully Marshall, Alice Gentle, Irene DelRoy and Claudia Dell, besides Al Jolson and Dolores Costello.

Arliss, as a result of the reception accorded "Disraeli," will make one cr two pictures yearly for Warners. Barrymore, developed as a silent picture star by Warners several years ago, returned to the organization after a few silent pictures for United Artists.

Of Warners' present contract list, Winnie Lightner, Alice Gentle, Irene DelRoy, Frank Fay and Vivienne Segal were imported during the past year from the stage.

Oakie Among the Stars

Hollywood—Jack Oakie becomes a member of the Paramount star group with "High Society," which Edward Sutherland will direct. Film play is based on story by Octavus Roy Cohen titled, "Marco Himself." Cast includes Mary Brian, Skeets Gallagher and Olive Borden.

Pat J. Flaherty, now vice-president as well as general manager of Red Star, Fox music subsidiary. Ten per cent of the profits go to Flaherty under his deal.

Record British Deal is Closed By Pat Flaherty

What is claimed to be a record figure in the song publishing industry is called for in the contract between Pat Flaherty, vice president and general manager of Red Star Music Co. and Campbell-Connelly, Ltd. Under terms of the two-year deal, said to call for $400,000, the London firm will get British rights to musical scores of 52 Fox productions as well and have the music played in the houses of the British-Gaumont chain, Great Britain's largest theatre circuit.

The sum involved is six times larger than any previous foreign royalty ever paid to any one firm, according to Flaherty, who also disclosed that he soon will announce foreign deals covering France, Central Europe, Australia and Scandinavia.

Stage Director Goes Out

Hollywood—Ben Holmes, former director of talkers at Universal, has returned to New York to direct the staging of Chic Sales' musical play sponsored by the Shuberts.

past, the bookers at the exchange handling such pictures have been given orders to give some excuse so as to make the exhibitor take a substitute.

75-Day Protection Now

"Now the movie magnates are getting bolder, and are having their salesmen say to the small town showman near a large town where Publix has a theatre: 'You can't have that picture for 75 days after Publix and their allied Texas interests have run the picture.' This is done very adroitly so as not to violate any law, or put too much in writing. If the showman insists, they will find some way to put him off, by telling him they haven't a print of the film, or it is booked solid and gain the point anyway.

Small Town Fans Mistreated

"The result is that the men, women and children of Texas, who live too close to San Antonio, Austin, Dallas, Fort Worth, Waco and scores of other Texas cities, will either have to go in and look at a picture at the house of the movie trust—including Publix and their 'pups'—or wait to see it in your home town until the picture is old and worn.

Let's Call a Halt

"So you movie fans write your local theatre man a letter, telling him he must have new pictures. He can use such letters to great advantage when he buys pictures, demanding new ones. Or he can call on his State Theatre Men's organization and the Texas Anti-Chain Ass'n, and action can be gotten legally against the Wall Street pirates by law and through United States government channels."

Publix Launches Invasion Of Jersey; Trenton First

Trenton, N. J.—Publix has begun invasion of New Jersey by taking over the Lincoln here, and there are a lot more moves scheduled, it is understood.

Market Slump, U. S. Trust Suit Held Causes of Fox, Halsey, Erpi Break

Stockholders' Suit Charges a Conspiracy Abandoned When U. S. Filed Complaint

Slump in the stock market and the government's suit to force Fox Theatres to divest itself of control of Loew's, under the Clayton anti-trust act, are among causes of the rupture of relations between William Fox and Halsey, Stuart and Electrical Research Products, it is charged in suit to restrain carrying out of the alleged conspiracy between the three, filed in Supreme Court, Brooklyn.

Complainants in the action are Isidor Weiss of Brooklyn, owner of 325 shares of Fox Theatres Class "A" and Henry F. Otto, Irvington, N. J., owner of 500 shares.

"In and about the month of February, 1929, the defendants, William Fox, the film corporation, Halsey, Stuart & Co., Inc., Nicholas M. Schenck and David Bernstein," reads the complaint, "conspired or agreed among themselves and with each other to acquire control of Loew's, Inc., for the benefit and in the interest of the film corporation through the purchase of stock of said corporation sufficient at least in amount to constitute a working control or to bring about a merger of the two corporations.

"It was part of said conspiracy, agreement or scheme that the theatres corporation be used as the apparent or pretended purchaser of said stock, but such use of the theatres corporation was intended to be and was only casual or transitory, and such apparent or pretended ownership of said stock was to remain in the theatres corporation only until legal obstacles to the purchase of said stock by the film corporation were removed or surmounted or a merger of the film corporation and Loew's, Inc., legally might be effected.

Faced "Keen Conspiracy"

"All of the above-named conspirators well know, that the theatres corporation did not have any real or beneficial interest in the transaction, but all of them in one way or another, as will presently appear, aided and abetted the defendant, William Fox, to impose the risk of their speculation upon the theatres corporation, and later, when as a result of changed market conditions and litigation by the United States government, their plans miscarried, all of them stood from under and left the theatres corporation to face ruin and bankruptcy as a result of their acts," the complaint continues.

"In or about the month of February, 1929, the defendants, Schenck and Bernstein, pursuant to said agreement, conspiracy or scheme, acquired 437,500 shares of stock of Loew's, Inc., which included their own stock, stock owned by the estate of Marcus Loew, deceased, and stock either previously owned or newly purchased in the open market by their close and chosen associates, who were also members of the board of directors of Loew's, Inc., and who together with the defendants, Schenck and Bernstein, constituted and still constitute a majority of the board of directors of Loew's, Inc.

In the Same Boat

Hollywood—A local newshound relates the story about Frank Borzage, who called Winnie Sheehan up in New York during the hectic Fox confabs, to ask for suggestions on how to proceed with the work on "Liliom", in which Janet Gaynor will be starred.

"Well," long-distanced Winnie, "you made 'heaven,' and you went through hell with the John McCormack picture, so I guess you ought to be able to use your own judgment on this."

Another

And now Halsey, Stuart has entered the courts to force adoption of its proposed financing plan. The firm has obtained an order from Judge Townley in Supreme Court, against Fox Film and Fox Theatres to show cause why a temporary writ should not be granted restraining carrying out of the Lehman-Bancamerica-Blair-Dillon, Read plan.

"The stock purchased by the defendants, Schenck and Bernstein, from the estate of Marcus Loew, deceased, cost the defendants not in excess of $102.50 per share, and the defendants, Schenck and Bernstein, paid the same price for the stock acquired by them from their close associates and co-directors, but the stock so purchased originally had been acquired by the sellers at much lower prices. The personal holdings of the defendants, Schenck and Bernstein, also had been acquired at much lower prices.

"In or about the month of February, 1929, all of said stock was sold by the defendants Schenck and Bernstein to the theatres corporation at and for the price of $12 per share, through the defendant, William Fox, who, as will hereinafter appear, was aided and abetted in consummating the transaction by the defendants, the film corporation, Halsey, Stuart & Co., Inc., and Electrical Research Products, Inc.

Claims "Monstrous" Profit

As a result of this transaction the defendants, Schenck and Bernstein, realized a profit of between $8,000,000 and $9,000,000 and their co-directors of Loew's, Inc., who sold their stock to the defendants, Schenck and Bernstein, at $102.50 per share, realized profits on their respective holdings in various amounts unknown to plaintiffs, and that such was the case was well known to the defendant William Fox, the film corporation, Halsey, Stuart & Co., Inc., and Electrical Research Products, Inc., all of whom acquiesced in and agreed to the terms of the transaction to the end that through the payment of these monstrous profits, now sought to be saddled upon the theatres corporation they might secure and rely upon the continued cooperation of a majority of the board of directors of Loew's, Inc., in furtherance of their conspiracy, agreement or scheme to acquire control of the last named company for the benefit and in the interest of the film corporation or in bringing about a merger of the two corporations upon such terms of exchange of stock of the film corporation for stock of Loew's, Inc., as would make the average price of all stock of Loew's, Inc., acquired by the film corporation materially less than the price paid for the stock sold and delivered to the theatres corporataion by the defendants, Schenck and Bernstein.

"The defendants, Schenck and Bernstein, and their co-directors of Loew's, Inc., who participated in the profits of the transactions, have continued to be and still are directors and officers of Loew's, Inc., although they have been bought and paid for by the defendant William Fox, and his associates, and reasonably may be depended upon to assist and further and have assisted and furthered by public utterances and otherwise such aims and purposes.

Secret Profits Claimed in Deal for Acquisition and Sale of Loew Stock

Price Paid Too High, Is Claim

"Throughout the transaction the defendants, Schenck and Bernstein, well knew, and as reasonable men could not but have known, that the price paid them was so extravagant and exorbitant that such payment could have been prompted only by the confident expectation of the defendant, William Fox, and his associates, that the average cost of a merger of Loew's, Inc., with the film corporation would be brought within figures which would be within reason, through their assistance and cooperation and through their influence with the remaining stockholders of Loew's, Inc., or in other words through the exploitation of the remaining stockholders, and in fact, as they were informed and well knew at the time, the plans of the defendant William Fox, and his associates, contemplated the acquisition by the film corporation of the remaining stock of Loew's, Inc., on a basis of exchange or at a price less than half the price paid to the defendants, Schenck and Bernstein, and contemplated their assistance and cooperation to this end.

Price Range $84.50 to $32

"In the year 1928 the stock of Loew's, Inc., ranged between a low price of 49 and a high price of 77 and in the year 1929 between a high price of 84½ and a low price of 32, the low price being registered during the panic in the stock market in the months of October and November, 1929, just as the high price of the year was registered in connection with additional purchases in the open market by the defendant William Fox, or his agents or attorneys, as will presently appear.

"At the time of the transactions, referred to above, the stock of Loew's, Inc., was on a dividend basis of $3 per share and at the time of the commencement of this action on a dividend of only $4 per share.

"In the months following the above transaction and defendant William Fox, purchased in the open market, either in his own name or in the names of others, but for his personal account at an average price more than 50 points below the price paid to the defendants Schenck and Bernstein, 223,400 additional shares of Loew's, Inc., and later through his dominion and control of the theatres corporation and with the assistance of the defendants, the film corporation, Halsey, Stuart & Co., Inc., and Electrical Research Products, Inc., caused

At Half Price?

William Fox and his associates in the Loew purchase expected to acquire remaining stock of Loew's on a basis of exchange or at less than one-half the price paid to Nicholas M. Schenck and David Bernstein, it is charged in complaint of Isidor Weiss and Henry F. Otto. The price paid Schenck and Bernstein was $102.50 per share, it is alleged.

Market Slump, Trust Suit Held Cause of Break

$25,000,000 Drop

Stock of Loew's, Inc., purchased by Fox for Fox Theatres Corp., dropped $25,000,000 between the time of its acquisition and date of filing of their action, it is asserted in suit of Isidore Weiss and Henry F. Otto.

the theatres corporation to purchase these additional shares at an average price considerable above the then current market price.

"To aid in financing the purchase of 660,900 shares of stock of Loew's, Inc., and in furtherance of the conspiracy, agreement or scheme hereinabove outlined, the defendant Electrical Research Products, Inc., lent the theatres corporation the sum of $15,000,000 and the film corporation not only lent the theatres corporation an additional sum of $17,000,000, but also guaranteed the payment of the principal and interest of the $15,000,000 lent by the defendant, Electrical Research Products, Inc. The defendant, Halsey, Stuart & Co., Inc., lent the film corporation $10,000,000, and was later repaid this amount from the proceeds of the sale of $12,000,000 of one year notes of the film corporation.

"To arrange the balance of the necessary financing the theatres corporation was compelled to borrow against the stock as collateral substantially the full current market value of the stock, so that the $32,000,000 advanced to the theatres corporation by the defendants, the film corporation and Electrical Research Products, Inc., represented at the time of such advances no value whatever to the theatres corporation, and at the time of the commencement of this action there is a deficiency between the current market price and the total amount involved in the purchase of said stock of approximately $25,000,000.

Cites 15 Year Contracts

"The defendant, Halsey, Stuart & Co., Inc., at or about the time of the inception of the transactions hereinbefore related, had or expected to obtain through the defendant, William Fox, a contract or agreement by virtue of which the defendant, Halsey, Stuart & Co., Inc., would secure or assure to itself a first call on all financing to be done over a period of fifteen years by the defendant, William Fox, or by the companies or corporations controlled by the defendant, William Fox. The defendant, Electrical Research Products, Inc., had or expected to obtain a contract or agreement with the defendant, William Fox, or through the defendant, William Fox, which would secure or assure to the defendant, Electrical Research Products, Inc., over a period of fifteen years the use under license agreements of its system of synchronizing sound with motion pictures in all of the motion pictures studios and theatres owned, leased or otherwise controlled by the defendant, William Fox, or by companies or corporations controlled by the defendant, William Fox, or thereafter acquired or controlled by the defendant, William Fox, and the equipment of such studios and theatres with the appliances and devices of said defendant.

"The desire on the part of the defendant, Halsey, Stuart & Co., Inc., to realize the banking profits, which might result from financing the contemplated merger of the film corporation and Loew's, Inc., and the desire of the defendant, Electrical Research Products, Inc., to extend the use of its products and appliances and to realize the profits resulting from the extension of the use of such products and appliances, constituted the inducement, which led the said defendants to conspire or agree with the other defendants to bring about a merger of the said corporations.

Day and Date

The day that Fox executives battled behind closed doors over refinancing and proxies with Bill Fox on the Lehman side and Messrs. Sheehan, Grainger, Rogers and Zanft on the Halsey, Stuart lines, the company's release was "Harmony at Home."

Fox Declared After Dominance

"The desire of the defendant, William Fox, to become the leading and dominating factor in the moving picture industry, together with the rich pecuniary rewards which he expected to realize by the attainment of such a dominating position, was the inducement which led the defendant, William Fox, to conspire or agree with the other defendants to bring about said merger.

"Actuated by these various motives, but primarily by the hope of pecuniary gain and profit, all of said defendants did and performed the various acts and deeds, herein stated, as steps in carrying out their conspiracy, agreement or scheme with a ruthless disregard of the property interests and rights of the theatres corporation and its non-voting stockholders and with their eyes closed to the self-evident fact that the defendant, William Fox, occupied a position of a highly fiduciary character with respect to the theatres corporation and its non-voting stockholders resulting from his having assumed full dominion and control over its business and affairs and from his having excluded all stockholders except only himself from a voice in the management and conduct of its business and affairs.

Film Firm the Purchaser

The theatres corporation was in no way interested in stifling or lessening the competition which existed between the film corporation and Loew's, Inc., through its subsidiary companies, in the production of motion picture films and

Lehman, Halsey, Stuart Plans Hit in Court Action

Neither the Lehman-Bancamerica-Blair-Dillon, Read nor the Halsey, Stuart plans contain provision for the situation which would result if an adverse decision is rendered against Fox Film and Fox Theatres in the government's action under the Clayton act to restrain merger with Loew's, J. Markham Marshall, declared in arguing for plaintiffs on a show cause order to force sale of the Loew stock and restrain carrying out of that deal.

Marshall, attorney for two minority stockholders, told Supreme Court Justice Norman S. Dike in a two-hour discussion that the projected merger was an "actual fraud" upon those who have no voice in the matter. The action is against Fox, his companies, Halsey, Stuart and Electrical Research Products.

Alvin Untermyer, for Fox, raised the question of jurisdiction, stating there is pending in Federal Court an action to set aside the merger. He ridiculed the conspiracy charge and stated the projected merger had been broadcast. Marshall said he would favor a financing plan provided it contained a stipulation to permit stockholders to have final action in approving or rejecting it. Decision was reserved by the court.

Halsey Group to Break Fox Cabinet Unit?

Even if the injunction is granted Halsey, Stuart and Co. believe they have an ace in the hole in their contract with the Fox companies for financing. If the Lehman plan wins out on another stockholders' meeting, it is more than probable that the Halsey, Stuart will seek an injunction in turn.

However, no matter which side wins out, the executive management is expected to change at the annual meeting. If the Lehman-Bancamerica-Blair-Dillon, Read plan wins out it is reported the Sheehans, Rogers, J. Grainger and Zanft will immediately present their resignations. All are said to have offers of other positions, and it is deemed more than likely that they would prefer to move rather than work under a management that they have opposed. Another report has it that Wall Street bankers have arranged for a new producing and distributing company with these five executives as the nucleus, if conditions arise which cause them to leave the Fox company.

On the other hand, if Otterson and Stuart vote the Fox stock at the annual meeting it is believed that Rogers will become president of Fox Film. It is said that Sheehan has been offered the position but prefers to remain in his present job and head production for which he wouldn't have time if he took the presidency. Harold B. Franklin is said to be slated for president of the theatres corporation, under Halsey, Stuart reorganization.

The annual meeting also will bring a change in the directorate. To provide the common stock under either of the plans, the increase approved by stockholders last September of authorizing 4,900,000 shares of Class "A" instead of the present 900,000 shares, would have to be operative and it provides that the "A" stockholders shall have three directors of an enlarged board of 12 members.

If the Fox contingent could hold the same number of "A" stockholders in line, it is probable that they could elect the "A" members. The remaining nine, however, would be elected by Otterson and Stuart, as it is expected if they have the power to vote Fox's personal stock which is a bare majority of the "B" shares in the film company and all of the theatres company.

Untermyer Collapses

Albany—Samuel Untermyer, attorney for Fox, collapsed here while at the office of Lieut. Gov. Lehman, conferring on the New York unification plan. Soon after, he returned to New York.

Sought Control?

William Fox engineered the Loew deal because he wanted to become "the leading and dominating factor" in the industry, it is charged in suit brought against him and others in that transaction by Isidore Weiss and Henry F. Otto, stockholders.

Week Okay for 4 Providence Runs; "Christie" Leads

Providence—Local houses had average business for the week, with the exception of Loew's State, where "Anna Christie" (M-G-M) ran the gross up to $24,800, knocking off with a percentage of 125. Three other first runs here all ran about the same, chalking up from 90 to 95 per cent.

The complete record for the week:

"Anna Christie" (M-G-M)

LOEW'S STATE—(3,800), 15c-50c, 7 days. OTHER ATTRACTIONS: Charley Chase comedy, Joe Stoves' organlogue, Hearst Metrotone. WEATHER: Cool, fair. OPPOSITION: "Street of Chance," "Happy Days," "Sky Hawk." GROSS, $24,800. RATING, 125%.

"Street of Chance" (Para.)

STRAND—(2,200), 15c-50c, 7 days. OTHER ATTRACTIONS: "Oh, Darling," "Bulls and Bears," Paramount Sound News. WEATHER: Cool, fair. OPPOSITION: "Anna Christie," "Happy Days," "Sky Hawk." GROSS: $12,200. RATING: 100%.

"Happy Days" (RKO)

VICTORY—(1,600), 15c-50c, 7 days. OTHER ATTRACTIONS: Pathe short, Sound News. WEATHER: Cool, fair. OPPOSITION: "Street of Chance," "Anna Christie," "Sky Hawk." GROSS: 16,500. RATING: 90%.

"Sky Hawk" (Fox)

MAJESTIC—(2,400), 15c-50c, 7 days. OTHER ATTRACTIONS: "Rich People," supplementary feature; Fox News. WEATHER: Fair, cool. OPPOSITION: "Happy Days," "Street of Chance," "Anna Christie." GROSS: $11,350. RATING: 95%.

Union Ruling Causes Jam

St. Louis—The German theatre, on Lafayette Ave., was placed on the spot when the management was left in the hole for music for "I Lost My Heart In Heidelberg," an operetta. The house was placed on the "unfair" list by the musicians' union and 12 amateur musicians had to be drafted for the show.

"Clancy" Set in N. E.

Providence, R. I.—First showing of Aristocrat's initial release, "Clancy in Wall Street" is scheduled for the RKO Albee. Charles Reed Jones, company's publicity chief, is here arranging for the premiere.

Projection Council Electing

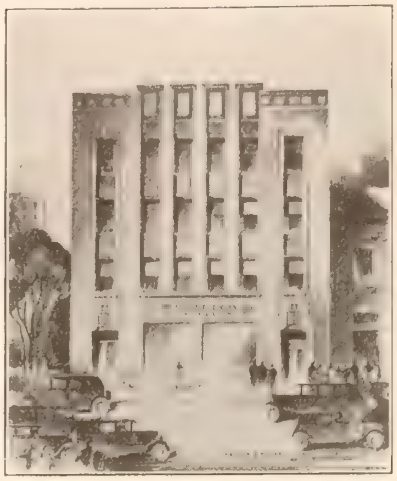
Nomination and election of officers of the Projection Advisory Council is slated for March 25 at Town Hall, New York.

"Old, But Grand!"

Jolson used it in "The Honeymoon Express" over a dozen years ago, but, states Winchell in the "New York Mirror," it remains funny. Veteran theatregoers probably remember it. The 20th Century, which refunds so much coin to passengers for every hour it is late, was speeding to New York from Chicago and was 30 minutes behind schedule.

Suddenly, the train stopped when a flagman waved his red lantern. The officials on the train breathlessly rushed up to him and cried: "Good Heavens! Why did you stop us? We're 30 minutes late as it is?"

"That's just it," replied the scolder as he placed a hand on a hip, "where have you been?"



Minneapolis—New $250,000 exchange building under construction at 952 1st Ave. North for Warners and First National. The structure will be fireproof throughout and will embrace the latest in fire safety devices. Small theatre on the roof is included. The building is concrete faced with brick, the front having dark granite base with Bedford stone trim. Larsen and McLaren are the architects.

Paramount Still Refuses to Serve Poster 'changes

Paramount continues its lay-off policy with independent poster exchanges, refusing to sell paper on its product through any but Paramount exchanges.

Al Steffes attempted to stock his new Northwest M. P. T. O. poster exchange with Paramount displays and the company refused service, although Steffes closed with all other distributors for posters and accessories.

Lowe and Fields In Columbia

Hollywood—Edward T. Lowe, Jr., has been signed by Columbia to supervise story material, continuity and dialogue on the balance of the current program, while Leonard H. Fields guides similar activities on next season's product. The innovation is to avoid any confusion in the overlapping of production activity on pictures of the two groups.

Sunday Morning Shows?

Mason City, Ia.—Sunday morning shows are being proposed here as a means of providing Sunday entertainment. The ministerial association and Y. M. C. A. are declared opposing the plan, as well as Saturday midnight shows.

Elinor Joins Fox Staff

Hollywood.—Fox signed Carli Elinor as studio musical director under long term contract. Elinor was musical chief at Fox's Carthay Circle.

40 "Pop" "Rogue" Song Runs

M-G-M will release "Rogue Song" in forty keys, starting late this month and in April, showing the Tibbett operetta simultaneously with the New York and Los Angeles runs.

"Officer O'Brien" Tops at Portland Grossing $11,675

Portland, Ore.—Bill Boyd's "Officer O'Brien" (Pathe) proved the big money draw among local first runs, the picture copping a $11,675 gross at RKO's Orpheum, which rated the vehicle 150 per cent for the seven-day run. The intake was not high for the week, however. M-G-M's "Girl Said No" pulled $12,000 at Fox's Broadway, but the figure represented 10 per cent less for the house than the 150 per cent rating of "Officer O'Brien." Warners' "Second Choice" was the week's flop, although it did not fare badly, running around 95 per cent, or $6,500.

Complete lineup for the week follows:

"SECOND CHOICE" (Warners)

"MUSIC BOX"—(1,835), 25c, 7 days. OTHER ATTRACTIONS: Vitaphone Acts, Fox Movietone News, Pete Ashe at Wurlitzer. WEATHER: Sunshine. OPPOSITION: "Son of the Gods," "Girl Said No," "Awful Truth," "Happy Days," "Officer O'Brien." GROSS, $6,500. RATING: 95%.

"OFFICER O'BRIEN" (Pathe)

RKO ORPHEUM—(1700), 25-60c, 7 days. OTHER ATTRACTIONS: Four Diamonds, Walter Wahl, "The Great Rolle," Valentine Vox-Emily Walters, ventriloquists, Pathe Sound News, Catherine Custer at Wurlitzer. GROSS: $11,675. RATING: 150%.

"AWFUL TRUTH" (Pathe)

TEBBETTS ORIENTAL—(1,600), 25-35c, 7 days (5 shows daily). OTHER ATTRACTIONS: Pathe Sound News, Vitaphone shorts, Glen Shelley at Wurlitzer, (Radio, "Amos and Andy"). GROSS: $4,500. RATING: 110%.

"SON OF THE GODS" (Para)

PORTLAND PARAMOUNT—(3,068), 25-50c, 7 days. OTHER ATTRACTIONS: Paramount Sound News, Ron and Don at Wurlitzer, Eddie Magill, crooning love ballads, "Big Kiddies Show," "Koin Lobby" entertainment. GROSS: $10,500. RATING: 100%.

FOX'S BROADWAY—(1,912), 25-60c, 7 days. OTHER ATTRACTIONS: Fanchon & Marco's "Havana Bound," idea headed by Samuel Pedraza, tenor; plus Stella Royal, diminutive dancer; Harry and Frank Seamon, burlesque acrobats; Sam Jack Kaufman and his band, piano numbers by Kaufman, Devaney at organ, Fox Movietone News. GROSS: $12,000. RATING: 140%.

"HAPPY DAYS" (Fox)

FOX'S UNITED ARTISTS—(495), 50-60c, 7 days. OTHER ATTRACTIONS: Fox Movietone News. GROSS: $7,000. RATING: 100%.

Tiffany Signs Two More

Hollywood—Dorothea Wolbert and Billy Butts have been added to cast of Tiffany's "The Medicine Man." Players include, Jack Benny, Betty Bronson, Eva Novak, Tom Dugan, Georgie Stone, Caroline Rankin and E. A. Warren. Scott Pembroke is directing.

Tra-la-la

Press announcement from Roxy:

"The festive atmosphere surrounding the third anniversary of the Roxy Theatre will be emphasized by the free distribution of bottles of perfume to feminine patrons of the theatre throughout the week. The perfume chosen for this birthday innovation is "Doux Jasmin," specially concocted for this occasion by Ciro of Paris. The distribution of the souvenirs is effected in conjunction with the stage number called 'In a Jasmine Garden,' during the performance of which perfume is vaporized throughout the theatre. Fifty thousand flacons of the perfume will be given away during the week."

Advance Payment or C. O. D. Demanded Under Policy of Cleveland Exchanges

Lightman Doubted Confabs Could Do Industry Any Good

Value of advisability of any continuation of the 5-5-5 hearings was doubted late in January by M. A. Lightman, president of the M. P. T. O. A., following the Thacher decree outlawing arbitration. In a statement issued at the time, Lightman took the position that only distributors and exhibitors represented at the discussions could be bound by any agreements made. Despite this, Abram F. Myers, Allied States Ass'n, president, and S. R. Kent, chairman of the distributors' committee, continued their efforts for a resumption of the conferences.

Fulfillment of Contract Urged by Cleveland Unit

Cleveland—Fulfillment of contracts is being urged upon members by George W. Erdmann, business manager of the Cleveland exhibitor association, regardless of discontinuance of arbitration.

The organization says it is opposed to any laxity of responsibility on the part of its members in regard to the terms of the contracts which were signed in good faith, and should be executed in good faith, it maintains. Erdmann advises his members to adjust personal differences with branch managers.

Failing that, they are requested to refer their charges against the distributor with him, and he will make every effort to come to a satisfactory adjustment. Erdmann claims that he has settled approximately 90 per cent of the claims that he has handled in this way.

First National Starts to Bring Suits in Carolina

Charlotte—First National has filed suits in Mecklenburg superior court against four theatres in North Carolina for $81,815. Alleged breaches of contracts formed the basis of the three actions instituted.

The Dixie and Carolina at Hamlet, the Mason at Goldsboro and the Ansonia at Wadesboro are the houses named in the litigation brought by the producers.

A total of $32,115 is sought from R. P. Prosser against the Dixie and Carolina based on a contract dated March 6, 1929; $26,950 from H. R. Mason against the Mason based on a contract dated April 5, 1929; $22,750 from L. L. Drake against the Ansonia based on a contract dated March 16, 1929.

Advises Compliance

Detroit—Exhibitors are advised to carry out contracts by H. M. Richey, business manager of the Michigan unit, who warns that distributors can bring suits to force fulfillment.

Tiffany Not to be Affected by F. B. T. Action

Resignation of William Shapiro, Tiffany franchise holder, from the Boston, New Haven, Pittsburgh, Cleveland and Cincinnati Film Boards of Trade, will have no affect on national policy of Tiffany, as respects the organization, states Oscar Hanson, company sales manager.

Tiffany, he says, intends to continue its film board membership in all sections of the country, where sales of its product are controlled by the home office.

Shapiro's exchanges withdrew from Film Boards in their respective territories for the savings which could be effected, it is stated.

Distributors Can Sue on Contracts, Steffes Warns

Minneapolis—Distributors can sue exhibitors to enforce contracts, as the Thacher decision ruled only that the compulsory arbitration clause is illegal, W. A. Steffes, head of the Northwest exhibitor unit and chairman of Allied's 5-5-5 committee, says in an interview published in "Greater Amusements."

As there have been no suits on the balance of the contract, there is no way to tell whether or not the balance is legal and binding, he says. He advises exhibitors to go through with their contracts, except where managers show an unreasonable attitude towards necessary adjustments and where contracts were obtained by fraud and misrepresentation. Ignoring of contracts by exhibitors would "wreck the industry," according to Steffes.

Percentage Shows Favored by "Philly" Zone Ass'n

Philadelphia—Percentage bookings, upon a "fair arrangement," is advocated by the board of managers of the eastern Pennsylvania and southern New Jersey exhibitor unit. They favor "a small guarantee, allowing the exhibitor his overhead, plus cost of the film, records short product and 50 per cent of the guarantee figure for profit, and then the 50-50 split." The proposition, outlined by "The Exhibitor," is to be discussed at a meeting of the exhibitor unit, scheduled soon.

Not Concerted But Individual Moves Is Claim; Preferred Credit Rating Out

Cleveland—Payment in advance or C. O. D. on pickups and shipments is new policy decided upon by nine local exchanges, and which becomes effective Saturday. The new rulings are the result of the ban on the arbitration system by decision of U. S. Judge Thacher.

The new policy was announced by Warners, Paramount, M-G-M, First National, RKO, Universal, Pathe and Columbia in letters to exhibitors stating that preferred credit ratings have been discontinued.

This is not a concerted action, it is claimed, nor a move by the Film Board. Instead, so the story goes, each branch manager is acting independently in the matter. Preferred credit, operative under the arbitration system, is declared impossible without arbitration due to impossibility of enforcement of contracts within reasonable time and the fact that branch managers are held responsible for credit extended on pictures played. No favoritism nor discrimination is intended, it is stated.

Exhibitor Raps Policy

M. B. Horwitz, general manager of the Washington circuit, which operates ten theatres in Cleveland and vicinity, declares the new policy to be an insult upon a man's credit standing in the industry, and hardship to all circuit owners who have checks in payment of pictures countersigned by house managers. Short time bookings, necessary under certain conditions, present the difficulty of getting checks signd by out-of-town managers in time for film delivery, he says. Uncertainty of mail delivery also enters into the problem, Horwitz has pointed out.

6 Distributors in "Trust" Suit on Arbitrat'n Award

Rochester—Echoes of Federal Judge Thacher's decision outlawing arbitration were heard here when Elmer Loritz and William Stahley, former operators of the Monroe, filed a Supreme Court suit asking $200,000 from six film producers and the Film Board of Trade, whom they charged with conspiracy. Loritz and Stahley already have filed a $200,000 counter-claim against Fox Film Corp. in New York in reply to a suit for $1,307, said to be owed on contract.

Universal, Warners, M-G-M, Pathe, Paramount, Educational and the Film Board of Trade are named defendants in the Rochester action. John F. Kinney and William A. Ader, attorneys for Loritz and Stahley, said the exhibitors charged they were forced out of business after the six defendant producers had demanded security under the arbitration contract, following failure of Loritz and Stahley to pay a $77 claim to Pathe awarded in a dispute by an arbitration board.

Action Big Need in New Pictures Reisman States

Now, as in the days of silent pictures, the public wants action films which move, rather than draggy vehicles, used as an excuse for dialogue.

Phil Reisman

This is the opinion of Phil Reisman, general sales manager of Pathe, formulated during a five weeks' trip to southern, Middle West and western branches. Reisman, who has returned to his headquarters in New York, is convinced that the return to action films is imminent.

His trip to principal key cities emphasized the manner in which the public is turning thumbs down on insipid films, used merely to get over dialogue, declares Reisman. This is brought home by the manner in which so-called specials are flopping, while "little program pictures" are getting the dough.

Audiences are walking out on lavishly-produced stage shows which lack action, and are turning to fast-moving drama, showing their choice for the latter in no uncertain terms, he continues.

The trend toward fewer pictures in 1930-31 will be "a good thing" for the whole industry, enabling the companies to spend more time, money and effort to make better pictures, in Reisman's opinion.

Huerta, Mexican Political Leader, Voice Teacher

Hollywood—Adolph de la Huerta, former provisional president of Mexico, is now established locally as a specialist in voice culture and vocal placement.

It is understood that Huerta is an authority on the throat and vocal qualities of speech and singing, and has gathered many customers from players on the coast.

The Big So-and-So

"There's a big motion picture concern in this city that employs a woman scout to look for talent," to hear Mark Hellinger tell it. And "it's her job to visit various clubs and shows in an attempt to dig up new faces for the screen.

"She was walking along 5th Ave. the other day when she saw a male type that fascinated her. This chap was very fashionably attired and was decidedly handsome. The woman scout, on the job every minute of the day, rushed over to the handsome gent. "Pardon me," she said enthusiastically. "Would you be interested—"

"The man placed a hand on his hip and regarded her haughtily. "I certainly would not," he interruped. 'And if you say another word, I'll call an officer!'" . . .

Fox Plant Busy on First Batch of '30-'31 Pictures

Hollywood—Fox studios are speeding preparations of stories for the scheduled list of productions to go into work during the next four months.

Howard Higgin, former Pathe director, has been added to the Fox writing staff to prepare the adaptation and script of "Alcatraz," a picturization of Max Brand's novel. Elliott Clawson has the adaptation and script assignment for a story being written under the supervision of James K. McGuinness.

Screen play and dialogue on Zane Grey's "The Last of the Duanes" has been assigned to Earle Snell, with A. F. Erickson slated to direct.

George Manker Watters continues to adapt, dialogue and script "The Fatal Wedding," which William K. Howard will direct. Dudley Nichols and Henry Johnson have the assignment to write an original adventure story.

Harvey Gates is adapting and dialoguing "Dust and Sun," from Clement Ripley's novel. Victor McLaglen will be featured under direction of Irving Cummings.

Ralph Block, former Pathe producer, is writing the screen play and dialogue for Jack London's "The Sea Wolf," which Al Santell will direct upon completion of "The Arizona Kid."

Charninsky Pulls One; Lands in Callaboose

Kansas City—This town's greatest lover of advertising, Louis Charninsky, manager of the Pantages, pulled a stunt in connection with "Peacock Alley" which will be memorable even in his colorful career as an exploiteer. He advertised for two live peacocks, and had a pair sent from Chandler, Okla.

Shortly afterwards, Charninsky walked down Kansas City's main shopping street, Petticoat Lane, pulling the two birds along by means of strings tied to their legs.

He did not walk far, because he was arrested for obstructing traffic. Birds and manager, of course, got their pictures in the paper. The peacocks spent the rest of the week in the lobby of the Pantages.

Stocked Up

Decision of Louis K. Sidney to discontinue sales of sheet music and records in Loew theatres has left the circuit with a stock of records on its hands. Efforts to peddle job lots at cut prices have hit a snag, it is said, due to the fact that dealers are stocked up.

Loew Purchase Is Termed Wasteful And Extravagant

sound devices, and the distribution thereof through the channels of interstate commerce and otherwise, and was not and is not interested in the acquisition of theatres whether owned by Loew's, Inc., or others, except at a fair market price and not a price many millions of dollars in excess of such fair market price.

"On the other hand, the film corporation was interested in stifling or lessening the competition which existed between the film corporation and Loew's, Inc., through its subsidiary companies in the production of motion picture films and sound devices and their distribution through the channels of interstate commerce or otherwise, until as above set forth the defendant, William Fox, and his co-conspirators, for the benefit and in the interest of the film corporation, secured control of a majority of the board of directors of Loew's, Inc., and a working control of the stock of said corporation.

Claims Breach of Trust

"So far as any uses, aims or purposes of the theatres corporation were concerned the price paid for the stock of Loew's, Inc., was so extravagant, wasteful and ruinous as to constitute a gross breach of trust and confidence with respect to and a fraud upon the theatres corporation and its non-voting stockholders on the part of the defendant, William Fox, and on the part of the other defendants, the film corporation, Halsey, Stuart & Co., Inc., Electrical Research Products, Inc., Nicholas M. Schenck and David Bornstein, who with full knowledge of the fiduciary character of the relationship of the defendant, William Fox, to the theatres corporation and its non-voting stockholders, conspired and dealt with him in such manner as to impose the full risk of their speculative adventure upon the theatres corporation and its non-voting stockholders.

"All of the conspirators from the inception of their conspiracy knew that the theatres corporation was not and would not be able to meet or pay the short term loans contracted in its behalf, in order to finance the purchase of 660,900 shares of stock of Loew's, Inc., or to pay interest on said loans, and knew that the theatres corporation was not and would not be able permanently to fund said loans, and were advised and knew that financing of the transaction was complicated by the existence of grave doubt as to the legality of the acquisition of control of Loew's, Inc., by either the theatres corporation or the film corporation, a complication which has recently assumed a more definite form through the commencement by the United States of America of a suit in the District Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York under the anti-trust laws, wherein the United States of America asks as relief, among other things, that the theatres corporation be directed to divest itself of its ownership of stock of Loew's, Inc.

Refinancing Plans Cited

"In the months of October and November, 1929, there occurred a break in the securities markets and shortly thereafter the United States of America filed suit, wherein relief was asked among things that the theatres corporation divest itself of control of Loew's, Inc., and thereupon William Fox, the film corporation, Halsey, Stuart & Co., Inc., and Electrical Research Products, Inc., abandoned the adventure, and since the abandonment of the adventure have been quarreling among themselves with the result that William Fox and the film corporation have been sponsoring one plan for financing the transaction and Halsey, Stuart & Co., Inc., and Electrical Research Products, Inc., have been sponsoring an alternative plan.

Spreading English

San Juan, P. R.—Talking pictures are credited with a 20 per cent increase in English class at the University of Porto Rico.

Tribute

S. R. Kent, says one of the Paramount general manager's admirers, is one executive in the business who puts the industry first, his company second and S. R. Kent third.

"So far as the theatres corporation is concerned both plans are alike in this respect, that both plans contemplate that the theatres corporation shall continue to bear the entire risk of the speculation and adventure and both plans increase by $4,000,000 the already ruinous and extravagant cost of the adventure. A meeting of the voting and non-voting stockholders of the theatres corporation has been called to be held on March 5, 1930, for the purpose of obtaining an expression of opinion on the part of the non-voting stockholders of the theatres corporation with respect to the plans proposed and sponsored by the defendants, William Fox and the film corporation and the defendants, Halsey, Stuart & Co., Inc., and Electrical Research Products, Inc., but both plans contemplate saddling upon the theatres corporation, and either plan if adopted will saddle upon the theatres corporation the entire risk, and cost resulting from the ill-advised and speculative adventure of the other defendants, whereas the theatres corporation was never intended to have any interest other than a casual and transitory interest in the transaction, and in fact did not have any real interest whatever in the transaction.

"The defendant, the film corporation on the one side, and the defendant, Electrical Research Products, Inc., on the other, are asserting against the theatres corporation claims, growing out of the transactions hereinbefore stated, which amount in the aggregate to $36,000,000, and in addition to the defendant, Halsey, Stuart & Co., Inc., is asserting a claim against the theatres corporation for $1,000,000 for services alleged to have been rendered by the said defendant in connection with investigations in contemplation of permanent financing of the transaction.

"Moreover, as a result of the transaction, the theatres corporation is indebted to various banks, firms and individuals to an aggregate amount in excess of $25,000,000 and has pledged as security for such indebtedness the entire 660,900 shares of Loew's, Inc.

Forced Sale Asked

"The plaintiffs are without an adequate remedy at law in the premises and will suffer irreparable damage unless a court of equity shall intervene and direct by a judgment to be entered herein, that the 660,900 shares of Loew's, Inc., be sold for the best obtainable price, and that the defendants, William Fox, the film corporation, Halsey, Stuart & Co., Inc., Electrical Research Products, Inc., Nicholas M. Schenck and David Bernstein, account to the theatres corporation for any loss or damage which it has suffered or sustained or may suffer or sustain as a result of the transactions hereinbefore stated, and pending such accounting be enjoined and restrained, especially the film corporation, Halsey, Stuart & Co., Inc., and Electrical Research Products, Inc., from enforcing or commencing any action to enforce their respective claims against the theatres corporation, or in the alternative, that the defendants, other than the theatres corporation or such of the defendants as legally may, be directed to take from the theatres corporation at the cost thereof, with interest paid less dividends received, the said 660,900 shares of stock of Loew's, Inc., and pending the entry of such judgment that all the defendants, but especially the defendants the film corporation, Halsey, Stuart & Co., Inc., and Electrical Research Products, Inc., be enjoined and restrained from enforcing or commencing any action to enforce any alleged claims against the theatres corporation.

Forced Sale of Loew's Stock Is Asked In Suit

Accounting Demanded

"Wherefore the plaintiffs demand judgment as follows: That 660,900 shares, or all of the shares of Loew's, Inc., purchased as aforesaid for account of the theatres corporation, be sold for the best obtainable price and that pending such sale and the accounting, hereinafter provided for, the defendants Electrical Research Products, Inc., Fox Film Corp. and Halsey, Stuart & Co., Inc., be enjoined and restrained from asserting or enforcing by any suit at law or in equity any claim or claims which said Electrical Research Products, Inc., or the said Fox Film Corp. or the said Halsey, Stuart & Co., Inc., may have or assert against the theatres corporation, and after such sale if there is any deficiency between the cost to the theatres corporation of the stock of Loew's, Inc., after the payment of interest and all other costs and charges, that the defendants, William Fox, the film corporation, Halsey Stuart & Co., Inc., Electrical Research Products, Inc., Nicholas M. Schenck, David Bernstein, account to the theatres corporation for any such deficiency or damage, or in the alternative that the defendants, William Fox, the film corporation, Halsey, Stuart & Co., Inc., Electrical Research Products, Inc., Nicholas M. Schenck and David Bernstein, or such of said defendants as legally may take and hold said stock, take over from the theatres corporation the said 660,900 shares of stock of Loew's, Inc., at the cost thereof to the theatres corporation, plus interest paid by the theatres corporation on the cost of said stock less dividends received by the theatres corporation, and that in such alternative case, that the defendants, William Fox, Fox Film Corp., Halsey, Stuart & Co., Inc., and Electrical Research Products, Inc., be enjoined and restrained from asserting or enforcing in any suit at law or in equity against the defendant, the theatres corporation, and that the plaintiffs may have such other and further relief as their cause may require together with the costs of this action."

Let's Get Together

Omaha—Much confusion has been caused over changes in first run opening days. The Orpheum opens its new show on Friday. Paramount, now changes every Monday and Friday, while the State switches on Sunday and Wednesday. The World is a Monday-Friday opener.

Prevents Panic

Albany.—Hang a medal on William O'Neill, stage manager of the Rialto at Glens Falls, N. Y. He prevented a panic at one of the hotels in that city when steam and hot water, escaping from a burst pipe in the hotel, next to the theatre alarmed the audience of the Rialto. It was necessary for O'Neill to cover his face with towels in order to enter the room and shut off the steam.

Accord Reached in Chicago Row With Janitors

Chicago—Last hour agreements between Chicago exhibitors and the theatrical janitors' union have averted a strike that would have closed the city's theatres. Operators, engineers and musicians had threatened to walk out in sympathy had no settlement been effected.

The Chicago Exhibitors' Ass'n, through Jack Miller, succeeded in trimming the janitors' demands appreciably at a meeting held after midnight on the date when the old agreement became invalidated. The union representatives accepted exhibitors' original terms of a $2.50 increase for janitors receiving less than $30 per week, and a $1 increase for those already receiving more than $30 weekly. The agreement is effective for two years.

The Illinois Independent Theatre Owners' Ass'n. announced that it, too, had reached an agreement with the janitors' representatives on all major considerations, thereby averting a strike in its theatres. The terms of this agreement differ from those made by the Chicago Exhibitors' Ass'n and Aaron Saperstein, president of the independents, stated that these could not be made public until the entire agreement was complete.

Three Units at Darmour

Hollywood—Two comedy companies and one feature company are working at the Larry Darmour studio. Al Herman is directing the Toonerville "kids" in "Mickey's Luck," another of the Mickey McGuire comedies, while Lewis R. Foster starts immediately direction of "The Land of the Sky-Blue Daughters," a Witwer talking short.

"The Second Honeymoon" is the feature being photographed and recorded under direction of Phil Rosen, with Josephine Dunn, Edward Earle, Ernest Hilliard and Bernice Elliott in the lead.

Warner Enlarging At Boston

Boston (Local).—Epidemic of exchange changes and enlargements has hit Warners' branch with the result that the company has added the rest of the building at 131 Arlington St. to its quarters.

London Premiere Set

Herbert Clayton, of Clayton & Walker, of London, has just closed a deal with Talking Picture Epics for the British premiere, March 15, of "Hunting Tigers in India." The film is to be shown at the Palace for six weeks.

Danke at Des Moines

Des Moines.—Alfred Danke, formerly of Tiffany organization at Omaha, has been engaged by Sono Art-World Wide, Inc., as feature sales manager at Des Moines.

Fishman Back After Illness

Cleveland.—Jess Fishman has recovered from a three weeks' illness and is again managing the Standard exchange.

Compositions Stolen, Small Publishers Being Killed Off, Music Group Charges

New Canned Entertainment for the Home

Washington—Nathan Burkan, counsel for the Society of Composers, Authors & Publishers, in his plea for passage of the Vestal bill for revision of copyright laws involving mechanical reproduction of musical compositions, told the House Committee on Patents that a new concern is in process of formation, which when fully developed, will manufacture 20,000,000 sets of a new musical instrument for use in private homes. It will not only provide sound pictures but radio and mechanical music produced by records, Burkan stated.

Goodman States Music Deal With Universal is Set

Frank Goodman has confirmed the deal whereby all music used in Universal productions will be published by Handman, Kent & Goodman, as exclusively stated by Motion Picture News. This firm is now getting ready to exploit the songs in "La Marseillaise" which are "For You," "You Alone," "Can It Be?" and "Maids on Parade," all of which were written by Lou Handman and Rox Rommell, and "Why Did It Have to Be You?" from Mary Nolan's forthcoming Universal flicker, "Carnival Girl."

Bob Cole has been appointed manager of the Los Angeles office and other branches will be opened in key cities, under present plans. The songwriting staff includes Lou Handman, Bernie Grossman, Mack Gordon, Rox Rommell, Sam A. Perry and William F. Dugan.

Trio Leaving for Coast

DeSylva, Brown & Henderson leave Sunday for the Coast, where they will do a picture for Fox and then one for United Artists. DeSylva, Brown & Henderson will publish the scores, although Fox and U. A. scores are generally published by Red Star Music Co. and Irving Berlin, respectively. This trio wrote "Sunnyside Up" for Fox.

Writing Gloria's Songs

Hollywood—George Waggner and J. Russell Robinson, M-G-M song writing team, are moving over to Pathe with Vincent Youmans to write the lyrics for original song numbers in Gloria Swanson's next talker, "What a Widow."

Toomey Joins Paramount

Hollywood—Paramount has placed Regis Toomey under a new term contract for featured spots in productions of that company.

Grandeur for Dallas

Dallas—Grandeur equipment will be installed soon at the Majestic.

Sono Art Boom of 300 Per Cent Is Cited by Rogers

Ushering in what he says is a revolutionary development in the company's history, bookings and billings of Sono Art-World Wide Pictures since Jan. 1 have increased 300 per cent over the same period last year, states Budd Rogers, director of sales. Rogers has just returned to New York from a visit to Middle West keys.

Budd Rogers

"This encouraging state of affairs is a graphic commentary—commentary borne out by my observations and recent contacts with large circuit operators—that the so-called producer-owned theatres are open to good pictures from companies other than their producer affiliations," says Rogers. "I found that chain operators are more receptive than ever to the independent producer's selling story, and are on the alert to discover whether his product contains star value, and in particular story value."

Vidor Assigned "Billy"

Hollywood—M-G-M has finally decided to picturize the life of Billy the Kid, famed desperado of the early southwest days. Lawrence Stallings is whipping the screen story into shape, with King Vidor assigned to direct. An original story and adaptation of "Billy the Kid" was prepared for M-G-M several months ago by Willard Mack.

Moran-Dressler in Series

Hollywood—"Sheriff Nell" of Mack Sennett comedy fame—none other than Polly Moran, has captured a long-term contract at M-G-M. Polly will hereafter be teamed with Marie Dressler in a series of feature comedies for the M-G-M organization.

"Cohens and Kellys" Holdover

"The Cohens and Kellys in Scotland," at the New York Colony, is to be held over for a scond week.

House Committee on Patents Gets Alleged Lowdown In Vestal Bill Hearing

Washington—Charges and counter charges of crookedness and unfair competitive methods were hurled thick and fast by Nathan Burkan and his group of music moguls, who washed more than one basketful of dirty linen before the House Committee on Patents at the Vestal bill hearing for revision of copyright laws dealing with mechanical reproduction of musical compositions.

Gene Buck, president of the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers opened the plea for passage of the bill and asked that the present licensing clause be removed. He charged that "fly-by-night" composers and irresponsible producers of music were stealing original compositions, without any protection being afforded their creators.

Burkan Charges Thefts

Burkan, counsel for the society, also charged theft of music on a wholesale scale, citing instances where no royalties were being paid and others where not even an accounting was made. He warned the committee that independent authors, composers and publishers were being wiped out by sound producers who are "swallowing up a group of music publishing companies," and deplored the means by which many were getting rich from the labors of other people.

Arthur W. Weil represented the Hays organization and while he did not oppose the Vestal bill in principle, he did object to any revision of the copyright patent laws pending new international agreements which are to be embodied in the Berne Convention. He claimed that passage of the Vestal bill at this session might hamper a general revision of the American patent laws.

Most witnesses said the proposal would not prevent the composer from bargaining for the sale of his product and pointed out that it would not create a monoply at the expense of the public.

The copyright law, enacted in 1909, provides that whenever a copyright owner uses or permits or knowingly acquiesces in the use of a copyrighted work for mechanical reproduction any person may make similar use of the composition upon payment of a royalty of two cents.

New Bill Eliminates Fixing

The new bill eliminates entirely the price fixing of two cents per record or roll and the compulsory license provision. J. C. Rosenthal pointed out to the Motion Picture News that the right of the copyright owner of music to bargain in the open market has been denied to the owner for 21 years.

The hearing was adjourned to March 22, to afford the representatives of the manufacturers of records an opportunity of preparing a brief, but it was suggested by the House Committee that the parties interested get together and endeavor to agree upon a satisfactory and acceptable bill. This will be done.

Opera stars are expensive, as well as expansive, according to Dewey Bloom, former manager for Gertrude Lawrence, who says he has the real low-down on the why of wide films.

Additional width was necessary, states Dewey, to accommodate the hefty Met stars who will do picture work.

Chicago Hi Hats Out in Force for Swanky Premier

Chicago—Publix-Balaban & Katz aroused the envy of the local press agentry with their society coup, maneuvered by Lloyd Lewis, for the Chicago preview of "The Vagabond King." Annie Oakleys were employed as the sole consideration for which the local social register crowd went to work for Publix-B. & K. In appreciation, Lake Shore Drive and Lake Forest aristocracy permitted the use of their names in newspaper advertising of the preview. This is the first time real society here has ever co-operated to this extent for the purposes of a picture opening.

The usual roster of stage names also appeared in the advertising, and the promise of this double feature bill—one on the screen and the other in the orchestra—was sufficient to give the United Artists a sell-out and Chicago its most successful $1.50 opening.

Clientele, largely of the wide-eyed, open-mouthed variety, and unused to the meaningless filming of arriving celebs and the other hokum common to New York and Hollywood openings, was so visibly impressed as to make B. & K.'s one mistake obvious: they could have nabbed $2 a head with ease.

Scene in inspection room of Bell & Howell's new Engineering Research Laboratories, daily engaged in solving today's ciné industry problems and planning new designs for the future

Bell & Howell Accuracy Begins in the Test Tube

THE rigid specifications guiding every operation in the manufacture of Bell & Howell Cinemachinery begin with inflexible chemical formulae. For the various kinds of metals used, specifications as to hardness, texture, and reaction to temperature are inviolable, and can be achieved only by exacting restrictions in their manufacture.

Scores of minute inspections follow every manufacturing operation. Tolerances of one ten-thousandth of an inch are commonly demanded. Completed machines must run a hard gauntlet before they are released. Bell & Howell's first guarantee is to itself . . . that its Standard Studio Cameras, Film Perforators, Printers and Splicers be made in such a way as to render the full measure of dependable service the world has learned to expect of them.

From the "lot" to the projection booth, this insistence upon accuracy paves the way for better motion pictures, sound or silent. Every branch of the industry shares in these values — Bell & Howell's permanent contribution to widespread economic advancement of the industry.

High and Low Along Music Row

THE wisdom of Winnie Sheehan's selection of Pat Flaherty as general manager of the Red Star Music Co., Inc., was emphasized when Pat closed that big deal with Campbell-Connelly. With conditions in the music business as they are these days, $500,000 is a lot of money even if you haven't got it.

Robbins Music Corp. has certainly been contributing songs consistently to the list of best sellers. With an average of at least one hit to a picture, this firm now ranks as one of the most progressive publishers in the business. "Should I" and "A Bundle Of Old Love Letters," written by Nacio Herb Brown and Arthur Freed for M-G-M's "Lord Byron Of Broadway," are already drawing in the jack into the coffers of the "house that Jack (Robbins) built."

Didjever hear the one about the two—yeh, well here's one that we know you didn't. A songwriter, trying to place a song with a music publisher was told, "You can't get away with that, it's taken from "Faust." "Yep, I know that," was the reply, "but you can't go wrong with a 'Faust' song." Interment was held—

Here's a little story in songtitles seen on the catalogue at DeSylva, Brown & Henderson's. "I'm Not Worryin' Over You" because I know that "You Will Come Back To Me" and we'll buy "That Cottage For Sale" where I'll take great pleasure in "Washing Dishes" with you. And oh, yes, thanks for "Congratulations."

Paul Jonas, radio manager for Handman, Kent & Goodman, has been getting a great play on "Collegiate Love" and "That Homesteady Steady of Mine," two of the song numbers in the forthcoming Universal production "Czar of Broadway," featuring Betty Compson, Johnny Harron and King Baggot. Handman, Kent & Goodman will also publish the songs used in "La Marseillaise," which is now in production at Universal City, announced Frank Goodman on his return from California.

S. R. O. Sales Ban Being Sought by Toledo Alderman

Toledo—Business is not merely good in Toledo theatres; it's too good.

At least that appears to be the opinion of City Councilman A. J. Lee, for he tells the city fathers he has received a number of complaints relative to the "overcrowding" of local houses. The municipal legislator has introduced a resolution calling upon Safety Director A. D. Black to investigate these complaints and enforce any existing ordinances aimed at the abatement of such nuisance.

Councilman Lee also has voiced indignant protest against theatres opening before noon on Sunday. He is quoted as saying, "I do not believe that theatres should open so early and thus compete with church services."

Warners Rebuilding House

Lynn, Mass. — Reconstruction of the Mark Strand is planned by Warners. A Magnascope screen is to be installed. John J. Scanlan, present manager, will continue in that capacity when alterations are completed, with the name to be changed to the Warner.

Renaming 2 Publix Houses

Seattle.—Report current in local circles, given credence by a "teaser" campaign just beginning in the public press, have whispered that the Publix Seattle in this city next month will be rechristened the Paramount. The same move is reported to be planned for the Portland in the Oregon city.

Gluckman Buys N. Y. Rights

"Clancy In Wall Street" will be distributed in New York and Northern Jersey by Herman Gluckman, Capitol Films, New York. Herman Rifkin, Hollywood Pictures, Boston, has purchased New England rights from Nat Levine of Aristocrat, which will release four made by Edward Small.

Talking about ambition, Caesar had nothing on George Folsey, Cameramen at the Paramount Long Island studios. It was of a Sunday that our hero (George) rose bright and early, and foregoing the chances of getting the proverbial worm, set out for the studios. And kin y'amagine, he sez sezze, "I forgot it was Sunday."

Threat of Patent War Made by San Antonio Company

San Antonio—Patent war against some 80 companies in the sound equipment field, with Electrical Research Products selected as the first adversary, has been declared by the Aleograph Co. of America. The firm has brought an injunction and accounting suit in Federal Court here, as the opening gun in its fight.

The Aleograph Company alleges that a patent issued to Allen Stowers and Leo De Hymel, San Antonio inventors, in May, 1924, and now owned by it, supersedes all subsequent patents issued to other sound equipment companies.

Stowers and De Hymel assert that patents have also been issued to them in Germany, Canada, England, Australia and the Irish Free State, where forty different types of sound processes are being exploited, all of which they claim to be infringements on patents held by them.

"Erpi" Denies Infringement

Electrical Research Products denies allegations of patent infringement in a suit brought by the Aleograph company. The suit refers to three minor mechanical features covered by Patent No. 1494514—an adjustable clutch, index mechanism and a lever in connection with the driving mechanism of the equipment for projecting sound on disc talking pictures, "Erpi" says. None of these features are embodied in the Western Electric Sound System, it is claimed.

St. Louis Office for "Erpi"

St. Louis—A branch has been established by Electrical Research Products at 1218 Olive St. Morris Chase is managing a staff of 40 salesmen and technical men.

Television Broadcasts Planned In Germany

Washington—Plans for beginning television service on a commercial basis are under way in Germany, according to Federal Radio Commissioner Gerald Gross. In a report on his recent survey in Europe, Gross stated that television research is carried on by the German post office department with the cooperation of some of the private companies. He witnessed a demonstration of the German system devised by Telefunken Mihaly-Telehor and Deutsche-Fernseh.

"The system demonstrated to me was one using 30 holes or lines with scaning clockwise from top to bottom," stated the report. "The speed of the disc is 750 revolutions per minute. The ratio of width to height is four to three.

"I was informed that certain measurements show that the width of the frequency bank transmitted, was 7,500 cycles. The demonstration given to me was quite good and the person televised was easily distinguishable and recognizable. It must be stated, however, that the tests I witnessed were made with a wire connection between the receiving and transmitting apparatus."

Jannings In New Ufatone

Berlin—Emil Jannings has been signed for Erich Pommer's next Ufatone, to be titled "The Great Tenor."

RCA Going Ahead On Plans for N. Y. Amusement Plant

RCA is going ahead with plans for its 8,000,000 amusement center and office project at 51st St. and Lexington Ave. in New York. The structure will be 50 stories high and will house the various enterprises of the company and its subsidiaries. A house to rival or exceed the Roxy in size is one of several type theatres planned for the building. S. L. Rothafel, it is reported, would operate this theatre.

RCA officials have been silent on the reported project, but arrangements have been completed with General Realty and Utilities Corp. to finance the structure.

RCA Photophone Wiring Continues at Fast Pace

Installations of RCA Photophone small theatre equipments are continuing at a fast pace under direction of Sydney E. Abel, general sales manager. Sales organization of the company was rounded out at the recent sales convention held in New York, with Abel now predicting that the rate of installations will be increased henceforth. Since Feb. 15, it is understood, that 400 equipments have been ordered for theatres up to 1,000 seats. Many of these are replacements of other equipments, he says.

Talkers in Dept. Store

Chicago—Dr. Lee De Forest, inventor of De Forest Phonofilm, will be principal speaker at the seventy-fifth anniversary celebration here of Mandel Brothers, department store. The event will mark debut of the store's talking picture equipment, said to be the first installation of its kind.

Installing Magnoscope

Ottawa—Ambrose Nolan, general manager of the Nolan Theatre Enterprises, is supervising installation of Magnoscope full-stage screen equipment in various theatres of Ontario. Nolan says he holds patent rights on the Magnoscope in Canada, the United States and Great Britain.

New Policy Aids Business

Ottawa—First three days of Lent produced higher returns at B. K. Keith's than the first three days of the previous week, due to the new split week policy of the house. The new policy calls for vaudeville the first half of the week and pictures the last half at 50 cents top, or ten cents under the price of the vaudeville.

Reverts To Silents

Cleveland—The Princess, downtown grind picture house, which opened recently as a sound house under management of James Elliott, has reverted to a silent policy, because of the high cost of sound operation.

Starts New Power Plant

Hollywood—Power demands at RKO will be supplied by a new 3,000,000-watt electric plant which has sufficient power to supply a city of 50,000.

Song O' My Heart

(Fox—All-Talker)

Real $2 Picture

(Reviewed by Red Kann)

JOHN McCORMACK, whose concerts prove a Mecca to which sentimentalists and music lovers alike throng here and abroad, comes through in a picture that rates the road show prices to be asked for it.

The Irish tenor's beautiful voice is heard eleven times. If the picture had nothing else to it, box-office wise it would be over with miles to spare. But it has. The charm of Ireland is there. Also the delicate, appreciative and showmanship direction of Frank Borzage, who handled McCormack with uncanny cleverness. Then there is the story, unimportant but delightful, and the rich Gaelic comedy supplied by Kerrigan, aided by MacDonald.

Important in the cast are Maureen O'Sullivan, the young daughter, and Tommy Clifford, the eleven-year-old brother, who contribute much to the vast appeal which "Song o' My Heart" holds. The picture will mop up on strength of McCormack's name, and it's there as well.

Produced and distributed by Fox. Story by Tom Barry. Directed by Frank Borzage. Adaptation by Sonya Levien. Edited by Margaret Clancy. Photographed by Chester Lyons. Length, feet. Running time, minutes. Release date,

Only the Brave

(Paramount—All Talker)

Civil War Drama With Kick

(Reviewed by Joseph Kelley)

ROMANCE plucked from Civil War days usually insures entertainment. Provided, of course, the personnel behind the production knows what drama is all about. It's apparent those behind this one did know.

Young officer of Union troops volunteers to go over the Confederate lines as a spy. He has one chance in a million of returning in one piece. His chief aim is to be captured with phoney orders on his person. Daughter of Confederate general falls for him and, despite his desperate efforts to be discovered as a spy, her ingenuity saves his life until Grant's troops arrive in their victorious march on Richmond.

Gary Cooper fits well as northern hero. Phillips Holmes as a young Confederate officer, jealous of Cooper's hit with daughter of colonel, comes pretty near taking all thunder away from Cooper for an outstanding performance. Mary Brian is blah and meaningless. William LeMaire, a sentry in Confederate army, should be promoted for his comedy performance.

Cartoons and sound acts O. K. here.

Produced and distributed by Paramount. Directed by Frank Tuttle. Dialoguers, Agnes Brand Leahy and Edward Paramore, Jr. Story by Keene Thompson. Adaptor, Agnes Brand Leahy. Photography, Harry Fischbeck. Length, 6,024 feet. Running time, 64 minutes. Release date, March 8.

O'Malley Rides Alone

(Syndicate Pictures—Silent)

Fast Moving, Hero Stuff

(Reviewed by J. P. Cunningham)

TYPICAL western backgrounds, leathery-faced types, villainous villains, a pretty girl, and stolen gold dust—all shaken up in the usual style. There is no pretense at lavishness, but there is plenty of action with the eleventh hour rescue of the hero, the recovery of dad's gold dust and the inevitable skyline cottage scene where hero and girl take eternal vows.

Bob Custer stars. He is a ridin' fool as well as a good hero type and makes an ideal "mountie" who plays a lone hand in running down a band of traitors who have proven arch enemies of a man who was their friend.

J. P. McGowan, who directed the role of the girl's father, never loses an opportunity to inject plenty of action in his western dramas. McGowan is an old hand at such, as well as thrillers. He has shown his hand here to good entertainment advantage. Phyllis Bainbridge, in curls and gingham, can ride a horse and that is about all. Bud Osborne, the villain in many of such westerns, doesn't forget the fact here. Although following the set formula for such stories, its rapid-fire action holds interest.

Bolster this with musical and comedy shorts.

Produced by Syndicate Pictures. Directed by P. J. McGowan. Story by Sally Winters. Photographed by Hap Depew. Length, 4,730 feet. Running time, 62 minutes. Release date, Dec., 1929.

Mamba

(Tiffany—All Talker)

Melodramatic Thriller

(Reviewed by Charles F. Hynes)

STRONG meller, a fine portrayal by Jean Hersholt, and some beautiful color work stamp this as a picture which should get money even though it is handicapped by its title and an obvious story.

Except for the opening shots, when Director Al Rogell employs a traveling camera to introduce the South African background, the color is effective. In this opening, however, it produces a dizzy effect which proves an eyestrain. It is a story of South Africa where an uncouth German (Hersholt) brings a beautiful German girl as his wife. His bestiality estranges the girl, who falls in love with a German officer. The war's outbreak is vividly told, with the German and British soldiers, who always had fraternized, now made enemies by the orders from far-away Europe. There is a terrific battle as the Germans are attacked by natives, and "rescued" by the British.

Hersholt has a powerful, although unpopular part, and stands head and shoulders above the cast. Eleanor Boardman has little more to do than look pretty. Ralph Forbes is the dashing German officer. The title, "Mamba," is the name given to a poisonous snake.

Sell this on the angle of its novelty and as out-and-out melodrama. You need comedy with it.

Produced and distributed by Tiffany. Story by F. Schumann-Heink and John Reinhardt. Directed by Al Rogell. Continuity and dialogue by Tom Miranda and Winifred Dunn. Photographed by Charles Boyle. Length, 7,041 feet. Running time, 70 minutes. Release date, about March 20, 1930.

China Express

(Amkino—Silent)

Propaganda, but Meritorious Fine

(Reviewed by Joseph Kelley)

IF obvious propaganda can be overlooked, here is an importation from Russian studios that has plenty of merit as real entertainment. Some deft directorial touches, the intelligent use of emblematic drama, excellent types and real human interest flashes places this offering well up in front as an appealing silent drama. Propaganda, always out in front, detracts.

There really is no connected story. It is narrative, pure and simple, with little care for good continuity. These omissions are forgotten, however, in the fast-moving episodes as they flash over a Chinese background along the International Railway route into China. The fact that the producers have refrained from even presuming to tell a story following prescribed formula as to plot, hero, villain and inevitable girl, aids rather than takes from this picture as entertainment.

Illy Trauberg, although probably meaningless as a director to Americans, nevertheless has done a job with the megaphone of which he may be proud. Realizing, probably, that he had little or no story to work with, Trauberg made up for this omission by giving quick episodic flashes of changing scenes and types, never forgetting that in such a country as China there always arouses occidental interest.

With musical and comedy talker shorts this should stand up.

Produced by Sovkino and distributed by Amkino. Directed by Illy Trauberg. Photographed by Boris Khrenikov. Scenario by L. L. Yerikhonov. American titles by Michael Gold. Length, 5,900 feet. Release date, March 8, 1930.

Cohens, Kellys in Scotland

(Universal—All-Talker)

Best in Cohen and Kelly Category

(Reviewed by Joseph Kelly)

GOLF enthusiasts, especially, will be tickled with the latest exploits of Jew and Irishman in Scotland. They'll learn what not to do—not what to do. If they don't learn anything about the game they'll learn how to laugh. The friendly enemy spirit runs throughout their varied experiences in the land of Harry Lauder and Scotch jokes. A lot of conversation—some of it a bit aged with use—but always given a fun-provoking twist by two comedy players—Charles Murray and George Sidney.

A Jew and Irishman combine their respective commercial abilities and hit upon the big business idea of buying up all the woolens in Scotland because they have the tip a certain dressy prince will wear Scotch plaids. They sink their fortunes and nearly lose every dollar until the prince comes across. In the meantime, a lot of foolishment happens.

Both Murray and Sidney take to the "mike" like a baby to the bottle. Vera Gordon, more or less famous for her Jewish characterizations, is Cohen's wife, and Kate Price, of equal fame along Irish lines, is Kelly's better half. E. J. Radcliffe doesn't do so well with his Scotch dialect, which is stilted and far too studied.

Musical shorts will supply variety.

Produced and distributed by Universal. Directed by William James Craft. Story by John McDermott. Adaptation and dialogue by Albert De Mond. Photographed by C. Allen Jones. Length, 7,401 feet. Running time, 1 hour and 24 minutes. Release date, March 17.

Current Lineup of Short Subject Product Hits An Average Pace

"A Song Drama"

(Vitaphone Varieties No. 912—1 Reel)

Just Another Short

HERE'S a song and piano duo composed of Derickson and Brown. The pianist isn't so bad, but the offering stacks up as one of those things. Just another sound short. Dozens and dozens like it floating about. Runs six minutes.

Slip it in with a strong feature if you have to run it. If possible, avoid it.

"Six Gun Justice"

(Universal Silent—2 Reels)

Mediocre

A WESTERN, as old as the hills in which it was filmed. Bobbie Nelson, the youngster, clicks, as usual, and gives the only excuse for the short's existence. Bobbie, no doubt, will entertain the kiddies in neighborhoods where cut-and-dried claim-jumping reels get by. Jack Nelson directed. Running time, 22 minutes.

Musical short and a comedy feature suggested.

"On the Rancho"

(Vitaphone Varieties No. 952—1 Reel)

Excellent Novelty

A ROPE twirling act with one song number and a short dance routine. A good novelty bet, principally because of the variety of the three numbers that make it up. Suitable for almost any type of program. Running time about nine minutes.

Clever enough for a spot on any bill. Particularly good to lighten dramatic feature.

"Honest Crooks"

(Pathe Talker—2 Reels)

Good—But!

WE have a hunch that Pathe had Amos 'n' Andy in mind when they made this two-reel Buck and Bubbles comedy. And, if they did, it's too bad. Buck and Bubbles both shake a wicked hoof, they can sing, and are pretty good all-around entertainers, but when it comes to two reels of straight comedy, minus their musical relief, the pair is not so hot. Spooky events in a dark warehouse are the highlight, with lots of slapstick thrown in. Running time, 20 minutes.

A good feature, not too heavy, will go well with this one.

"The Military Post"

(Vitaphone Varieties No. 3278—1 Reel)

Good Musical Short

ROBERTO GUZMAN, tenor, possesses a tenor voice which records excellently. The picture is set with a military background and is filmed in Technicolor. He sings "La Golondrina" and "Under the Moonlight." Running time about nine minutes.

An excellent short feature for music lovers.

"Who Pays?"

(Vitaphone Varieties No. 3873—1 Reel)

Short Skit Well Done

JOHN MURRAY and Vivian Oakland have a great time telling lies to each other and protesting all the time regarding their honesty. Has plenty of laughs and will fit any bill. Running time about nine minutes.

Will balance a heavy feature.

Hear, Hear

That new producers' code of ethics may not permit them to record the word hell, but some of the stuff they put through the mike sure sounds like it.

"50 Miles From Broadway"

(Pathe Talker—2 Reels)

Fair Hick Revue

ONE of the Rubeville group in the "Golden Rooster" series. C. B. Maddock's newest has a fair amount of entertainment, despite the obvious weakness of its construction. Two homesick hoofers return to their home town and succeed in straightening out a lifelong feud between the dads of both families. The whole berg celebrates with jazz. This has some laughs and plenty of song and dance stuff, but it is by no means the highlight of the series. Bradley Barker directed. Running time, 21 minutes.

Straight dramatic feature will go best with this.

"Foul Ball"

(Universal Silent—2 Reels)

Pretty Good

SID SAYLOR'S show, and he turns out a fairly good comedy short, centering around old gags which are, nevertheless, effective. Saylor is a frozen-faced, timid ball player who clicks with the manager of the big league team in his town after he routs the villain star-pitcher. Gus Meins directed. Running time, 20 minutes.

Strong feature support needed.

"Love Boat"

(Vitaphone Varieties No. 955—1 Reel)

Dreamy Fantasy

HERMAN TIMBERG plays a violin and cracks many gags in this fanciful little skit. The setting is laid on a vamp ship and a kiss means disaster. Turns out to be a dream.

Barbara Blair, Maoni Morton, Virginia Howard, Leo Chazel and Oliver Harris in the cast.

Can be used on nearly any sort of a bill.

"Underdog"

(Vitaphone Varieties—2 Reels)

Fine Little Picture

THIS is a bang-up two-reel comedy fairly reeking with pathos. James Barton springs a lot of philosophy which carries a vein of optimism. He is down and out and hungry, but at the finish is seated in front of a huge meal in typical Horatio Alger style. The terrier, Oscar, does nothing except look hungry and appealing, but that's enough to bring a cheer from the house. He's the cutest screen pup in a long time. Running time about 18 minutes.

An excellent number to bolster a weak feature bill.

"Dogging It"

(Pathe Talker—1 Reel)

Another Rice—and It's Okay

TRAINING trick dogs, and a snappy little sequence highlighting greyhound racers in a well rounded reel which deserves a spot on any bill. Grantland Rice maintains the high standard set by his series. Running time, 10 minutes.

Show this with a comedy feature.

"Big Top Champions"

(Pathe Talker—1 Reel)

Grantland Rice—'Snuff Said

THIS chap Grantland Rice turns out as many entertaining novelties as any other short-subject producer in the field. His new reel is no exception. Rice gives the lowdown on animal training for circus work, using Ringling's show in Florida winter quarters to reveal how it's done. The trick horses, elephants and other four-footed animals are put through the paces by crack trainers, and it's mighty interesting to watch 'em. Running time, 11 minutes.

A fine reel to offset a heavy dramatic feature.

"Potters at Home"

(Vitaphone Varieties No. 3827—2 Reels)

Has Family Appeal

THE Potters have their usual family arguments, Pa entertaining the boss in hope of a raise. He gets the job of president of the Welfare Board and has to organize a charity campaign. Lucien Littlefield, Dot Farley, Lucille Ward, Mary Hutchinson, Billie Taft, Dell Henderson and Junior Bailey in the cast. Byron Foy directed. Running time about 18 minutes.

Will balance with heavy feature and cartoon shorts.

"Audio Review No. 9"

(Pathe Talker—1 Reel)

Fine

OPENS with several hundred feet of stuff shot in waters near Labrador. A scenic wow! Next unit is commemorative of John Howard Payne, who wrote "Home Sweet Home." Payne's subject, a picturesque house on Long Island, is flashed while a quartet sings the old piece, with organ accompaniment. Women will like the last unit in the reel. Kiss clinches from several Pathe features are offered to show that "Love Finds a Way." Running time, 10 minutes.

Good feature comedy, a dramatic short and this.

"The New Racket"

(Vitaphone Varieties No. 3686—1 Reel)

A Good Short Skit

A VERY NEAT little skit featuring the incidents which occur in the life of a couple of bank bandits. Two officers are outwitted by having a pair of buddies pose as detectives. Then the officers capture the quartet and everybody has a good time on the train, there being six hands in the poker game.

Funny enough to furnish contrast with heavy feature.

"Sixteen Sweeties"

(Pathe—2 Reels)

Stale Jokes, Staler Dancing

IF tap dancing by blonde sweeties still interests you this one should go over big. Orchestra, bare-legged girls doing the Tiller stuff and master of ceremonies trying to be funny, aided and abetted by two alleged comedians who peddle their stuff during intermission before closed curtain to give way to full stage and sweeties. Produced by George Le Maire. Running time, 13 minutes.

Support—plenty of it—in other shorts and feature necessary if you book this.

Exhibitors Become Operators, Finding More Dough In It

Recent increase in membership of the Chicago operators' union is credited by disgruntled exhibitors to the fact that neighborhood exhibs are getting wise to the fact that more money can be made in the booth than in some box-offices. In consequence, they say, many owners of small houses are dumping them and taking out their cards in the local. For proof they point to Herman Goldberg, who ditched the Willard and is now drawing operator's pay at a south side house, and John Milton, former owner of the Marlowe, now in the booth at a South State Street house gallery. There are others, the story goes.

Under Cover Stuff to Can Axe Swinging in Chi Off

The whisperers contribute two this week. First, that a prominent local exchange is due for a shake-up all along the line in the near future. The office said to be aware of what's coming. Second, that another exchange left itself open by cutting prices for a few favorites who had been going along with them and being decent about bookings since the Thacher decree made that unnecessary.

Price cut was purely an evidence of appreciation for good behavior, but mugs got their ego up and started to brag indiscriminately about the swell deal they were getting. Then came the deluge. Every exhibitor who had bought a picture from the office bore down demanding the same deal. The booking office is jammed daily with exhibs threatening to leave everything ordered on the floor unless they get the same cut, and everyone, even the well-behaved originals who started it, is expecting the same low price deal to carry through when the new buying season opens. Bookers and managers sweating by night and by day.

Hal Young Handling 15 States for Nat'l Screen

Chicago headquarters of National Screen Service, Hal Young in charge, is now servicing all accounts in fifteen central and southern states, completing the transfer of these accounts from the New York offices. The final states added were Michigan, Texas and Kentucky. A vastly increased personnel in the local office is taking expert care of the new work. So efficient a hook-up was devised that work was resumed on accounts transferred to thise office where New York had left off the day before.

While here, Miss White paid her respects at the First National Exchange and was also among those present at "The Vagabond King" premiere at the United Artists.

United Artists' mid-west division, headed by Cress Smith, led the national sales drive that ended recently by a large margin. Of seven offices in the mid-west district, six were among the first eight in the final national tabulation. The local office wound up third. KANE.

CONDUCTED BY AN EXHIBITOR FOR EXHIBITORS

No Bed of Roses!

TO the average layman, the job of theatre management is nothing less than a "cinch." We cannot condemn them for their opinion, because they know so little about the many important and responsible tasks that the majority of managers must take care of.

It has been often stated that "everybody else's job always looks better than your own." And that will have to cover the ignorance of the layman in sizing up a theatre man's manifold problems.

Where does the general run of commercial jobs compare to operating a theatre? The commercial man has some semblance of office hours. He gets his Saturday afternoons (as a rule), Sundays and Holidays to himself He is generally burdened with some set task or two.

But what about the theatre manager?

His working hours have never yet been figured out. And even in these days of modern chain management, one of the "bosses" may happen to call him on the phone or pay him a visit while he is out to dinner, and right away he has to lay bare his life's history to convince him that even a manager must eat meals or take care of business that calls for visits outside of the theatre building.

A Saturday, Sunday and Holiday is just ‘another" day to him with the exception that it means more and harder work because those are the days when business is generally brisk.

His duties? If we ever were to start a complete definition of them, good-bye to the rest of the Club pages. They are so many and varied and cover such widely different angles that it's a miracle those same "bosses" don't willingly acknowledge the fact and come clean.

We can think of no line of business in the world today that calls for the "grind" of a house manager.

BUT, there is a fascination to the show-game that makes it all worth while and we go merrily along looking for that optimistic day when our labors will be properly rewarded.

"Showmen are born, not made," they insist on telling us and maybe they are right. But those of us who know our sound, projection, service, advertising, publicity and the million and one other details, all essential to proper theatre management, can feel convinced that every Tom, Dick or Harry cannot enter the show game and get by with a "bluff."

We are specialists! (Not counting Chic Sale.) But we're just as human as the man employed in an office or factory and "all work and no play makes Jack a mighty dull boy." (With apologies to Mother Goose.) "Chick"

G. Roberts Freak Truck Ballyhoo A Real Laugh Getter

Using a novel gag for a truck ballyhoo was the medium which enabled George Roberts, Manager of the Proctor Theatre in Yonkers, N. Y., to secure some fine publicity and boost up business during the run of "Vagabond Lover," which played at his house a short time ago.

Roberts built a baby carriage and placed it on top of his truck ballyhoo, and it sure attracted a lot of attention and had everybody laughing wherever the truck went. The truck itself, besides carrying the perambulator, carried cutouts and scenes from the picture. In addition to this uniformed musicians were perched around the truck and played the theme songs from the production.

Roberts' gag, though it is not a new one, is nevertheless very effective and went across successfully. If any of the Club members are looking for something unusual in their ballyhoos, it would pay to utilize the idea of this live-wire Yonkers showman, who from all appearanes is displaying an active interest in his job.

Brunson Changed Name of Street To Plug Attraction

Working up a real political fight over the changing of the name of Main Street to that of Broadway was the basis for the fine exploitation campaign which Newton Brunson, manager of the Yuma Theatre in Yuma, Arizona, put over for the film "Broadway."

Brunson personally presented a petition to the merchants of the town asking that they favor the change of name. Most of the dealers signed readily and the Yuma Herald, the town's afternoon paper got behind Brunson and broke with front page stories, commenting upon the contemplated change.

Seeing this, the Sun, a rival paper took the negative side and bitterly assailed the proposed change, with the theatre, as a result, coming in for rafts of publicity and the whole town talking about "Broadway." Working fast, while things were still hot, Brunson secured the co-operation of the local high school and promoted a debate on the name change. He also flooded the town with heralds bearing copy relating to the change of name and also the picture. The campaign went over with a bang and the picture came in for plenty of publicity.

Australian Showmen Can Certainly Put Shows Across

Here's a few more examples of showmanship displayed by the live-wire managers of Australia's leading houses.

When it comes to ballyhooing a picture those Australian showmen are certainly not back numbers, as you will see from the pictures we are reproducing below.

The first cut shows a ballyhoo used in connection with "Noah's Ark," that undoubtedly attracted comment due to its originality of make-up. An entire display was painted on and around a truck, which was driven through the main streets of the city. The display seems to be made out of beaver board and is an efficient medium for securing more than passing notice. The cost of making a ballyhoo of this type was probably very small.

The other picture we are reproducing is part of a campaign on "Show of Shows," and depicts a truck, decorated with banners and pennants which was driven around the main streets of the town. The truck carried six musicians who played popular tunes during the truck's cruisings. Four ballet girls from the stage show were outfitted in costumes and wore hats bearing the name of the theatre. The girls danced and sang whenever the truck stopped at a busy street intersection. This gag was instrumental in securing a lot of valuable comment, for whenever the truck stopped crowds gathered to witness the antics of the girls and the musicians.

In addition to the truck ballyhoo, a stunt with a sandwich man was used, which we are passing on in case any of the CLUB members might like to use it.

On the box which enveloped the sandwich man, the letters of the title of the picture were cut out and covered with transparent material. A small battery and a number of electric lights were strung around his waist, and by turning a switch off and on, the letters were illuminated and were visible for a long distance.

It's this kind of showmanship from Australia that makes us want to hear more about it, so that we can let the rest of the world know what a gang of go-getting showmen are doing to drum up business.

We have published many interesting accounts of their activities and we'd like to hear more from them.

Gelabert's House "Clicking" With Sound and Talkies

We're going to open a little friendly discussion on the value of the talking picture at Pedro Gelabert's Theatro San Jose in Porto Rico.

Pedro sends us a couple of heralds advertising his talking pictures with one herald plugging "Lucky Star," the other, "One Glorious Night."

Now, having a slight knowledge of Spanish we can manage to decipher from Pedro's program that he is showing "Ladrones." And if we remember rightly "Ladrones" was the first all-talking comedy made in Spanish, and marked a most important step in the "talking" world as it opened lanes leading to incalculable "talkie" profits by appealing direct to the other countries IN THEIR OWN LANGUAGE.

We're not "in the field" with Pedro, hence we do not know how many English speaking patrons he caters to, but as we know he runs a de luxe theatre we can safely infer that the majority of his patrons understand English.

This knowledge of English is undoubtedly a valuable asset in the continued success of the theatre, for Pedro can present the finest of the talking dramas as well as the silents; for we notice from the program that Pedro has inaugurated a policy of repertoire as fillers-in on non-talkie days.

As lack of space threatens to permit our going further with this little discussion, we want to commend Pedro now for the up-to-the-minute showmanship methods he is constantly displaying at the Theatre San Jose with his "circus flyer" heralds, his house program, and the many other modern ideas he uses in Porto Rico.

Just for the sake of continuing this argument at a later date we'd like to have Pedro send us a little note concerning his audience re-action on the various pictures. How about it, Pedro? Let's hear more from you very soon.

Here's one angle chock-full o'dough for the b.o. if you want to take advantage of it.

Why not try it? Give it a good plug and see if you don't pack a house full of kiddies into the theatre, at anywhere from 10 to 15 cents per.

"HappyDays" Were Real Joyous Ones For Milton Harris

If you are on the alert and looking for something in the way of a "peppy" idea follow the example of Milton Harris, Publicity Director of the Fox Theatre in St. Louis, and see how he arranged a corking confectioner's and drug store fountain tie-up in connection with the showing of the picture, "Happy Days."

This particular sticker measured something like 6 x 18 inches and was printed on white stock in red ink, and although the cut shows up black you can take our word for the attractiveness of the sticker itself and you must admit that it was a corking good gag to create in the picture and in the theatre.

We have heard a great deal about Milt Harris and his activities out there in St. Louis and we feel that starting with this first bit we may expect to hear from him regularly in the future. How about it, Harris? You can answer it better than we can.

"Cuckoo" Trailer Sold H. C. Brown's Coming Attraction

A trailer which created a lot of laughs and drew attention to the coming attraction was recently used by Manager H. C. Brown of the Modjeska Theatre in Augusta, Georgia, in conjunction with the "Kibitzer."

The regular trailer on the "Kibitzer" was run a week in advance of the picture and tacked onto the end of it was a special one made from pieces of old trailers. When these old pieces were projected upside down the people were mystified, but a special trailer at the end of the trick one put a little light on the "gag" by announcing "Pardon us folks, we were only Kibitzing."

This jumbled trailer caused much discussion and received many laughs from the audience.

In addition to this "gag," Brown planted a number of window cards in prominent store windows which bore copy relating to the picture.

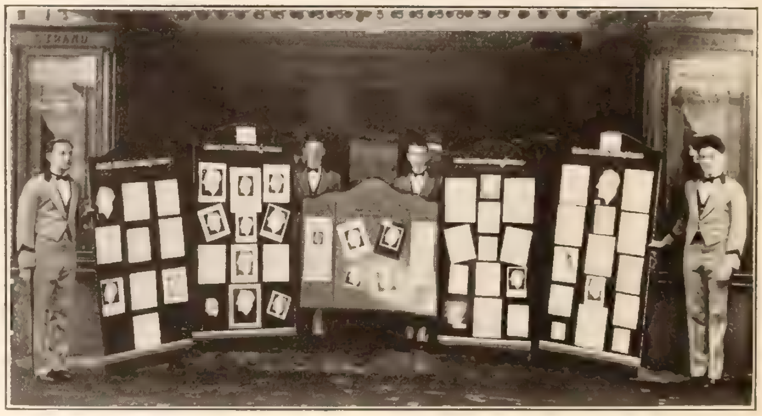
This "trick" trailer is a good stunt to use if you want to liven up your audiences' interest every once in a while. It is not necessary to wait for a picture with a Kibitzer title to come along, as this stunt can be worked with almost any light picture.

Thanks Brown, for passing this along to the rest of the boys, and we notice as we look through our files that we haven't your photo. Why not send it so that we can let the gang see what you look like? Oak.

Walter Rose Made A Very Effective Tie-Up in Schools

A school tie-up that helped draw extra business into his house was engineered by Walter B. Rose, manager of the Rialto Theatre in Brockton, Mass., in conjunction with the showing of "General Crack."

Rose secured the permission of the local school board and organized a contest between the children in the schools. Prizes were offered for the best freehand drawings by members of the drawing class, of John Barrymore's profile, with prizes also being offered for the best drawing by children who had never taken up the subject.



This contest created a great deal of friendly rivalry between the local schools and their respective classes with each school trying to outdo the other in annexing the coveted prizes.

Interest in this contest was so intense that the local merchants in the town were literally begging for an opportunity to display the drawings in their windows. Those smiling young men supporting the drawings are a part of Rose's natty service staff.

We are reproducing a picture of part of the drawings submitted during the contest. If you look closely you will note the prize-winning drawings in the center, which the local newspapers reproduced together with a story on the winners.

A lot of valuable newspaper and word of mouth publicity was secured by Rose on this picture, in addition to window tie-ups with the local dealers.

As we have stated from time to time it is unnecessary to wait until you get a "General Crack" to use a gag like this. This is natural for any sort of production and if you think you can find a spot for it, use it.

Good work, Rose. We're glad to note that you are continuing your peppy activities at the Strand. Keep in touch with us so we can pass on your activities to the rest of the CLUB.

"Between you and me, the MANAGERS' ROUND TABLE CLUB has been a big boost for me with our home office. Strangely enough, our other managers were late in utilizing its services and I was able to grab myself a little credit with exploitation ideas taken from your pages. Now there is considerable interest being displayed in the ROUND TABLE all over our circuit."

R.'S PROBLEM:

The Chamber of Commerce was at odds with R. because the theatre had won a fight for Sunday movies, and being sore, they refused to co-operate on any plan R. put up to them.

The same problem confronted R. in regard to the local newspaper whose publishers turned a deaf ear to all suggestions, holding that they sold advertising and did not give it away.

Whatajam poor R. was in—and how! But—read on further:

R.'S SOLUTION:

The Chamber of Commerce planned a local airport, which would be of great benefit to the town, but not being showmen they were at a loss on how to put the idea across. R. saw that he was going to get a break at last and stepped in. He offered his services to the Chamber and they, quick to see the valuable asset he would make, gladly consented to work with him.

By a happy co-incidence, a recent picture dealing with aviation, had been booked into R's house and when he showed the Chamber the value of a tie-up on the picture, they gave him the use of their windows for a display on the picture and the airport. It is interesting to note that R. crashed into that hardest place to enter, the Post Office, with a display on the picture, the airport and the airmail. The ballyhoo put the airport and the picture across with a bang. To-day R. can have all the co-operation he wants from the Chamber for they realize now the value of showmanship in all business.

With point number one cleared up, R. turned his attention to the local paper. Would they co-operate with him if he showed them how to make more money? Would they? He was almost deafened by the "yesses". R. then told them to make up a page offering free tickets to the big screen revue coming to his house, for all children under eighteen, who secured a one-year subscription to the newspaper.

The paper followed the plan carefully and it worked out wonderfully, with the paper grabbing off a bunch of new subscribers, and at the same time, R. came in for lots of free publicity and plenty of good-will.

Since the Chamber of Commerce and the local newspaper were the only two disturbing elements in R's daily existence, his house is now running smoothly, for his two former "enemies" will gladly extend all possible help towards anything he may suggest and as R. himself says "IF YOU CAN'T BEAT 'EM,—JOIN 'EM." Showmen like yourself R. don't have to try to beat them. He showed them why they should work together. Right?

How would YOU handle a similar situation?

Fine Showmanship Of Herman Lorence Again in Evidence

Marvelous showmanship is the way we would caption the activities of Herman Lorence, Resident Manager of the R.K.O. Prospect Theatre, in Brooklyn.

Lorence, if our memory serves us right, was one of "Ace" Berry's gang formerly at the Enright Theatre, in Pittsburgh, for the Stanley Warner Circuit, and only recently took over the reins of the Prospect Theatre, where he is clicking, through mighty fine results at the box office.

One of his recent streaks of showmanship brought to life the use of the now famous "flag-pole sitter" and in the accompanying photograph you can gain just a small idea of the immense crowd which was attracted by this stunt on the street where the Prospect Theatre is located.

This is but one of Herman's fine showmanlike activities, but the manner in which he handled it was so outstanding as to make the theatre the talk of the neighborhood for weeks after the stunt was engineered.

Another recent gag of Lorence's was a boy-scout bugle contest, worked in conjunction with the boy-scout troops in the neighborhood and included the free distribution of souvenir photographs of Washington on Washington's birthday matinee. We are showing a portion of the circular used in connection with this contest and unquestionably there will be much more to talk about in connection with the stunt than the brief outline that we have chronicled with this article.

Olinto Accorsini Is Latest Virginia Showman to Join

Another showman who we believe will become an active member of the ROUND TABLE CLUB is Olinto Accorsini, who manages the Academy, Isis, Belvedere and Gayety Theatres in Lynchburg, Virginia, for C. M. Casey.

The houses under Accorsini's wing are all wired for sound and with a couple of thousand seats to fill he must be pretty busy trying to fill them, which makes us believe that we will hear some nice accounts of his activities, as no one but a peppy showman can handle four houses and make them all show a profit without working like the deuce to put them across.

We have some hustling CLUB showmen down in the Southland and we sure take a lot of pride in letting the rest of the world know what their exploits are down there and we believe that Olinto is going to fit right into the picture, which is saying something, for our Southern members sure can step, but it's just for that reason we're stating that we'll hear a lot of good things from Accorsini. So it's up to you, Olinto.

MANAGERS' ROUND TABLE CLUB

Mickey Gross is Still Sewing Up Everything Loose

Just to show us that he's still alive, Mickey Gross, that live-wire managing the New Orpheum Theatre in Sioux City, Iowa, for R.K.O., drops us a brief note enclosing a herald he used on "Vagabond Lover" and says "Draw your own conclusions."

Well, Mickey, it sure must have sold the picture for you. And we don't have to guess that you didn't pay for making it up because we noticed a lot of dealers' names on it, which proves pretty conclusively that your pep is still o. k. and you tied up with the local merchants.

On Mickey's herald the main portion is taken up by an ad for the Tri-States Airlanes Corp., with the ad headed "Go by Air—Anytime—Anywhere!" and showing a picture of the sister ship to "The Spirit of St. Louis," Lindy's famous plane. The rest of the page carries the ads of the local merchants. On the other side of the herald there is an announcement reading "Go by Foot, Air, Train, Water, or some way—To See and Hear Rudy Vallee in the "Vagabond Lover" and goes on to tell the play dates, while a box in the middle of the page carries an announcement of an added short subject film attraction which was taken at the local airport. And one which because of its local nature undoubtedly sold the attractions.

Mickey also effected a tie-up with the airplane company where a coupon was printed on the bottom of the herald, with copy carrying the announcement that presentation of the coupon and one paid adult admission would admit two persons to the Palace Theatre on Wednesday—and also that the coupon and one paid ride would be good for the payment of two airplane rides during January, February and March.

That's the kind of stuff we like to hear about, Mickey, and we know you're always working hard to put your house way in front with the same pep that you showed when you successfully handled your house in Madison and also the Isis Theatre in Kansas City. Let's hear some more from you, Mickey, concerning your activities out at the New Orpheum because we're always glad to hear them, especially when we know that the letter will contain some interesting stuff.

"Talking Dog" Gag Spoke Nicely For Ed. Hiehle's Biz.

When it comes to finding new angles to use in connection with the sound apparatus you can trust Ed. Hiehle, manager of the Midland Theatre in Newark, Ohio, to find them.

This time Ed., who has been using his house monitor to talk about his coming screen attractions, decided to use the monitor for the purpose of bringing in a lot more box office, so he went out and annexed for himself a stage attraction in the form of a trained dog, which received orders on the stage from his unseen master and performed the many tricks commanded of him. The way the stunt was worked, of course, was done through the house monitor, with the dog's trainer giving the orders through it and they were picked up and carried through the horns on the stage.

An excellent herald was made up and distributed on this attraction and Ed sold them by using copy proclaiming that the dog was the first to respond over the electric sound system, and in addition carried a catch line, "The Dog That Thinks." The herald was made up in yellow and black, on good stock paper and also carried the name of the picture playing currently with the stage attraction, billing the program as a double feature.

The dog gag clicked for Hiehle and as a result boosted his box office business, and we are glad to pass this on to the rest of the CLUB members, in case a spot could be found for a stunt that does not cost much and will more than pay for itself in publicity and added box office receipts to be derived from its use.

Ed also made up a nice herald on the "Love Parade" in the form of a "circus flyer" printed in blue and black, and in which he used a bunch of scene and ad mats of the picture to good advantage, as the layout was one that would sell almost any place and is a tribute to Ed's ability as make up man. Let's hear from you again, Ed, so that we can keep posted on those new gags you are always pulling at the Midland.

Take Some Good Live Tips From Beckerich & Olsen

According to the cuts we are reproducing below, Manager Al Beckerich, of the Cataract Theatre in Niagara Falls, N. Y., and Tom Olsen, director of publicity for the Upstate Division of Fox Metropolitan Playhouses are keeping active plugging their shows.

The picture we are reproducing shows a tie-up which was effected by Beckerich and Olsen, with a local automobile dealer. The dealer agreed to feature one of every model of the car he was selling, with the cars being drivn out to the main highway and parked. Banners were strung on the car announcing the picture at the cataract. This stunt attracted a lot of attention from passing motorists and secured a lot of valuable publicity for the theatre.

The other cut we are reproducing below shows a tie-up secured with the local dealers on the world premiere of "Happy Days." The double truck spread was paid for by the local merchants, who agreed to permit the use of a stunt in the ads and also to feature the pictures title. All the theatre paid for was their own ad.

While these co-eds double trucks are not new, Olsen has added a neat twist to the layout by breaking up the words "Happy Days" and setting the parts of the letters in the various ads. A note on the upper right hand side of the page announced three cash prizes and 100 tickets to the Cataract would be awarded to contestants spelling the words out correctly. It is perhaps unnecessary to state that this contest clicked right from the start.

A lot of newspaper publicity was secured by tieing up with the puzzle editor of the local paper, who judged the winners of the contest.

Something New All The Time, Says Mgr. Lew Carroll

Judging from the way Paul Glase, Bob Suits, Harry Stearn and the rest of the gang in Reading, Pa., are putting over their campaigns it takes a hustling manager to keep up with them, and that's why we want to tell you how Lew Carroll, go-getting manager of the Park Theatre in Reading is stepping right along with the rest of that fast-stepping "gang."

Lew used a novel herald in connection with his big exploitation campaign on "Officer O'Brien" which drew a considerable amount of attention to the picture and theatre. The herald was made up in the form of a court summons and commanded the reader to appear in person at the Park Theatre and show cause why the picture should not be acclaimed the greatest entertainment ever seen or heard at the Park Theatre and was signed by Lew himself.

The heralds were handed out on the busiest street corners of the city and since they were made up in such a novel form, the people to whom they were handed, held onto them and undoubtedly passed them on to friends for a joke. At any rate the make-up made them read the herald through and we're sure that business jumped up a lot when the picture opened.

In addition to the herald stunt, and with the picture opening on Saturday Lew decided to boost up his kiddie business on the matinee, so he made up a number of small cards with copy reading "This Card and Fifteen Cents" will admit any school child to the Park Theatre Saturday Afternoon to see and hear the Great Police Film "Officer O'Brien." You will note that Lew worded his copy so that it would appeal to the children by using the phrase "great police film," and that's the type of thinking that boosts up the kiddie business, as a great many showman slip up on this little but all important point. If you're trying to sell the kids, use the type of copy that will sell them and by appealing to what they like you'll get them in by the hundreds.

Let's hear from you again Lew, and give our regards to the rest of the gang out in Reading and convey our apologies to the boys for that long promised visit we had been intending to make but we're so busy here going through the interesting stuff you boys are swamping us with that we just can't get away—but don't worry, we'll walk into the town one of these days and hand the bunch a surprise. Oak?

Vogel Gettier's Teaser Ads Were Good Picture Plug

Whenever we see newspaper advertising that merits a few lines on these pages we are only too glad to grant the space for that purpose. And now we want to tell you a little about the great advertising campaign engineered by Vogel Gettier of the Capitol Theatre in Grand Island, Neb., on "Sunny Side Up."

Gettier's ads were all well made up and carried a plug for almost everything that the theatre featured from the organ and newsreel to the theme song. The ads at no time however had the appearance of being crowded and we don't doubt that the picture was really sold on the strength of these cleverly devised ads.

Many newspaper stories were secured by Gettier and these too helped a lot in the selling of the picture.

We have run a number of little stories concerning Vogel's habit of crashing the newspapers at will and copping plenty of free publicity, but this is the first time we have had the pleasure of looking at one of his advertising campaigns and we want to go on record as saying oak.

Keep up that type of work Vogel, for we know in order to keep abreast of the live wire showmen out in your part of the country, there's got to be something doing every minute. And we know you've got the goods to keep right up with the rest of the crowd. Let's hear from you again when you've got something that you think deserves a few lines.

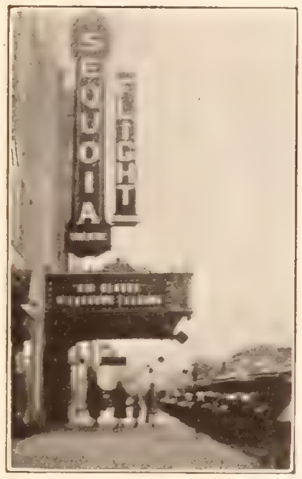
MANAGERS' ROUND TABLE CLUB

Tom Kane's Snappy Work Clicks At Sequoia Box-Office

Tommy Kane, manager of the Sequoia Theatre in Redwood City, Calif., laid out another of his famous campaigns on "Flight," and boy, when Tommy sets out to put over a campaign it sure "stays put."

As a starter for the campaign, Tommy secured a wonderful tie-up with the Redwood City Tribune by selling the advertising manager on a kids' model airplane building contest that clicked for a million bucks as the cut we are reproducing below will show you. The paper ran a big story every day on the contest and the theatre came in for some great publicity. If you look closely at the cut of the front page of the newspaper you will notice the streamer the paper ran on the contest. We have tried to condense all of the stories on the one page to give you an idea of the load of publicity that was received.



Tommy tied up with the leading dealers of the town and they ran a full page co-operative ad on the contest and "Flight." In addition the dealers agreed to furnish prizes to the winners of the airplane model contest which sure helped to stimulate interest. And we just wish we could give you an idea of how many kids were entered in that contest. On "Flight's" newspaper advertising Tommy turned out some fine ads, working up interest in the picture by planting a lot of "teasers" in the paper before making his "splash" on the picture, with the full page co-operative ad completely selling the town.

Five thousands heralds were inserted in the weekly programs and sent out in the mailing list to the patrons, and Tommy secured a tie-up with an airplane company whereby they agreed to distribute four thousand heralds from the air. In addition to this, balloons inflated with gas were released from the theatre with passes attached. A number of the balloons were also released from the plane and this stunt had them chasing balloons all over the town.

In the small photo we are reproducing above you can notice how he gave the picture an advance plug by running a banner alongside his upright sign. This attracted a good deal of attention and helped sell the show.

On the last night of the picture, Tommy, through a tie-up with the boy scouts of San Mateo County, arranged to feature their popular band on the stage, and this stunt packed the house. And while we're about it, we want to compliment him on the layout of his program which is very neatly made up with scene mats and ad mats lending an added touch of beauty to his type layout.

We'd like to tell you more about his newspaper advertising, but lack of space will not permit us at this time. However, we expect to be able to run a nice layout of his ads in the near future and then we'll have more to say about his fine showmanship.

We're glad that your campaign went over, Tommy, and we want you to know that the way you put "Flight" across will match up with anything we have heard about on that picture. Keep up the good work and let's hear from you again real soon.

Carl M. Osborn's Fine Publicity Is Far Above Average

Someone—we can't recall offhand just who it was—once said of publicity: "It can empty filled seats and fill empty seats." Oke. We agree because it has been proven, but we want the world to know that whether the originator of the phrase intended "publicity" to include the advertising or not, we claim that advertising too "can bring 'em in or keep 'em out."

The CLUB pages have often featured the cream ot advertisements used by showman exhibitors throughout the country, who, in these ads have injected novelty, selling power, and real reader interest. And as you noticed they were certainly swell ads. We could talk for hours on how to lay out an ad according to layout principle, but after we got all through we wouldn't have touched upon a very important subject for the reason that we couldn't. Let's explain this enigmatic statement. We'd like to tell you how to appeal to YOUR patrons, but how can we. We're not in the field with you. You alone know your patrons' likes and dislikes. Hence your advertising copy appeals to them through their better points. Providing that you know these points. Savvy?

At any rate let's get down to what we're driving at. The copy of the full page ad we are reproducing was made up by the Signa Theatre in Lima, Ohio, of which house Carl M. Osborn is the manager. Study the cut carefully and you will get the drift of the above discussion we started. The ad appeals to its own "personal" public. There is nothing costly in the layout and expenses were kept down by the judicious use of mats. The mats as you note enhanced the beauty of the page and did not crowd it to death, since enough "white space" was left to sell a couple of other houses on the circuit in addition to the Sigma.

From the adjectives and the glittering phrases, to the little note telling the public that the picture is not a revue but an absorbing love story, we glean that it appeals familiarly to its public. And in addition, we make out from the copy that another reason it sells is because the readers are told why it appeals to them. You'll also notice another angle in the makeup on the upper right hand corner of the page, in which the coming attractions have been listed under a "command" head. All proving that here is an ad that sells.

MANAGERS' ROUND TABLE CLUB

"Take-A-Chance" Week, A Corker For Chas. Carroll

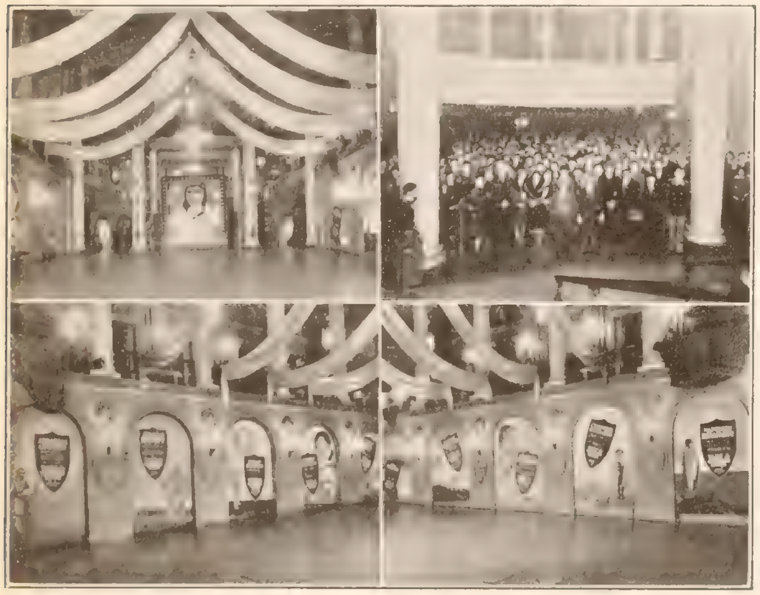
Charlie Carroll engineered a corker when he successfully put across his "TAKE A CHANCE WEEK" at the Stanley Theatre in Jersey City, N. J., and we are sure that every one of our readers and members who takes note of this fine piece of showmanship will agree with us that it was a knockout from every viewpoint and the fine manner in which it was handled.

The group of photographs below will give you an idea of how both sides of the lobby and the entrance to the main stairway leading upstairs was arranged with quotations from various famous people from Steve Brodie up to Col. Lindbergh reciting how they took various chances in things that they accomplished in life.

This is the type of stuff that is typical of Charlie Carroll's fine showmanship, and we deem it a privilege to present it on the pages of the ROUND TABLE CLUB for the benefit of the many members and readers who follow our activities from week to week.

As you will note in the upper right hand corner of the group of photographs, this picture will show just a few of the mob who where waiting on the opening day of "TAKE A CHANCE WEEK."

Here is a gag, fellows, that you should all try to work, whether it is just for a three day or full week proposition and just so long as the program consists of the many necessary elements of good entertainment, good entertainment that the audience will go out and talk about, you can rest assured of success.



The ROUND TABLE CLUB would certainly want to compliment Mr. Carroll on this fine piece of work, and as we said once before, if it were our policy to present an award each month for the best stunt put over, not for originality, but from the standpoint of showmanship and clever execution, then Charlie would be entitled to the award for this idea which is a "TAKE A CHANCE" week. We would gladly furnish any of our interested members or readers with the complete data on this stunt which takes in all of the famous characters depicted in the arches of the main foyer, and the wording that went with it, if you have in mind the idea of putting across such a stunt.

Thanks, again, Charlie, and remember that your contributions are a most welcome feature in the morning's mail. Try and make it a little more frequent and we will be still more satisfied.

Will J. Connor Says:

". . . . I have received a lot of valuable 'stuff' from our club in the way of 'gags' and publicity stunts. I enjoy the M.R.T.C. section of MOTION PICTURE NEWS and look forward to it each week."

Senior Mercy Month Went Over!

From reports reaching Club headquarters, the "Senior Mercy" Month campaign in honor of the founder of the Inland Theatres Co., houses, has gone over with a smash from every angle.

Credit for the fine handling and planning of the campaign belongs, to a large extent, to Junior Mercy, secretary and general manager of the chain, and Frank B. Hill managing director of the Walla Walla houses and assistant manager of the circuit.

Watch the Club pages for details of the many outstanding showmanship stunts used in connection with this Senior Mercy Month.

M.R.T.C.

Is Steele Loyal? We'll Say He Is And Then Some—!

When we ran that teaser ad last month about George Steele at the Trianon Theatre in Birmingham, Ala., we had no idea that Mr. Steele was at that house, or that he would even see it, so you can just about guess at our delight when we found that he not only saw the story but immediately communicated with us proposing several new members to the CLUB.

Thanks a lot, George, for your promptness and we certainly want you to know that as one of the Charter Members of the CLUB, we had no intention of losing sight of you, and now that we have recreated your interest in communicating with us we don't intend to let up.

Talk about using your head, here's one that George wants to pass along, which we are sure will not only get a whole lot of comment, but will also give many of you other fellows a chance to use your heads in an emergency.

Steele was playing the "Racketeer" not so long ago, and business was rather slow, on the opening which was a Monday morning, and noticing a couple of decks of playing cards in the five and ten he went across and made the following purchases, two decks of cards, six dice, fifty poker chips and a bottle of glue. He then took one of his center cutouts, pasting all of these items all over the center display and in fifteen minutes there were about twenty-five interested persons looking over the display and created so much comment and so many laughs from the passers-by, that business was great all week. As a matter of fact, he reports this as being one of the best weeks they have had in quite some time, and when you consider that the cost of the whole stunt, including the renewal of the dice, cards and poker chips only ran to about $4.00 then you have what we call darn fine exploitation, because it didn't cost so much.

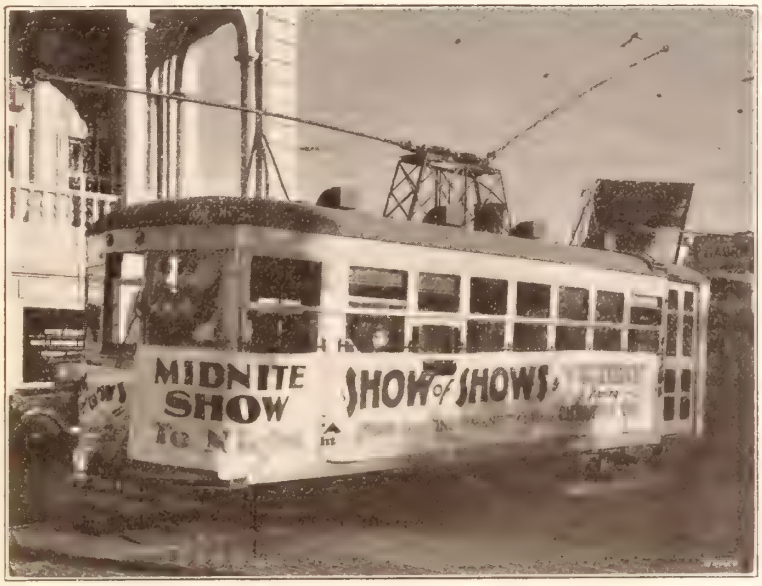
Thanks again, George, for your promptness and leave the membership certificate to me, I'll see that you get it as fast as we can get it engraved, framed and shipped out to you. In the meantime, we will be looking forward to those other new members that you promised as well as your letter. Let's hope that your letters will be steady arrivals at CLUB headquarters from now on, and that the opportunity will be presented in the very near future for your Chairman to shake you by the hand and welcome you personally back into the fold.

MANAGERS' ROUND TABLE CLUB

Collier Continues To Pep Up House With Novel Stunts

If William Collier, manager of the Alabama Theatre in Birmingham, Alabama, continues the same brand of showmanship which he displayed while managing the Victory Theatre in Tampa, Fla., we can expect to hear some mighty fine things about him at his new house and new position.

Just before his transfer to the Alabama, Collier promoted a number of business-getting stunts that we think merit mention at this time.



On "Show of Shows," he hired a street car and arrayed it with banners advertising the production. A broadcasting set was concealed inside the car while a loud speaker broadcast the theatre and play date of the picture. This was done at every stop of the car, efforts being made to keep always within the traffic "red light." In the residential section, where the car could stop longer without holding up traffic, theme songs from the picture were played. The car attracted a lot of attention and did much to help business. As you will note in the photograph the loudspeaker is seen at an open window in the foreground, and though we cannot see the other side of the car we presume that Collier has placed a speaker on that side, too.

A tie-up with the local confectionery stores to feature a dish called "Glorious American Girl Sundae," enabled Collier to turn in a pretty good week.

Menus were distributed to the various sweet shops. Underneath a note was added informing the purchaser of the sundae that he was entitled to a special check. This check carried a number which, if corresponding with any of the one hundred numbers on display at the Victory Theatre would entitle the bearer to a complimentary ticket for the picture. This proved a very good "follow-up" on the sundae stunt as it brought the holders of the checks to the theatre to find out whether their numbers were posted on the bulletin board. And even though they didn't win, it was pretty certain that being at the theatre they'd go in.

One of the town's largest drug stores which employs a number of waitresses were so sold on the idea that they offered a special prize of five dollars to the girl selling the largest number of "Special Sundaes." And as soon as the other stores in town heard of this plan they followed suit.

The other photo we are reproducing shows a tie-up with a local music dealer who has arranged a very attractive display for Rudy Vallee's picture. Miniature cutouts of famous operatic and radio stars lent a novel touch to the display with a cutout of Vallee in the foreground giving the theatre a plug.

We want to wish you the best of luck on your new job at the Alabama Theatre, Collier, and as you will no doubt have a greater field for your exploitation ideas we expect to hear more about you in the very near future. Oak?

Maybe We'll Be Able To Get Ed. Hitchcock's Photo

It gives the MANAGERS' ROUND TABLE CLUB great pleasure at this time to announce that Eddie Hitchcock, Publicity Director for the Publix Paramount Theatre in New York City has enrolled as a member of the CLUB.

We are certain that Eddie will more than come up to our expectations by furnishing all of our members some valuable data dealing with exploitation and publicity, because he is more or less of a national figure in the amusement field, and has a marvelous background from his past experiences.

Listen, Eddie, you are not such a bad looking skate, as I happen to know since taking you to lunch, so why not come across with one of your photographs so that we can give you a more intimate introduction on these pages, and then the gang will sort of feel that they all know you personally.

Here's looking forward to your first contribution, and let's hope it will be real soon. In the meantime convey our best regards to our many friends on the Publix Circuit, and tell Earl Leaper we are still waiting for the promised photograph and article, which has now become quite ancient history. But we appreciate his important position at this time, and will naturally understand that he has not got any too much time to sit down and write us.

Armistead Should Become An Active Club Contributor

H. E. Armistead, who just recently was added to the CLUB roles as an active member succeeded in putting over some novel ideas in the way of a visiting card on Rudy Vallee in "The Vagabond Lover." In the rough sketch which he sent to us we rather like the neatness and simplicity of the way the copy was worked out, and we believe that it was instrumental in selling the picture to the public to a large extent.

His herald on William Haines in "Navy Blues" was decidedly unusual and there was an air of dignity about the entire makeup that commanded attention the moment you had it in your hand.

It seems that we have hit upon a mighty fine showman in the person of "H. E." and it will be a distinct pleasure to look forward to his contributions as often as he can send them in the mail to us.

As a new member we are, naturally, anxious to get Mr. Armistead to let us have one of his own photographs so that we may be able to write a little article introducing him more intimately to his brother ROUND TABLE CLUB members, whom we are sure will be glad to know more about him and know what he looks like. How about it "H. E." can't you accommodate and at the same time jot down a few notes on your past experiences in the show business up to this time, so that we can have something to work with?

FASHION SHOWS INCREASE B. O.!

Despite the so-called box office depression around this time of the year, there are many angles productive of increased revenue, as any live-wire showman will tell you, and not the least important is the Fashion Revue.

Here is a golden opportunity to learn, before the Revue is staged (not after), how one manager is laying his plans for this great semi-annual event.

This represents but one phase of the Fashion Revue idea. There are many other important factors necessary to successfully execute this stunt but the outcome is contingent upon your own local conditions.

* * *

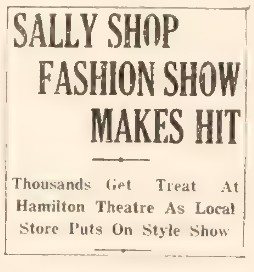
We cannot stress too emphatically the value of this idea from the viewpoint of the box office, but if you are alive to the possibilities of it you will be quick to grasp the suggestion and make use of it.

"Chick"

Now Is The Time To Plan This Stunt As A Semi-Annual Event For Your Theatre

"In the spring," so the poets tell us, " a young man's fancy turns to thoughts of love." Well, if a man's fancy turns to thoughts of love what does a woman's turn to? Nothing more or less than SPRING FASHIONS. At least that's the theory A. D. Resnick, manager of the Hamilton Theatre in Philadelphia, Pa., has worked with in order to bust the house receipts wide open.

Resnick tied up with the leading women's wearing apparel shops in Philadelphia; with the shops supplying the gowns, for models to display. On the screen he advertises that models are wanted for the annual FASHION PARADE to be held on the stage of the theatre. THE MODELS ARE SELECTED FROM AMONG THE PATRONS. Fifty or sixty applicants responded to Resnick's trailer. The applicants are informed when to appear for selection and are requested to invite their friends as judges, since only fifteen models are needed. By these elimination nights, Resnick works up an acute interest in the Fashion Parade and as the show is only slated to run two nights, he manages, in this manner to ring in two or three extra Big B. O. nights before the "Parade" opens.



SALLY SHOP FASHION SHOW MAKES HIT

Thousands Get Treat At Hamilton Theatre As Local Store Puts On Style Show

He then goes around to the various other shops dealing in women's wearing apparel and promotes, HATS, SHOES, STOCKINGS, LINGERIE, and everything else constituting feminine attire. HE TIED-UP 12 STORES AND RECEIVED ALL THE ARTICLES ABSOLUTELY FREE. In addition the stores all plugged the Fashion Parade in their windows, stood the cost of everything, and as they all had mailing lists, they sent out cards announcing the show to their customers.

When the models are selected they are drilled in the right manner of walking and posing. The organist plays selections for each entrance, and on the night of the Fashion Parade, after having been on the stage, they then walk up the aisles, preceded by two little girls dressed as pages, and the parade closes with a bridal party, bride, bridesmaids, flower girls and ring bearers, everybody in fact but the groom.

The merchants are repaid for their donations by having their names and the prices of their products, placed on easels on each side of the stage, together with an announement as to the style of the gown or whatever the article may be.

The Fashion Parade has always been a great success for Resnick and he has packed his house every night of the show. It is a real "class" angle for any house and when handled in a dignified manner will do wonders towards boosting business and getting loads of publicity and good-will for the house. The little cut we are reproducing of one of the stories Resnick received from the local newspaper will give you an idea of the way the plan catches on.

We would like to talk for a minute on the finish of the Fashion Parade, which, by closing with a Bridal ensemble is a wonderful angle, and submit a plan that may seem feasible to any one deciding to stage a Fashion Parade in his house. You will notice that no bridegroom is used for the finale of this show, but if you knew of a couple planning to marry about the time you were staging your show, it might be possible to prevail upon them to have a real stage wedding in your house. You could then promote donations from all the local furniture dealers, etc., in addition to having the clothing stores furnish the bridal couple's outfit. If there is a travel bureau in your town, a free honeymoon trip might even be promoted. In this manner you would pull two "ace" stunts on one night, and there's a lot of dough waiting for the enterprising manager who goes about this angle in the right way, because its a sure bet that no matter what your house record is, you'll break it.

We want to thank Resnick for giving us this first hand information on the Fashion Shows he has engineered successfully for a couple of years now, as it is a very timely subject, following as it does, right after the recent "plug" we ran on the Spring Fashion Parade, in the Club pages.

Suppose you start right now to discuss this matter with your local Chamber of Commerce, Merchants' organizations or any others whom you can interest in the idea. They will, undoubtedly, work with you one hundred per cent.

Shewell's Newspaper Advts. Pack A Selling Punch

More and better newspaper ads seems to be the theme song of George E. Shewell, who handles the exploitation for the York Theatres in York, Pa., so if you'll just glance at the cut we are reproducing of a full page newspaper ad layout of Shewell's you'll get the tune of his theme song.

We are choosing this ad as an illustration, not because it is the most outstanding example of the lot of Shewell's ads we have on hand, but merely because it will serve more adequately to show how he keeps all his houses together on the one page and manages to make each ad stand out from the other in novel make-up, by the judicious use of mats and type.

You will notice on "Gold Diggers" that Shewell carries a small box in with the big ad announcing the "Midnight Matinee," which is used in conjunction with all big production showings, and has proven a prime favorite in York, with the town eagerly awaiting each change of show. The "Midnight Matinee's" angle is one that is deserving of study and in view of the fact that they are clicking in a good many places it would pay to look into them.

We have run a number of articles dealing with the way mats could be used to wonderful advantage providing the old bean was used in figuring out the lay-out, and we want to state again that attractive borders and lines always help the make-up while broken up portions of the mats when worked into the lines and co-ordinating with the type copy create a very pleasing word picture that will end up in bringing the reader to the theatre, which is what we are all trying to do in our newspaper ads, and it can be done by paying more attention to the little tricks that can be worked into copy by studying mats and copy carefully.

We hope one of these days to be able to devote a few pages of space to lay-out alone, as the vast amount of advertising we have on hand contains some ads that would do credit to any of the commercial advertisers, and when we run them you'll agree with us that amusement ads sure sell.

We want to thank Shewell for the very active interest he is showing in the CLUB and we're sure he's going to continue keeping up the peppy work at the York Theatres.

MANAGERS' ROUND TABLE CLUB

His Tie-Up With Local Merchants Aided Copperman

If we remember rightly it was not so long ago when we introduced Charles "Chuck" Copperman, manager of the Ohio Theatre, in Warren Ohio, and remarked that we could expect to hear some good things about him.

Well, anyway, "Chuck" has been pretty busy putting across the revamped version of "Phantom of the Opera" and we want to describe at this time the herald he used as part of his campaign in selling the picture.

"Chuck" used a gravure herald measuring 11x16. The front page of the herald bore the theatre name and play date, and was colored in flaming red. The two inner pages were devoted to scenes from the picture. The last page we note with interest carries some ads of the local dealers which leads us to believe that "Chuck" was on the alert as usual, and the dealers paid for the cost of printing the heralds.

The heralds were distributed throughout the town by boys and were also distributed at the theatre. The make-up of these heralds alone created considerable comment on the part of the patrons and we understand the picture went over with complete success.

Keep up the good work "Chuck" and we want you to know that the pages of the CLUB are always open for the passing on of all livewire activities, of showmen throughout the world, and you can rest assured if you have anything that merits passing on we're glad to do it. Let's hear from you concerning your activities more often "Chuck."

T. R. Tubman Picks Up Coffee Gag and Puts it Over Fine

It should certainly give Eddie Hitchcock and Sam Torgan quite a "kick" to know that Manager T. R. Tubman of the Regent, in Ottawa, Ont., made good use of their coffee serving gag to waiting crowds compelled to stand in the cold until the last evening performance went on.

Surely you all remember the stunt we are talking about? It appeared in the Club pages of MOTION PICTURE NEWS issue of January 4th, and if you could run through our recent mail you would be surprised to know how many live-wire showmen all over the country took advantage of the corking suggestion and spent the few cents it cost to keep the crowds happy and contented, besides warming their "tummies," until the show broke and let them get into the theatre.

Incidently, Tubman has been engineering some unusually fine stuff in connection with the Regent Theatre up there in Canada, but how come "T. R." that you have not been sending in the details to us? You know the ROUND TABLE CLUB is rather strong up in Canada and just a word from CLUB headquarters would bring an army of our loyal supporters down on your theatre, armed with any number of copies of the News. (Sounds like war is in the air???)

To become serious for just a moment, we know that everyone concerned must be tickled pink with the coffee stunt and its success wherever it has been used. To Eddie Hitchcock (we could become Ritzy and say Edwin) goes the credit for inaugurating the great gag and Sam Torgen too, of course, so we want them to know how well it is being used everywhere.

Dave Borland Says:

"I am pleased to notice that . . . the pages are increasing, which is ample proof that our CLUB is appreciated by the boys who earn their bread and butter in the Show-business."

"Hobby's New Hobby!"

A recent visitor to Club headquarters was Jack Hobby formerly in Long Island, for the Fox Metropolitan outfit and now promoted to the capacity of publicity and exploitation director for the New Jersey playhouses run by the same group.

We know that Hobby will have plenty of opportunities to pull some real fast stuff over there on the Jersey shore and with competition as keen as it is, we look forward to seeing some new angles put into action very shortly.

Good wishes are in order and we extend ours to Hobby with the hope that he continue the same brand of up-to-the-minute showmanship that has been a regular feature of all our recordings of the New Jersey members' activities in the Managers' Round Table Club.

Berg's Show Was Brought To House By Special 'Plane

I. M. Berg, manager of the Capitol Theatre in Lynn, Mass., secured some valuable front page newspaper publicity on "Flight" that did much toward exploiting the Capitol and the picture.

An airplane was chartered to carry the film from New York to Lynn, taking off at the Curtiss Flying Field and arriving in Lynn three and a half hours later, to be met by a battery of reporters and cameramen, in addition to a vast crowd of Lynn residents who had gathered to witness the occasion. A special midnight preview was arranged by Berg to show the film and it was a complete sell-out.

This is a very good angle and one that works in well with the picture's title, "Flight," tying up and lending itself neatly to the plan. Unfortunately the picture showing the arrival of the plane was too dark for reproduction, according to the front-page story. Berg established a precedent with his stunt, as this was the first time in the history of Lynn that films were delivered by airplane.

We're glad to note, Berg, that you're continuing those always interesting activities, and we know that under your guidance and showmanship that new box office records will be created at the Capitol, for your type of work is the kind that is bound to build up patronage.

Henry G. Santos Turns Out a First Rate House Organ

We want to hand a compliment at this time to Henry G. Santos, Manager of the Tip Top Theatre in Lihue, Kauai, Hawaii, for the constant improvement which his programs have shown.

We know that Henry has found many ideas from the ROUND TABLE CLUB helpful to him in putting over a house in a practically isolated section of the Showman's World, and the program we have received from him at this time certainly shows his progress as an up-to-the-minute showman. His front cover is composed of an attractive layout, well colored, showing an immense vase of flowers, with a space in the left hand corner of the page bearing the theatre's name. The two inside pages showing his attractions are made up in white and blue, with footnotes relating to the picture. The back page carries the admission prices and advance sale notice.

We notice that Henry has fallen in line with the policy of plugging short subjects which we have been advocating for so long by announcing a weekly Wednesday night show of Newsreels, cartoons and scenics in addition to the regular program. This idea is sure to click from the start and we want to hear more about it. How about it Henry? On your next letter give us a line on the reaction. And you might send us in a couple of photos too.

MANAGERS' ROUND TABLE CLUB

A. B. Lyman Laid Out Campaign and Picture Clicked

To help sell "The Grand Parade" to his patrons, striking setting was made up in the foyer of his house by A. B. Lyman, managing director of the Huntington Theatre in West Virginia as part of his exploitation campaign, by using a 7 ft. 6 in. cut-out of the star in the picture, worked into the background.

The cut-out shows Helen Twelvetrees, the star, dressed up in a snappy uniform and beating a bass drum she is carrying (the picture carries a minstrel story and she leads the parade), and with one hundred and eighty-seven lemon colored ten-watt lamps glaring down upon her in the setting you can bet that it was a mighty effective looking piece of display work, and as the uniform was decorated with different colored metallics, which reflected the rays of light, it was bound to catch the eye.

Another great stunt right in line with the minstrel type of picture, promoted by Lyman, was the hiring of a calliope which was driven around town and played the song hits from the picture and gave the show a whale of a lot of comment and attention. Considering the type of picture, the calliope is one of the best bets that can be used in connection with the exploitation and it would be a good move to use it if there's a possibility of picking one up somewhere.

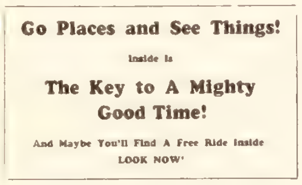
In addition to these live-wire stunts Lyman had a special canopy made up which he placed around his marquee and gave the front of the theatre an atmospheric effect in keeping with the picture, which in addition to selling the show to the town also made a fine "flash" for passing motorists, as it was made up in the circus "awning" colors.

We like this kind of peppy work Lyman is putting over down in West Va., and of course the town flocked to the theatre and laid down enough dough to jack receipts way up, for it's a safe bet that Lyman's campaign sold like a million and we'd like to hear more from him because we feel that when a man has got something that will aid his fellow showman in boosting their business too, he wants to pass it on and that's why we say, Let's hear more from you real soon, "A. B." How about it?

Raleigh's Work is Characterized By His Originality

A very active group of CLUB members are located in the Pacific Northwest section of the good old U. S. A. and one of the leading showmen of this organization is also located there. We refer of course to A. V. Raleigh, hustling manager of the Liberty Theatre in Olympia, Wash., whose up-to-the-minute activities are frequently recorded on these pages, and who now comes across with a gag that his fellow showmen may find useful.

The cut we are reproducing shows the envelop which formed part of the stunt Raleigh used for a novelty herald on "Seven Keys to Baldpate" when that picture played his house. The front of the envelope bore copy reading, "GO PLACES AND SEE THINGS! Inside is the Key to a Mighty Good Time! And Maybe You'll Find a Free Ride Inside. LOOK NOW!" and when the copy was centered, as you will notice in the cut, it made a mighty nice appearance.



Go Places and See Things!

Inside Is

The Key to A Mighty Good Time!

And Maybe You'll Find A Free Ride Inside
LOOK NOW'

Inside the envelope Raleigh "sprung" his gag by having a card measuring four by three inches printed in black on red stock, and bearing a real key. The copy on the card read, "SEVEN KEYS TO BALDPATE"—You are on your way to the greatest mystery story ever filmed. Richard Dix is the star of this big thrilling, laughing all talker." The herald also carried the date and in addition Raleigh injected a little novelty into it by adding a footnote which stated that if the number on the herald ended in "5" it would be good for one admission to the picture.

The herald gag attracted a lot of interest, especially with the real key and the "lucky number" being included in the stunt. We want to say a word of praise for the adroit way Raleigh handles his copy by making it easily readable and still carrying a selling power. Raleigh's house organ, "The Movie Talker," is also written in a very clear and concise manner and is well laid out. And since we found out long ago that Raleigh never does things by halves, it's unnecessary to hand out any more compliments, except to say that we're always glad to hear from him.

Adjectives Still Going Strong!!!

Maybe some of you boys thought you could exhaust our supply of adjectives, but we're here to say that you will have to go some. The supply will hold out as long as you want to accumulate a whole volume of them.

MANAGERS' ROUND TABLE CLUB

METROPOLITAN ACTIVITIES!

ACCORDING TO "FOX PROGRESS"

"Promotion Month" is now going full blast on the Fox Met. Playhouse chain. "Promote tie-ups," is the war-cry. And to start "Promotion Month" off with a bang, a bunch of men on the circuit have been rewarded for their integrity and showmanship by new positions.

Listed below you will find the names of a lot of those who are wearing great big smiles on their faces to-day. With all of them agreeing that maybe the show business isn't such a bad racket after all.

MR. RUDOLPH KRAMER, to division manager of Bronx, Manhattan and Portchester in addition to his regular duties.

MR. HERMAN STARR, from supervisor of the Bronx division to assistant to MR. HARRY GOLDBERG, general manager of the Up-State division.

MR. JACK HOBBY, from manager of the Playhouse Theatre, Great Neck, to Publicity Department representative.

MR. PAUL BINSTOCK, from manager of the Broadway Theatre, Astoria, L. I., to assistant district supervisor of Queens.

MR. JOHN NAJDEK, from assistant manager of the Broadway Theatre, Astoria, L. I., to house manager.

MR. WILLIAM SCOTT, from the manager of the Alba Theatre, Brooklyn, to the Republic Theatre, Brooklyn.

MR. GUS LAMPE, formerly manager of the Culver Theatre, Brooklyn, to district supervisor upstate territory.

MR. IRVING SILVERMAN, formerly Assistant of the Marlboro Theatre, now instructor upstate service.

MR. IRVING FINEMAN, promoted to manager of the Ozone Park Theatre, under Mr. MacLevy.

MR. IRVING GRISHMAN, from assistant manager of the Capitol Theatre, Brooklyn, to manager

MR. J. COHEN, from assistant manager of the Riviera Theatre, Brooklyn, placed in charge of Atlantic Theatre, under the supervision of Mr. McCabe.

Reporting the topics of the day concerning Brooklyn, LOU BRANDT, in his paragraph, shouts:

McCABE, managing the Carlton Theatre, is using the Wurlitzer again. He discovered that one of his ushers possessed musical talent and now the boy grinds out tunes for the merrymakers of the Carlton Glee Club, who induce the patrons to join in the do-re me's.

GIFT NIGHTS are becoming a habit with most of the managers of the Brooklyn end of the string. SUCHMAN of the Highway Theatre promoted one every night in the week. WEISER, handling the Glenwood, has a furniture night, CHAMPLIN, at the Leader, gives away radios, FRIEDMAN, in charge of the Colonial passes out bread and still another FRIEDMAN at the Fortway, slips candy to his patrons. But the most interesting item concerns MONTY MacLEVY, at the Cross Bay, who gives away MONEY. WE NEVER THOUGHT THAT ANDY MELLON WOULD BE SWAYED BY MONTY'S PERSUASIVE POWERS.

CHARLES STEINMAN, GEORGE LANGBART and GEORGE DAVIS, District Managers, are centering their efforts on a campaign to cut down sign expenses and still manage to have attractive displays. We know one way to lessen the cost of cut-outs. Play Singer's midgets.

LEW PRESTON AND GUS LAMPIER, recently promoted, have left Brooklyn for the Bronx and Upstate respectively. And from where we're sitting, it looks like both of them are upstate, the Bronx being located where it is.

COMPETITION in this fair city waxes hotter with every new change of picture, with the managers all trying to outdo each other in making up attractive displays.

JACK ALLEN of the Vaude. Dept., promoted an "Amateur Film" over at the Republic, Brooklyn, which had the residents of that territory all agog, with visions of becoming Gloria Swansons and Ronald Colemans, but unfortunately, the screen aspirants, when taking their tests on the Republic stage in full view of the patrons, were few and far between when it came to an artistic display of histrionics, though we will say pulchritude was very much in evidence among the males and frails.

In the Upstate Division we discover that:

AL BECKERICH, manager of the Strand recently had a fire in the booth but the quick thinking of the projectionist saved the day and the patrons were entirely unaware of the conflagration.

TOM OLSON, as most everybody knows by now, engineered a corking exploitation campaign, in conjunction with AL BECKERICH, on the world premiere of "Happy Days" at Niagara Falls.

JOHN MARTIN is the latest manager to be added to the Upstate ranks. With IRVING SILVERMAN also going up there, but to supervise house service.

HARRY YETTE, managing the Liberty in Herkimer, hooked up a steam pipe on his marquees as a gag for "Hot for Paris," and one of the local cops turned in a fire alarm. YETTE is still trying to tell them why there couldn't possibly be a fire.

WILLIAM J. MacFARLANE promoted some valuable tie-ups on "Sunny Side Up," when that picture played the Playhouse at Canandaigua (phew!), N. Y.

M. D. LAURY, managing the Avon in Utica, lined the house up for a lot of free publicity by a tie-up with one of the classiest department stores on "The Virginian."

A GOOD GAG is the tie-up ideas they are running in order to aid the manager in selling his shows. Nearly every possible kind of tie-up is listed and the stunt should prove a big help.

A couple of Jersey pick-ups, to let you know:

MAURICE BROOKS, managing the Franklin in Nutley, cleaned up on Amos n' Andy by hooking up the blackface stars' broadcast with his Erpi apparatus and shooting it through the movietone horns. Just like a regular stage show.

THE MANAGER of the new Rockland Theatre in Nyack is working hard to sell his shows and grabbing all available tie-ups.

We wonder whether DAN LEE, FREDDY SCHROEDER, BILL MADDEN, CHARLIE LITT and all the other managers whose activities helped us make up a page on last month's "Progress," have been too busy to be represented in this month's edition. Tut-Tut. This'll never do.

JACK HOBBY is the new Publicity Representative for the New Jersey division, which prompts us to murmur, "like Clara Bow, such popularity must be deserved."

RUDOLPH KRAMER is the newly appointed Division Manager of the Bronx. To MR. KRAMER, MR. BINSTOCK, MR. STARR, and the rest of the alert men whose activities have won them recognition from MR. JOE LEO, we offer our congratulations.

Thoughts for To-morrow:

Colored Easter Egg Matinee for the Kiddies.

Balloon Matinees.

Spring Fashion Revue.

Morning Novelty Shows.

A Real Spring Stage Wedding.

Preparations for Spring Cleaning Around the Theatre.

Rabbit Matinee for the Youngsters.

Kites for the Kids—Spring Is Coming.

(Thanks to T. O. for the last two)

MANAGERS' ROUND TABLE CLUB

Walter Decker Has Always Been Alert As Biz. Testifies

This rather poor snapshot will have to answer the purpose for introducing you to Walter Decker, Manager of the City Opera House in Frederick, Maryland, and a real "dyed in the wool" showman whose activities will make good reading on the pages in the future.

As absolute evidence that he is ever alert to capitalize on any angle that presents itself to increase the receipts of his box office, we need only call your attention to the stunt he pulled in connection with "Dynamite" wherein he advertised a contest in conjunction with the newspaper along the lines of a similar stunt used by George Shewell and set forth in the MOTION PICTURE NEWS, ROUND TABLE CLUB pages, issue of January 18.

You will note on the accompanying cut of his advertising that he asks his patrons and the theatregoers of Frederick how they would like to write an 'ad," and he gained many inches of publicity and advertising in connection with this stunt. It went over marvelously and the extreme left and right "ad" of the group, as you will note from the wording at the top of these "ads," credit two of the winners of the contest.

In addition to using it so successfully himself he advises us that other managers on the Stanley-Crandall Circuit are also making use of it in the various theatres in towns covered by their district.

There is one thing we rather like about the out-of-town managers of the Washington Circuit of Warner Brothers houses, and that is the formation of their own group which they have titled the "George Skouras Group," and consisting of Frank M. Boucher, Hagerstown, City Manager. Among the others in-others included in this group are Allen Bachrach, of the Maryland and Colonial Theatres in Hagerstown; H. A. Doman, Apollo and Central Theatres, Martensburg; Lou Kusner, of the Arcade and Strand Theatres in Waynesboro, and Ashley M. Abendshein and Mr. Decker of the Tivoli and City Opera House in Frederick.

This is a marvelous gag and is unquestionably creating a wonderful spirit for the entire group of managers operating out of the Washington office.

We have many other interesting things to say about George, but we are not going to try to tell it to you all at one time, so, for the present we are going to be content with letting you make his personal acquaintance as well as showing you how he jumped at the opportunity of following a good ROUND TABLE CLUB idea and by adding a little of his own "thunder" watching it click with tremendous success. You will hear more about him in an early issue, but in the meantime we want Walter to know that we appreciate his marvelous CLUB sentiment and hope that his contributions will be a steady part of the ROUND TABLE CLUB pages. So long for the present, Walter, and remember us to Boucher and the rest of the crowd down your way.

Assistant Managers as Members!

(Reprinted by request)

In order that we may dispel a wrong impression, we want all assistant theatre managers to know they are eligible for membership in the Round Table Club, PROVIDING their manager certifies as to the position they hold.

Many assistant managers have important duties in their respective theatres, such as publicity and exploitation directors, treasurers, etc. We, therefore, feel that their activities are many times just as important to the Club pages as the managers.

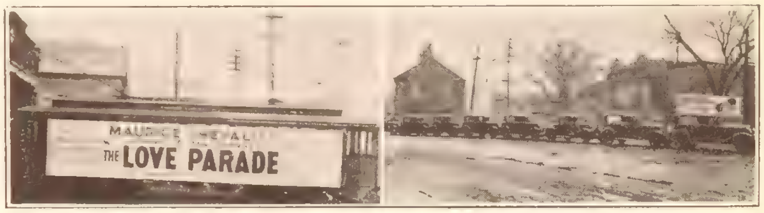
The reasons we make this one provision is that it is difficult for us to know whether an applicant who calls himself an assistant manager is really just that. We can check up on the managers, but the managers must help us check up on the assistants and we would rather they expressed their willingness before their assistants joined the Club.

M.R.T.C.

Herb Grove Added More B. O. Shekels By His Peppy Work

The two pictures, reproduced below, are ample testimony that Herb Grove, manager of the Fort Theatre out in Rock Island, Ill., is not missing a single trick when it comes to exploiting his theatre's attractions.

In connection with "The Love Parade," he incorporated many novel angles to create interest in the picture and stimulate b. o. attendance. How successful he was is not much of a matter of guess-work. Exploitation of the kind shown here is pretty good proof that his efforts were not in vain. Right Herb?



The parade of new automobiles covered, not only the entire city, but went into neighboring towns as well. As the photo shows, each car was dressed with sale-selling copy about the picture and it must have made the home-owners think that the circus was in town ahead of time.

The street car banner gag while cited many times before on the Club pages, was equally effective for Grove and permitted a type of advertising not generally seen around Rock Island. It's really not the stunt itself that counts as much as the novel effect it has upon the customers whose attention it was meant to attract. So from Herb's viewpoint, as well as our own, this was a little money very well spent. "Little" money is emphasized, because investigation has revealed that such tie-ups can be effected at little or no cost, depending on your "pull" with the street car company.

Shoot along some more stuff Grove. We find it interesting material for the Club pages every time and we rather like the way you handle your various campaigns. You might also convey our regards to all the boys out your way who happen to be Club boosters. Sometimes we feel that we are neglecting them but it's only because of the rush of work here in Club headquarters. Thanks.

WHAT ARE YOU WAITING FOR?

MORE NEW MEMBERS!

BOB ROTHROCK is the manager of the Strand Theatre in Shenandoah, Pa., and since we have a hunch that competition will be keen around that district we like to learn how Bob "keeps them coming." So if you'll just let us have a little letter about yourself and your work, Bob, we'll start you off right.

Wear Your Club Pin! ! !

PAUL KNOLL is the manager of the Richard Theatre in Flint, Mich., and we'd like to have a photo and a little story about his career in the show game so that we can let the rest of the CLUB meet him in a regular introduction.

Wear Your Club Pin! ! !

A. V. MADISON is the manager of the Strand Theatre at Port Jervis, N. Y., and with Sidney Finkelstein proposing him for membership we feel that we have acquired another member who will be an active contributor to the pages of the CLUB. And if "A. V." will send us a photo of himself we'll publish it in the pages and let the rest of the boys see him.

Wear Your Club Pin! ! !

ALBERT J. SINER is the assistant manager of the Imperial Theatre in Pawtucket, R. I., for the Publix outfit and working under a peppy manager like Joseph Borenstein we predict that before long he'll be running a house by himself. Let's hear something concerning yourself, Albert.

Wear Your Club Pin! ! !

JOSEPH KANE is the manager of the Princess Theatre in Philadelphia, Pa. To keep up with the activities of some of the boys in Philly Joseph will sure have to be continually on the jump. Which is why we may expect to hear some excellent accounts of his activities. And also his formula for "packing them in."

Wear Your Club Pin! ! !

J. B. RILEY manages the Savoy Theatre in Bethlehem, Pa. We want to welcome him into the organization and we hope he'll keep us posted on his activities. In order that we may give you a proper introduction, "J.B.," why not send us in a photo of yourself and a little note setting forth from A to Z all the interesting things you can recall about yourself.

Wear Your Club Pin! ! !

JAMES P. GELSTON is the assistant manager of the Liberty Theatre in Pittsburgh, Pa., and though we have formally introduced Gelston to the rest of the CLUB, he too must pass through this portal. We want Gelston to know that we think working with a live wire like E. J. Golden will go a long way towards helping to reach that goal of manager. Good luck, Gelston.

Wear Your Club Pin! ! !

LEONARD GORDON is the manager of the Palace Theatre in Newport News, Va., and he tells us that he enjoys the CLUB pages in the NEWS immensely. We feel, now that Leonard is an active member, that he too is going to be represented on the pages. Let's have a little dope on yourself and send us in a photo so that we can let the rest of the gang see you.

Wear Your Club Pin! ! !

MRS. C. E. LEDFORD is the manager of the Arcade Theatre in Evergreen, Ala. We want to extend a cordial welcome to Mrs. Ledford and express the wish that she become an active member. We'd like to hear from you again, Mrs. Ledford, concerning your activities at the Arcade.

J. K. O'DONNELL is the manager of the Rialto Theatre in Lowell, Mass., and with a city like Lowell for a background, or perhaps we should say work ground, there's no reason why we shouldn't be able to record some up to the minute showman activities from there. Don't forget, "J.K.," we're counting on you to bring home the bacon.

Wear Your Club Pin! ! !

L. L. CHAMBERS manages the Broadway Theatre in Newburgh, N. Y., and if memory doesn't fail us, many a good gag has come forth from the Upstate district, what with Tom Olson and many other members stepping high, wide and handsome. So we hope Chambers is going to fall right in line with them and we'll have to work overtime setting forth his activities.

Wear Your Club Pin! ! !

RAY S. NOWITZKY is no stranger to your Chairman or the rest of the CLUB, for news of Ray's doings as he pursues his daily duties as manager of the State Theatre in Reading, Pa., has been set forth many times already on these pages, but since everyone must at some time or another receive one of these little "intros"—here's Ray's.

Wear Your Club Pin! ! !

G. H. HINMAN manages the Diana Theatre in Medina, N. Y., and since he is located right near the hunting grounds of a lot of peppy showmen, he should be able to grab hold of some new angles and pass them along to us. So that we can give the CLUB a little more news about you, Hinman, why not send us a photo of yourself, and a letter setting forth in detail your career in show business, for judging by the send-off E. E. Bair gives you, it should make interestng reading.

Wear Your Club Pin! ! !

RAFAEL MUNOZ is another of the foreign members to enroll in the ROUND TABLE CLUB. Munoz manages a 1,000 seat sound house in San Juan, P. R., of which district Pedro Gelabert is the regional Chairman. We are very much interested in hearing of Munoz' work and we would also appreciate a photo of himself by return mail. We extend you a cordial welcome into the CLUB, Munoz, and let's hear from you very soon.

Wear Your Club Pin! ! !

J. N. BROWELL manages the Park Theatre in the busy town of Palmerton, Pa., and since we have introduced Browell to you before, we can only state at this time that we hope he will continue the active interest he has shown in the CLUB'S activities, and we want him to know that he has plenty of live wire fellow members in the State of Pensylvania, who, we feel sure, share with us in wishing hm luck.

THE Club is anxious to publish photographs of every member and would, therefore, appreciate receiving as many as possible for use in future issues of the Club columns. If you have not already done so, PLEASE send us your own photo at once. Thank you.

"Puttin' on the Ritz" is the present $2.00 sensation of N. Y.

Newspapers praised it as best all around entertainment of the year.

"Richman puts over his songs like a million dollars," said the Graphic.

"Boy, O boy, will this one clean up at the box-office—and rightfully," said the News. "The best talkie-singie to reach Broadway."

"A box-office hit. A triumph for United Artists. A picture that gets under your skin," said the World.

"Lively, tuneful and effective songs that stand every chance of a deserved radio, phonograph and orchestral popularity." —Tribune.

"Joan Bennett so beautiful audience broke into audible spasms every time she walked across the screen." —Post.

"Jimmy Gleason is grand and Lilyan Tashman amusing." —Journal.

"'Lummox' is a great picture. Quite possibly the greatest picture the talkies have produced. A classic. Is brave and fine, sincerely interesting, gripping and satisfying." —Globe-Democrat.

"The talkies have shown nothing more absorbing. A picture of unusual entertainment quality." —San Francisco Call and Bulletin.

"The picture at Loew's this week is one of the best and most beautifully made movies of this year. It stands in the line of supermovies that are 'super'." —St. Louis Times.

"Will leave its imprint upon the memory of all who see it. Miss Westover's portrayal one of the most profoundly impressive that the screen—silent or sound—has given us." —Examiner.

"Woman should fall heavily for 'Lummox.' Will find it vital, unusual and decidedly lovely." —Louisville Courier Journal.
